Vernon and Gordon Hunt returned to Canada in 1945 after serving, Vernon with the R.C.A.F. and Gordon with 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion. Their home prior to the war was Sault Ste. Marie but Peterborough looked very attractive to them on their first visit and the decision was made to stay. The apparent lack of building cleaning service at the time prompted them to enter the business in which they have been engaged for the past seven and a half years. As the business began to take shape they were joined by a third brother, Norman.

From their inexperience at the start of this venture they have, through the years, by their untiring efforts, become specialists in the building maintenance field. The growth of 'Hunt Bros. Cleaning Contractors' has made it necessary to extend the facilities of the business to insure that the customers receive the same 'good work' which has made this expansion necessary.

100 MPH Chase

GUELPH (CP) — A suspected auto thief was chased Sunday by a police cruiser at speeds of more than 100 miles an hour before he was stopped by a volley of shots, one of which hit him in the hip. Hespeler Police apprehended Henry Rae, 27, of Guelph on the outskirts of the city after a 1¼-mile chase along the Hespeler-Guelph highway.

Cornwall Has Long History Full Of Color

Cornwall, long the haunt of artists, became a music centre as well when British musicians and composers gathered there in June for the St. Ives Festival of Music and the Arts.

The week-long festival will, it is hoped, became an annual event for the old fishing port of St. Ives.

Cornwall, once an isolated corner of England west of the River Tamar, is popular with travellers. It has some of the most impressive coastal scenery in Britain as well as excellent beaches. Palm trees flourish in a climate warmed by the Gulf Stream. Visitors have dubbed it the "Cornish Riviera."

CLOSEST TO CANADA

The narrow, 75-mile-long peninsula of Cornwall is the part of England nearest the New World. The Atlantic Ocean pounds its north coast cliffs, while the English Channel washes its softer southern shores and estuaries. Wild moorlands and wooded river valleys lie inland, but the sea is never far away and Cornish people are a seafaring lot.

In addition to St. Ives and Newquay, quaint north coast fishing villages such as Boscastle, Port Isaac and Padstow nestle among crags, headlands and beaches. At the tip of Cornwall, where the Longships Lighthouse guides passing liners, Land's End thrusts a bleak granite fist toward the Isles of Scilly.

On Mount's Bay, tucked under its southern flank, are big, sophisticated Penzance and tiny Mousehole. Beyond Lizard Point, southernmost part of England, the coast stretches past the port of Falmouth, past Polperro, once popular with smugglers, and Fowey, famous medieval port situated on a beautiful estuary.

FISH AND MINING

"Fish, tin and copper," is an old Cornish toast, and mining and fishing, with smuggling as a side line in the old days, have always been traditional Cornish ways of life. Even in ancient times, Cornwall was renowned for its tin. Copper mining operations have dwindled. Fishing, too, is on the wane and net lofts are being turned into ice cream parlors while painters' easels dot the wharves.

Cornwall, where the old Celtic tongue has left many lilting place names, is rich in folklore and legend. Tradition places King Arthur's birthplace at Tintagel Castle, also associated with tales of Tristan and Iseult. Sir Bedivere is supposed to have thrown Arthur's sword, Excalibur, into Dozmary Pool high on Bodmin Moor.

No area in England is richer in prehistoric remains. There are many traces of the early Christian era as well. Royal Cornwall became England's first dukedom, traditionally given to the sovereign's eldest son. In World War II, it again figured prominently in history as troops left Cornish harbors to invade Normandy.

Viceroy To Visit Fete

STRATFORD (CP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey will visit the Shakespearean Festival here July 21 and 22. The governor-general will see the production of "All's Well That Ends Well" on July 21. On July 22nd Mr. Massey will make a complete tour of the theatre and will visit the festival offices.

Leaves Rich Estate

OTTAWA (CP)—Hon. Frederic E. Bronson, Privy Councillor and former chairman of the Federal District Commission who died last April 13, left an estate valued at $1,734,123, it was learned here Saturday. Net income of the estate has been left to his widow, Mrs. Marjorie A. Bronson.

Lawyer Dies

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Harold Logan, prominent lawyer and former president of the Niagara Falls Liberal Association, died Saturday after a lengthy illness. He was 59. Mr. Logan was appointed a King's Counsel in 1937.

STARS IN FESTIVAL—Alec Guinness, British stage and film star, wears his costume as the King of France in "All's Well That Ends Well," one of the plays in the Stratford Shakespearean Festival which starts a five-week run July 13. The play, directed by Tyrone Guthrie, is being staged in a stylized modern dress. The other play, "Richard III," is in period costume.

U.S. State Department Settles Book-Burning Row

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. state department's stand in the book-burning controvery has been settled after considerable indecision.

Officials of the Eisenhower administration say now there will be no withdrawal from the new position approved by State Secretary John Foster Dulles in the row over books in U.S. libraries overseas.

The new policy is that books will be judged on their contents and usefulness even if they are charged with controversy and the authors are Communist.

As might be expected, however, Senator Joseph McCarthy thinks the policy is "completely ridiculous" and he intends to challenge it in the Senate investigations subcommittee, of which he is chairman. McCarthy has called Dr. Robert L. Johnson, head of the International Information Administration ,to explain the stand next Wednesday.

NO BACKING DOWN

Johnson has indicated that there will be no backing down this time by the administration.

It was McCarthy's committee which first raised the question of which books should be kept on the shelves of the 189 U.S. libraries in foreign countries. He charged there were 30,000 "Communist books" in the libraries.

Officials of the state department apparently became panicky on hearing this and many books were removed from the libraries. Dulles admitted later about a dozen had actually been burned in Singapore and Sydney, Australia.

There followed a series of 10 other dirctives from the department to try to clear up the confusion which had led to removal even of detective stories because they happen to have been written by suspected Communists.

Finally, directive no. 12 was issued and state department officials hope this will be the last.

Neighbors Honor Sidney Wallace

COLDSPRINGS—(ENS) — Sidney Wallace was surprised on Friday night when neighbors gathered at his home for a social evening, prior to his departure.

The evening was spent watching television. Before lunch the following address was read by Mrs. C. Timlin, after which a pen and pencil set was presented by Mrs. F. Ford.

Mr. Wallace is moving to Toronto at the end of the month, having sold his cottage to Mr. and Mrs. C. Harnden and family of Cobourg.

Finds Ancient Ruins

NAPLES (AP)—A leading Italian archaeologist announced Sunday the discovery of ruins of an ancient Roman city, which he termed "the most important archaeological discovery of Roman antiquity since Pompeii." Prof. Amedeo Maiuri said his workers uncovered the ruins at Baia, 11 miles northwest of Naples.

Face Intensified War Now On Indo-China Battlefront

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western powers are confronted with the prospect of intensified war in Indo-China as the conflict in Korea slacks off toward a probable armistice.

This fact stood out today as foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France neared conclusion of Washington talks. Final discussion and firm decisions, if any, were still to be made on such diverse issues as Soviet policy, possible Big Three and Big Four conferences, and Far Eastern problems.

The three were scheduled to resume full sessions this morning. The closing meetings will be held Tuesday. More two-way talks between the U.S. and France and the U.S. and Britain are also set for today and Tuesday.

At one such meeting Sunday at the home of Secretary of State Dulles, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault told Dulles there has been a sharp increase in the amount of supplies being received by Communist forces in Indo-China from Red China, beginning about three months ago.

U.S. officials noted that this timing coincided roughly with resumption of serious efforts for a truce in Korea.

At the same time, Bidault laid before Dulles, with obvious hope of increased U.S. assistance, a plan developed by the French commander, Gen. Henri Navarre, for going on the offensive against the Communists in Indo-China.

Informants had the impression that if the French carry it out they may expect favorable U.S. consideration of requests for more dollar aid.

The meeting between Dulles and Bidault followed a similar session Dulles had Saturday with the acting British foreign minister, the Marquess of Salisbury. Lord Salisbury had a sore throat Sunday but aides said he would be on hand for today's discussions.

Centre Hastings Orangemen Carry Fife, Drum In Tweed

MARMORA (ENS)—The village of Tweed witnessed on Saturday afternoon, its first Orange walk for 21 years when 38 lodges paraded the principal streets in ideal weather for a march.

The commemoration was put on by Sulphide LOL 1135 as the annual event of Centre Hastings Orange Association. The lodges with their [illegible] and drum bands in addition to a kiltie band with ladies of LOBA lodges interspersed carrying colored umbrellas presented a colorful spectacle to the many who lined the streets in maintenance of the old tradition.

They marched in this order: Selby LOL 2281, Napanee Girls JOL 283, Napanee LOL 245, Lime Lake LOL 1113, Marlbank LOL 2285, Roblin LOL 524, Marmora Girls JOL 329, Marmora (Harmony) LOBA 600, Marmora Boys JOL 34, Marmora LOL 319, Tanner LOL 509, Springbrook LOL 442, Tyendinaga LOL 1295, Leinster (Ebenezer) LOL 974, Sheffield LOL 159, Tamworth LOBA 358, Eldorado LOBA 1185, Eldorado LOL 517, Malone (Nickle) LOL 285, Plainfield LOL 179, Allen Settlement LOL 253, Queensboro LOBA 465, Queensboro LOL 437, Hazzards Corners LOL 1133, Flinton LOL 907, Millbridge LOBA 409, Millbridge LOL 1070, Madoc LOBA 1193, Madoc LOL 160, West Huntingdon LOL 300, Downey LOL 425, Ivanhoe (Beulah) LOL 435, Stirling LOBA 655, Stirling LOL 110, Sulphide LOBA 1203, Bogart (Sulphide) LOL 1135, Hungerford (Elliott) LOL 392, Moneymore (Carleton) LOL 838.

The grounds of Tweed Agricultural Society were the site for the assemblage. The arrangements for the dinner in the exhibition building enabled the large number to enjoy the meal served by the host lodge. The large refreshment booth was operated by Sulphide LOBA whose mistress this year is Mrs. Beatrice Cassibo.

Many veterans of the order added another year to the long list of commemorations which they have attended.

Thomas Freeburn of Flinton with 67 years membership who joined at the age of 18; William Preston of Tanner Lodge who joined the order 62 years ago at the age of 20; and John Moffatt of Malone Lodge, father of County Master Gordon Moffatt of 52 years membership. Others were sighted here and there who have reached four score years and thereabouts who seemed to be enjoying reminiscences doubtless of the days when white and dapple grey well groomed steeds were more in the picture on the 12th of July than now. The youngest initiated Orangeman on parade was Jimmy Deline, eight year old son of Orange parents. He carried the banner of Marmora JOL 34 for a considerable distance on the parade and was reluctant to give up his assignment to an older lad for the remainder of the route.

Speeches from the grandstand were under chairmanship of County Master G. Moffatt, who in introductory remarks congratulated Sulphide on the day's arrangements and told the Protestants assembled to stand by their guide of life, the Bible. Nelson Howard, WM of the Sulphide Lodge extended greetings and thanked all the sisters and brethren who had labored for the success they were enjoying. He was followed by Reeve Clarence Graham of Tweed who said Tweed was happy to have catered to the order that day. It had been demonstrated to the village what the Orange order is like.

Bro. Archie Sinclair also of Tweed remarked that Sulphide Lodge had risen to the occasion that day. He felt that every rightful thinking Protestant should be in the ranks of the order and commemorate the 12th. He knew the Orange association to be founded on the Word of God and that it was going to go forward.

No two great organizations were closer together than the Orange order and the church. He closed with a plea for loyal support of the mother country and our beloved Queen.

Wor. Bro. Harry Coulter touched upon the Coronation of Elizabeth II and the obligation taken by her and congratulated Sulphide lodge on its achievement that day.

The Rev. W. K. Pace of Tweed said he felt the Orange blood stirring in his veins though as yet he was not a member of the order. His subject was "Building a Bridge." From the story of the Good Samaritan he drew the inference that the bridge should be an expensive one—that of reconciliation, a wide bridge with no one way condition and an enduring [illegible] but also for children yet unborn. "God hath made of one blood all the nations of the earth" and in our religion we should have the international outlook.

Harold Vardy of Sulphide said it had been proven that day what a small lodge like Sulphide could do when it undertook a celebration. He expressed appreciation of Nelson Howard's leadership. He also suggested that Centre Hastings County seek to provide a scholarship annually to assist a student for the Christian ministry and also felt the county should appoint the Saturday before the 12th for its annual commemoration.

Past Grand Master W. E. Tummon congratulated Lady Orange Lodges on their smart appearance.

Roscoe Robson, MPP, touched upon the recent report which was passed to President Eisenhower that 8,000 of the Protestant clergy were serving the Communist apparatus and also said that the Orangemen of today were just as loyal to Protestantism as they have ever been.

Right Wor. Fred Bateman, immediate Past Grand Master of Ontario East, brought Grand Lodge greetings and also introduced Bro. Rev. J. McMurray of Foxboro who substituted for Grand Chaplain Rev. F. C. Beazer of Carrying Place, advertised as chief speaker. Bro. McMurray spoke on Marantha from 1 Cor. 16-32, supposedly a greeting of the early Christians pertaining to the second coming of Christ. He contrasted the greetings of today which convey no Christian sense as they did in those early days.

One Minor Accident On Glorious Twelfth

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Only one minor accident was reported during the Orange day celebrations in this town on Saturday. It occurred near the fair grounds when a car driven by Alf. Simpson, 45, of R.R. 2, Campbellford, travelling north on Front St., struck a light truck that had been parked and suddenly pulled out from the curb.

Driver of the truck, owned by a sheet metal company of Thurlow township, was Maxwell Harrow of RR 6, Thurlow. Damage to the two vehicles amounted to less than $50. No changes have yet been laid by Provincial Constable Archie Eady who investigated.

All the girls passed their junior swimming test of the Red Cross and Madeleine surprised all in attendance by winning the swimming meet cup open to junior swimmers.

Find Popular Demand For Power To Promote Scotland's Economy

By WILLIAM J. HUMPHREYS

EDINBURGH — Evidence thus far presented to the Royal Commission of Scottish Affairs shows that there is a popular demand for national powers to promote Scotland's economy, but none of it is politically hot enough to encourage the home rule cause espoused by most Scottish newspapers.

Apart from the Scottish Nationalist Party, which has proposed secession without arousing voters, and the Scottish Covenant Association, which also lacks a single member of parliament to represent its case for a national parliament such as Northern Ireland's, it appears that most Scots would be satisfied with minor concessions by the United Kingdom government.

North - of - the - border reports that there is a Scottish Republican Army in the making provoke laughter. "Six men and a boy," was the comment of an Edinburgh official on a London newspaper's exclusive story that it had interviewed the captain of a 100-man "S.R.A." camp in a hideaway glen.

To find out what Scotland wants, with particular emphasis on the northern kingdom's problem of 63,000 unemployed, is the purpose of the 15-member Royal Commission in this capital of the Highland country. The commission is reviewing the whole conduct of the government in Scotland. It is to report its findings to the United Kingdom administration in London.

The commission was not set up to hear straightforward pleas for autonomy, but evidence in this political field was not ruled out if it was introduced to show that necessary reforms could best be achieved under a separate government.

DEMAND FOR HOME RULE

With the exception of Nationalist groups. none of the organizations representing the political and industrial life of Scotland has appeared before the Royal Commission with a case for either secession or home rule.

Evidence submitted by the convention of Royal Burghs, for example, included a firm "no, thank you," to the Nationalists' proposal of home rule.

Representatives of the chartered towns, however, were equally opposed to London's direction of nationalized industries — transport, fuel and power — north of the border.

Back of the demand for authority over nationalized industries is the conviction that Scotland's railways show a profit of more than £1,000,000 ($2,800,000) annually, but that little of the black ink entry is set aside for purely Scottish investment. Scots think such money should be available for their dream of good communications—a highway bridge over the Firth of Forth and better roads in the Highlands.

Also opposed to any suggestion of political separation were the Scottish council of the Federation of British Industries and the Scottish Trades Union Congress. Their views on promoting Scotland's economy, however, were altogether too English to suit nationally-minded newspapers.

These papers quickly pointed out that of the 433 members of the Employers' Association, 55 per cent had permanent factory interest in England and Wales. The industrialists' council was rapped in addition for submitting its report to the central federation in London before submitting it to the Royal Commission.

The Scottish trade union executive was taken to task for its recommendation that the Scottish economic conference be resuscitated. The editorial rebuff was that Scotland already has suffered from too many of these purely advisory councils and it would be in the country's best interests to let the abandoned economic conference rest in peace.

Even if the Royal Commission proves nothing, according to one Scottish journalist, it has shown that London. has learned the lesson that the sure way of transforming minority nationalist movements into majorities is to treat them with contempt.

Sacrament Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"SACRAMENT" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world including First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough on Sunday.

The Golden Text was "Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." (1 Corinthians 5:8). Selections from the Bible included the following: Philippians 3:7, 8 to :10. "What things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death;" Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" included the following "To kkeep the commandments of our Master and follow his example, is our proper debt to him and the only worthy evidence of our gratitude for all that he has done."

EVEN MORE BLOOMS

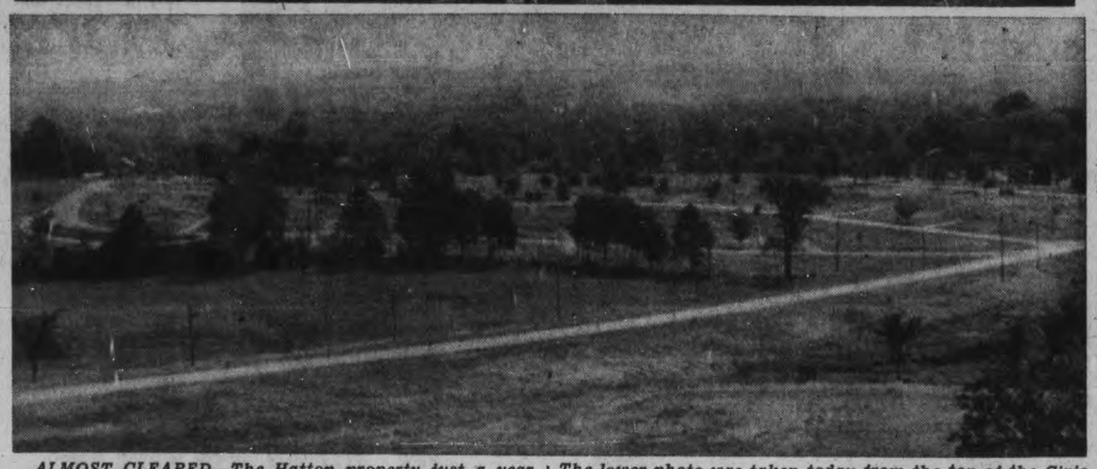
A Madonna lily that is not quite as tall as the biggest reported but with the most blooms yet was reported by Mrs. S. D. Carver who lives on Highway 28 just south of the city limits. Her lily is 53 inches tall and has 26 blooms on it.

HIT BY RICOCHET

As a result of a back yard accident at his home on Sophia St. Saturday night, Wilfred Lentz, 14, was taken to Civic Hospital where a BB pellet was removed from below his right eye. The lad was shooting at a tin can when the pellet ricocheted and struck him. Two stitches were required to close the wound.

REMEMBERED BY LODGE

Robert S. Wright, 495 Albert St., was prevented by infirmity from taking part in the 12th of July celebration at Cobourg Saturday. It was the first parade he had ever missed from the beginning of his membership. Mr. Wright is now 87. He is a member of Duke of Manchester Lodge. Their remembrance of him by calling at his home with a basket of fruit and a card of good wishes deeply affected him.



TOP 'LUNGE

Gerald V. Brobst and wife Josephine, of Doylestown, O., landed the season's largest 'lunge in the Kawarthas on Saturday evening. The fish, a 29-pounder, struck near Red Rock, just in front of Fred Latchoff's Tall Cedar Lodge, Pigeon Lake, where they are guests. This is Mr. Brobst's third season in the district but his first big fish. "It was worth waiting for," he said.

FORESTRY STAFF COMPLETE

With the recent arrival of secretary Mrs. Mary Strickland at the newly-established regional Lands and Forests office, the working staff is now complete. Mrs. Strickland was at the Lindsay district office for seven years and is temporarily working in Lindsay two days a week and the balance of the time here. The office is under direction of regional forester Ben Greenwood, with zone forester John Bell and conservation officer Stan Windsor sharing desk space.

ALMOST CLEARED—The Hatton property just a year ago was covered with small homes. There are two and a half left and they will be off the wartime housing site by Thursday. The aerial photo was taken just a year ago. The lower photo was taken today from the top of the Civic Hospital. The site is being divided by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation into 95 larger lots for sale in an approved plan. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Two Vehicles Tumble Into Ditches

Occupants Escape Serious Injury; Truck, Car Damaged

Two vehicles were badly damaged in weekend accidents on Peterborough roads. One, a light truck owned and driven by Vern McFadden, 38, of 759 Chamberlain St., flipped on Erskine Ave. into an irrigation ditch, while a 19-year-old car driven by Clarence Collins, 17, of 119 Robinson was demolished when it rolled into a seven foot ditch.

McFadden was driving west on the Concession Rd. Saturday night when he turned right to drive north on Erskine. He struck the west shoulder, lost control of his truck, and it toppled over the ditch bank falling 12 feet into a two-foot creek.

McFadden and his wife, a passenger, escaped uninjured. PC Wilfred Perry investigated.

PUT ON BRAKES

Collins was driving west on Maria early Sunday morning when he braked near the intersection of Armour Rd. after crossing the canal bridge. His car skidded 65 feet, rolled over twice and came to rest in a seven foot ditch.

He also escaped uninjured. Constable Edward Patterson investigated.

A three car accident north of the intersection of George and Charlotte Sts. resulted in damage estimated at $325. Involved were Donald Nurse, 24, of RR 1, Omemee; Robert Wilson, 28, of 598 Reid, and F. Bennington, 25, of Reid St., Lakefield.

Wilson and Bennington were both stopped in the line of traffic facing north, north of the intersection's traffic lights. Nurse, coming up from behind, failed to stop in time to avoid striking Wilson's car which went into the rear of Bennington's.

PC Louis Rodrigue handled police investigations.

HIT PARKED CAR

A truck driven by Thomas Choate, 42, of 584 Howden Ave. escaped undamaged after its body caught a car parked at the intersection of Water and Hunter Sts., while Choate was making a right turn in its path.

The car, driven by Harry Griffiths, 46, of Toronto, sustained damages estimated at $65. PC Ted Stephen investigated.

In a similar accident, a right turning car, driven by Kenneth Murray, 56, of George St., Omemee, collided with a car coming up on its inside driven by Robert Dormer, 23, of 96 Lynch St.

The accident occurred Sunday afternoon outside the DeLaval plant on Park St. PC Jack Wilson investigated.

Queen's Thank You

A letter of good wishes to the Queen at the time of coronation brought a reply from one of her ladies-in-waiting, Henrietta Abel Smith, to Patrick E. Lloyd, 14-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Lloyd, 60½ Hunter St. E.:

"I write at the Queen's command to thank you for your letter.

"Her Majesty deeply appreciates your loyal message of good will and affection at this time of her coronation and desires me to send you the Queen's sincere thanks."

Three Injured In Accidents During Weekend

Three people were injured in motor traffic accidents investigated by Peterborough Provincial Police during the weekend.

Mrs. Doris Anderson, 46, of Lindsay, a passenger in her husband's car, received a couple of broken ribs, bruises on her face and body, and a cut on the bridge of her nose, as the result of a two-car collision Saturday night at the Nogie's Creek bridge.

Her six-year-old daughter, Luttie-Anne, suffered bruises on her face and shoulders. Both Mrs. Anderson and her daughter were treated by Dr. W. D. Thomas, of Bobcaygeon.

Edward C. Anderson, who was not injured, told OPP Constable Bruce Tilson that he was driving toward Bobcaygeon. He pulled over almost to the railing, at the west end of the Nogie's Creek bridge, when he saw the 1949-model car driven by Kenneth Kimble, 20, of Bobcaygeon, approaching. Anderson said Kimble skidded and then collided head-on with his vehicle.

Besides injuries to Mrs. Anderson and Luttie-Anne, there was $800 damage to each car.

WOMAN SHAKEN UP

A Toronto woman was badly shaken up in another two-car crash early Sunday night, just north of Scott's Corners on Highway 28, and she went to Civic Hospital to have her injured shoulder X-rayed. She was Mrs. Harry Solomon, of Shaw St., Toronto.

Mrs. Solomon was a passenger in a southbound car driven by Maurice Freedman, 34, of 590 Rushton Rd., Toronto. His 1951-model car received $100 damage when struck on the left rear fender by a northbound car driven by John W. Kent, 44, of 211 Bethune St.

As Kent rounded a curve in the road, his left wheels dropped off the paved surface onto the east shoulder of the road which is about six inches lower. He managed to swing the car back onto the highway but it went temporarily out of control and struck the Freedman car.

OPP Constable Emmett Crough investigated.

Becomes Exhausted While Swimming North of Bancroft

BANCROFT—(ENS) — Ernest Towns, 21, of Fort Stewart, 25 miles north-east of Bancroft was swept underwater and drowned Sunday evening in the swift current of the York River at nearby Boulter.

It was the second drowning of the season in the district.

SWIMMING BACK

Towns was swimming with Earl Carter and a friend, Harold Chatterton, was watching from the bank of the river. The two young men were swimming from one river pier to another and Towns, in attempting to make a round-trip swim, became exhausted and disappeared.

Provincial police were notified and Constable M. Perry arrived at the scene immediately and was able to recover the body about 11 p.m. Mr. Towns leaves his father.

City To Apply To Annex Two Properties

The position of the city in its preliminary step for the annexation of two township properties was set out in the authorizing bylaws recently passed by city council.

The council thereby acquired authority to apply to the Ontario Municipal Board for an order annexing the part of the township of North Monaghan on the one hand and part of the township of Otonabee on the other.

The North Monaghan block is the house and Hilltop Farm owned by Hugh Stewart and sold by him to the Westbrook Company. The other parcel is the property in Otonabee which Mr. Stewart sold to H. B. McGinnis Ltd. as an industrial site. These bylaws have been given three readings and the rest of the procedure is formal application to the Ontario Municipal Board, who about this time of the year take a holiday of three or four weeks.

Passenger Hurt As Car, Truck Hit In Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS). — A Toronto district man was hospitalized and three others were treated for minor injuries early today, following a two-car collision on Lindsay St. South at 1.15 a.m.

According to police report, Mrs. Mildred Chapman of 634 Walker Rd., Willowdale, was driving the car owned by her husband, north on Lindsay St. S.; her husband Robert, was sitting beside her in front seat with their youngest son, Gordon, 3, on his knee. Three other children, Phillip, 6, Susan, 8, and Billy, 10, were in the back seat asleep at the time.

The car was in collision with a panel truck owned and driven by G. R. McKillop, 39, of RR 4 Palmerston, Ont. Beside him was his wife, Mildred, and a friend, Mrs. Stella Drake-Brockman, and her son, Randolph, 3, of 1324 Queen St. West, Toronto.

HIT WINDSHIELD

The force of the collision threw Mr. Chapman against the windshield and he suffered severe facial lacerations and was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital, where he is reported in satisfactory condition. His son, Gordon, received injuries to teeth and mouth. All the injured were treated by Dr. M. White of Lindsay.

In the truck, Mrs. McKillop, wife of the driver, received a severely sprained or broken foot and Mrs. Drake-Brockman received a sprained neck.

Damage was estimated at $700 to the Chapman car and $300 to the truck. The accident was investigated by Constable Percy Mark of the Lindsay police department.

Real Estate Co-op Sells 9 Properties

Sale of nine properties at a total realty value of $111,350 has been reported through the co-operative board of Peterborough brokers for the first three weeks of their existence.

Seventeen real estate firms in the city have combined their listings on a co-operative basis, with Ross Thompson as chairman. Manager of the co-operative is D. J. Lillico at 98 Hunter St. West, a few doors east of Queen St.

The sales reported from June 8 to 30 amounted to the sum of $111,350. A primary purpose of the joint listings is the broader scope of the selling agency that is made available to persons with properties they wish to put on the market.

Instead of a house and lot, for instance, remaining solely on the list of one firm, it is distributed among the membership, thereby greatly increasing the sales force and effort behind it. The first results confirm the expectations of the promoters of the co-operative method, which was adopted from the successful experience in other cities.

Dam Completed At Norwood

NORWOOD (ENS).—The Norwood Municipal Council held its monthly meeting in the council chambers with Reeve Rork Ferguson in the chair and all members present.

Moved by Councillor Nixon and seconded by Councillor Begg that accounts be paid as read including J. R. Thompson for fuel, labor and trucking, $158; Cecil Patterson for gravel, bulldozing, $576, and $30 for relief. Total accounts amounted to $1,277.18. Motion was carried.

Requests were received for permission to hold street dances (a) from the Norwood Branch Canadian Legion on July 31st; (b) from the Lions Club for August 14th. Moved by Councillor Begg and seconded by Councillor Parker that permission be granted for these two occasions provided the usual permission is obtained from the Department of Highways. The motion was carried.

The clerk, Mr. R. A. Dean, was instructed to report to the Department of Lands and Forests that the dam at upper mill pond had been completed and ask that the work be inspected by their engineering staff as soon as convenient.

A report was given to the council to the effect that as classes at the swimming pool were greatly in excess of previous years, the instructor would require extra help in order to give the children proper supervision. It was left with the clerk to see what could be worked out in the interest of all concerned.

BANCROFT— (ENS) — Four people were injured and three vehicles damaged totalling an estimated $1,000 three miles north of this village on Highway 62 on Saturday afternoon. The injured are Mr. and Mrs. E. Douglas of Greenview, Hubert Mountney of Bancroft and Billie Allen, grandson of the Douglases.

The accident occurred as three vehicles slowed down one behind the other for a temporary traffic jam, a light truck in the rear. As the traffic cleared, the truck, driven by William Douglas, attempted to pull out and pass the two cars driven by Keith Hawley and Mr. Mountney, respectively.

The truck was forced back into the line by oncoming traffic and collided with the two cars.

Three people in the truck, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas and grandson received facial lacerations, bruises and shock as did car driver Mountney.

Dr. E. E. Lamb of Bancroft treated them all and took Mrs. Douglas to the district Red Cross hospital where she was detained for several hours before release The accident was investigated by Provincial constable Ray Hooker.

The Buckhorn bus route tender of Sharman Pearson was accepted at $47 per day. The Board will also pay the sum of 50c per pupil per day over the number of 75 pupils. Mr. Pearson had this same bus route last term.

Martin Reddick of Apsley was present and verbally gave the Board the amount of his tender, which was $400 per month. This was also acceptable to the Board.

Two other tenders for bus routes from Victor Tanner's to Apsley were received, one from Elgin Peters and one from Glen Young. That of Mr. Young was accepted at $4.50 per day for the transportation of two pupils from V. Tanner's to Apsley where they will connect with Brown's bus.

CCF Committee Holds Discussion

The question of peacetime unemployment was the central point of a discussion at a meeting of the CCF committee held Saturday evening at its headquarters on Water St.

An editorial in the Montreal Gazette, entitled "CCF-Peaceful Disaster," was spoken of by Ed. Humphrey. In the article, David Lewis, vice-president of the CCF party indicated in an address given to the Toronto Labor Council committee that nothing could be as disastrous as peace with the present system of government.

Mr. Humphrey said, "Although many are employed at present in the production of arms, and their purchasing power is consequent—this prosperity cannot continue during peace time. The sale of arms is limited by the demand which will ultimately decline, and under the present system, unemployment and depression will follow."

The committee was in favor of the withdrawal of the "means-test" for the blind.

Irvin Yeo gave some present statistics. "Single blind men may receive their $40 per month if their income does not exceed $840 per annum. If married to a sighted wife they are allowed $1,220, and if both are blind, $1,340 per annum is allowed."

J. Morton brought up the question of peace-time unemployment once again saying, "depressions are man-made, not accidental."

These weekly meetings will continue until after election.

Water Skiers Hurt

They were Frank Scully, 39 of 468 Stwart, and Vaughn Tucker, 20, of 33 Aberdeen Ave. Scully received a laceration above his right eyebrow and Tucker cut his foot. Tucker was retained in hospital overnight and his condition was reported good.

Orangemen Through Streets Of Peterborough

Five hundred Orangemen from Peterborough County paraded through the city Saturday night to mark the 263rd anniversary of King William III's victory at the Battle of the Boyne. In the afternoon they had swelled the ranks of Orangemen from five counties who this year held their district "walk" in Cobourg.

Onlookers lined the route and applauded as 14 lodges — eight LOL, four LOBA, and two Juvenile — paraded past in their traditional Orange regalia. As well as the traditional fife and drum bands there were two kiltie bands and a row of kilties pipers in the van.

There was a strong turnout from the LOBA lodges and from the two Juvenile lodges. In fact the highest honors that came to Peterborough during the five-county parade in Cobourg were won by a mixed Juvenile Lodge, No. 136. It won the R. W. Sister Pilling Trophy for the best turnout of nine juvenile lodges, and the silver trophy was carried during the Peterborough walk by Evelyn Simpson of 174 Adaline St.

OLDEST MARCHER

Oldest man from Peterborough to walk both in Cobourg and Peterborough was 84-year-old Robert Ritchie of 120 Princess St., Past Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of British America. Mr. Ritchie, who accompanied other members of the Col. Saunderson LOL 321, Otonabee, has missed only two walks in the last 65 years.

Leading the parade through city streets here was County Marshal Jack Brown, flanked by flag bearers. The column moved off from the CNR station shortly after 8.15 p.m., moved along Charlotte St. to George St., north to Hunter St., along Hunter and north on Water St. to London St., and finally south from London on George to the Orange Hall on Brock St.

After a march past the Orangemen dispersed, first singing one verse of God Save the Queen.

Others in the van of the parade were Herbert Stinson, Deputy County Master; Ralph Langley, County Master; Arthur Holden, Grand Lecturer of British North America; and Morgan Brown, Grand Marshal of Ontario East. Three pipers from LOL 457, Douro, accompanied them.

Lodges in the parade here were Nassau 457, Downer's Corners 321, Lord Nelson 2440, Lakefield 122, Wesley 419, Diamond LOL 80, J. W. Bell Memorial 1175, Duke of Manchester 50, Fraserville 46, Emily, Vimy Ridge LOBA 244, Star of Bethlehem LOBA 650, Mixed Juvenile 136, and Busy Bee Juvenile 100.

The marchers were accompanied by the CGE Pipe Band and the Havelock Pipe Band.

8,000 Orange Paraders Spectators Cram Cobourg

COBOURG — (ENS) — The town's population was increased by at least eight thousand people, it is estimated, when the district Orange Walk was held at Cobourg on Saturday.

It was sunny and cool enough to make the walk bearable for the many old timers who paraded. Police had the traffic well in hand, detouring highway traffic along the University Ave. thoroughfare, so that at no time was the parade held up by any traffic jams.

It was a day to delight the heart of any Orangeman. The parade route was decorated with gay streamers of bunting and pennants, there were hugh welcome signs at street intersections and along the main street thousands of spectators crowded the curbs and in some places overflowed on to the street. Police kept the crowd in good formation, however, and the parade was able to move unhindered.

Band winners were— best pipe band, Bowmanville Legion; 2nd, Peterborough and 3rd, Havelock. Brass band, Coboug Kilties, Little Britain and Oshawa. Best lodge on parade, Tyrone; best men's lodge, Cartwright; best juvenile lodge, Pride of Hope, Port Hope; best Ladies' Lodge, Queen Mary, No. 97, Oshawa.

Mayor John D. Burnet, gave the civic welcome to the Orangemen and extended an invitation to them to come back.

E. F. Reid of Peterborough, P. G. M. declared that the Battle of the Boyne was a mere skirmish to what had since involved the British Empire. The imprint made on history by the Orange Order in saving Protestantism in Europe was outstanding. Two world wars had been fought and freedom had survived and would continue to survive as long as Protestantism was to the forefront. The 12th of July was a date most important to the world of freedom, Mr. Reid said.

YOUNG AND OLD

Major Foote declared that he was proud of the magnificent turn-out and it was inspiring to see both the very young and the very old in the parade. The Orange Order was a bulwark against all who would assail freedom and the British Empire. He said that the new Canadians were welcome and that many of them brought an old world culture that made them good citizens of Canada.

Mrs. Edith Benton of Peterborough, Provincial Grandmistress of Ontario East, also spoke.

56 Lodges March In Parade At Campbellford

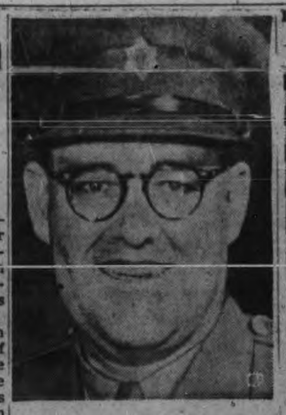
CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Some 7,000 Orangemen and their families from all parts of southeastern Ontario descended on Campbellford on Saturday afternoon to celebrate the 'Glorious Twelfth.'

The celebrating Orangemen flocked to the town in scores of buses and hundreds of private automobiles, causing one of the worst traffic jams local citizens can remember. One gentleman told an Examiner reporter that he had lived in the town 32 years, and the crowds and traffic were the greatest by far that he had ever witnessed.

Extra police were on hand to cope with the traffic, but in spite of this many motorists became hopelessly stalled. A squad of provincial police from Peterborough assisted.

About 56 lodges registered at the fair grounds during the day. Two brass bands, a half dozen pipe bands and dozens of fife and drum bands supplied the music along the route of the parade.

The Campbellford Citizen's Band led the parade, along with Fred Skinkle of Warkworth and Jack Adams of Havelock, who rode white horses.



100TH ANNIVERSARY

The celebration this year was a double one. It commemorated not only the 263rd anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, but also the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of LOL 526 of Campbellford.

Women supporters of the Campbellford lodge and also of the Petherick's Corners lodge were hosts to the celebrators and served thousands of meals in the main building at the agricultural grounds.

During the afternoon, a number of speakers addressed the crowds over a public address system set up for the purpose. These included R. A. Sanderson, Grand Master of Ontario East; Dr. Fred Robertson; Ollie Taylor; R. J. Locke, mayor of Campbellford; John Prosser, County Master; W. H. Farrow, County Chaplain, and many others. The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Public Welfare, was scheduled to speak, but unfortunately suffered a heart attack on Friday and is confined to hospital.

During the evening, a dance was held in the main building at the agricultural grounds, and the celebrations continued on until midnight to the music of Jack Russell's orchestra. A bingo, sponsored jointly by the local lodges and the Canadian Legion, branch 103, was held in the Legion Hall and was well attended.

TO MILITARY POST—Gregor Guthrie, 39, former Ottawa reporter, has been appointed military observer with the United Nations in India and Pakistan. Mr. Guthrie, a major in the reserve unit of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, will join the UN commission supervising the cease - fire agreement between India and Pakistan.

Winding Up Glorious 12th

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Orangemen wound up their festivities today marking the "Glorious 12th" The celebration developed into a three-day affair this year.

While the big day was the 11th, some Canadian cities continue with the celebrations today. Sunday being the 12th this year prevented many of the gala parades that usually grace the day.

The big wind-up takes place in Ottawa where nearly 50,000 Orangemen fall in behind the symbolic "King Billy" on his white horse.

The celebrations commemorate the Battle of the Boyne where the army of William of Orange defeated his father-in-law James II in 1690.

Both Saturday and Sunday were bright and sunny in most centres.

SUNDAY PARADE

Edmonton was one of the few centres to stage the parade on Sunday. Some 300 persons marched to church services.

Sunday at Ottawa 5,000 Orangemen paraded to an open-air divine service at Lansdowne Park attended by 12,000. The colorful procession was made up of close to 150 city and district lodges.

More than 7,000 marched to the roll of drums and the sound of the fife in Toronto. Some members of the 52 lodges participating took it easy, riding in orange-colored taxis.

Question:

Mr. Swanston, why do you think the Liberal party will be returned to power?

Answer:

No Canadian party can hope to form a Government unless it has support in every part of the country. The Progressive Conservative party cannot hope for support in the West or in Quebec. The C.C.F. cannot expect support in the East. Only the Liberal party can be confident of substantial support in every province of Canada. It can expect that because it is an intelligently progressive party with great experience and a practical platform.

Daughter Hurt As Motorcycle, Car Collide

Marie Rowan, 12, of 154 London St. is in hospital today, suffering a fractured knee-cap and minor abrasions as a result of a collision between a motorcycle, which her father, Thomas A. Rowan was driving, and a car driven by Eldon Sisson, 49, Spencley's Lane.

The accident occurred at Water and London Sts. about 11:30 Sunday evening.

"Rowan, with his daughter sitting behind him, was driving his motorcycle north on Water St. at a slow rate of speed," according to an eye-witness, "but well out in the centre of the street. It appeared to me as though he was going to park the vehicle and then he turned the left towards London St. and that's when the accident occurred."

Sisson, driving his car south on Water, applied his brakes leaving a 30 foot skid mark. The point of the head-on impact was south of the London St. corner

Order New Trial Korean Soldier

OTTAWA — (CP) — A new trial has been ordered by a five-man appeal board for Sapper Edmond Doutre, 31, of Toronto, on a charge of attempted murder of a Korean woman.

The board's decision Friday, upset the conviction of Doutre by a court-martial in Korea, which sentenced him last Aug. 9 to 15 years' imprisonment for the attempted murder of Mrs. Pak Yong Boon. The court martial also ruled that Doutre be dismissed with disgrace from the Canadian Army.

Mrs. Boon, who received a gunshot wound, lives near Seoul, where Doutre went last July 18. Mrs. Boon said at the court-martial that Doutre aimed his rifle at her when she refused to spend the night with him. She said he shot her in the chest.

In setting aside the verdict, the court-martial appeal board said: "It is the paramount right of the accused to have each and every defense available to him fairly and specifically put to the jury."

Doutre's defense was that the wounding was accidental. The appeal board ruled that the judge advocate did not properly bring this to the attention of the court.

His appeal was presented by Kenneth Fogarty, an Ottawa lawyer.

Educated at Sudbury, Doutre rejoined the army in May 1952, after serving in Europe during the Second World War, and was posted to the Royal Canadian Engineers in Korea the following month. He has been in detention at Camp Borden since last fall.

Atomic Power May Compete With Steam Power In Few Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Power from atomic energy is an economical possibility in Canada, says a member of the chemistry and engineering division of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., at Chalk River, Ont.

Not only that, adds I. N. MacKay, but Canada "soon should be in an excellent position to carry out its development."

Writing in Professional Public Service, published monthly by the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada, Mr. MacKay says present-day reactors cost a lot of money but the price can be brought down with suitable development. The new reactor at Chalk River probably will cost $30,000,000.

"If definite requirements for atomic power could be developed in five years with a full-scale effort, costs might be comparable to steam power.

BIG REDUCTION

"Taking various factors into consideration it seems reasonable to assume that an atomic-powered steam generator capable of producing 500,000 kilowatts of heat could be designed and built a few years from now for $20,000,000."

Total capital cost for such a project would mean the equivalent of $290 a kilowatt compared to $215 for hydro-electric stations in Ontario and $160 for modern steam plants in the United States.

"Obviously, based on these figures, no one is going to build atomic power stations if hydro power, with no fuel costs, is available. However, the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario will have nearly run out of useful hydro sites when the St. Lawrence power development is completed, at which time they expect the demand to just about equal the new supply. Their new steam stations, designed as peak load stations, are soon expected to carry a good deal of the base load, so at least competition with steam and not hydro power should be considered."

MORE DEPOSITS LIKELY

Mr. MacKay says it's reasonable to assume that in the years ahead more rich deposits of uranium will probably be found in Canada. If not, means will have to be found to work the lower-grade deposits to compete with the steadily rising costs of coal. Steam power plants require fuel of one kind or another.

"It should be borne in mind that the demand for power is expected to exceed the possible surplus on this continent some time between 1975 and 2000, unless entirely new sources of power are developed."

Sun Out, No Rain Lightning Strikes

CAMPBELLFORD — With the temperature hovering around 82 and the sun shining brightly, a severe electrical storm broke without warning over this district late Sunday.

A hydro line pole two miles north of the town carrying the tie-line was struck and set on fire by a terrific bolt of the chain variety. Transformers were put out of commission and service generally disrupted. Local firemen extinguished the blaze and stood by to protect near-by summer cottages.

Emergency crews are busy repairing the damage. By a strange conicidence not a drop of rain fell. In less than two hours the sky cleared.

Johnston-Keating Wedding

At St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in Douro on Saturday morning nuptial vows were pledged by Audrey Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Keating of Douro and Carl Edward Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston of Niagara Falls, Ont.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. J. McCarthy who said the mass. Mrs. Victor Kennedy played the wedding music and soloists were the bride's brother Jimmie Keating and Miss Catherine Zehenko. The former sang "On This Day" and the latter "Panis Angelicus" and other hymns.

A profusion of summer flowers decorated the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was beautifully gowned in white satin and had a full length train which was carried by her small nephew Frank Russell. The gown had a sheer nylon yoke which was trimmed at the edge with flowers of satin and the flowers were repeated in the folds at the hipline. A cap of lace held her veil of nylon edged with a deep band of lace and she was carrying a bouquet of yellow roses.

Attending the bride were her sister Mrs. Vernon Russell as matron of honor and Mrs. Robert Martell as bridesmaid. Their floor-length bouffant gowns were of pale green and pale mauve taffeta and they wore floral headdresses in matching shades and carried nosegays of yellow roses and 'mums.

Groomsman was the bride's brother Terry Keating and the ushers were Robert Martell and James Flynn.

A reception followed at the bride's home, her mother receiving the guests in a gown of grey sheer and wearing navy blue accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother was assisting and she was gowned in pink nylon and wore matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Leaving later on their wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo the bride was attired in a grey summer suit and her accessories were pale blue and white and her corsage of pale blue 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will live on McCannan Ave., in Peterborough on their return.

DOROTHY DIX:

Dating And Teen-Agers Suggested For Discussion

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem is not a complicated one, but I do need help. I'm 16, and have been living with my stepmother since I was 10. She's very good to me, but I'm not allowed to date, even in a group. I can't get into activities at school because she believes that boys cannot be trusted. Occasionally I'm permitted to visit a friend on Sunday afternoon, and that's the extent of my social life. I'm a sophomore in high school, and naturally there's quite a bit of fun going on at school. I can't even enter into conversations any more because I don't know what my classmates are talking about.

VERA T.

PRIVILEGES OF TEEN-AGERS

ANSWER: So many problems of this type come to me, that I'm going to answer yours, Vera, with a general solution in the form of an appeal. Practically all dating difficulties come during high-school years, and I think it would be a fine thing if faculty members would come to the aid of girls whose parents don't realize the necessity of a well-rounded social life for teensters.

I realize thoroughly that teachers are overworked as it is, but the need some sort of service along these lines is so acute that it must be attended to somewhere along the line.

As a suggestion for its undertaking, I would propose a general meeting at the beginning of the schoolyear, with every effort made to get all parents present. A competent speaker, either of the faculty, or a guest, should outline the social needs of the high-school group, describe the activities offered to meet these requirements, tell of the chaperonage provided; then invite questions on teen-age dating problems.

Even those parents who don't need this specific help will be interested in the program, and those who are uncertain just what privileges to allow their sons and daughters will be helped immeasurably. Parents have confidence in the teaching staffs of their schools—as they should have—and would permit participation in activities under faculty supervision.

Adolescents need a social life; they need competitive sports, and they need association with members of the opposite sex.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much in love with a married man, and am a little mixed up He's younger than his wife, and very good looking. They don't get along so he feels justified in going out with me. He wants to divorce his wife and marry me, but I'm skeptical about going through with it. He has no children.

BEWILDERED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: And well you might be skeptical. Your friend seems to need small justification to break one of the Ten Commandments. If he is so morally weak now, you won't accomplish the miracle of building his character.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 15 years old and have been writing to a boy of 17 for the past year. Our letters have been friendly until recently when he began to get serious. I have never met him and prefer to keep our correspondence on a friendly basis. Should I continue writing or forget the whole affair?

CLAIRE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER. Why not get your mother's opinion on the matter? I think it would be better to drop the correspondence, but if the boy agrees to go back to friendly letters, you might give him another chance.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A few weeks ago I met the man of my dreams. Everything seemed to be going along well until he told me of his widowed mother. I have met her on several occasions and found her domineering, jealous, and opposed to any girl who takes an interest in her son. He is her only means of support. He has expressed his love for me, but our future seems very dim. He is 30; I am 25. Do you think there's any hope for us?

HONEY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The outlook does indeed look dim, and I do think it would be better to break off rather than flounder around in a dismal sea of hopeless waiting.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a middle-aged widow, on my own, putting my son through high school. The two of us are doing very nicely, although I would be very lonely if it were not for a fine gentleman friend of mine who takes me out frequently. My married daughters disapprove of him, and are very rude if he visits me while they are here. They were the same way with a friend I had a few years ago, and I'm sure it would be the same way with any man I happened to like.

MRS. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your loneliness may blind you to undesirable traits in the man that are more apparent to you daughters. You should ask them directly why they object to your friend; if their reasons seem valid, consider them. If, on the other hand, they can give tions, continue the friendship. In no sound basis for their objec- any case, an open discussion would be the best way to soothe everyone's ruffled feathers.

Young people often do take an unreasonable attitude toward the romances—actual or potential—of their widowed parents. They assume that loneliness, need of contemporary companionship, and desire for security shouldn't exist in anyone over 30. Often, too, there's a selfish complication to the problem, with the young marrieds assuming that when Mom finds an interest of her own, she won't be too available for baby-sitting jobs.

All these considerations must be analyzed before the right answer is reached. If your daughters' objections to you friend are flimsy, you can be sure they aren't dictated by a genuine interest in your welfare. Another possibility is offered by the fact that you make no mention of matrimonial prospects in your letter. If your girls think your friend is taking advantage of your good nature and hospitality, they are justifiably resentful. So you see, there are arguments pro and con; it's up to you to decide which side is right.

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem is self-consciousness, and I'd love to know how to overcome it. I'm 28, have been married 12 years, and have five children, with another expected in a month. I'm not unattractive, but when I meet strangers my tongue just seems to freeze. I'm afraid my husband is getting disgusted with me: We've been in this town a month, and though the neighbors on each side of me seem very pleasant, I just can't talk to them.

ELINOR R.

ANSWER: Of course, if your neighbors were at all neighborly, they would make the first move towards friendliness. However, since they haven't, you must; With young children, there's no reason why you should fear meeting strangers. There's absolutely no topic of conversation as sure-fire as children, providing, of course, you're talking to other parents. Your older children must have friends; try to meet their mothers. There must be a contact you make through school, Sunday school, scouting, or similar activity, and even small children shouldn't be a deterrent. Attend P.T.A. meetings, leaving the baby with your husband or a baby-sitter. Twenty-eight is the perfect age for mixing, and if you let yourself get into the 30's still a victim of self-conscoiusness, you may have a much harder time overcoming your trouble. Since you are in a new town, you can always ask questions about the place, and civic pride will prompt any native to give you his or her interest. So now you have two conversational gambits that can't miss. Use them!

CLEVER HOME SEWER adds attractive accessories to her wardrobe with vinyl plastic film bought by the yard. She makes a beach-bag (left) from 1½ yards of plastic film, 36" wide, 1½ yards of sanforized terry cloth 36" wide, and 2 yards of shower curtain heading. They're stitched in pillow-case style, the terry cloth inside the vinyl. Notice that she uses paper clips where pins would ordinarily be used. Finished bag is on table. She's working on a second one. Apron (centre) is easy to sew from her favorite pattern, using a number 11 needle, mercerized thread, and longer stitches than usual. Rain poncho (right) required 5 yards of 36" plastic, 1-3 yard of 36" reversible white cotton gabardine for turtle-neck collar, 2 yards white cord to gather collar snugly. She folded plastic to a 90" by 36" length, cut out a half-circle 4" x 4" for neck opening at a distance 43" in from fold line (on 36" width). She cut the lower corners round, cut along the 36" fold, and put in centre back seam.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cherries, Canned, Frozen And Jammed

Some of you are up to your elbows in cherries. One girl writes saying that "pickers are coming toady and I've been watching for your method of fast-freezing cherries all this week. Please come to my rescue."

I'll give you the various methods of processing cherries in the order in which the SOS calls have come.

CANNED CHERRIES

Syrups to use: For sweet cherries THIN: I cup sugar to each 3 cups boiling water. For sour cherries MEDIUM or Medium-Thin: 1 cup sugar to 1 cup water Or 1 cup sugar to 1½ cups water.

COLDPACK: Wash cherries before stemming them, then stem and pit. (It is not essential to pit cherries). Pack into hot sterile jars. Cover with boiling hot syrup (see just above), leaving ½ inch head space. Put on new sterile rubbers, tops, and seal to within ⅛ turn of tight. If spring-top sealers are used do not spring down the lower bail. Process in boiling water bath—pints 20 minutes, quarts 25 minutes. If processed in oven temperature should be 275 degrees Fahr.—30 minutes for pints, 35 minutes for quarts. If processed in pressure cooker, have 1 inch water in bottom. Stand jars on rack, adjust lid securely. Keep petcock open until steam is escaping audibly. Close petcock. Bring pressure to 5 lbs. and pressure-cook 5 minutes.

FAST FROZEN CHERRIES

SWEET: Select fresh, large, firm cherries of uniform ripeness and color. Cherries should be as ripe as possible without being overripe. Wash, stem and pit. (If pits are left in they give a pronounced almond-like flavor.) Ascorbic acid is used to retain red color. Buy ascorbic acid in tablet or powder form from drug store. Allow ¼ teaspoon to every 3 pints fruit. Crush tablets to measure them, then dissolve in 2 tablespoons water and stir this through 3 pints of fruit. Now make 40 per cent sugar syrup by mixing 3¼ cups sugar with 4 cups water, boiling until dissolved and chilling. Syrup should be made and chilled before fast freezing preparation is begun. Pour syrup over prepared cherries. Place the prepare dcherries in liquid-tight containers, filling firmly, but do not crush. Add chilled syrup to cover the topmost fruit. Seal containers and freeze at once.

SOUR: Wash, stem and pit. Coat with ascorbic acid solution (see above). These are usually dry-packed using 1 part dry sugar to each 4 parts fruit by weight.

CHERRY JAM

Wash, stem and pit sour cherries. Weigh 2½ lbs. and mash these with potato masher. Add ½ cup water and bring slowly to boil, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add 7½ cups sugar and ¼ teaspoon almond extract. Bring to hard boil for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add 1 bottle liquid pectin and stir for 5 minutes with sterile spoon. Pour into sterile jam glasses, covering at once with new hot paraffin, add second coat when cold.

SUGARLESS DARK CHERRY JAM

(This is a favorite with diabetic patients.)

One quart dark sweet cherries, 2 tablespoons glycerin, 2 teaspoons certo crystals, 2 ½-grain saccharin tablets or 4 sucaryl tablets, dissolved in 1 teaspoon boiled and slightly cooled water. Wash cherries well and pit them with hand pitter and mash them with potato masher in saucepan. Simmer over low heat, to boil off excess juice, for about 20 minutes, then add all remaining ingredients except saccharin or sucaryl. Boil 3 minutes, stirring, remove from heat, stir in sweetener, then pour into small sterile jars and seal. Sugarless jams should be sealed in sealers not with paraffin.

SUGARLESS CANNED CHERRIES

Use sweet or sour cherries. Prepare exactly as for canned cherries (see above), but OMIT SUGAR. Boiling water only is used to pour over fruit. Keeping quality of canned fruit does not depend on its sugar content—but on sufifcient and sterile processing and air-tight containers. Observe all sterilizing precautions. Do not worry if fruit is not quite as colorful—for waterpacking sometimes "leaches" out the color.

New Fashion Silhouettes Calling For Snake Hips

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—Milady is due to change her shape again this fall, as new fashion silhouettes call for a string-bean midriff and snake hips.

Daytime clothes, as currently previewed, are skin-tight through the middle, ruler-slim through the skirt and curved and draped about the top.

Most designers favor the slim sheath silhouette for daytime, softer, full skirts for after five and a choice between the draped sheath and the crinolined look for formal evening wear.

For those who have become accustomed to full skirts, there is, fortunately, a compromise. This is the skirt which appears slim in front, but acquires walking width through back fulness, in what is called the Edwardian silhouette.

MAY NEED TO DIET

The lady with the midriff bulge is going to be out of luck this fall, unless she rushes for one of the new foundation garments designed to cope with this problem—or goes on a diet.

The new clothes are becoming to gals with good figures, but are designed to conceal no bulges.

An era of elegance is in the cards for fall and winter. Full-length evening gowns are back with a bang, fabrics are luxurious and trimmings are brilliant. For example, one wholesale manufacturer shows an evening sheath completely embroidered in sequins with coat to match, to retail at $3,000. That gives you a rough idea.

ALL-TIME FAVORITE

The costume suit continues the all-time favorite, consisting usually of a seath dress and cover-up jacket. In many instances the dress is low-cut and glitter-trimmed above the belt, making it suitable for cocktail and dinner wear. With the jacket, it becomes a daytime suit.

As in coats, suit lines are softer this season, with drapery and detail concentrated above the belt. The "tulip" look becomes the "chalice" this fall, the rounded look of the shoulder-to-bust line achieved by cut and drapery rather than padding.

Casualties of the season are the poodle and petticoat, except, in the latter case, for evening wear.

GOODWIN—In loving memory of our dear parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Goodwin, late of 336 Mark Street; Mother who passed away July 13th, 1952, and Father on August 31st, 1949.

Of parents we loved and will never forget.
Deep in our hearts they will always remain
Till God in His time unites us again.
—The Family.

LUCANO—In loving memory of Mrs. Lucy Lucano, who passed away July 13, 1939.
A loving smile, a heart of gold.
Dearest mother this world could hold.
'Tis sad but true,
I wonder why,
The best are always first to die.
She never failed to do her best,
Her heart was true and tender,
She toiled too hard for those she loved
Then left them to remember.
—Ever remembered by Michael, Joseph and Marcelle and family.

Douglas Wins Canadian Open Title

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—Dave Douglas, a seasoned tournament player, got hot for 30 minutes Saturday and left a blazing trail of three straight down-to-the-wire birdies that gave him his first Canadian Open golf title and $5,000 first-place money. He needed every one of them.

The lanky 25-year-old shoemaster from Newark, Del., started the final 18 of the 72-hole medal play tournament over the Scarboro course four strokes off the pace, whittled it with a three-under-par first-nine 33 and topped it with birdies on the 16th, 17th and 18th for a brilliant five-under-par round of 66 and a total of 273. He won by one stroke over Wally Ulrich of Austin, Minn., whose recalcitrant putter cost him the big money and the Seagram Gold Cup. Ulrich took $1,500 second-place money.

Dutch Harrison, an old-timer in the play-for-pay ranks and winner of the title in 1949, ended with 276 for third-place money of $1,200 and Saskatoon's Pat Fletcher made his fourth-place tie with Gardner Dickinson of Panama City, Fla., the best Canadian showing since Bob Gray of Toronto was runner-up in 1941.

Fletcher shot 71 Saturday to give him 277 and Dickinson got one under in his final 18. Each received $300.

WINS CUP

As leading Canadian in the four-day championship which attracted more than 180 Canadian and American amateurs and pros, Fletcher also won the Rivermead Cup and an extra $200.

Low amateur was Toronto's Phil Farley who ended with 285 fashioned on rounds of 72-73-69-71.

A crowd of about 4,000 swarmed over the 6,606-yard course Saturday prepared for anything and they got it early from Douglas who played in a threesome directly in front of Ulrich. He birdied the first three holes, added another in the sixth, bogeyed the eighth and went out in three-under-par 33.

Ulrich made it in 34 with birdies on the fifth and ninth and was coasting along until the roof fell in on him at the 15th with its well-trapped green. His tee shot ended on a road to the right and his chip shot skidded about 35 feet behind the pin leaving him a difficult downhill putt.

His gently-stroked putt hit the far edge of the green and slithered into a trap. He was about eight feet in front of the cup on his third and took two putts for his six.

ONE STROKE TO GOOD

Even with this big six Ulrich was one stroke to the good after 15 holes and, as it turned out, the 18th hole decided the title.

Defending champion Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., who holds the open record with 263 set at Winnipeg St. Charles last year, ended well down with 284. Henry Martell of Edmonton, winner of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament at Quebec City a week ago, received $90 for his 288 showing.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver finished in a three-way tie for 16th with 284 and received $216.67. Leonard was runner-up in this year's CPGA.

Six Records Broken At Track Meet

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Track and Field Club ran away with the honors in the men's and women's sections of the two-day Ontario Track and Field Championships here Friday and Saturday.

Six Canadian records were broken, one tied and one Ontario mark beaten.

Final standings in the men's division gave the Toronto club 269 points, more than three times as many as the second-place Toronto Secondary Schools Association. East York Track Club was third with 61, Hamilton Olympic Club fourth with 27 and Windsor Track and Field Club fifth with 16. The Shamrock Athletic Club of Oshawa trailed with five.

In the women's division the Toronto Club piled up 88 points. The Toronto Silver Heels Track Club was second with 43. East York Track Club was third with 19 and Hamilton fourth with six points.

BREAKS TWO RECORDS

Wes McLeod of TTFC broke two Canadian records. He won the juvenile boys' one-mile run in 4:35.5 Friday, bettering the standing mark of 4:40.9 by 7.4 seconds. Saturday he clipped 2.6 seconds off the Canadian record of 2:03.3 in the juvenile boys' 880-yard dash with a time of 1:57.7.

Chuck Hardy of TTFC knocked three-tenths off the record in the juvenile boys' 220-yard spring Saturday running the distance in 22.5 seconds.

Mary Teplicky of EYTC ran the juvenile girls' 60-yard dash in 7.6, four-tenths of a second better than the Ontario record of eight seconds. There is no Canadian record in this division.

TIES HURDLES

Norm Williams of the TTFC tied the Canadian junior men's 220-yard low hurdles in 26 seconds.

On Friday the TSSA team won the boys' midget 440-yard relay in 48.7, bettering the record of 49.2. The TTFC entry broke the record of 3:29.9 minutes in the junior men's one mile relay with a time of 3:36 and the junior women's team from the Silver Heels Track Club won the junior women's 440-yard relay in 53.6 seconds, lopping six-tenths of a second off the mark of 54.2.

The times will not go into the books as records until the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada considers them at its fall meeting.

Brockville Wins Regatta, Water Rough

By CRAIG SWAYZE

BROCKVILLE (CP)—High winds and rough water failed to faze a determined bunch of Brockville Rowing Club huskies here Saturday as they outdistanced the largest field in the 33-year history of the Eastern Rowing Association Regatta and captured the Comstock Cup, emblematic of the regatta championship.

Stroking steadily over the choppy St. Lawrence river course, which twice became so rough that races had to be postponed, the crew-cut kids from the host club piled up five wins, five seconds and three thirds for 47 points.

Lachine, Que., and Ottawa, the two other ERA clubs competing, garnered 41 and 28 points respectively.

St. Catharines led the four visiting Central Ontario Rowing Association clubs with three victories, one second and a third in the five open events on the 16-race program.

GET SINGLE WIN

Hamilton Leanders copped a single win when Bobby Williams came through for them in the senior singles.

Only Brockville, Lachine and Ottawa counted points toward the Comstock trophy.

Brockville picked up most of its points in the lightweight events. Brockville's lightweight eight took the 145-pound eights and the high school eight while its light four gained firsts in the 155-pound fours and the high school 135-pound fours.

St. Catharines' big eight, stroked by Greg Murphy, lived up to expectations in the senior open eight event by finishing first over Hamilton Leanders, Toronto Dons, Lachine and Brockville in that order. Off to a slow start, the St. Kitts entry took the lead half-way down and held it to the finish.

Biggest race of the day was the 155-pound eights, an open event, when St. Catharines pulled off a double victory with its heavy crew finishing first and its lightweight entry second. Argos took third in this race with Brockville fourth, and 6 p.m.

Husband Remanded Until July 20

OSHAWA (CP)—Wilson Corson, 52, whose wife is in critical condition in a Toronto hospital with a bullet wound in her head, was remanded today to July 20 on a charge of illegal possession of an unregistered weapon.

Mrs. Corson was injured July 8 at the couple's farm home at Highland Creek, near Toronto. Police quoted Corson as saying he was loading a .22 calibre pistol to shoot rats in the barn when the weapon discharged.

SEATTLE (AP)—Murray (Mazz) Patrick, youngest member of the famed Patrick hockey family, signed Saturday as coach of Seattle Bombers of the Western Hockey League.

Patrick 38, had been sought by New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, but said he decided to remain in this area because "my family and I love the northwest and we're going to stay."

Patrick, manager-coach of the now defunct Tacoma Western League club for the last five seasons, also spurned offers from Victoria, Calgary and Toronto to take the Seattle job.

OPEN WINNER

KINGSTON (CP)—Anne Sharpe of Lookout Point, Ont., won her fifth Ontario golf tournament Saturday when she defeated Shirley Woodley of Toronto, one-up, in the 18-hole final of the Eastern Ontario Ladies' Open Championship at the Cataraqui Club.

The Eastern Ontario Championship was the follow-up of an 18-hole medal round for the International Ladies' Golf Chapionship won by Miss Woodley with a 42-40 for an 82 gross. The 16 low gross scores in the International medal round qualified for the Eastern Ontario championship.

RECORD RULED OUT

LONDON (CP)—The 4:02 mile run by Roger Bannister on June 27 was thrown out of the record books Sunday by the British Amateur Athletic Board.

It ruled the race "was not a bona fide competition according to the rules."

Bannister, 24-year-old medical student, ran the 4:02 mile—third fastest on record—in a paced race at Motspur Park. There had been no advance notice of his attempt on the four-minute mile and only some officials and 200 youngsters who had been tipped off in advance saw the race at a Surrey schoolboys' track and field meet.

MISSES FINALS

COPENHAGEN (CP) — Ross Siemms, 17, of Toronto Sunday defeated Raphael Persitz of Israel in the ninth-round preliminaries of the World Junior Chess Championships.

BIG LEAGUERS TO JAPAN

CINCINNATI (AP)—The American and National Leagues Sunday approved a post-1953 World Series tour of Japan by New York Giants. The Giants' trip required approval of both leagues, since it was necessary to waive a rule which limits the number of players who can compete on one team in a post-season series.

CORNWALL DRIVER LEADS

BELOEIL, Que. (CP) — Henri Coupal of Montreal, driving the inboard Jay-Pee II for J. P. Clermont of Montreal Sunday won top honors at the Beloeil-St. Hilaire Nautical Club Regatta.

The win moved him from fifth to second place for the season's honors to date. John Hainault of Cornwall, Ont., now is in first place.

Four Injured In Love Triangle

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Four persons are in a serious condition today following a love triangle shooting by a rejected suitor who fired hand-fashioned dum-dum bullets from two pistols.

Police said Royal Carl Kalker, 39, a factory worker, forced his way into a third-floor apartment Sunday where a pre-wedding breakfast party was being given for Else Hogden, 32, and Arthur Ross, 42.

Miss Hogden, a German war bride and a divorcee, was shot above the left breast and also suffered other injuries when she fell or was pushed from the apartment window.

Ross, a trucker, was wounded in the left shoulder, abadomen and groin.

John Buckman, 22, a resident of the apartment building who went to Miss Hogden's aid when he heard her fall, was shot once in the back. He was placed under an oxygen tent.

Kalker, who fired a pistol into his mouth when police closed in, was not expected to live.

Flat Tire Stops Shipping In Canal

THOROLD (CP)—A flat tire stopped shipping on the Welland canal Sunday.

The operator of the canal bridge here was just about to raise the bridge for a freighter when a car eased up to the structure. A tire blew out as the car neared the centre span.

Thorold is 16 miles southeast of St. Catharines.

Charge Reduced Driver Convicted As Impaired

Joyner A. Ryan, 28, 388 Murray St., was found guilty in magistrate's court today on a charge of impaired driving, reduced from an original charge of drunk driving laid June 26 as a result of a two-car accident near the corner of Hunter and Aylmer Sts.

Testifying against the accused were PC Gerald Emmons, Clark Whittington of 183 Lock St., owner of the second car involved, and Dr. Leslie Calvert, an eye-witness to the crash.

PC Emmons, who investigated the accident, found the two cars parked on the east side of Aylmer, just south of the intersection of Hunter St. Whittington's vehicle was damaged in the left rear corner, and Ryan's, the right front fender.

APPEARED DRUNK

To the constable, the accused appeared to be in a drunken condition. His eyes were glassy and red, talked incoherent and in a disjointed manner and smelled of some alcoholic beverage.

Dr. Calvert told of following the accused's car from Charlotte and Aylmer and watching Ryan's vehicle edge over to the side of the road nearly striking a panel truck parked near Simcoe.

The car continued then, approaching Hunter, edged ove rto the curb again, this time striking Whittington's car. The doctor stopped and saw the accused get out of his car, inspect the damage, then return to his car and back off.

Dr. Calvert got out of his car, ran forward, opened the door of the accused's car and took Ryan's keys from the ignition. He walked to a nearby confectionery store and phoned the police.

Dr. Calvert told the court he felt Ryan was inebriated and based his conclusion on the manner in which the accused drove his car.

INDIGNANT

Whittington, who had been in the store when the accident occurred, described the accused as "indignant."

Two witnesses, Bill Hobden and Thomas O'Connor, claimed they saw the accused minutes before the accident and described him as not showing any signs of drinking. He had, however, consumed two pints in a hotel beverage room, O'Connor said.

Ryan said he had only two pints of beer and attributed the accident to the bright lights of oncoming cars which had blinded him.

Content there was insufficient evidence to warrant a conviction on drunk driving, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, asked the charge be reduced to impaired driving.

On that charge he was found guilty by Magistrate W. R. Philp and fined $75 and $11 costs.

112 Children Complete Vacation School

Graduation exercises for 112 children who attended the Daily Vacation Bible School were held Friday night in the Sunday school auditorium of the Pentecostal Church, Dublin St., with parents and friends present.

During the two-week school which had 9 to 11.30 a.m. sessions, beginning June 29, the children underwent a course given the theme name of "Sailing With Christ." Altogether 140 children between four and 14 years of age were enrolled and there was a daily attendance of 115.

The "Sailing With Christ" theme involved an imaginary trip of the pupils every day from Peterborough to some geographical location mentioned in the Bible. It also included lessons on Christ preaching by the seashore; voyages of Paul the Apostle, including his shipwreck; stories of the flood and of Noah; and other related nautical Biblical stories.

RESEMBLED SHIP

To better impress the theme the Sunday school basement was decorated and renovated to give the appearance of a ship. A gangplank and pilot's wheel were two of the grops.

Lessons included Bible study and memory work, songs, and handcrafts — woodwork for the boys, sewing for the girls, and paper cutting and coloring for the juniors. Each day the children started off with a parade around the block with pupils carrying the Christian flag, the Union Jack, and the Bible.

Principal of the school was the Rev. Fred Parlee, minister of the Pentecostal Church. He was assisted by nine teachers and several other volunteer helpers.

LONDON (Reuters)—An international conference called to stabilize world sugar prices today refused to admit representatives of Communist China and East Germany to its deliberations.

A Russian proposal to admit Communist China was voted down 15 to 5 after the United States argued that membership in the United Nations was a prerequisite for participation.

A Polish proposal to admit East Germany was turned down 23 votes to 3 on the same grounds. The United States also contended East Germany was adequately represented by the Russian delegation.

Thirty-nine nations are here to work out a new commodity agreement.

STABILIZE PRICES

The conference is aimed primarily at stabilizing prices on the international market on beet sugar, cane sugar and molasses.

It has been convened by the United Nations at the request of the International Sugar Council considers that a commodity agreement offers the best means of dealing with present world sugar market difficulties.

It recognizes that such an agreement would require negotiation at an international commodity conference and it therefore asked the United Nations to convene such talks.

The 1937 world sugar agreement lapsed August 31, 1952 after several extensions from 1944.

The protocol extending the agreement by three years will end if in the meantime a new international sugar agreement is negotiated.

The current agreement sets out the policy of the contracting governments, details obligations of countries not exporting to the free market, and lays down policy on sugar stocks.

The talks are private and are expected to last a week.

Woods, Lakes Replace Mine Dumps

LINTON, Ind. (AP) — Low wooded hills and clear little lakes thick with game fish are replacing some of the continent's most desolate landscapes—the murky pools and barren mounds of shale left by coal strip-mining operations.

This pleasant news for outdoor enthusiasts and nature lovers is a result of organized reclamation work now being done by the strip mine companies of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and West Virginia.

Some individual companies are restoring vegetation on the churned-up shallow coal lands — or "spoil banks" as the miners call them—in Kansas and Missouri.

The Indiana Coal Producers Association contends that the idea of doing something with the ugly heaps of shale was born in this state. An experimental planting of peach, apple and pear trees was made in 1918 on spoil banks near Patricksburg. The pear trees are still there.

Indiana strip mine companies joined in an organized reclamation program in 1927. They have restored vegetation to 45,000 acres of land. Only 5,800 acres were suitable for pasture. About 5,000 acres were turned over to recreational use and 34,000 acres have been reforested with 31,000,000 young trees.

Some of the early tree plantings are yielding pulpwood, posts, poles and other forest products.

Thousands of lakes were left by the strip mining. One incidental result of the reforestation is the creation of water conditions that produce whopper bluegills, bass and other game fish.

The water often is acid immediately after mining operations, but it gradually comes to support aquatic plants and fish.

Then comes an unfortunate situation. The mine companies have learned that whenever anyone is drowned in one of their stripper lakes, they can expect a damage suit. Hence, most of the lakes are posted against fishing or swimming.

Anglers ignore the "no trespassing" signs on the handier stripper lakes. They seldom are chased away.

The coal producers and the Indiana Farm Bureau backed a state law in 1945 that would have freed landowners from liability for anything that happened to anybody who entered without a specific invitation. It was vetoed by former Governor Ralph Gates, who said it was too inclusive.

So some of the best inland fishing in the United States is being enjoyed by technical "poachers."

Interrupt Wedding To Arrest Man

TORONTO (CP)—Police shouldered their way through a wedding party Saturday to arrest a man who drove 90 miles an hour through city streets and crashed into two parked cars.

Police said the chase after Gary Nayler, 30, of suburban Forest Hill began when they spotted a car wanted in connection with shopbreaking.

They chased it at 90 miles an hour for five miles along a north-south traffic artery, through a dozen red lights and watched it crash into two parked cars of a wedding party.

Naylor jumped out and tried to lose himself among the guests, but officers caught him. He was charged with dangerous driving and theft from stores.

PC CANDIDATE — Sybil Bennett, a Georgetown, Ont., lawyer who heads the national women's organization of the Progressive Conservative party, carries a famous Conservative name into the present political campaign. Miss Bennett, 49, a distant relatives of the late Viscount Bennett, prime minister from 1930-35, is making her second attempt to return the family name to the Commons. In her first campaign in the 1949 general election in her home constituency of Halton, she lost to the Liberal candidate by about 1,500 votes. For this year's election she got an early start with a nomination last summer, and since then has made a door-to-door canvas throughout the riding.

Car Rolls Over Seven Youths Are In Hospital

GUELPH—Seven out of eight youthful occupants of a car that turned over at least twice on Puslinch Rd., three miles west of Guelph, at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon, were admitted to hospital.

One of their number, all of whom reside in Guelph, was later sent to a Toronto hospital for emergency treatment. Mike Shutsa, 17, of 195 Stevenson St., was sent in a police ambulance after a doctor's examination revealed serious and complicated injuries.

Others still confined to hospital and awaiting the results of X-ray examinations are: Ramon Alviano, 18, of 12 Alice St.; Miss Jean Baker, 16, of 1 Chadwick Ave.; Paul Kelly, 17, of 128 Queen St.; Joseph Sorbara, 16, of 46 Alice St.; Miss Muriel Wallace, 16, of 39 Derry St., and Miss Lynette Norton, 17, of 33 Alma St.

Apparently bound for Puslinch Lake, the journey came to an abrupt end near the farm of W. MacIntosh. The car in which they were driving swerved to avoid a parked vehicle and went out of control. It rolled over at least twice and all of the occupants were thrown out.

The road was busy with Sunday traffic and the injured boys and girls were treated temporarily by other motorists and later a doctor at the roadside. The surface of the road was splattered with blood and the police ambulance had to make several trips to take them all to hospital.

No Diagnosis For Sick Cattle

OTTAWA (CP)—An agriculture department spokesman said today the department has not yet completed a diagnosis of a shipment of Alberta cattle and hogs that was refused entry to the United States.

The 386 swine and 41 cattle were held up at New Westminster, B. C. last week when some animals were found suffering from a foot condition. They are being examined for vesicular exanthema, a contagious disease.

Meanwhile, the U. S. border remains closed to cattle and hogs from Alberta.

The department official said it is not known when the diagnosis will be completed. It is being conducted by the department's health of animals branch and animal diseases research institute.

FREDERICTON (CP) — After feeding 4,800 people barbecued chicken at the Dominion experimental station Dominion Day event, officials turned away 1,200 others with the regretful comment: "No more chicken."

Quaker Oats President Charges Dowling Double-Crossed Beggs

Reginald R. Faryon, president of the Quaker Oats Co., has denounced the delay of the 435 strikers in going back to work as a "double-cross." He claims the strike of 130 production workers at Saskatoon has nothing to do with the situation in Peterborough and charges Fred Dowling, UPWA Canadian director, with raising the issue "to make some capital for himself by double-crossing his local representative and the members of the Peterborough union."

Mr. Faryon says that Mr. Dowling had threatened to fire William Beggs, UPWA Eastern Ontario organizer, if he didn't disregard the agreement reached last Thursday in Mayor Hugh Waddell's office and follow "the new line."

Following is the text of Mr. Faryon's statement today:

"The Mayor, the City of Peterborough, and particularly the Peterborough employees of The Quaker Oats Company, have been double-crossed by the Toronto Headquarters of the United Packinghouse Workers.

"The Saskatoon situation has nothing to do with Peterborough. It is a separate contract with different circumstances. At Saskatoon Quaker wage rates have been the highest in Western Canada, and only recently the United Packinghouse Workers have signed contracts with two mills to bring their rates up to Quaker's. As a matter of fact, since the strike has been on in Saskatoon, the same Union have signed a contract with one large mill in Saskatoon at lower rates than Quaker.

"The only reason why the Quaker Oats plant at Saskatoon is on strike is because it was a strike in sympathy with Peterborough. This has been repeated time and time again by the International Union's representative in Saskatoon.

"On Thursday, when under the auspices of the Mayor and the company and the executive of the union, everyone agreed, including Alderman William Beggs representing the International Office of the union, that the company's offer would be presented to the union membership in Peterborough and their acceptance of it recommended by the International and the local executive. All agreed that the details of the offer were complete and final.

"It was made quite clear at the meeting that this agreement had nothing to do with Saskatoon, and everyone agreed that this was so.

"I talked to the deputy director of the International Headquarters at Toronto and he not only seemed very pleased about the agreement we had come to, but he told me he didn't think Saskatoon was a problem and that there were only one or two small details in dispute which, if removed, would settle the strike. These obstacles have now been removed.

"As far as the city representatives in the meeting were concerned and the representatives of the union and the company, the strike at Peterborough was over, and there were only a few small details in the contract to iron out.

"This is borne out by the fact that the union removed the pickets from The Quaker Oats Company's plant, and told us they would not oppose us bringing in trucks and removing goods that are now on the floor.

"Apparently, after thinking the situation over, Mr. Dowling, the director of the International Office of the United Packinghouse Workers, decided that he saw an opportunity to make some capital for himself by double-crossing his local representative and the members of the Peterborough union.

"He apparently got hold of Alderman Beggs, his representative in this district, and told him that he would not go along with the settlement that had been made in the Mayor's office, and that the strike in Saskatoon was now not a sympathy strike with Peterborough, but a contract strike, and that the Peterborough workers now must strike in sympathy with Saskatoon. This is a new angle and an awfully fast switch in the tactics of the union's Toronto office.

"He ordered Mr. Beggs to disregard the agreement he had made with the company in the Mayor's office and follow this new line. In talking to Mr. Ingram on the telephone Mr. Dowling said that if Alderman Beggs didn't repudiate his agreement with the Mayor's committee and the local executive of the union, he would be fired.

"To Alderman Beggs' everlasting credit, even though terrific pressures were brought on him, he refused to break the pledge he made in the Mayor's office and follow the double-cross which his boss had worked out.

"In all my business life I have never experienced anything that would remotely approach the trickery of these tactics by the International Union, who have coldly, for their own selfish reasons, disregarded the welfare of the local union members and, in effect, slapped the faces of the Mayor and his committee.

"These union leaders have already cost Quaker workers in Peterborough between $300,000 and $400,000, and every day they deliberately postpone the openi... this plant it is costing Quaker workers additional thousands of dollars which they can never hope to regain.

"In addition, these outsiders are upsetting the economic welfare of this city and imposing hardships upon thousands of citizens, merchants, supliers of the company, to say nothing of the farmers in the community.

"If one man in Toronto can do this to Peterborough, it is high time the citizens of Peterborough and the workers of The Quaker Oats Company, in particular, took some steps to rectify it."

Halt Testimony In Jewel Theft

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France (AP)—The court today called a halt to testimony about charges of police complicity in the $850,000 jewel robbery of the Aga Khan and his wife in 1949.

A ripple of disappointment ran through the courtroom when presiding Judge Vahan Portoukalian rejected the request of Pierre Bertaux, former chief of French security police, for permission to testify further concerning a one-time subordinate's charges that he helped one of the robbers escape capture and that he very possibly shared in the loot.

The sensational charges were made last Friday by Georges Valantin, chief of France's judicial police and stole the limelight away from the 12 men on trial for the robbery. The court decided today that more of the conflicting testimony by the feuding police officials would shed no new light on the guilt or innocence of the men on trial.

Bertaux followed Valantin to the stand Friday, described him as a disgruntled subordinate angered because he was pulled off the important jewel robbery case, and said the charges were not new and he had been cleared of them.

Meanwhile, the trial proceeded with routine testimony and some depositions from witnesses unable to appear.

Falls Out Of Boat Man Drowns In River

AULTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Robert Boyle, 44, of Montreal, was drowned in the St. Lawrence river near here Sunday when thrown from his boat while trying to start an outboard motor.

His brother John was pulled exhausted from the water by cottagers after vain attempts to save Robert. He said later that Robert, a non-swimmer, was standing up in the boat trying to start the motor when it suddenly caught, throwing him overboard. Aultsville is 20 miles west of Cornwall.

East German Reds Surrender Of Oder-Neisse Territories To Poles Starts Long Battle

By GASTON COBLENTZ
New York Herald-Tribune News Service

BERLIN.—The half-dead Polish section of the once all-German city of Goerlitz, which lies astride the western Neisse River, was chosen by the Communist world for an important ceremony on a hot July day three years ago.

East German Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl drove up from Berlin in a 12-cylinder car. The Poles opened the barbed-wire barriers on the Neiss bridge to let him and 1,500 picked German Reds into the Polish sector.

But the German crowd stood in bitter silence, for on that day, Grotewohl performed an act which amounted to highest treason in most German eyes. He announced the formal and "eternal" surrender of the Oder-Neisse territories by the East German Reds to the Polish Reds.

RICH LANDS

He handed over some of prewar Germany's richest lands—historically German Silesia, the "Eastern Ruhr"; Pomerania, a flat land with a long-disputed coast on the Baltic Sea; most of East Prussia, a region of lakes and deep forests; and East Brandenburg, a spearhead that puts the Polish army but 40 miles from Berlin — an area in all, about the size of Indiana.

Moscow informed the world that the "frontier of permanent peace" between Germany and Poland had at last been settled. But all indications are that it has not, that the Oder-Neisse line is a problem that will sooner or later make the postwar wrangles over Trieste and the Saar shrink into insignificance. It is one of the great difficulties to be overcome if there is to be a general European settlement between East and West.

The lands in question were seized from the Germans and handed over to the Poles in 1945 in a wartime American-British-Russian move to punish and weaken the Germans.

But now the big rival powers, competing for the friendship of the Germans and of the Poles, are faced with a dilemma. Ahead is a decision to be made: Leave the lands in Polish possession and incur the Germans' further hatred? Help the Germans recover the lands and incur the hatred of the Poles? Or work out a compromise that would leave both Germans and Poles embittered?

The United States has conspicuously avoided discussing the Oder-Neisse problem. Britain shares this reticence.

Fortunately for the West, the problem, for the time being lies behind the Iron Curtain. Until a German peace treaty is discussed with Moscow, the West can think the matter over in silence.

NEWBORN "FRIENDSHIP"

The lone voice heard at the moment is that of Communist propaganda, hailing a newborn "friendship" between the Poles and the Germans behind the Iron Curtain. But the only thing most Poles and Germans have in common is a hatred for the Russians and Communism. The extent of anti-Russian, anti-Communist feelings in East Germany was evident in last month's uprisings there.

The festering Oder-Neisse situation should breed more hatred for the Soviets. It also stands in the way of complete solidarity between Polish Reds and German Reds. The Poles still see Germans as enemies — and vice versa.

The seeds of future troubles have been sown in Poland's newly gained lands. Completely cut off from the Western world ,they have undergone a vast change.

Six million Germans have been mercilessly driven westward across the Oder and Neisse Rivers. They have migrated across Communist East Germany and now clog the Bonn Republic. They form one of the most powerful and restive political pressure groups in West Germany. They are agitating for the "liberation" of their former homes.

Five million Poles have swarmed in where the Germans were expelled. They have colonized the abandoned farms, filled the cities, seized the factories, taken over the ports.

This year, the Warsaw press is campaigning for still more intense colonization of the "Western regions." Polish army newspapers, for example, recently called on the nation's military men to settle there when discharged.

750,000 GERMANS

The Poles hold tight rein on the remaining German minority of more than 750,000. The German language is forbidden some places, and is suspect everywhere.

The new lands, besides appeasing the Polish appetite to avenge the incredible crimes of Hitler Germany, also:

1, Eliminate the great wedges of German land that hemmed in and threatened the central Polish provinces before World War II.

2. Comprise one-third of the total area of postwar Poland. They compensate and even overcompensate, for the larger but poorer regions of Eastern Poland surrendered to the Russians in 1945.

3. They contain the great coal wealth of Silesia. Its hard coal reserves exceed those of the Ruhr in West Germany. They make Poland Europe's largest coal exporter.

These lands are not only being Polonized. They are being Bolshevized. They have the "new look" that Communism has brought to every country in its grip:

Red propaganda posters everywhere; forced youth brigades; forced farm colectivization (some 3,100 Red collectives have been set up, more than in all the rest of Poland); the secret police.

POSITION OF GREAT POWERS

What, then, are the positions of the great powers, so far as they can be ascertained, on this bitter problem?

The United States: In 1950, the State Department said it did not recognize the frontier of "eternal peace" and repeated its earlier assertion that the dispute must be settled at a German peace conference.

Britain: The most authoritative fact on hand is a flat statement by Prime Minister Churchill in volume V of his war memoirs.

He tells a fantastic story. When the Oder-Neisse line was first discussed at Teheran, he took it for granted that the Russians were talking about the Oder and Eastern Neisse. It turned out at Potsdam, 18 months later, after the Russians had occupied the area, that they had been talking about the western Neisse.

It made a whale of a difference. The distance between the Eastern and the Western Neisse in Silesia is as much as 120 miles.

"I at once declared," Churchill writes about this event "that Great Britain adhered only to the Eastern tributary, and that is still our position."

On the Oder itself, the principal border river, the Poles have erected watchtowers at many points along the eastern bank to enable them to survey the barge traffic and the movements of the ever-suspect German population on the other side.

Moscow's planners are linking the Oder up into a great Eastern European waterway network by means of a canal project tying it into the Danube and the Black Sea. Of great economic importance, it will enable Russian river vessels to travel from Asiatic Turkmenistan, east of the Caspian Sea to the Polish ports on the Baltic.

As is common in Europe's endless territorial feuds, the Poles have been able to dig up plenty of historical justification for tightening their grip on the Oder-Neisse lands.

They have produced the fact that Slavs ruled in these territories for 300 years from 1100 to 1400. But not since 1400, say the Germans.

GERMANS' ARGUMENT

The Germans, for their part, argue as follows:

First, that the lost lands have been German in population and kultur for the last 700 years. That only 188,000 Poles lived in them before the war, a drop in the bucket among 8,657,492 Germans.

Further, that the territories formed part of pre-Hitler Germany. That is, they were an internationally recognized and undisputed and integral portion of the German Reich before Hitler started adding to it.

That the whole arrangement of Poland's new frontiers was part of the Teheran-Yalta-Potsdam travesty, and should be annulled.

That the lost lands are vital to future German economic welfare. They produced 25 per cent of Germany's grain before the war, almost 30 per cent of its potatoes, 25 per cent of its sugar, a large part of its minerals and metals.

The Russians: They have repeatedly made fun of the American-British idea that a final decision is only to be taken at a German peace conference. They say the matter is decided already, as is,

But they are capable of a sudden reversal at any moment. They coud make a major play for the affections of 68,000,000 Germans by dropping the Poles and offering back the whole disputed area.

On the German side, Chancellor Adenauer has stated that the Germans will never attempt to reconquer the lost lands by war.

He has said that they must be eventually regained with no more individual suffering by the Poles.

Dr. Adenauer's moderation is a steadying influence in West Germany. But, even now, some branches of his own regime are engaged in harsh polemics against another party to the dispute, the anti-Communist Polish emigres in the West, who in the main also oppose Germany's claims.

In these circumstances, all kinds of suggestions are likely to be offered up in the future for "Internationalizing" or "Europeanizing" the disputed territories as the only way out of the impasse. But even this solution may leave a hate-filled cancer in one of the most critical parts of Europe.

Cluney, acting Canadian director of the Textile Workers Union of America (CCL - CIO) urged the Canadian government Sunday to provide greater protection for the textile industry. In a prepared statement, Mr. Cluney said that for the last two years a "destructive flood of imported textiles and textile products" has resulted in "serious unemployment" in the Canadian industry.

Raid Dice Game

TORONTO (CP)—City and provincial police arrested 47 men Saturday in one of the largest gambling raids in recent years. Investigators said a squad raided the Diamond Boxing Club and found $5,000 in the possession of the occupants and seized about $500 in play along with dice, cards and chips. Charges of keeping a common gaming house were laid against 11 of them. The remaining 36 were charged as found-ins. All were remanded to July 17.

Airport Rental Increased 50 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department likely will increase rental and service charges for airport facilities across the country by about 50 per cent Sept. 1, a department spokesman said Sunday.

The department is reviewing present charges to private organizations using facilities of all government-operated airports in Canada. Aim is to make rental of such facilities self-supporting.

Some 400 airports will be affected. Principal ones will be those at Gander, Nfld., Sydney, N.S., Moncton, N.B., Quebec City, Dorval, Que., Ottawa, Toronto, London and Windsor, Ont., Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon and Lethbridge, Alta.

R. N. Redmayne, manager of the Air Industries and Transport Association which represents individuals and organizations operating private aircraft, said the association had filed objections to the proposed increases.

He said the amount of increase was too great. "We feel the increases are too much for one jump. More gradual increases would be easier to bear."

Urges Help Offered U.K. Contracting Firms

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times today says help should be offered to British contracting firms trying to establish themselves in Canada with a view to taking part in the St. Lawrence Seaway work and other big Canadian development projects.

"The seaway may provide the impetus and a unique opportunity of its own," the paper says in an editorial "But the important objective is that British firms should be able to establish their position in Canada so that they can participate in Canadian developments at large."

Since the war, The Times adds, many British contracting firms had built up a large business in many parts of the Commonwealth, "but Canada has remained a closed book."

QUAKER PICKETS TURN BACK 2 TRUCKS

GO BACK TO TRENTON—That's what picket Harry Lee is telling a Trenton driver who was trying to bring a three-ton truck loaded with feed out through the Simcoe St. picket line at noon today. Other strikers whose circular picket line was broken when the driver tried to edge through are shown trying to shove the truck back to its original position outside the picket ring. A second truck is behind. After sitting in the hot sun for 45 minutes the drivers decided to give up the idea and returned to the plant. Left is Owen Reid, 25, who received a grazed left ankle when struck by the same truck as it went through the picket lines into the plant shortly after 9 a.m. —Examiner Staff Photo

Strikers Mass To Hold Back Vehicles Loaded With Feed; One Picket Grazed By Truck Bumper

Drivers of two Quaker Oats trucks that had been loaded with feed from the strike-bound plant turned back into company property at 12.50 p.m. today when they encountered mass picketing. There was no violence though one of the pickets was slightly injured shortly after 9 a.m. when the trucks edged their way through the picket lines to get into the plant. Owen Reid, 25, of 386 Stewart St., received a grazed ankle when struck by the bumper of a three-ton Quaker truck driven by a man identified by the strikers as Earl Davis of Trenton. Though limping Reid continued on the picket line. After the trucks had edged their way through the pickets at the Simcoe St. post and got to the plant the picket line was reinforced to wait for the loaded trucks coming out again. With the driver identified as Davis in the lead the trucks moved up to the picket post at 12.10 p.m., the one vehicle closely following the other.

Davis slowed his truck but continued on and met the mass picket of 24 men who were forming a moving circle in the roadway. The truck crushed against the pickets who massed against the grill of the vehicle trying to hold their ground; the pickets were gradually pushed back.

Two men fell to the ground and for a moment or two it looked as though a serious injury would result. Then Davis came to a halt and the strikers pushed him back to his former position outside the picket ring.

The strikers, joined by others who had heard of the incident at union headquarters, formed a larger ring. They were joined by two girl strikers.

CALL DRIVERS "SCABS"

For three quarters of an hour the two truck drivers sat in the cabs of their trucks, doors locked and windows up tight, listening to the abuse of the pickets. The favorite epithet was "scab" and the drivers were frequently told to "go back to Trenton."

Officers of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), cautioned the pickets not to damage or even touch the trucks and not to try and "get at" the drivers.

Constable Don Mackay arrived shortly after the drivers made their attempt to get through the picket lines. He conferred briefly with three union leaders— Bob Prescott, Herb Hennessey and Harry Lee— and a few minutes later Deputy Chief Constable —John Naples arrived to look over the situation.

Apparently satisfied that the picketing was legal Deputy Chief Naples left after 10 minutes.

TRUCKS BACK OFF

Finally, three quarters of an hour after they made their attempt to leave with the loaded trucks, the drivers who were visibly sweating as the hot sun beat down inside their closed-in cabs, backed up to a position 100 yards inside the picket line. The move was greeted with jeers and hoots from the pickets.

By this time a crowd of several hundred spectators had gathered to watch the scene. They were quiet and orderly and questioned each other frequently on what was likely to develop.

Mayor Waddell said today that the Police Commission had received an enquiry from the Quaker Oats Company respecting its rights to move trucks into and out of their property.

The commission has replied that this is a civil matter, and that if transport is impeded the company has the ordinary recourse of appeal to the courts.

Mayor Waddell said that if any trouble developed in connection with these proceedings the police would automatically be called to maintain law and order.

HAD NO IDEA

The unidentified driver in the second truck said he had no idea what he was getting into when he came to Peterborough.

"We both work at the Quaker Oats in Trenton," he said. "The company told us that the strike was over here, so there would be no trouble. We were to pick up some feed."

James G. Wharry, general manager of Quaker Oats, said today that the company had a right to bring in trucks and it has been agreed upon previously by the union.

"At the meeting in Mayor Waddell's office on Thursday it was agreed that we could bring our trucks in and take out feed that was getting out of condition. Well, we did bring in our trucks and the pickets blocked them from getting out.

"I don't know whether or not blocking the trucks like that constitutes legal picketing," continued Mr. Wharry. "That's up to the police, and if the police can't handle it I don't know what will happen."

MEETING HELD

Mr. Wharry confirmed that a meeting was held today at 1.30 p.m. between the company and the union. He did not dislose what the agenda would be.

The incident today with the two scuffles was the nearest to an outbreak of violence since the 435 Quaker Oats production workers in Peterborough went on strike April 22. Another 130 are striking in Saskatoon.

Though Local 293 have accepted the company's offer they refuse to go back to work until the company settles with the Saskatoon strikers. Reginald R. Faryon, company president, had referred to this as a "doublecross" and the situation is once again deadlocked.

Army Maintains Tight Control About Suez Zone

ISMAILIA, Egypt (AP)—The British Army maintained tight traffic controls around this strategic Suez Canal zone town today but no incidents were reported.

Seeking traces of an airman they believe was kidnapped, British troops continued to search thoroughly all Egyptian civilians at checkpoints.

The Egyptian population still was excited over the new flare-up in the British-Egyptian crisis following Egypt's rejection of a British demand that the missing airman, LAC. A. V. Rigden, be returned.

The British set up their rigid controls Monday morning, charging Rigden was last seen five days ago with an Egyptian officer and the Egyptians know more about his disappearance than they are admitting. Egyptian officials denied any knowledge of Rigden.

Egyptian authorities at Ismailia said they had their people well in hand and that the population was showing a "spirit of discipline."

At Port Said, northern terminus of the canal, police declared a state of emergency and police patrols roamed the streets.

At Katara, half-way between the two centres, Egyptian officials reported a British patrol opened fire on a group of Egyptian workers Monday and wounded some of them.

An editorial in the weekly Moslem brotherhood Newspaper Al Da Awa said Egyptians would welcome a holy war against the British. It said the British "should be prepared not only for the disappearance of one single soldier. They should be prepared to see their soldiers flogged and hanged from trees."

GAVE FAIR WARNING

LONDON (AP) — Britain has given Egypt "fair warning" that she will take measures to protect British troops in the Canal zone against attack, a government spokesman said today.

Lord Reading, Parliamentary Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told questioners in the House of Lords that Britain had given no ultimatum to Egypt following the failure of Egyptian authorities to return a kidnapped British airman.

"There was only a fair warning that if the Egyptian authorities did nothing to protect British troops against attack, the general officer commanding would have to take measures himself."

Halt Negotiations As Reds Fear Rhee Time Limit

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied and Communist armistice delegates met for 39 minutes today and then called it quits until Wednesday their negotiations apparently snarled by Red fears that South Korea will honor a truce only for a limited time.

Official secrecy shrouded developments inside the conference hut, but the Communist Peiping radio said the U. S.-South Korean accord "has placed another time-bomb in the way to an armistice in Korea."

While the delegates talked, the war thundered to its highest point in two years. More than 60,000 Chinese smashed into four South Korean divisions on the east-central front.

The truce teams called another meeting for 11 a. m. Wednesday (10 p. m., EDT, Tuesday).

SHELLING CHARGE

After Tuesday's session, the United Nations Command reported that Communist liaison officers lodged a charge that an Allied shell landed in the Panmunjom neutral zone Sunday. The Reds charged Monday that Allied planes bombed a war-prisoner assembly area north of Pyongyang July 10.

The UN command has not yet replied to either protest.

Although there was no announcement concerning full dress truce talks, Communist correspondents outside the hut said the negotiations were "getting nowhere." Their comments usually reflect the official Communist line inside the conference.

Alan Winnington of the London Daily Worker indicated the Reds were asking a series of questions aimed at getting more clarification on assurances South Korea will abide by an armistice.

It seemed clear that the Communists thus far were far from satisfied with President Syngman Rhee's statements on his two-week-long secret talks with special U. S. envoy Walter S. Robertson in Seoul.

Peiping radio, quoting New China news agency dispatch from Kaesong, Red truce headquarters, said:

"The Robertson-Rhee talks, instead of providing definite guarantee for the implementation of the armistce agreement, have placed another time-bomb in the way to an armistice in Korea."

Winnington said the UN command seems to be trying to take a middle course. He said the UN wants Rhee in on an armistice but has failed to give any "solid assurances" that Rhee's government and army will not wreck the truce.

The Communist correspondent said Rhee apparently has agreed only to observe a cease-fire until 90 days after a post-armistice political conference. Winnington contended that Rhee insists that peaceful unification of Korea cannot be achieved in such a conference and that the South Korean president would block it anyway.

Red Troops Rip RoK Lines To Imperil Allied Defences

SEOUL (AP)—Tens of thousands of Chinese ripped through South Korean lines as far as four miles in Central Korea today in a mounting onslaught that imperiled Allied defences. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, 8th Army commander, said after a first-hand look at the grave situation that Rok defenders were yielding some ground "as the defence readjusts itself to the new situation". Between 60,00 and 70,000 Chinese aimed their sudden assault—the mightiest Red offensive in more than two years—at main-line positions on a 20-mile front east of Kumwha to the Pukhan river.

Troops from eight Chinese divisions were thrown into the blazing battles in the wake of some of the heaviest Red artillery barrages of the war.

Four Red divisions—about 40,000 men—struck first in rainy darkness just before midnight. Units from the four reserve divisions were fed into the battle as needed, U. S. officers said.

NOT UNEXPECTED

Gen. Taylor, in a statement issued after he returned from a visit to the front, said:

"The attack was not unexpected and the defence is extracting a very heavy toll of casualties from the Communists."

"Our troops have behaved extremely well," he said, "in spite of the weight of the enemy pressure and the unfavorable weather. Some ground north and east of the Kumsong river is being yielded as the defence readjusts itself to the new situation."

There were other withdrawals across the blazing 20-mile east-central front.

The Eighth Army said earlier that the Chinese had driven at least two miles southward toward the Kumsong-Kumhwa road network below Kumsong.

Tories Don't Plan Welfare Cut Drew Declares

BATHURST, N. B. (CP)—Hon. George Drew sought to slay a couple of ghosts about the Progressive Conservative party's policy as he campaigned Monday along the New Brunswick north shore.

He branded as "cruel misrepresentation" statements he said had been made that his party would reduce family allowances and old-age pensions if voted to office Aug. 10.

He denied a statement by Prime Minister St. Laurent that the provinces would lose financially in the federal-provincial reallocation of tax fields promised in the Conservative election platform.

DENIED OBLIGATION

The Liberal government had denied "solemn obligations" to the provinces by refusing a reallocation of taxing powers between federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Drew spoke in the afternoon at Campbellton in Restigouche-Madawaska. In the evening he addressed two audiences totalling 850 in this town in Gloucester where its first Progressive Conservative member in more than 50 years was voted in in a by-election last year

Today he speaks in Fredericton and Saint John on the second day of his week-long tour of the Maritimes.

Mr. Drew said family allowances, pensions and other social security measures "are here to stay" no matter what party is in power, and he quoted Prime Minister St. Laurent to back his statement.

He said the prime minister had told the Commons that no one

Balcony Critics Razz PM After Attack On Socreds

EDMONTON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent carried his campaign into Saskatchewan today after his first bout with hecklers at a meeting here Monday night. A filled hall of about 1,000 persons attending a rally in this capital of Social Credit Alberta broke into an uproar as the balcony critics razzed the 71-year-old prime minister. Mr. St. Laurent interrupted his attack on Social Credit policies to reply to the hecklers.

Appealing to Alberta voters to support the government Aug. 10, Mr. St. Laurent repeated statements he had made at previous British Columbia and Alberta gatherings—that Solon Low, national Social Credit leader, had called former United States presidents Harry Truman and Franklin Roosevelt "the great betrayers of humanity"

He also quoted John Blackmore, Social Credit member of the last Parliament, as saying that free external trade causes war and depression.

"OLD GOAT"

"How about freight-rate equalization?" one of the balcony critics shouted. Mr. St. Laurent suggested he hire a hall to expound his theories.

The audience tolerated the heckling until one man shouted:

"How about the West? How about the West, you old goat?"

The audience shouted at the hecklers to go home, but Mr. St. Laurent suggested they be allowed to stay and "learn something."

Eisenhower Sees Korea Truce Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told congressional leaders today he believes a truce is near in Korea despite massive new attacks by the Communists.

The leaders, meeting in their regular weekly White House session with the President, were briefed on the situation in Korea, including the successful negotiations for an agreement with South Korean President Syngman Rhee.

Eisenhower was described by some of those who attended as optimistic about the chances for a truce with the Communists.

The President and military leaders were reported to regard the newest Communist offensive, directed at areas held by South Korean troops, as designed primarily to straighten out a bulge made in their lines by a 1951 allied offensive.

Supreme Soviet Meets

Report US Envoy Has Rhee Pledge

TOKYO (AP)—U. S. Envoy Walter S. Robertson left today by plane for the United States to report directly to President Eisenhower on his 16 days of secret talks with President Syngman Rhee on a Korean armistice.

It is reported he took with him a signed pledge by Rhee agreeing to abide by an armistice in Korea if one can be arranged at Panmunjom.

Robertson was not too happy with what he called "many misrepresentations" he said he had noted in news reports during 12 secret talks at Seoul.

"However unintentionally such misrepresentations may have been made, they were none the less real," he said in a statement read to reporters.

Robertson did not specifically mention what he called "press misrepresentations." An unimpeachable source, however, said Robertson felt his mission had been hurt particularly by a news story last Saturday which quoted Rhee as saying South Korea would abide by an armistice for only 90 days.

The source said the story was one written by Scripps-Howard correspondent Jim Lucas.

N.Y. Critic Lauds Stratford Drama

NEW YORK (CP) — Canada's Shakespearean festival, which opened at Stratford, Ont., last night with a production of Richard III, was described by an American critic today as "nothing less than brilliant."

The comment came from William Hawkins, drama critic of the New York World-Telegram and Sun in a review appearing today.

He found, however, that Stratford itself seemed a bit unconcerned about it all.

"Alec Guinness, playing the title role, and Tyrone Guthrie directing, offered a production of the bloody, violent play with novel depths and excitement I rarely have had anywhere before," Hawkins wrote.

"This Richard is far and away the finest thing Mr. Guinness has been seen in on this side of the Atlantic."

Hawkins found the costumes, too, were "richer and more voluminous than we have seen for Shakespeare in Manhattan."

But he expressed a feeling that "Stratford does not seem yet to know what a distinguished and brilliant theatrical event it has in its handsome new tent on a hill over the quiet, willow-banked river.

"There are not many signs out yet and not nearly the excitement the festival warrants."

"'It's always been a kind of sleepy little town' say the minority of citizens who fought and bled for this. 'Lots of people never thought we could put it over and they hate to eat humble pie.'"

East Berliners Give Lie To Red Claim Of Ample Food

BERLIN (AP)—Hundreds of hungry East Berliners gave the lie to Communist claims of ample food today, storming across the sector border to take advantage of a West Berlin food-relief program.

Only three days after their Red government scornfully rejected a U. S. offer ow $15,000,000 worth of food, the easterners made a mass rush to buy privately-donated stocks sold along one part of the border at a special reduced rate of exchange.

The relief market opened in the borough of Kreuzberg, with West Berlin city funds supplementing private donations of milk and fruit. Within three hours the stocks were gone, though buying was restricted to persons from the immediately adjoining East Berlin neighborhood.

The food was sold at just more than one-sixth the normal price.

Kruezberg's mayor Willy Kressman said the relief market will resume operations Wednesday, with potatoes in stock instead of milk and fruit.

The eastern government admitted the falsity of the Communists' claim they could handle East Germany's food problem without foreign interference. Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl broadcast a frantic appeal for the "entire population" to turn to in the fields and help farmers harvest the sorely-needed crops.

There was no evidence, however, of any immediate turnout resulting from Grotewohl's appeal and the government's admission of a food scarcity and a "serious shortage" of labor.

The private relief program in Kruezberg was only a local stop gap, and German and U. S. authorities still studied suggested ways of getting the U. S.-offered food stocks into East Germany despite the Soviet rejection.

Chief Vows Reptile's Death

"Three-Toed Monster" Gives Villagers Jitters With Nightly River Prowling

NEW HAMBURG—(CP)—George Thomas, police chief of New Hamburg, says he'll "fill that three-toed monster full of lead" the next time it leaves the swamp to make love. And that can't be too soon for the 1,800 villagers.

The chief said Monday the mysterious animal, which has given residents nere the jitters for the last few weeks, gets the urge to mate every so often. "That's when I'll get it."

Thomas says he isn't sure what kind of an animal he is dealing with. But he is convinced this southwestern Ontario village has something "not natural to this part of the country."

The hunt has been going on since Chief Thomas took a shot at it along the banks of the Nith river last week. He said it was about 2½ to three feet long, about six inches in circumference and had a long body and tail. The tracks were about two inches in width and had three distinct claw marks.

Thomas said:

"This thing is not a bird. The animal has been seen by citizens here every so often for the last two years. It's always seen around the same time of the year and that is why I think its answering the urge to mate; to prowl around at night."

He didn't say what the "three-toed monster" would mate with.

The chief said "for my money it's some kind of an overgrown lizard which emerges from the swamp around the river."

The yarn has grown to such proportions that citizens are in a dither. "Some of them are scared to look out when you rap on the door," Thomas said.

A few residents and visitors looked for the animal during the week-end There were no traces of it.

Big 3 Talks End Hint Fall Time For Parley

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Big Three Western foreign ministers wind up their Washington conference today with indications of agreement that any high - level meeting with Russia should be delayed at least until next fall.

A high British official said his government is willing to wait until after the German elections Sept. 6 to avoid possible embarrassment to West Germany's government.

Diplomatic informants reported that the British acting foreign secretary, the Marquess of Salisbury, had presented this position to Secretary of State Dulles and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and that the three were in substantial accord.

Germany probably will figure largely in the small communique of the Big Three session—probably with new statements of support for German unification and fresh backing for the projected European Defence Community under which West Germany would be armed.

FINAL SESSION

A final session of the U. S., British and French foreign policy chiefs was scheduled today following a meeting of Dulles and Lord Salisbury on Britain's dispute with Egypt over the Suez canal.

A high British official, who may not be named, said Britain is determined that an agreement with Egypt must cover two major requirements.

These, he said, are permission for British forces to return to Suez in event of war and arrangements for adequate maintenance of the extensive military installations at the base.

SESSION SECRET

Dulles, Bidault and Salisbury held Monday's session under unusual secrecy restriction. They limited disclosure to a report that they went over policy papers nailing down understandings reached in their discussions here. The British and French ministers, it was reported, then referred the documents to London and Paris for final consideration in advance of today's meeting.

Most of the discussion of the conference has been concerned with the closely-related problems of Western policy toward Germany and Western estimates of the behavior and policy of the Soviet Union.

Any moves toward achievement of German unification must involve Russia since it is one of the occupying powers along with the three western nations.

While unification is a problem for the occupation powers, it is an urgent political issue in Germany. Out of this fact is derived the reported opinion that it would be better to avoid action on the problem at the four-power level until after Germany's September elections.

MRS. ELLEN FAIRCLOUGH, member in the last parliament for Hamilton West, prophesied victory for Progressive-Conservatives in the coming election when she spoke Monday night before a crowd of 300 in the Legion Hall. Indians Dig Seneca Roots For Extra Cash

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP)—Indians in this area are digging seneca roots to make some extra money for their annual sun dance, and to attend the stampedes throughout the province.

Harvesting seneca root, the base of many cough remedies, brings in the most money in the shortest time, just when the Indians have spent their trapping money. Every member of the family can join in the work.

An energetic Indian squaw can dig up to 20 pounds a day in a good spot, for an income of $40 to $50 a week while it lasts.

THRIVES IN MARSHES

Seneca is a small plant with a tiny blue flower and a root covered with gray bark, and is found in abundance in this area, 150 miles southwest of Edmonton in the foothills. The plant thrives in wet bush lands. One field 20 miles south of here, on land that used to be muskeg, is the best in the west and thousands of pounds are harvested there each summer.

Before the Second World War, much of the raw root went to China and Europe, but now most of it is sold to manufacturing plants in Canada and the United States.

The most popular tool for digging up the roots is a section of an automobile car spring fitted with a smooth wooden handle.

A few of the older Indians still brew a bit of this herb for various remedies, but the younger generation refuses such bitter medicine.

INDIAN SPECIALTY

This is one Indian field that the white man has not invaded. Few if any of the local residents would know seneca if they saw it. Few besides the buyers and the local merchants even know seneca is a local crop.

The fur buyers who handle the seneca would much prefer to purchase dried roots, but the Indians are far too busy to dry seneca root, a long tedious process, so they sell it green.

Rescuers Recover 11 Bodies Of Plane Victims

HONOLULU (AP)—Rescuers today pulled burned and mutilated bodies from shark-infested waters [illegible] where a Transocean Airlines passenger plane crashed Saturday night with 58 aboard.

Fifty passengers—nine of them children—and eight crew members presumably perished in the crash.

The Navy transport Barrett recovered 14 bodies including nine women and two children.

The Barrett radioed that all of the bodies showed "evidence of violent sudden death with multiple bruises." The report said a previous message that one victim showed evidence of flash burns proved erroneous.

HOPE FADES

Hope for survivors faded rapidly as the Barrett reported sighting the fifth and last raft carried by the ill-fated DC6-B plane. The raft was empty.

The Barrett's medical officer said after viewing the scorched and mutilated bodies:

"There is little hope of any survivors."

Dispatches from the Barrett indicated the water was churning with sharks. The rescuers reported they could not retrieve the last three bodies sighted "because of sharks."

SEE PARTS OF BODIES

The ship said earlier that it was unable to estimate how many bodies were in the immediate vicinity but that parts of bodies had been sighted.

The airliner, bound from Guam to Oakland, Calif., was last heard from at 10:28 p. m. Honolulu time Saturday when it reported its position as 325 miles east of Wake. It apparently plunged into the sea minutes later without a chance to send out a distress signal.

Condition of the bodies indicated the plane plunged in flames or exploded soon after crashing into the sea.

Red Troops

The Chinese made their deepest penetrations at the west and east flanks of the Allies' bulge into Red lines, between Kumhwa and Lookout Mountain.

The penetrations at both ends of the front could endanger a big segment of the line.

Associated Press Correspondent Robert Gibson said the Chinese sent probing units as deep as four miles behind the main fighting. Some Reds were chopped down in cross-fire as they tried to get through.

Gibson, reporting from the RoK Capital Division at the west flank, said the Chinese, after breaching the line, funelled in more troops without thought of cost.

CUT TWO DIVISIONS

"We have cut down two Chinese divisions pretty badly," reported one American officer with the battle-hardened Capital Division, outh Korea's pride.

Officers at the front called the Red artillery fire "tremendous—unbelievable."

The fighting was confused, with communications hampered by severed wires.

Gibson reported several RoK units were isolated, but fighting—and dying—valiantly.

It was a similar picture throughout the front. Some isolated units engulfed by Chinese were still reported figuting, 22 hours after the attack started.

Other South Koreans died on outposts and hill positions in the face of waves of Chinese who poured over barbed wire entanglements and charged recklessly through allied artillery.

Darkness closed in, RoKs braced for further assaults.

"There are no reports of action ceasing in any sector," a U. S. 8th Army briefing officer said. He said the situation was "very fluid."

The attack came with startling suddeness and reports trickled back slowly to 8th army headquarters because of severed communications.

One outpost reported:

"Two enemy platoons (25-40 men each) suddenly were reinforced to four battalions (500-750 men each). There was no further report."

FLYING POOR

Despite poor flying weather, the U.S. 5th air force sent its B-29 superforts to blast Red lines and stem the Chinese.

Although Allied front-line units had been ready for possible attack because of a Red buildup, the weight of the onslaught came as a surprise.

Allied warships fanned up and down the Korean coast from Wonsan harbor, blasting Communist installations and transportation on the shore.

contended any of these measures would be eliminated. "Any one who would say otherwise is challenging the honesty of the prim minister."

TRY TO CREATE FEAR

"There could be no more cruel misrepresentation. They are trying to create fear in the minds of old people and others who depend on those payments."

Mr. Drew dealt at Campbellton with the federal-provincial tax agreements begun in 1943, under which the provinces turned over certain tax fields to the federal government in return for fixed annual payments. In 1943, he said, the federal government promised to reallocate the tax fields after the war, put provincial finances on a sound basis and establish clearly the constitutional relationship between the two levels of government.

When Mr. St. Laurent stated that no government of his would reallocate tax fields, said Mr. Drew, he was saying in effect that the government "will not live up to the solemn obligations it undertook when the agreements were first signed."

BETTER ARRANGEMENT

The prime minister had also said the provinces would lose financially in a tax reallocation under a Progressive Conservative government.

There was "no suggestion" of cancelling the present agreements, and when they expire "we want to see that there will be a better arrangement, with the provinces better off financially."

The Liberal stand on the tax agreements, he said, "goes to the root of the integrity of the present government."

Mr. Drew referred to new discoveries of base metals in this area and said the Maritime hydro-power expansion pledged by his party would help to develop those resources.

Toronto Stock Prices Slip Down

TORONTO (CP)—Prices slipped in light afternoon stock market trading today.

Golds mixed in light trading, little affected by news of further work stoppages in the Timmins area. Industrials edged lower with many issues trading unchanged while base metals and western oils continued recent declines.

Uraniums and Bathurst, N. B., base metals had one specialty, Sudbury Contact, which added 17 cents in heavy trading. Otherwise the section was mixed as Gunnar gained 10 cents and Nesbitt Labine eased pennies.

In industrials, papers, utilities and steels traded lower. Foods were led forward by Hunts B, with a 1¼ point gain. B. C. Power A, CPR and General Motors had losses running to 1⅝ points.

Action in the golds slowed as seniors and juniors weakened but holding companies mixed. Soft spots in the first two sections were Dome, Teck-Hughes and Macleod but Preston East Dome added 15 cents. Frobisher was down in holding companies.

Western oils were led lower by weakness in key issues like Anglo-Canadian and Canada Oil Lands.

Base metals levelled out at narrowly lower prices. Down were Smelters, Hudson Bay and International Nickel. Steep Rock and Normetal gained.

When the hecklers were finally escorted out, one of them shouted:

"What are you getting sore about? You're just a bunch of phoneys. Go back to Quebec."

One of the hecklers later identified himself as a member of the Young Social Credit League.

Loud applause from the audience greeted the end of Mr. St. Laurent's speech.

The prime minister got more applause, but no heckling, when he made similar remarks about Social Crediters at a noon meeting of some 500 persons at Red Deer, halfway between Edmonton and Calgary.

BACK PIPELINE

In his Edmonton speech, delivered after he officiated at the opening of the Edmonton Exhibition, Mr. St. Laurent said the Liberal government will back development of an all-Canadian pipeline to give Eastern Canadian centres the benefit of Alberta's cheap natural gas.

He touched on the pipeline as he continued to hammer away at his main Western vote-getting argument, that Western electors should vote Liberal because only the Liberals have country-wide support to provide strong, stable government to speed Canada's economic development.

With the prime minister on the platform were State Secretary Pickersgill, Mines Minister Prudham and Edmonton's federal Liberal candidates.

Mr. St. Laurent flies to Yorkton and Regina today as he nears the end of his 10-day, 6,000-mile Western drive for votes. He will move into Ontario later this week.

Shot At Pullet Sets Off Blast

The bullet had ricochetted and set off five cases of blasting dynamite in the storage building.

The pullet? Unruffled.

Attitude To Exports Seen Major Difference: Chevrier

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier told a political meeting here Monday night that a major difference between the Liberal and Conservative parties lies in their attitude to exports by this country.

The Conservatives do not believe in exporting Canadian materials, he said. They think natural resources should be kept at home for Canadian manufacturing.

The Liberals, on the other hand, hold that as long as it is economically impossible to produce such things as steel products on our own shores, natural resources should be exported.

Mr. Chevrier said the Conservatives policy would lead eventually to only one thing—high tariffs and isolationism.

Conservative charges — that the Liberal administration had imposed too high taxes, was corrupt, inefficient and acted in the manner of a dictatorship—should not be taken seriously, the minister said.

"The other parties seldom disagreed with enactments when passed but rather complained the government had not gone far enough or soon enough.

"In 1950, the Conservatives complained taxes were not high enough, that more aid and men should be sent to Korea. Now they claim the taxes are too high and the government has been a dictatorship.

Sinister Ring In Charge Beria Sought Restoration Of Capitalism

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW
New York Herald Tribune News Service

LONDON—Faced with the spectacular downfall of one of the two most powerful men in the Soviet Union, the first question that leaps to the mind is what effect will this convulsion have on the Kremlin's policy at home, in the Satellites and in the Cold War?

One answer is that it may have far less effect than the first impression suggests.

We have nothing except "Pravda's" word for it that Lavrenty P. Beria was pursuing a policy of his own. And "Pravda's" leading article is such a hodgepodge one feels inclined to discount the whole of it.

There is a sinister ring in the charge that Beria sought to initiate "a capitulatory policy which would have brought about ultimately the restoration of capitalism."

If this means anything at all, it would suggest that Beria was responsible for the recent moves towards conciliation with the West and appeasement in the Satellites. But it need not mean more than the rest of the article, which was clearly concerned with justifying Beria's dismissal in the hackneyed terms of Stalinist doctrinaire polemics.

GRAB LEADERSHIP

The only part of the whole accusation we can believe with certainty is the charge that Beria was "hatching plans to grab the leadership of the Party and the country"—that at least rings true and in strict accordance with the observed fact.

We can be sure there was a bitter personal rivalry between Premier Georgi Malenkov and Beria. Since Stalin's death there were many indication that Beria was consolidating his own power until a few weeks ago by placing his nominees in key positions. Now he's gone.

But when it comes to policy, the questions of whether Beria was working for moderation and now is defeated by exponents of the Stalinist system of rigid discipline and ruthless oppression, or whether he stood in the way of the liberalizing policies of the past month, we can only guess.

Indications are that the crisis was more concerned with Soviet domestic affairs than foreign policy. For example, certain passages in "Pravda's" leading article suggest strongly that the recent policy of appeasing the nationalist susceptibilities of the Soviet Republics has been associated with Beria and will now be reversed.

CERTAIN OF NOTHING

But when it comes to the Satellites and the world at large, we can be certain of nothing.

Even if it should be found that Baria in fact, with or without Malenkov's agreement, was responsible for the liberalizing moves in East Germany and elsewhere, it is clear that during the past two weeks events got out of control. And short of a sustained military repression of sullen, bankrupt societies, there can be no return to the old line.

It might equally be true that as the charges against Beria are elaborated, he will find himself accused of trying to sabotage "the Soviet peace initiative" precisely by opposing liberal policies.

We don't know. All we know is that those who believed after the death of Stalin that the regime was very far from stable or happy have been proved right.

And there's every reason to suppose that Beria's fall won't be the last event of this kind. There is no reason to suppose that even Malenkov himself is safe. There are other pretenders to the supreme power besides Beria.

One Listed Dead In Korean War

OTTAWA (CP)—An army casualty list today included one man killed in action and 14 wounded in action. The last list was issued July 7.

Today's list included 11 members of the 3rd battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment, three members of the Royal 22nd Regiment and one member of the 3rd battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Casualties suffered by the 3rd battalion, RCR, were the first reported since the battalion went back into the line earlier this month. An army spokesman said the casualties were suffered before the latest Communist attacks in Korea. It was the longest list issued since May 6 when 19 names were listed, including five killed.

The army list brought to 1,480 total casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea, including 286 dead, 1,056 wounded, 25 missing, 95 injured and 18 prisoners.

In addition the navy has reported three dead and three injured in action, and the air force has reported one missing.

Find New Clue

MINAKI (CP)—A wisp of red thread clinging to a dead tree and a tiny set of footprints in the moss have aroused new hope in the desperate search for a five-year-old Winnipeg girl, lost eight days in the bush. Geraldine Huggan was wearing a red plaid jacket July 5 when she wandered away from a summer cottage near Wade, Ont., six miles west of here, and as many as 200 searchers have combed the rugged wilderness since. Hope was all but gone when the new clues were found Monday.

Beria's Name Off Russ Map

MOSCOW (AP)—Beria Square now is Lenin Square in Tbilisi, the capital of Georgia, where Laventy P. Beria was born.

A Tbilisi newspaper announced today the renaming of the square, and a decree of the Georgian Republic Supreme oviet changing the name of Beria district to Bilisi-Kalinin district.

From the Transcaucasus military district, the army newspaper Red Star reported a meeting devoted to denouncing Beria, former minister of internal affairs who was ousted last week. The chief speaker was Gen. Antonov, commander of the Transcaucasus military district and an outstanding Soviet general. He was former chief of staff in Moscow.

These dispatches indicate the beginning of a campaign to discredit Beria before announcement of the trial or punishment of the former Soviet police czar. The denunciation of him by a prominent general in the Central Asia area seems to support speculation that the Soviet army had something to do with his downfall.

Tax Agreements, Pipelines Topics In Campaign Talks

By CANADIAN PRESS STAFF WRITER

Such assorted subjects as Dominion-Provincial tax relations, pipelines and arithmetic came up Monday as Canada's political leaders concentrated their campaigns on the Prairie and Atlantic fronts. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, contended in a talk at Campbellton, N.B., that the Liberal government isn't living up to its tax obligations with the provinces. The federal-provincial tax agreements, first undertaken in 1943, gave the signatory provinces annual payments based on population and national production in return for rental of their income, corporation and inheritance tax fields to the senior government.

Mr. Drew attributed to Prime Minister St. Laurent a statement that the government would not now relinquish its present taxing powers. This, said Mr. Drew, went far beyond promises made to the provinces in 1943.

"It's a question which goes to the root of the integrity of the present government," he said during his first stop of his election tour of the Maritimes.

NONE ACCOMPLISHED

The central government had promised during the war to reallocate tax fields after the war, to put provincial finances on a sound basis and reach a clear definition of constitutional relations, Mr. Drew said. None of these things had been done.

"When these agreements come to an end, we want to see that there will be a better agreement, with the provinces better off financially," Mr. Drew said. "And what is more, there will be a new deal for municipal finances."

At Edmonton, Mr. St. Laurent was pledging his government to back development of an all-Canadian pipe line to move Alberta natural gas to Eastern Canada.

He addressed a Liberal rally soon after the opening of Edmonton's 75th exhibition and continued to pound away on his argument that the West should vote Liberal because only the Liberal government had sufficient support right across the country to provide strong, stable government to speed Canada's economic development.

ALTERNATIVE: COALITION

The only alternative would be a coalition government comprising parties with different and contradictory philosophies, too weak to provide the administrative strength needed at Ottawa.

The subject of arithmetic was broached at Moncton, N.B., where CCF leader M. J. Coldwell launched his Maritime campaign.

He referred to Mr. Drew's promise of a $500,000,000-a-year tax cut and then said:

"Mr. Drew says he can save all that money. He says, too, that if his party is elected it will institute a national health program without affecting social services, build the St. Lawrence Seaway and the South Saskatchewan dam and irrigation project. That work will cost at least $2,000,000,000 and yet he can save $500,000,00 yearly. I wonder how good his arithmetic is?"

Both Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Coldwell ran into some heckling. In both cases, the heckler, or hecklers, were escorted from the meeting halls.

At Ottawa, L. B. Pearson, external affairs minister, said "concrete plans" for convertibility of sterling "are on the way to completion." Canada had been working along these lines for months with other Commonwealth nations and the United States, he told a Liberal rally.

NOT POUND BARRIER

Mr. Pearson said of Mr. Drew's promise to take constructive steps to break the pound-dollar barrier: "The only barrier Mr. Drew's resounding words will break is the sound barrier.'

In a radio broadcast over the CBC Dominion network from Windsor, Ont., Health Minister Martin said:

"Mr. Drew's party, by its performance in the last Parliament, has rightly earned the title of the most extravagant and spendthrift Opposition we have ever had in Canada. If the government had not resisted Mr. Drew's many attempts to increase expenditures, it would have been impossible for it to reduce taxes since 1951 by $500,000,000—a better record of tax reductions than that of any country in the world."

Another Edmonton platform speaker beside Mr. St. Laurent was Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor - Progressive (Communist) party. He said Social Credit "stands for making Canada economically dependent upon the U.S., with complete political dependence as the inevitable result."

Today, Mr. St. Laurent will be at Yorkton, Sask., and Regina; Mr. Drew at Fredericton and Saint John, N.B.; and Mr. Coldwell at Summerside, P.E.I.

Convertible Pound Near: Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Plans for convertibility of sterling "are on the way to completion," L. B. Pearson, external affairs minister, said Monday night.

Addressing a Liberal election rally here, the minister said in a prepared speech the Canadian government has been working for months with other Commonwealth countries and the United States "on concrete plans by which the pound will again become free and convertible."

Mr. Pearson said of a promise by George Drew, Progressive Conservatvie leader, to take constructive steps to break the dollar-pound barrier: "The only barrier Mr. Drew's resounding words will break is the sound barrier."

Dealing with other foreign policy matters, Mr. Pearson said the free world coalition has had "real success" in the last four years of international tension.

"It may be in the months ahead the menace of aggression in Europe will appear to lessen. If so we must not falter or weaken in our support for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the factor so largely responsible for this improvement.

"This will mean completion of the defence plans we have undertaken. When that is done—in a year or so now—and providing there is no new aggression or new menace of such, then we have reason to hope and expect reduction in defence costs."

"Oh Promise Me" PC Theme: Martin

WINDSOR (CP)—The new Progressive Conservative theme song is "Oh, Promise Me," Health Minister Martin said Monday night.

In an address prepared for broadcast over the CBC Dominion network, Mr. Martin accused George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, of "extravagant and expensive" campaign pledges.

"In this campaign" he said, "Mr. Drew has changed his tune from 'Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better' to 'Oh, Promise Me.'"

"Mr. Drew's party, by its performance in the last Parliament, has rightly earned the title of the most extravagant and spendthrift Opposition we have ever had in Canada," Mr. Martin said.

"If the government had not resisted Mr. Drew's many attempts to increase expenditures," Mr. Martin said, "it would have been impossible for it to reduce taxes since 1951 by $500,000,000—a better record of tax reductions than that of any country in the world.

"And yet members of Mr. Drew's party—now that there is an election on—promise you everything but the kitchen sink . . ."

Buck Says SCs Favor Aid To US Monopolies

EDMONTON (CP)—Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor-Progressive Party, says Social Credit stands for "monopoly capitalism."

Speaking Monday night at an election rally in support of 12 Alberta LPP candidates in the federal election, Mr. Buck said the Social Credit party "stands for making our country a vast reserve of raw materials for the industries of the United States."

"It stands for making Canada economically dependent upon the United States, with complete political dependence as the inevitable result," he said in his prepared address.

LOOK TO WAR

"In the House of Commons, the Social Credit party shares with the Tories the distinction of being the most aggressive advocate of policies looking forward to war."

The Social Credit party joined with the Progressive Conservatives in "open support" of a plan by U.S. monopolies to pipe oil and gas on the prairies "directly and solely to the United States."

"Events which are already casting their shadows before them are going to discredit the made-in-U.S.A. label which has been hoisted upon Canada by the St. Laurent government," said Mr. Buck.

"The Labor - Progressive Party stands for and fights for a made-in-Canada policy to make our country truly great."

Garson Refutes Drew On Conference Claim

PILOT MOUND, Man. (CP)—Justice Minister Stuart Garson said Monday Manitoba's efforts to obtain a federal - provincial tax agreement met with bitter opposition from George Drew as premier of Ontario and as national Progressive Conservative leader.

In an election speech, Mr. Garson said the agreements benefitted Manitoba but Mr. Drew "is just as bitterly opposed to these tax agreements now as he has ever been in the past."

The justice minister claimed Mr. Drew denied that Ontario and Quebec broke up the dominion-provincial conference in 1946. It is not the first time Mr. Drew has made this "totally inaccurate" statement, he said.

Coldwell Charges Liberals With "Using" St. Laurent

MONCTON—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell opened his federal election campaign in the Maritimes Monday night by suggesting that the Liberals are "using" Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The 64-year-old CCF leader also doubted the arithmetic of Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

He told a meeting of about 150 persons in this New Brunswick railway centre that Mr. St. Laurent's promise of a national health plan, which he said the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives were against six months ago, is an example of deceit.

"I know the prime minister isn't deceitful," he added. "But perhaps Mr. St. Laurent is being used by the Liberal party."

SCORES P.C. PROMISE

Mr. Coldwell made his reference to Mr. Drew's arithmetic while discussing the Progressive Conservative leader's election promise to cut taxes $500,000,000 yearly.

"Mr. Drew says he can save all that money. He says, too, that if his party is elected it will institute a national health program without affecting social services, build the St. Laurence Seaway and the South Saskatchewan dam and irrigation project.

"That work will cost at least $2,000,000,000 and yet he can save $500,000,000 yearly. I wonder how good his arithmetic is?"

WAIT FOR YEARS

Mr. Coldwell said he also wondered what Mr. St. Laurent meant by saying that the Liberals would set up a national health plan providing that the provinces agreed.

"If he means that he's going to wait until the most reactionary of the provinces agree, then it's going to be years in coming."

While Mr. Coldwell was saying that the CCF is not tied to "big business" when it comes to obtaining campaign funds, a man in the front row began mumbling, incoherently but loudly. Mr. Coldwell snapped: "And like breweries looking after the old-line parties, some people with a close acquaintance with breweries also seem to come to interrupt meetings." The man was later escorted out of the building.

Question:

Mr. Swanston, do you think your experience in municipal affairs would be useful to you in Parliament?

Answer:

I certainly do. A man who seeks to represent a riding at Ottawa ought to know it thoroughly. I am a Peterborough man born and bred, and my eleven years in municipal affairs have given me a thorough insight into the needs and ambitions of this city and the country around it. If I am elected to speak for Peterborough, you can depend on it that I will know what I am talking about. I know Peterborough as only a native son can know it.

NOT LOST, JUST FORGOTTEN—If young Billy White, of Meriden, Conn., grows up to have eight children, like his Dad has, maybe he'll understand how one of them can get lost in the shuffle. Right now, Billy thinks its a rough deal. En route home from a New Hampshire vacation, Billy's dad stopped at a Topfield, Mass., gas station. In his car were Billy's mother, three of his brothers, an uncle, an aunt and a cousin. Billy went inside to get a candy bar. When he came out the family car was gone. Hours later and 100 miles away, police managed to flag down the car at Berlin, Conn., to inform Pop of his forgotten son. In the meantime, an uncle from Cambridge, Mass., had picked Billy up and taken him home.

Why The City's School Bill Is High

There are three reasons why school costs have risen and become a heavy burden on Peterborough taxpayers; and, we hasten to say, the reasons apply generally throughout the Province. The first is that salaries and other operating costs have gone up. The second is that many new classrooms and schools have been needed and building costs have risen. The third reason—and this may surprise many people—Provincial government grants have been reduced as a proportion of the total cost.

* * *

School operating costs, like all other costs, have risen sharply. In 1945 public school operation (including teachers' salaries) took 6.61 mills; last year they took 14.10 mills. However, as a percentage of the total tax rate, the increase is only in line with increases in other municipal costs. In 1945 the 6.61 mills represented 21.6 per cent. of the total rate of 30½ mills. Last year the public school operating costs of 14.10 mills were 21.8 per cent. of the total tax rate of 64¾ mills—a percentage increase of only two-tenths of a point.

* * *

School building costs have become very high. A room in a new elementary school, fully equipped, has been costing around $25,000, a high rate indeed, even when compared to the cost of building a house. However, in other cities the cost has been even higher, and at the present time a new elementary school is being erected in Peterborough at an outlay of about $20,000 a room. The new schools have increased the city's debt, and debentures for them have raised the mill rate. For instance, in 1945 public school debentures cost .61 mills to requite; in 1952 this had risen to 1.60 mills. It must be borne in mind, however, that in 1945 there had been no new public schools for many years and earlier debts were being retired. In 1940 the debenture rate for public school buildings was 1.37 mills; thus 1952's rate for debentures represented no great increase over the average of the last two decades.

* * *

The third reason for schools costing city taxpayers so much money (last year the operation of the elementary schools and the Collegiate took almost thirty per cent. of all taxes collected in Peterborough) is that Department of Education grants to the Board have become very much lower than they used to be, as a percentage of the total cost of the schools. From figures collected by Mr. K. S. Wightman, superintendent of Peterborough schools, we discover that in 1945 the Province paid the city of Peterborough, by grants to the Board, 29 per cent. of its total current and capital costs of running the public schools. Last year, by contrast, the total of Provincial grants for Peterborough schools amounted to only 19.3 per cent. of the cost of running them. This is a very large reduction. It is therefore apparent that the chief reason our schools are costing Peterborough ratepayers so much is that the Province is paying too little towards them.

* * *

Oh, yes, the Provincial outlay for schools has increased in actual dollars. Premier Frost and the Minister of Education have spoken often of the added hundreds of thousands the Province is pouring into the educational system and through grants to municipal Boards of Education. The fact remains, however, that these thousands are either not enough, or cities are being deprived of their just share. The Province is granting much less to cities for their schools, in proportion to the cost of operating the schools, than it did seven years ago, at the end of the war. Further, these grants have been progressively less since 1945, growing proportionately smaller year by year. According to announcements coming earlier this year from the Department of Education, Queen's Park, they will be smaller again this and next year. It will no longer make grants for the purchase of school sites, or pay grants on certain kinds of construction formerly considered essential.

* * *

Here is a sampling of the Province's record of grants towards elementary school operation. The figures are for public school grants as expressed as a percentage of total current and capital expenditures for these schools:

	1945	1948	1950	1951	1952
Peterborough ..	29	28.2	22.8	20.1	19.3
Cornwall	34.8	24.5	20	18.6	18.9
Kingston	33.4	18.3	23.6	18.5	25.3*
Kitchener	29.9	27.3	24.5	21.7	18.5
St. Catharines .	32	25.8	21	20	18
Stratford	33	24	19	22	20
Windsor	28.7	22.7	20.5	17.4	15.4
Toronto	28.2	20.1	16.6	13.9	12.2
Av'ge 16 cities .	31.9	24.6	21.8	20.9	19.8

(* Increase due to annexation.)

* * *

These figures refer to public schools; a similar story could be told about grants for high schools. All the foregoing shows that while school operating costs have increased and school building costs have increased, the real reason for schools being such a heavy burden on municipal ratepayers is that the Province's grants have not been maintained at a rate in keeping with the times and the costs. In seven years from the end of the war, the share of elementary city school costs which the Province has borne has gone down from 31.87 per cent. to 19.78, a total decline to the end of last year of 12.09 per cent., or more than a third lower, relatively, than they were in 1945. These figures discredit the Ontario Government's claim of unusual generosity in its school grants, and are a wry commentary on the prosperity of Queen's Park. With more money coming into its coffers, absolutely and relatively than in any time in Ontario governmental history, the Ontario Government has decreased its financial share of the cost of running the school system.

Hair That Likes To Stand Up

Printed barber-shop signs in Peterborough inform their patrons that hair cuts for men are 85 cents, for children fifty cents. Sitting in the chair during the leisurely process of being snipped, one sees also hand-written signs. "Men's Brush Cut, 1st, $1.25". "Brush Cuts, $1.00". "Boys' Brush Cuts 75c." This gives one to think.

Is this a subtle appeal to snobbery? Wear a brush cut and show you are a man of substance able and willing to afford the higher price. Wear a cheap (?) cut and you are just a run of the mill oat, or, worse, a cheap-skate, fit only to slink down side streets with a common-garden cut. The thought of a hierarchy in hair cuts is disturbing. Is Canadian democracy losing its principles?

If the brush cut is a sign of social distinction and means, we are afraid that its aristocratic touch is extremely reactionary, reacting right back to the days when only that accident of nature called birth was the way to qualify for rank among the first families and of nobility, the days when a man could not pull himself up by his boot-straps beyond the position in life to which God had been pleased to call him. For if the $1.25 and subsequent $1.00 brush cuts are to become a mark of distinction, not money or power or family can secure it for a man. You see—and the barber says it, so it must be true—in order to qualify for a brush cut you have to have not only the $1.25 but also the kind of hair suitable to it. Now, only nature provides the hair. You must have "good coarse hair; hair that likes to stand up".

As we sat in the chair, we mused about the democratic structure of Canada and trembled for its mighty frame, perhaps to be brought crashing down by the snobbery of hair cuts. We were getting, by the way, just an 85 cent kind.

Three Delta

Some years ago a few three-dimensional films were shown. On entering the palace of celluloid dreams the client was handed a crude pair of spectacles with two cellophane panels of contrasting colours for looking through. The idea was quickly dropped. The inconvenience of peering through parti-coloured spectacles and the necessity for providing a more intense source of light in order to compensate for the decreased illumination reaching the eye of the spectator were severe handicaps, while other and more efficient methods of securing an illusion of depth had to be ruled out on grounds of expense. Now 3-D is back with us again, and apparently it is back to stay.

If realism is to be taken in its crassest sense it is obvious that 3-D is a great advance on previous film techniques. It is useless to damn it as a medium simply because the first products of the new era are more than usually infantile. In the hands of a gifted director it may well prove to be infinitely more subtle and flexible than the conventional "flat" screen and thus attain to the higher realism, which is by no means the same thing as its more lowly companion. Shakespeare's blank verse, with its amazing portrayal of character, comes nearer to the core of reality than the slick phrases of the latest bedroom farce, however superficially life-like the latter may be. This fact is again being realized by the most forceful and original minds in the modern drama, men such as Fry and Eliot.

It may be that our film moguls, frightened by the advent of TV and determined to be one jump ahead of this new and increasingly important medium of entertainment, are pursuing a will-o'-the-wisp which will lead them back to the legitimate theatre, which can proudly claim to have been 3-D since the days of Thespis, who, since he was a Greek and presumably "had a word for it" would probably have called it 3-Delta.

"Gloriana" A Coronation Tribute

by FRANK HOWES

TO FIND a precedent for combining the excitements of a new opera and a Royal Gala, as was done when Queen Elizabeth II went to the first performance of Benjamin Britten's "Glorinana" at London's Royal Opera House, the English historian has to go back to the reign of King George II, who attended the first performance of Handel's "Atlanta" in 1736. A double risk is involved, to the opera and to the occasion, by such a bold conjunction of events, but "Gloriana," which is about the first Queen Elizabeth, was commissioned from Mr. Britten to celebrate the Coronation of the second Elizabeth. A brillant company assembled to see and hear it, but was not quite carried away by it.

✧ ✧ ✧

ITS MERITS, however, are conspicuous, once it is realised that any chronicle play, any dramatisation of history, cannot rely on conflict or on love for its dramatic tension. The method of presentation is inevitably episodical, the age, as well as the persons, must be portrayed, and the climax cannot be what a dramatist would choose to make it, since the facts of history have to be observed. The end of this pageant opera, in particular, presented a problem to librettist and composer, since the deaths of the two principal characters would not serve to make an effective curtain — it was their lives, not their deaths, that were significant. The chosen solution of this problem, which was the use of melodrama, the spoken word against a tenuous background of music, has inevitably raised doubts and come in for criticism.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CORE of the plot is concerned with the relations of the Queen with her favourite, the Earl of Essex, as portrayed in Lyton Strachey's biographical study, "Elizabeth and Essex." Queen Elizabeth I lived in perilous times, when religious and political loyalties divided her subjects. The Roman Catholic Church still hoped to secure a return of the English monarchy to the faith, while Parliament and public opinion increasingly supported the Protestantism of which the Queen was herself the champion and symbol. Elizabeth showed extraordinary talent in maintaining her position by astute feminine caprice and calculated procrastination and indecision. When the time came to strike she could be as determined as her father, King Henry VIII, and she did, in fact, defeat Catholic Spain, give her country years of more settled life in which the arts flourished exceedingly, and made England a world power.

✧ ✧ ✧

SUCH large achievements are not to be shown on the operatic stage, but the methods can be. Intertwined with the ambitions of the Earl of Essex are his personal relations with the Queen —was he a suitor for her love as well as her favour? The advanced age of the Queen would seem to make it unlikely, but the possibility has been debated for more than three centuries.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE librettist of the opera, Mr. William Plomer, has chosen to present Essex as a reckless, hot-headed and arrogant gambler for high stakes. The first act is devoted to showing his character and the instability of life at Court. The second act shows the Queen, first in a gracious and then in a petulant mood, finally yielding to Essex's entreaties to be entrusted with the suppression of the rebellion in Ireland. In the third act Assex returns to London before fulfilling his task because he feared intrigue against him by his rival at Court. It is his undoing; the Queen signs the warrant for his execution.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT how ends the opera, for the fate of Essex is only incidental to the larger achievements of the Queen's reign? In an epilogue, realism is exchanged for a visionary procession of ghosts and historical persons who ask the Queen questions (about the succession, for instance), to which she gives characteristic answers— some, indeed, are historically-recorded utterances. To mark the change of dramatic plane, singing gives place to speech, which is always a dangerous thing to do in opera. Most composers faced with this problem would probably have sought a solution in an orchestral postlude.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE episodical nature of the opera provides ample scope for decorative features—songs of the lute, court dances (galliard, coranto and lavolta), a masque with more singing and dancing, a ballad singer in the London streets. All of these produce excellent music, some of it a kind of stylized pastiche, some of it producing period flavour by wholly modern means.

✧ ✧ ✧

BRITTEN has not only command of all technical tricks of his trade, but an imagination which creates original ideas of melody, figuration and orchestration without effort. But he seems to have developed an aversion from the sound of the full orchestra and more especially from the accompaniment of the solo voice by violins. He prefers the chirrupings of wood-wind, pizzicato descending basses and light harp tinklings, none of which helps to make a vocal line soar into the air. Neither of the two principals he chose has a voice of heroic proportions or quality, and the accompaniment is kept down to their modest size and to the scale of the small episode. If the vigour of the Elizabethan age were to be adequately represented, some great diatonic tunes are needed— the Queen's own Leitmotif is, indeed, just such a splendid tune made up of wide-leaping intervals in five-four time — which ought to be reinforced by great waves of fully-saturated orchestral sound. The composer seems to shirk big scenes of emotional crisis and the music appropriate thereunto.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE tendency to use small orchestral forces with prominent wood-wind has been fostered by his composing chamber operas for his own organisation, the English Opera Group, namely "The Rape of Lucretia" and "Albert Herring," but in "Billy Budd" he returned to the larger canvas which he had employed in "Peter Grimes." He has never since used the broad choral and orchestral effects which immediately marked out "Peter Grimes," in spite of its queer psychology, as a major work and sent it round the opera houses of the world. In one respect "Gloriana" marks an advance— it covers a wider range of emotion than is found eleswhere in his work, and deals with female characters and voices more generously than anywhere else except in "The Rape of Lucretia."

✧ ✧ ✧

AS a stage picture, the opera was magnificent, Mr. John Piper having cast aside his predilection for sombre and stormy magnificence in favour of scarlet and gold splendour, which he has handled with an airy lightness not usually associated with his handiwork. For the dances of the second act, which belong either to the masque which the citizens of Norwich present to Her Majesty or to the Court at Whitehall, Mr. John Cranko was responsible, and he produced some admirable stylisations of antique dances, notably that of a solo morris jig. For some of them he only had the vocal accompaniment of a madrigal— a good idea that did not quite come off in practice and gave the conductor, Mr. John Pritchard, some trouble to make crisp enough to guide the dancers, though elsewhere the young conductor was eminently successful in making the endless sequence of episodes flow forward in a smooth continuity.

✧ ✧ ✧

SINGERS who in smaller parts contributed much by musical characterisation were Mr. Arnold Matters as Sir Robert Cecil, Miss Jennifer Vyvyan as Essex's sister, and Miss Monica Sinclair as his wife. Miss Joan Cross's impersonation of Queen Elizabeth as depicted in portraits and in documents was vivid and life-like, but Mr. Peter Pears, who is essentially a lyrical rather than a dramatic tenor, only half convinced by dint of sheer intelligence that he was the head-strong and ill-fated Essex.

THE opera was written for an occasion, and the occasion prescribed the kind of thing it had to be. For every episode the composer had the appropriate strain of music. But what was left doubtful was whether he had infused enough strong, pulsing red blood into the opera as a whole to enable it to transcend the occasion. Time alone will show. It will remain at the Royal Opera House, London, until July, when the entire production will be taken to Bulawayo for the Southern Rhodesian centenary celebrations.

BENJAMIN BRITTEN'S NEW OPERA "Gloriana", celebrating the reign of the first Queen Elizabeth was one of the unusual tributes to the second Queen Elizabeth at her Coronation. Above is a scene from the Covent Garden presentation in which the Queen is entertained at Norwich. The central figures are Peter Pears as Essex, and Joan Cross as Elizabeth.

Letter To The Editor

THE MOBILE LUNCH UNIT—A REPLY

Dear Sir: When I applied to the Peterborough City Council for a license to operate my mobile lunch unit, I did so with the full knowledge and understanding as to where I could and could not locate, and also what time I could be at certain locations. I also mentioned the type of unit and about what it would cost. The council studied my application very thoroughly, and shelved this application for two months, waiting for you, Mr. Carter, and others like you, to make an objection, and they granted me the license when you failed to do so. I have faith in our council, and have invested a lot of money in this venture, and have been paying taxes, rent, light, heat, etc., for thirty seven years, and am still doing so.

I would like to point out that when Mr. Quimet gave up the license that it was open to anyone who was approved by the authorities for same.

Mr. Carter, I do not think my mobile lunch is an eyesore to our city.

Now, about Mr. Bickell's complaint about my being in Inverlea Park. My main business is selling potato chips, which comprises about 90 per cent. of my sales, the other is made of soft drinks and candy bars. I do not sell hot dogs, ice cream, peanuts, etc., as Mr. Carter suggests. Mr. Bickell does not sell hot potato chips, so I cannot see that I am hurting the rest of the merchants up at that corner. The main reason I am at the park is to protect children from going out of the park and probably getting run over. Parkhill is a very busy street. Mind you, Mr. Carter, probably I do make a little in doing this.

For nearly thirty years I have been connected with softball and other sports, and have given a lot of money and time to them, and if this is not a benefit to the community, I don't know what is. I give a helping hand to many a person you don't hear about, Mr. Carter, and I also give my talent and services to my church, Thursday evenings and twice on Sundays, which in a small way is also a benefit to the community. In between times, I have raised a family and my two sons are in Her Majesty's Service at the present time, probably protecting your business. This is only a small percentage of what I have contributed, Mr. Carter. I have tried to make a success of my business, my home and everything I am associated with, and all this, as you know, on one leg, and when things weren't going so well, I did not complain about my opposition, but dug my foot in the ground and pushed harder. You have two feet, to dig in with, Mr. Carter, why not place them on the ground and push harder, and stop whimpering. The world loves a cheerful giver.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space in your paper, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

P. J. HARRISON.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

The preparations of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue, is from the Lord. (Prov. 16:1.)

I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will watch to see what he will say unto me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved.

And the Lord answered me, and said, Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it.

For the vision is yet for the appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it, because it will surely come, it will not tarry . . . For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. (Hab. 2:1-3, 14.)

And I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire: and he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth, and cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices.

And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not . . .

And the voice which I heard from heaven spake unto me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel which standeth upon the sea and upon the earth.

And I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey.

And I took the little book out of the angel's hand, and ate it up; and it was in my mouth sweet as honey: and as soon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

And he said unto me, Thou must prophesy again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings. (Rev. 10:1-4, 8-11.)

Canadian Educators At Oxford

(U.K. Information Office)

Eight Canadian educators are presently attending a conference on Commonwealth studies at Oxford from June 29 to July 10. Sixty university teachers from Commonwealth countries, including the U.K., are taking part. Chief Must Prove He's An Indian In Sale Of Land

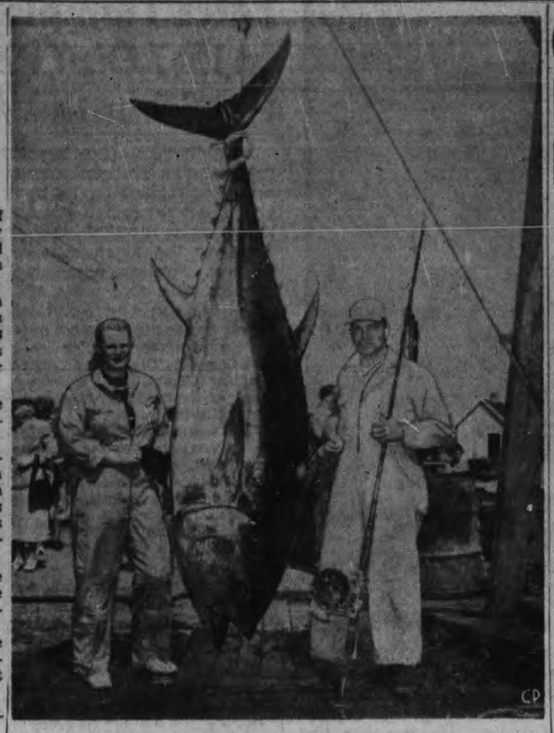
TORONTO (CP)—The chief of the Sarnia Indian reservation may lose $15,000 from the sale of land unless he can prove he is an Indian.



Bryan Cathcart (PC—Lambton West) told the Ontario Legislation's select committee on Indian affairs Monday of the problem of Indians who leave a reservation and later return.

When an Indian leaves a reserve he loses his Indian rights and becomes enfranchised.

Chief Telford Adams left the reserve but now is back living on the Sarnia reserve, which is within the city limits. The reserve lands have become valuable and sections have been sold by Indians to industries at substantial prices.

Unless an Indian has clear title to the land, the revenue from the reserve land sold goes into the general band funds.

Chief Telford will have to prove he is the same fellow he was before he went away or he won't get his share.

Queen Mother Lays College Foundation Stone

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabath Monday laid the foundation stone for a Central African university, open to all races, on a hilltop overlooking Salisbury.

"The establishment of a university in which students of all races will share the same teaching and undertake the same courses on a basis of academic equality will be a fitting culmination of all the splendid preparatory work done by so many people," she said.

A few classes for Rhodesia University have already started. The institution will serve students from Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland—the three British territories in the proposed central African federation.

The Queen Mother said the three territories have advanced to a point which "justifies their desire for a university of their own."

"I hope," she said, "the standards and traditions established in this university will be as sound and strong and enduring as the Rhodesian granite of this foundation stone."

The Queen Mother attended the ceremony without Princess Margaret, who has recovered from a cold but was not scheduled to attend the function. Tonight, the Princess will attend a ball at Government House.

The 16-day royal tour of Rhodesia ends Thursday.

Find Girl Guilty In Child's Death

GLAMORGAN, Wales (Reuters)—A 17-year-old baby-sitter was found guilty of manslaughter here Monday for strangling the child she was watching after he cried and swore at her.

After the verdict, the judge gave some advice to the attractive redhead, Sylvia Langman.

"They can be very upsetting when they start howling. I have children of my own," the judge said. "I should try to forget it if I were you."

He told her he was going to send her to a home for training.

Sylvia had pleaded innocent to a charge of murdering three-year-old Alan Caprin, but guilty to the alternative charge of manslaughter.

The judge placed her on probation for two years on condition that she go to the home for six months.

Our ball-playing Liflocs weren't discouraged after dropping that 2-0 tilt to Lindsay Merchants here last start. Sort of peeved, maybe, at handing 'em two unearned runs, but still content at holding the strong Scugog squad to such a low count. If they get as good hurling here tomorrow e'en, they might well upset Whitby, a club which boasts some former Oshawa seniors. We believe Whitby is third now in the race, back of Oshawa and Lindsay, though the dogteam hasn't arrived recently with a Lakeshore League standing. The fray here Wednesday is a 6.30 touch at Riverside, the cost of floodlit fixtures locally being prohibitive.

In reply to a recent query, sports editor George Summerfield of the Nanaimo (BC) Free Press writes: "Playing coach Arn Dugan has quite a job trying to mould a collection of eastern players with western-style boys into a smooth-working machine. He is doing okay, though. Heff Heffernan is always a good lad. He tries all the time and certainly isn't what one would call an individual star. He is a good team man.". The writer said Nanaimo Native Sons are in fourth place now in a five-team British Columbia senior lacrosse loop, and he felt Victoria Shamrocks and Vancouver Pilseners are the teams to beat for a Mann Cup playoff spot. Johnny Lumley is another easterner playing for Nanaimo this year.

Both Players Doing Well

We received several clippings of games from Nanaimo, too, in which both Peterborough boys are shown as going well. Dugan scored three and aided on one when the Sons finally downed the leading Victoria crew 13-9. It is Jimmy's second season out west and he was married here in the spring ere leaving for the BC lacrosse campaign. Dugan, of course, played several years for the senior Petes, but only performed the first part of last season ere quitting the gutted-stick game for baseball. Last winter, he and Jake Wade left the Petes' puckists to play senior "A" at Brantford. Hard to say where Arn will do his ice chores next cold spell. Maybe back in Brantford.

St. Kitts' columnist comments "With the July 15 deadline for signing OLA players approaching, several clubs are scurrying for last-minute replacements. Peterborough, who need help about as much as the Rockefellers need a new mansion, added Denny Peterson of Mimico. The blond Denny would aid any club in the circuit and will add even more scoring power to the Canadian champs. Stu Scott, another St. Catharines player, has joined the Orillia Terriers and his high, hard drive will cause a few more grey hairs in the scalps of the circuit goalies. A's are scouring the hinterlands for another strong defenceman but at this late date the search may not be too productive."

Powless The Powder-Keg

It was 15-7 for the Trailermen in Hamilton last gloaming as the Thorpe team tacked up its seventh straight OLA senior win in the current victory streak. That puts 'em just one full game back of the leading St. Kitts' club now and four frays in front of Yorks, their Friday opposition here. Hustling Ross Powless turned in a terrific display in the Ambitious City to score five goals and help on four more. Nine big juicy points for the popular Indian —though he mustn't have been too popular with Hamilton fans in this tilt! Veteran Mick Magee forgot his retirement vows of 1951 and saw defensive action for the Petes. Loop standing and some of the leading scorers are in tonight from an OLA bulletin.

The Pats keep rolling right along on the OLA junior "A" trail toward a playoff spot. Took Brampton handily here last e'en by a 16-7 count, paying no never mind at all to the Minto Cup champs. Lou's lads really rifled the pill around the first half to rack up a 9-2 lead at the intermission, and they still outscored the B's 7-5 in the final two innings of a clean contest. Bob Allen and Bob Curtis were each in on seven tallies for the victors and Gary Smith (Roger's brother) figured in on five. Most of the other players had a helping hand in the sniping department, too. Pats still haven't heard from the OLA if Dundas defaulted or not last time they were due to play here. Locals go to Long Branch on the morrow, leaving the Bowl at five.

Peterborough Pats Win OLA Junior "A" Fray, Beating Brampton, 16-7

Playing smart, steady lacrosse from start to finish here last night, Lou Vitarelli's local Pats triumphed 16-7 over Brampton in an OLA junior "A" joust. The Minto Cup champions were shy a few players, but were well outclassed in a fairly fast, clean contest before a slim crowd. The win kept Pats up there in the chase for a group playoff spot. The score was 3-0 for Peterborough in the first quarter and 9-2 for them at the half. It was somewhat tighter in the last half, Pats outscoring their rivals 3-2 in the third chukker and by a 4-3 margin in the fourth. Just seven minor penalties were handed out, five to the husky visitors.

GOOD PASSING

The homsters whipped the ball around on neat passing plays and shot better than the visitors. They also chased after loose balls to good effect, and had fine net-minding and checking over most of the route. Goalie Joe Miller of Brampton sparkled in the first half when the Pats peppered him with shots, but his defence wasn't too strong.

Bob Allen had four goals for the winners, Gary Smith getting three, and Bob Curtis and Bob Hobart two each. Singles were notched by Frank Farley, Buddy McDougall, Jerry O'Reilly, Carl Brioux and Ivan Thomas. Tops in assists was Curtis with five, as Allen had three, and O'Reilly, Smith and McDougall two apiece. Art Galley and Thomas each had an assist.

For the losers, Gord Laidlaw scored three goals, Bert Russell Joe Caruso, Jim Bird and Walt Alexander having one each. Johnston clicked for three assists, Ireland two, and Robinson one.

Cricketers Win Exhibition Over Oshawa

As the local "A" and "B" cricket teams had no matches listed for the weekend, the Peterborough-Whitaker club played in Oshawa.

The result was a hard-fought game between old opponents and the score was Peterborough-Whitaker 179 for 9 wickets, Oshawa 138.

The full story of the game is shown by the score summary. Oshawa batted first and owing to some steady scoring headed by Brumswell 27 and Harris 24 (not out), the total score reached 138. Bedford 36, Holroyd 34, E. Cotton 26 (not out), B. Roberts 20 and A. Higgins 17 and the score was taken to 135 to 8. Then E. Cotton, the captain who had put himself in No. 10, came up with a fine winning score of 26 (not out) taking the score to 179 for 9 wickets. The losers added 23 extras to the local score but it was a fine win for the locals.

Many games were played in the men's singles, last evening, and when all scores were recorded, the semi-finals had been reached in the lower half of the draw; and in the upper half of the draw the boys got as far as the eights. When the games continue, we don't know. No dates have been set as yet.

The winning skips Saturday night were Ray Brown, Harry Northrop and Percy Moore.

Finest 50 Of Major Leagues Clash In All-Star Game

By JOE REICHLER

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball's greatest performers—the National and American Leagues' finest 50—are on display here today as the rival circuits clash in the 20th annual all-star game at Crosley Field.

Besides the capacity crowd of some 30,000 on hand to see the all-stars in the flesh, millions of television and radio fans were prepared to watch and hear the nationals seek their fourth straight, which would match the longest streak compiled by the American League in 1946-49.

Despite victories in 12 of the 19 previous July encounters as well as 32 of 49 World Series engagements, the American League was an 8-5 underdog against the harder-hitting Nationals. Never before was the junior circuit such a decided underdog.

CASEY DUBIOUS

Even manager Casey Stengel, who has hung World Series defeats upon the National League in the last four years, sized up his dubious chances with the comment: "They say the other guy has all the players."

"The other guy," of course, is Charlie Dressen, who was making his debut as pilot of the Nationals. Dressen, who couldn't conquer Casey and his Yankees last October, felt he could do it today because "I have the best pitcher and the best hitters in baseball on my side."

By the "best pitcher," he meant Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phils' standout righthander, whose 14 victories outrank any other pitcher. As expected, Dressen nominated Roberts to hurl the first three innings. He was to be opposed by Billy Pierce, Chicago's fine little southpaw, whose record of 10-5 was slightly inferior to Roberts' 14-6.

COY ON PITCHERS

The starters may not pitch more than three innings under the rules. Both Dressen and Stengel were coy about announcing their second and third pitchers.

Logic pointed to Dressen following up with Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's splendid southpaw. Either St. Louis' Gerry Staley or Pittsburgh's Murry Dickson were the experts' picks to follow. Hoyt Wilhelm, the Giants' knuckleball relief ace, would be used only in a tight spot.

Veteran Johnny Sain of the Yankees, well-liked by Stengel, figured to get the second pitching assignment for the American Leaguers. Cleveland's Bob Lemon or Mike Garcia could be the third pitcher.

TOUGH ON A.L.

There appeared to be little question that the american League pitchers faced the more difficult task. A look at the batting and slugging marks show that the National League squad held a wide margin over Stengel's hitters in all departments with the exception of doubles. The figures:

	NL	AL
Batting average	.302	.286
Home Runs	219	139
Runs batted in	867	773
Triples	52	47
Doubles	264	265

The tipoff on the national's awesome power was the fact that Enos Slaughter, the Cardinals' great outfielder playing his 10th all-star game, was placed in eighth spot in the batting order.

Ed Mathews, Ted Kluszewski, Roy Campanella, Gus Bell, and Stan Musial are their top power hitters.

Although outshone by the National League sluggers, the American had a fairly imposing lineup of its own. With fellows like Al Rosen, Yogi Bera, Hank Bauer, Mickey Mantle and Gus Zernial in the starting array, it becomes an "anything-can-happen" game.

Petes Trample Hamilton In 15-7 OLA Fixture For Seventh Win In Row

HAMILTON—(Special)—The "Injun sign", that's what Peterborough Trailermen had on Hamilton Tigers last night here. The Trailermen, led by Indians Ross Powless and Roger Smith, left the fourth-place Tigers a pack of black and blue lacrossers as the 1952 Mann Cup champions swept to a 15-7 win over the much-battered Bengals. Powless paced the winners with five goals and four assists in a performance which was easily the most outstanding lacrosse display seen here this year. The black-thatched warrior amazed the estimated crowd of 650 with his speed, passing ability and plain goal scoring.

The win moved Peterborough within one game of the league leading St. Catharines Athletics, while Tigers remain three games back of Fergus—and a playoff position.

LED AT FIRST

Hamilton led Peterborough for exactly 32 seconds. Jack Blonda scored for Hamilton at 3.45 of the first period and the locals led until Don Ashbee scored the first of his two goals at 4:20 to tie up the game.

Then the Trailermen sped to 4-1, 7-3 and 13-5 margins at the rest periods.

Roger Smith and Ike Hildebrand scored two goals apiece while singles went to Jerry Fitzgerald, Curly Mason, Lou Nickle and Bob Thorpe.

But all the Trailermen seemed to find the six-man lacrosse to their liking as they snapped Tiger hopes, rising after a 9-8 victory over St. Catharines Saturday, the third Hamilton win in the last four starts.

Bell And IOF Draw

IOF and Bell Telephone played to a 4-4 Civic Softball League tie, last night, at the Bowl, while Post Office defeated Police by a 27-10 score. The first fray was a fine, close one and leaves these teams tied for first with five wins, a loss and a tie each. Bud Guerin hurled for Bell and Paul Maloney for IOF in the keen seven-inning tilt.

The second game was a loose affair, though not quite as one-sided as the score would indicate. Taylor and Smith saw slab action for Post Office, and Wainman and Phillips for Police. The games Wednesday go as originally scheduled, Teams:

Bell: Gillespie, James, Guerin, Smith, Ackford, Harrison, Tushingham, Wade, Harris.

IOF: Walling, Schweir, S. Tyndall, Quigley, Murray, Jones, Fair, Maloney, R. Tyndall.

Post Office: Maher, Smith, Taylor, Loucks, Harrison, Allen, Heffernan, Willshaw, Reid, Simmonds.

Police: Mainman, Louth, Phillips, Armstrong, LaCombe, Conlin, Traynor, Rowe, Healey, Perry.

Has your engine lost its new car pep? Re-power with . . .
The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years
TCP, a Shell-discovered additive now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, actually re-powers your engine by stopping short-circuiting of spark plugs and controlling pre-ignition. Gives up to 15% more power . . . increases spark plug life up to 150%.*
Today's driving—often at low speeds in traffic and around town—increases the amount of combustion deposits, which actually short-circuit spark plugs and cause pre-ignition of the fuel-air mixture.
Because these deposits accumulate in all engines —both old and new—Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is essential to keep your engine delivering full power—because the TCP additive actually stops the power-crippling effect of these deposits.
Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only from your Shell Dealer.

Chances Slim For Braves, Sox To Cop Pennant In '53

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Recent baseball history shows the chance are slim that either Chicago White Sox or Milwaukee Braves will win a pennant this season. The Sox and the Braves are the second-place teams as the flag chasers await the outcome of today's all-star game. The Braves tail Brooklyn by a-game-and-a-half. Chicago is five behind New York Yankees.

In 1951 New York Giants moved from second to the pennant after the all-star break. The Yankees did it in the American League in 1950. In each of the other last five seasons the National League winner already was in first place when the all-star game came along.

During that same spell the Yankees are the only team that climbed from lower than second. In 1951 they were third behind Chicago and Boston when the all-star game was played. In 1948, 1949 and 1952 the American League team in first place when the vacation came finished first.

WEEK LATER

This year the all-star game is being played later in the season than ever before. It is a full week later than a year ago.

Briefly, here's how the last five seasons have gone after the all-star break.

1948: American League—Cleveland, the pennant winner, was in first place, slipped to third at the end of July and then climbed back. The Athletics pulled into first in late July, then tumbled to finish fourth. Boston, in fourth at the break, ended second.

National League — The Braves were in first and stayed there. St. Louis climbed from third to second and Brooklyn jumped from fifth to second before settling to third.

1949: American League — The Yankees were first all the way. Cleveland was in second and finished there.

SLIPPED TO SECOND

National League—Brooklyn slipped to second at the end of July but wound up first, fighting off the Cardinals who held the lead briefly in July.

1950: American League—Detroit led the Yankees, Cleveland and Boston at the all-star break and it stayed that way until September when the Yankees took over.

National League — Philadelphia faltered briefly after the all-star game, then resumed the lead. The Cardinals shot into first, but slumped to a fifth-place finish.

1951: American League — The Yankees were in third, their low point of the year. The White Sox fell from first to fourth before the end of July. Cleveland climbed from fourth to a second-place finish behind the Yanks. Boston moved from second to first, then trailed off to third.

National League — Brooklyn stayed in front until the last few days of the season. The Giants slipped from second to third the next week, then rallied for a playoff victory over the Dodgers 1952: American League — The White Sox were a close second to the Yankees, but hit the skids and fell to sixth before July was over. They recovered to finish third. Cleveland edged up to second, but couldn't catch the Yankees.

National League — The only change from the all-star break to the end of the season came when the Phillies, who were fifth, replaced the Cubs at the bottom of the first division. Brooklyn was ahead, followed by the Giants and the Cardinals.

Brantford Slug Way To Top Of Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Red Sox slugged their way to the top of the senior Intercounty Baseball Leaue Monday night.

The determined Red Sox were bound for the top position for several weeks and finally managed the chore with a 6-3 victory over St. Thomas Elgins. The 1-0 loss by Kitchener Panthers last night to Oshawa Merchants also helped.

The Sox held the lead earlier in the season but were rooted out by London Majors who subsequently fell to Kitchener. Brantford now leads the Panthers by two games.

Elsewhere in the league Waterloo Tigers bolstered their grip on fourth place by shading Guelph Maple Leafs 4-2. Sixth-place Galt Terriers defeated London 14-9.

At Brantford, George Copeland was the star of the night. He allowed the Elgins only two hits and fanned nine. Teammate Luther Clifford belted in three runs. Tommy White, who took over the mound from Wally Beggs in the second, took the loss for the visitors.

WINS FOR OSHAWA

Bud Ripplemeyer hurled the Oshawa shutout. Bill Allan was the loser and the one Oshawa run was due chiefly to his wildness. He walked Jimmy Jones and a balk put him on second. Butch Lawing grounded out to Hugh McGillivary who taged third for the force-out of Jones. However in his bid for a double play, he threw wild at first. Bob Ryba stole home from second before the ball was recovered.

Waterloo rode along amoothly until the seventh inning when starting pitcher Dick Sposato weakened and three relief men took turns on the mount to preserve a 4-1 edge. The Leafs got one run in the seventh and another in the ninth. Ed Drapcho allowed the Tigers only five hits but was charged with the loss. Sposato got the win.

Galt Terriers attacked three opposition hurlers for 17 hits in its quest for victory. Galt clinched the issue in the eighth off a squeeze play with Johnny Russian on third and Art O'Connor at bat. Mike Pontarello then doubled for two home runs. Ted Szymanski started for Galt but lost control in the third and Zeb Eaton finished. Jack Brumm, the London starter, was the loser.

Tonight Galt is at London and Guelph at St. Thomas.

New Training Camp

TORONTO (CP) — Tarpon Springs, Fla., may become the winter home of Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club.

Frank Pollock, the International League club's general manager, said Monday the trip he made last week to Florida was to sign a contract for spring training at Winter Haven, but it resulted in a deal to pitch camp at Tarpon Springs.

He said Leafs didn't sign a contract at Winter Haven because the city doesn't have a ball park and cannot build one in time for 1954 spring training.

MANY DODGE CHASSIS ARE IDEAL FOR THE POPULAR STAKE BODIES

If your hauling or delivery needs call for the use of a stake body, there's a Dodge "Job-Rated" truck that can do your work better, more economically. That's because every Dodge truck is "Job-Rated" for the work it has to perform. All the units which support the load, and all units which help move the load, are "Job-Rated" to work together . . . to ensure economical performance, greater dependability.

EASIER TO MANOEUVRE

You'll find that Dodge "Job-Rated" trucks have a shorter turning radius, are easier to manoeuvre in traffic and in tight spots. That's because of cross steering and shorter wheelbases while retaining standard S.A.E. cab to rear axle dimensions.

Test Match Delayed

MANCHESTER (CP) — Rain wiped out the fourth day's play in the third England-Australia cricket test match at Old Trafford Monday, leaving England only a maximum of six hours play left in the final day today.

Australia had a first inning total of 318. England with 126 on board for the loss of four wickets, still need 43 runs to save a follow-on.

Cricket experts are predicting another draw for third match in the series of five for the mythical Ashes. The first two tests already have ended in draws.

Belgians, Danes Meet In Tennis

LONDON (AP) — Belgium and Denmark will meet for the Europe zone Davis Cup championships and the right to meet India, the eastern zone representative.

The Belgium-Denmark tie must be completed by a week from today. The winner of the India-European zone championship then will meet the winner of the American zone eliminations.

Belgium scored the biggest upset so far by defeating Italy in Brussels Monday, 3-2, while Denmark defeated France, 4-1, at Paris.

Jackie Brichant of Belgium notched the deciding victory when he toppled Italy's No. 1 player, Fausto Gardini, 12-10, 1-6, 6-0, 6-4. Before that, Philippe Washer downed Guiseppe Merlo to win 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

The Danes went into their final day's play against the French leading by 2-1, and Kurt Nielsen and Torben Ulrich wrapped it up, although they both had to go more than the regulation three sets. Ulrich scored the deciding victory when he stopped Robert Haillet, 6-4, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. Nielsen then defeated Paul Remy, 12-10, 1-6, 0-6, 6-0, 6-4.

Toronto Net Man Loses

Montreal Returns To Top League, Leafs Win Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals turned on their distance - hitting power Monday night in the opener of a four-game Buffalo series to salvage their International Baseball League leadership from the Bisons.

Homers by Ken Wood and Rocky Nelson, who belted his 15th, paced the Royals to a 6-3 victory over the herd and extended their newly-won-back lead to 1½ games.

Earl Mossor scattered eight hits to curb the Bisons in racking up his fifth triumph against three setbacks. The hits off Mossor included a round-tripper by Ken Chapman—his seventh—and a pinch-homer by Harvey Zernia.

Homers also played a big part in Rochester's 3-2, 10-inning conquest of Syracuse Chiefs. Pilot Harry Walker of the Red Wings smacked two of them, his second deciding the game. He hit his first in the sixth.

SECOND STRAIGHT

Rookie Lefty Niles Jordan won his second straight decision, but before he was given a scare by Syracuse outfielder Johnny Blatnik, who pounded a ninth-inning homer with one aboard to send the game into an extra inning.

Toronto Maple Leafs took a day-night doubleheader from the Athletics at Ottawa 5-3 and 6-4.

Leafs won the afternoon game in the 10th inning on an Ottawa error, intentional pass and a crashing double by Hal Ketler, after coming from behind.

A six-hit pitching job by Vic Lombardi carried Toronto through the night contest. Joe Taylor homered for Ottawa.

Toronto Banker Heads Boys Scouts' Council

OTTAWA (CP)—Frederick John Finlay, 50, of Toronto, secretary of the Bank of Nova Scotia, will take over as chief executive commissioner of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association Jan. 1, it was announced Monday.

He succeeds Maj.-Gen. D. C. Spry of Ottawa, who will leave Canada Oct. 10 to take up new duties as director of the Boy Scouts International Bureau with headquarters in London. Gen. Spry took over his present post in 1946.

The newly-appointed chief executive commissioner for Canada's 150,000 scouts is a native of London, England, who has been active in the scout movement since 1916.

Ulster PM Warns Of Nationalists

BELFAST (Reuters) — Lord Brookeborough, prime minister of Northern Ireland, Monday warned all "Orangemen"—Irish Protestants—to prepare for action if they want to stay with the "British family."

He said general elections in British Ulster may be near and loyalists must be prepared for attacks on the government and Unionist (government) party policy.

Nationalists opposing Northern Northern Ireland's ties with the British Parliament earlier this month blew up a section of railroad track near the border with independent southern Ireland soon after the Queen arrived for a Coronation tour.

Brookeborough spoke at celebrations marking the 263rd anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

More than 50,000 Orangemen in the six counties of Ulster took part in demonstrations pledging loyalty to the Queen and the Commonwealth. Leaders of overseas contingents included Lt.-Col. Ashmore of Ontario.

Nosenko For Malyshev In Red Transport Shift

MOSCOW (AP)—Vyacheslav A. Malyshev has been replaced as minister of transport and the heavy machinery industry by Ivan Isidorovich Nosenko.

The newspaper Evening Moscow revealed the shift Monday night when it listed Nosenko as head of the ministry in an account of a meeting at which the new chief denounced the former deputy prime minister, Lavrenty Beria.

Malyshev became a deputy prime minister of the Soviet Union in 1947 and in October 1952 was elected as a full member of the praesidium of the Communist party.

60,000 Orangemen Parade In Colorful Ottawa March

OTTAWA (CP) — Nearly 60,000 Orangemen from 400 Ontario, Quebec and New York state lodges paraded through Ottawa Monday in grand climax of a two-day celebration—largest ever held here to mark the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

Crowds lined the parade route to watch the 60 bands and thousands of colorfully clad marches pass in the four-mile-long spectacle.

Almost a dozen "King Williams" mounted on white horses, highlighted the parade which was led by Denzil Hill, past grand master of the Orange Young Britons of Ontario East.

Following him in cars were officers of the Grand Lodge, including Richard Sanderson of Havelock, Ont., Grand Master of Ontario East; Deputy Grand Master J. E. Magladry of Ottawa, parade marshal; J. D. Sutherland, Grand Secretary and Leroy Heaney, deputy grand secretary, both of Ottawa.

Others in the official cars were Archibald Miller of Brockville, Ont., grand marshal; Rev. F. Beezer, Carrying Place, Ont., grand chaplain; grand officers of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, led by Mrs. William Miller of Cornwall; Grand Lodge officers of the OYB led by Gordon McCormick, Toronto, grand master; J. A. Corrigan, Ottawa, past grand master of Ontario East; and the masters of the counties of Carleton and Ottawa, Thomas Davidson and W. D. Wellman.

Truckers' Strike Would Hit 3,000

WINDSOR (CP)—Trucking firm representatives said Monday a strike of some 3,000 truck drivers employed by 35 firms in southern Ontario would not "affect greatly the movement of goods."

Local 879, Teamsters' Union, (AFL), which covers drivers in Hamilton, Kitchener, London, Galt, Woodstock, and Brantford, announced its members have approved strike action.

This vote was taken two months ago but was not counted until it was known what action would be taken by Local 880, which covers Windsor, Chatham and Sarnia, would take.

Members of local 880 are voting this week.

Both locals turned down a proposal presented by a conciliation board. The proposal, which provided for a seven-cent increase for drivers and an 11-cent boost for maintenance men, was accepted earlier by employees of Toronto trucking firms.

Windsor drivers had demanded a 52-cent hourly increase to bring their rate in line with that paid in Detroit.

Mr. Gregory said a report that Britain would take 25,000,000 pounds this year, but that 12,000,000 to 13,000,000 pounds of that amount is already in the hands of dealers and represents tobacco from the 1952 crop The remainder will be sought out of the coming crop, he said.

At a recent Liberal nomination meeting here, Trade Minister Howe said Britain would take 25,000,000 pounds from this year's production.

Will Wait For West To Settle

Bill Triggs Tells Agreement Needed First In Saskatoon

Quaker employees, members of Local 293, Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) will not go back to work until Saskatoon workers receive a satisfactory settlement, said Bill Triggs, president of Local 293.

He was addressing members of the Peterborough and District Labor Council at a meeting held Monday night.

It was thought that if a settlement could be arranged here, the Saskatoon strike would easily be settled, but such does not seem to be the case.

The members of the meeting felt that the Quaker Oats Co. was surprised when the members of Local 293 walked out, but that a six-week layoff would change their minds. However, the union held firm and even individual letters to return to work did not alter their collective decision.

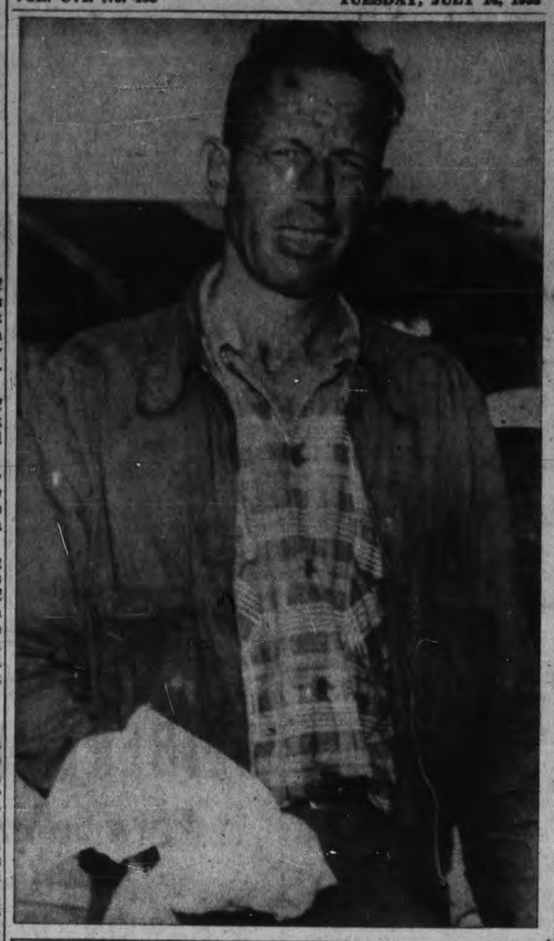
NOT SOLE ISSUE

Alf Barber said that union security was certainly not the only reason for the Saskatoon strike—"they want their proper wage and hours, too." As far as Mr. Barber knew the threat to fire William Beggs, UPWA Eastern Ontario organizer, if Mr. Beggs didn't disregard the agreement reached in Mayor Waddell's office, was "pure nonsense." The threat was made by Fred Dowling, according to Mr. Fayron.

Mr. Barber said that members of the Packinghouse Union hire their own directors, "and they do as we want them to do—they don't tell us."

At a meeting of the Ontario Federation of Labor, at which Mr. Barber was present last Friday, it was established that a man not in the union, but unable to work because of a union strike, could claim unemployment insurance.

A motion was carried which approved the increase of hall and office rents by the members as it seemed feasible and necessary. The extra rent would aid in the purchasing of chairs for the meeting rooms. $100 was advanced to the hall committee to pay immediately on the chairs.



The executive committee was authorized to pay for the next two months of radio broadcast.

REFURNISH HALL

Ed. Humphrey advised that the hall should be furnished in such a way as to entice individual members to frequent the location and learn to support the Labor Centre more sincerely.

A motion was passed that the subject of reconverting the old Civic Hospital into an invalids' home be dropped in view of the fact that the city council was inquiring into same.

Another motion carried, stated that a letter be sent to the proper authorities requesting that nothing less than two garbage collections per week persist.

Mrs. E. Fairclough Predicts PC Victory

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative member for Hamilton West in the last Parliament, predicted at a PC rally Monday night that George Drew would lead their party to victory in the August 10 federal election. Since February Mrs. Fairclough has travelled to the west coast twice and in talks with groups of people she has found them firmly of the opinion that "things have got to change". Despite the hot night 300 people attended the PC meeting in the Legion Hall to hear Mrs. Fairclough and other speakers endorse Gordon K. Fraser as the candidate to support in the riding of Peterborough.

Mrs. Fairclough, the only woman MP in the last house, criticized the St. Laurent government on a wide range of subjects. She accused them of being arrogant in the House of Commons, extravagant with the Canadian people's money, inept in their handling of defence service accounts, and responsible for the loss of the Canadian export markets in such commodities as pork, bacon, ham and cheese.

"This government has been returned three times after its original election and each time they have been a little more arrogant," she said. "Today we have an administration drunk with power. How else can you explain the words of a responsible cabinet minister (the Hon. C. D. Howe): On financial matters—"What's a million dollars?"

On national defence orders — "If they need a gold-plated piano, it's our duty to buy it."

"In its supreme arrogance the government has gone to the country with no platform whatever," said Mrs. Fairclough, who contrasted this with the 16-point program announced in Guelph by George Drew at the beginning of his campaign.

Recalled Mrs. Fairclough who was at the meeting: "When our leader launched his campaign in the Guelph Armouries the place was packed. . .I never saw such enthusiasm as I saw in Guelph that night; nor did I ever hear a better platform than the one that George Drew laid down for the nation."

LIBERALS UPSET

"You could tell by the frenzied statements that were made by the government that the platform had completely upset them. They singled out the pledge to reduce federal taxes by at least $500,000,000 a year without reducing social security payments or in any way impairing the efficiency of our armed forces.

"There were all sorts of guesses, many of them contradictory. The Hon. James Gardiner 'allowed as how' $300,000,000 might be lopped off taxes but not $500,000,000. . . It was finally decided that the theme would be 'It Can't Be Done'. Well, ladies and gentlemen," said Mrs. Fairclough, "it can be done."

The speaker said the Liberals are overtaxing the Canadian people. Last year, on a basis of equal division of taxation, each individual paid $176 direct tax and $105 indirect tax; this year the figures are $195 direct tax and $115 indirect tax.

"In other words the taxation is $29 more for this year than last," said Mrs. Fairclough. "If there's a 'social dividend' I don't think the taxpayers are getting it."

Referring to the "Abbott surpluses", she said that any private company executive who budgeted as Finance Minister Douglas Abbott did would be fired. The surpluses announced each year are the result either of gross mismanagement or carelessness.

"Mind you, I think it is a good idea to apply taxation against the public debt. But the minister should budget for it and say so."

PRICED OFF MARKET

Mrs. Fairclough said that Canadian goods are being priced out of the market and the federal government, through carelessness, has already lost the British market for pork, bacon, ham and cheese.

Parents Shopping In Maynooth As Death Strikes

By DON GRANT

BANCROFT—Death struck at tiny Horseshoe lake, five miles southeast of Maynooth, and 10 miles north of here, early Monday night for the second time in a year. Four Toronto children, ranging in age from nine months to 14 years, were burned to death in a small two-room cabin, owned by three of the children's father, Donald R. MacRae, an employee of the Toronto Daily Star. Dead are: Berniece MacRae, 14; Donna MacRae, eight; Donald MacRae Jr., nine months; Norman Cheeseman, 11. All were of Weston, a Toronto suburb.

A year ago, on July 8, the MacRae family figured in the drowning of two Maynooth sisters, Donna and Beatrice Moxam. Seventeen-year-old Yvonne MacRae, sister of the children burned in Monday's fire, saved the girls' sister, Marjorie, at that time.

Yvonne MacRae had been holidaying with her family at Horseshoe Lake, but only this week had returned to their Weston home, escaping the fire.

Apparently Bernice was left in charge of the children while her parents went visiting and shopping in Maynooth, five miles away. Just as Mr. and Mrs. MacRae entered the vicinity of the lake they noticed the fire.

SAW BLAZE

"We were coming down the road to the cottage from Maynooth, when we first saw the blaze," said Mr. MacRae today. "It was about 10.30 p.m. and we were about a half-mile away."

MacRae said that "we drove straight there, One half was totally on fire. I ran to the window, tore the screen away, broke the glass and reached for the crib."

But just then flaming tar from the roof came tumbling down on that side, spraying Mr. MacRae and forcing him back. Today, very dazed, he still is wandering about aimlessly talking to reporters who peppered him with questions. He was covered with grease and ointment about the face. His right hand, which was cut and burned, was still wrapped only in a towel.

A second attempt to rescue the children was made by 15-year-old Verna Zammit, also of Toronto, and a neighbor of the MacRae's. She was staying in a cabin, only 100 feet away from the burning cabin.

HEARD CRACKLING

"I was sleeping in the cabin when I heard the crackling of the flames. I got up and tried to open the cabin", said Miss Zammit. "Tar fell off the roof and landed on my forehead. I just couldn't go any further."

Miss Zammit added that she also burned her hands slightly.

Will Kelvsky, of Toronto, who was staying at the farmhouse of Thomas Lebow, about a half-mile away, raced to the cabin but "it was all in flames."

"Mr. MacRae had just got there. He smashed the window and then started backing out into a field, away from the fire. His wife was hysterical, also out in the field. I did what I could to comfort them both, then went for the police and doctors."

Lorne Lebow, son of Tom Lebow, was having his troubles when the fire started. His father, a diabetic, went into a coma and Lorne rushed over to his sister's, Mrs. Roy Higgins, near the Lebow farmhouse.

Save 4 Women From Wreckage Of Blazing Car

COBOURG (ENS)—Four Montreal women were saved from a wrecked car that was just starting to blaze following a collision with a truck on Highway 2, four miles east of Cobourg, about 1:30 a.m. today.

The driver of the truck, Howard Quesenberry, Toronto, and a passing motorist, the Rev. Andre of Port Credit, pulled the women out of the overturned car after Quesenberry had yanked up the car's hood and doused fire in the motor with sand.

All four women were taken to Cobourg general hospital, but two were released after treatment.

Injured were Miss Marguerite Clement, 24, driver of the car and her mother, Mrs. Marguerite Clement, who were both released; and Mrs. Yvonne Poirer, Lachine, with back injuries; and Mrs. Charles Cool, whose chest and back injuries were most serious.

STARTED IN MOTOR

Miss Clement was driving west on a straight section of the highway when her car met in collision with an oncoming transport truck driven by Quesenberry. The car first hit the left front fender of the transport, bounced off, hit the rear driving wheels of the tractor of the truck and then bounced into the south ditch landing on its roof. A fire started in the motor immediately.

The driver and the minister raced to car, put out the fire and pulled the women out of danger.

OPP constable Bill Warner investigated.

Work Starts On Building $410,000 Outboard Addition

Eastwood Construction Company has begun excavation for the footing of the latest $410,000 addition to the plant of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. at Monaghan Road and Romaine St. Preparatory to that change in use of the corner lot, the company levelled and graded the former John Mervin property across Monaghan Road for employee parking space. It is now fully occupied.

At the city hall this morning it was reported that the Outboard Marine application for a building permit had been sent on to the city council because, it was said, residents of the south side of Romaine St., whose gardens back up against the fence of the manufacturing plant, had been zoned as residential area. Outboard Marine are extending their buildings which front on Monaghan Road, northerly from their present and original line to Romaine St.

It is understood that the new addition will house the assembly lines of the Outboard Marine.

Finds 130 Moose On Small Island

FORT FRANCES, Ont. (CP)—There is an island in Lake of the Woods that is 53 square miles of moose haven.

R. C. Passmore, Ontario department of lands and forests biologist, reports one of the densest moose populations on the North American continent on the little patch of land. He recently surveyed the area in a helicopter.

Mr. Passmore estimated a total of 130 moose on Big Island. With a tangle of brush on the west side making counting difficult, the figure is probably a conservative one.

The purpose of the survey was to determine ages and sex ratios of the animals. The heavy population is explained by fires which burned off large trees and logging which further reduced the timber stand. This encouraged smaller trees and underbrushed on which the moose thrive.

Mr. Passmore said food is becoming scarce again as the trees increase in size and some animals have already died of starvation.

W. German Diplomat Meets With Big Three

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government disclosed today it has sent a high-ranking West German diplomat to meet with the big three foreign ministers in Washington.

The announcement said Herbert Blankenhorn, political director of the foreign ministry, left secretly Sunday.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

WRONG ADDRESS

Last known addresses of Ronald Genereaux, 22, being held by city police on arson charges, were Buffalo and Windsor, not 1033 Monaghan Rd. as previously reported.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS

New traffic lights have been installed at Reid and Charlotte Sts., but many motorists are driving through without noticing them, reported traffic constable Harold Andrew today. Motorists will have to be especially careful he said, because most drivers will be obeying them and will expect others to as well.

Water Polluted In Little Lake

Due to a recent survey conducted by the Department of Health, the Water Ski School has been forced to abandon Little Lake for their operations. The survey revealed sufficient pollution to make it unsafe for bathing purposes.

The ski school is being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Peterborough Water Ski Association, who are now considering the area around Inverlea for their operations.

SOUTHWEST SHORE WORST

The survey covered the whole area of the lake and samples of water were taken at depth as well as at the surface. The pollution was greatest along the southwest shore opposite Crescent St. Although pollution was less along the north shore from Burnham Court to the Canal, the amount of contamination can be increased by a change in the wind direction.

The Department of Health proposes to conduct an immediate survey to determine the source of contamination, following which recommendations will be made to the Board of Health.

AID TOURISTS

The Junior Chamber of Commerce gave aid and information to more than 210 Canadian and American tourists over the week-end, at their tourists' information booth on Charlotte Street.

Flapjacks, 10-Gallon Hats Feature St. Laurent's Junket

By HAROLD MORRISON

WITH ST. LAURENT (CP) — Dirt-shovelling and flapjacks; a long wait because of an open bridge; smiling children and 10-gallon hats, and thoughts of a former prime minister whose nose was threatened.

These are some of the things that have cropped up in Prime Minister St. Laurent's 10-day, 6,000-mile tour through four western provinces, urging the electors to keep Canada strong and united, as he says, by returning the Liberal government to power Aug. 10.

It's a tough grind electioneering over the wide-open spaces. But the 71-year-old prime minister is taking it in his stride.

He has a smile for everyone, especially for the kiddies. He picks them out, smiles, shakes them by the hand, saying, "hello, hello."

In the rich farming community of Red Deer, Alta., Monday he was handed a long-handled spade and asked to turn the sod for the construction of a new artificial-ice curling rink.

"I did a little dirt-shovelling before lunch," he cracked to an audience of more than 500 persons that turned out to hear him attack the Social Crediters at a meeting during the noon hour.

In Vancouver last week his motorcade was held up for about an hour as barges moved lazily by under an open bridge connecting Vancouver with the Sea Island airport.

A Vancouver newspaper later confessed that it had pulled the open-bridge stunt to impress federal ministers with the need of a new bridge—to be built with federal aid.

"I hope they enjoyed it as much as I did sitting there," the prime minister commented.

In Calgary last Saturday, he got a 10-gallon hat—and wore it almost continually. He turned up at a spectacular chuckwagon Sunday breakfast given by Jim Cross and other Calgary Stampede officials and consumed two heaping plates of scrambled eggs, curried rice, bacon and sausages. Then he delivered a speech on national unity.

His campaign managers must have had some doubts of what would happen at Hornepayne, Ont., on the Northern Ontario train run between Toronto and Winnipeg. This is the community where a carpenter once threatened to punch the nose of the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King during a former campaign.

Mr. St. Laurent paid the town a brief stop without incident.

A FISH FOUR FISHERMEN LONG, and weighing 29 pounds, was displayed on Monday by lucky visitor Gerry Brobst and family. He took it at Pigeon Lake Saturday evening while trolling off Red Rock in front of Tall Cedar Lodge. Shown with the top fisherman of the season, so far, are daughter Kathleen, his wife, and Pat Coble, all of Doylesville, O. It is their third season in the Kawarthas and their first 'lunge.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Plan Friendly Adjudication Of Water Damage Claims

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian plans for a friendly adjudication of $60,000,000 damage claims from United States citizens will be worked out in the next fortnight.

The damage suits have been filed with U.S. courts on behalf of about 5,000 Americans, residents of the shore of Lake Ontario, who contend that Canada is responsible for high water that has injured their property.

The Canadian government while denying Canada is in any way responsible for the high lake levels, has agreed to abide by the verdict of an international tribunal.

Details to be worked out include the make-up of the proposed tribunal—probably to consist of three men—its terms of reference, technical advisors and the question of how the cost of the body would be paid.

The big U.S. court suit is based largely on Canada's 1903 construction of Gut Dam in the St. Lawrence river, just below the outlet of Lake Ontario. The dam's purpose was to regulate waters for Canadian downriver canals.

However, it has been blamed by Americans for bringing up Lake Ontario's water.

The government tore down the dam last winter, complying with an order of the International Joint Commission preliminary to the IJC's granting of permission for the opening phase of construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Orange Lodges Attend Service

BETHANY (ENS). — Loyal Orange Lodge 1022 and Ladies' Good Luck Lodge 1207 marched to divine service at St. Paul's Anglican Church Sunday evening.

The parade was headed by the boy's fife and drum band, and George Smith standardbearer. Bro. John Palmer is Master of the men's lodge and Sister Mary Edwards Worthy Mistress of the ladies' lodge.

St. Paul's Church was filled to capacity. A welcome was extended by the Rev. T. S. Gault to the local lodges and representatives of other lodges from Janetville, Fraserville, Bailieboro, Pontypool, Millbrook and Peterborough.

Mr. James Gay presided at the organ and St. Paul's choir sang two anthems.

The second Scripture lesson was read by the Right Worshipful Bro. Kenneth Moncrief of Fraserville, Past County Master.

As the basis of his sermon, Mr. Gault took these lines from Kipling's Recessional: "The tumult and the shouting dies; the captains and the kings depart; still stands Thine ancient sacrifice, an humble and a contrite heart."

Following the service, a parade was held on the main street with the band giving several selections before the dismissal service in the Orange Hall. Both lodges attended the celebrations held at Cobourg on Saturday.

Stratford Festival Officials Hopeful For Extra Week's Run After First Success

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STRATFORD (CP)—The Stratford Shakespearean Festival, one of the world's dramatic events of the year, opened Monday night.

Even before the premier performance of "Richard III" starring Alec Guinness and Irene Worth, Festival officials were optimistically talking about extending the five-week run to six, and after the enthusiastic reception by the near-capacity crowd of about 1,300, that talk should certainly increase.

Financially the Festival, first of its kind in North America is also assured of success. Nearly 60 per cent of the tickets have been sold, the figure necessary to break even on the minimum budget.

Guinness, better known here for his roles in British movies, received a standing ovation for about 15 minutes after the three-hour performance.

Tonight, "All's Well That Ends Well," will be presented. It will alternate with "Richard" until Aug. 15.

"Richard III" is one of the historical plays of William Shakespeare based on actual events of history. It was written in 1593 or 1594, several hundred years after the actual events which are depicted.

The play is concerned with Richard's quest for the kingship at the time of the Wars of the Roses when the opposing houses of York and Lancaster both claimed the crown.

In that quest for the moparchy, Richard, an evil and deformed man was ruthless, having nine murders committed to satisfy his ambition. In the end, at the Battle of Bosworth, Richard is killed by Henry Tudor, Earl of Richmond who unites the two houses and ends the bloody rivalry.

Guinness gave a vivid portrayal of Richard, deformed both physically and mentally. The role of Buckingham is played by Robert Christie of Toronto, a veteran of 18 years on the Canadian stage.

Miss Worth, 37-year-old American who is a veteran of both the United States and British stages, also drew warm applause from the audience as Margaret, widow of Henry VI who has been embittered by the loss of her family through the struggle between the Yorks and Lancasters.

"Richard's" setting and costumes drew praise from the audience. The decor was by Tanya Moisewitsch, one of the leading designers of the British theatre.

The stage, surrounded on three sides by the audience, is placed in six small tiers, including a balcony. Entrances can be made from above, down steps on each side, from underneath the balcony back stage, or down the aisles from the pits, as in Shakespeare's day.

A huge tent covers the theatre, supported by two main poles which are the only major obstructions in the bowl-shaped theatre. Several layers of cloth under the tent roof and along its sides give the theatre good acoustics.

The performance had a first-night atmosphere. Several hundred persons gathered on the outside of a barricade around the flood-lit theatre entrance as flash-bulbs popped and a radio commentator interviewed prominent persons in the audience.

Few celebrities were to be seen but several Broadway critics were among the press corps or about it.

British Economy Better-Butler

LONDON (AP)—Richard A. Butler said Monday production is climbing and Britain's economy looks "more cheering."

He addressed the House of Commons which gave final approval to the Conservative government's new tax-cutting budget.

Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, who is presiding over cabinet meetings in the absence of Prime Minister Churchill, heard himself addressed by a fellow Conservative as the man "likely to be prime minister."

The reference, made by Cyril Osborne, drew no comment either from Butler or from other members of Parliament. Butler has been prominently mentioned as a possible successor to the 78-year-old Churchill when he steps down.

Earlier, Butler told Commons that under the Conservative government's incentive policies "production has continued to expand."

"In March and April," he said, "it was about two per cent higher than the equivalent months of 1951."

Pageant Presented By Mission Band

SPRINGVILLE — (ENS) — Two films and a pageant highlighted a special Mission Band meeting in the Sunday school auditorium when the children entertained their parents and the ladies of the Women's Missionary Society.

After the call to worship, a hymn was sung and the Mission Band Purpose was recited in unison. Donna Northey read the scripture and Mrs. Lyttle gave a talk on "Neighbours."

Mrs. C. W. Seymour was guest pianist and her daughter Joy, president of the Mission Band, welcomed the guests.

Helen Kimball gave a reading. Donna, Linda and Nelson Northey gave a violin and guitar selection. Keith Johnston gave the peace report and the band sang a chorus. Donald Dunford gave a guitar solo.

The band entertained their guests with a pageant, "Down Through the Years" and portrayed on the platform the seven stages of life. Shirley Northey with a doll portrayed a mother, and sang "Sleep, Baby Sleep."

Annika Junkers and her sister, as school children, sang "School Days." Keith Johnston, as a college graduate, appeared on the scene to the tune of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Nelson Northey, typifying courtship days sang "Comin' Throught the Rye." Nancy Johnston as a bride appeared on the stage with the song "I Love You Truly." Roeli Flokstra, representing the mother of a grown-up family, appeared on the stage when the song "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight" was sung. Old Age and Reminiscence was portrayed by Joy Seymour and Lynda Northey who sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie."

Two films were shown and lunch was served.

70 Candidates Enter Field In 21 Ridings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seventy candidates officially entered the Aug. 10 federal election fight Monday, filing papers and paying $200 deposits in 21 of the country's 263 constituencies.

The general nomination day is July 27, two weeks in advance of the vote. Monday's nominations were in large scattered constituencies.

Liberal government candidates are contesting all 21. Progressive Conservatives entered the fight in 15, CCF in 13, Social Credit in nine and Labor - Progressives in eight. There were three Independent entries—two of them in the new constituency of Mackenzie River which takes in Mackenzie district in the Northwest Territories.

There were no surprises. Trade Minister Howe moved into an anticipated four-way fight in Port Arthur where he is seeking his fifth term. He is opposed by Progressive Conservative, CCF and Labor-Progressive candidates.

J. W. Pickersgill, new secretary of state, has a Progressive Conservative opponent in Bonavista-Twillingate, the Newfoundland seat held by his predecessor in the cabinet, F. Gordon Bradley.

Mr. Pickersgill's opponent is Edward Russell, a former cabinet minister in Newfoundland's provincial Liberal government. He resigned and left the party after a row over fiscal policies.

John G. Diefenbaker, prominent Progressive Conservative, faces Liberal, CCF and Labor-Progressive opposition in a four-way race in Prince Albert, a Liberal seat in the last House. Mr. Diefenbaker, former member for Lake Centre, switched to Prince Albert because of boundary changes in redistribution.

One woman entered the field, Mrs. Grace Sparkes, Progressive Conservative candidate in Burin-Burgeo in Newfoundland. She is women's editor of the St. John's Daily News.

There are 11 candidates for five Newfoundland seats with nominations Monday, five candidates in two Quebec seats, 10 in Saskatchewan seats, 12 in three Alberta seats.

Three entered the field in Cariboo, B.C., and four in Mackenzie River.

Three candidates filed in the Yukon and four in the British Columbia riding of Skeena.

Fear Sugar Glut If Consumption Not Stepped Up

LONDON (AP)—Delegates to the 44-nation international sugar conference agreed Monday there is grave danger of a world sugar glut unless consumption can be stepped up.

The United Nations - sponsored conference opened in plenary session then went behind closed doors to work out details of a draft agreement which would:

1. Assure supplies of sugar to importing countries and markets for exporting countries at stable prices.

2. Maintain the purchasing power in world markets of sugar-producing countries by providing adequate returns to producers.

Delegates from Cuba and the Dominican Republic—both among the world's largest sugar producers—stressed that their national economies would be threatened unless the conference reached agreement on these two aims.

Chief British delegate Sir Henry Hancock agreed and referred to a "very brave decision" taken recently by Cuba in cutting production and so averting the "serious consequences" of a glut.

Earlier, the conference had ruled out of order a Russian move to bring Red China and East Germany into the conference.

The conference is expected to last about six weeks.

Canadian delegates include Mitchel Sharp of the Canadian trade department, George H. Glass of the finance department and officials of the Canadian High Commissioner's office here.

Canada which imports most of her sugar, hopes for a new agreement, but her delegates are displaying an open mind.

IN SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL—Alec Guinness, British stage and film star, and Amelia Hall, of Ottawa, portray a tense scene from "Richard III," which opened the Stratford Shakespearean Festival July 13. Guinness plays the title role and Miss Hall is Lady Anne. The elaborate costumes are by Tanya Moisewitch, leading designer from London who also planned the stage. The festival productions of Richard and "All's Well That Ends Well," are to be played on alternate nights until August 8.

Textile Industry Seeks More Gov't Protection

By BOB JOYCE

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's $800,000,000 textile industry, hard-hit by imports in recent years, is looking to the federal government for increased protection.

Labor has joined management in calling for federal action, as industrial leaders forecast that the future looks, if anything blacker than the past. Several plants plan to shut down for extended holidays. Many are working short-time, and employment dropped from 101,234 in January, 1951 to 93,120 in January, this year.

Recently Edward C. Cluney, acting Canadian director of the Textile Workers of America (CCL-CIO), suggested restricting entry of foreign textiles by quota. R. D. Archibald secretary of Dominion Textiles, one of the country's largest firms, has said Canadian tariffs are too low.

NOT NEW

The recession is not new. Nor is it confined to Canada. During the last few years there has been a widespread slump in textiles in most countries.

It was touched off when producers, who had stockpiled at the start of the Korean war, found themselves with excess stocks on their hands.

These excess stocks acted as a blight on the world market, and it is only in recent months that some of the larger textile-producing countries have experienced any expansion in trade.

Although Canadians use on an average three times more textiles than peoples in other countries, and spend each year 15 per cent of their income on clothing and fabrics, Canadian manufacturers say there hasn't been a sufficiently large come-back in the market for Canadian textiles.

The recession here, they say, is not caused by any falling off in the quantity of textiles used by Canadians — expanding incomes and the increased population have kept consumption right up where it was two years ago. It is a result of fierce foreign competition.

CONSUMPTION

Compared with pre-war Canadian consumption is up 64 per cent, but purchases of Canadian-produced textiles have only increased by eight per cent.

Both British and American producers have invaded the Canadian market in force since the war. During the first quarter of the year, for the first time in history, imports of cotton fabrics from the United States alone exceeded home production.

Industry leaders claim these countries have used the Canadian market to unload their surplus stocks, and that an artificially-restricted definition of what constitues "dumping" in Canada's customs regulations has prevented any swift corrective action by the government.

The industry, which supplied about 68 per cent of the Canadian market for fabrics in 1951, supplied only about 58 per cent in 1952. In 1938 some 70 percent of all fabrics bought here were Canadian-produced.

"If the present trend continues the industry will probably supply less than half of the market in 1953," Mr. Cluney said.

Centred chiefly in small towns in Quebec and Ontario, one third of them with a population of 5,000 or less, textile plants often provide the bulk of employment in local communities. In such "textile" towns even temporary closing of a plant can lead to widespread unemployment in service industries in the region.

Decide Against Strike

LONDON (CP)—More than 300 of London's 550 carpenters Monday night voted "overwhelmingly" against going out on strike today. Instead they authorized their bargaining committee to continue wage negotiations with the London Builders' Exchange. The union's original request was for a 60-cent increase over their $1.70 rate.

Petticoat Fever Farce Gets Stylish Presentation

The Summer Theatre returned to comedy this week with the presentation of the farce, Petticoat Fever, and did it in style.

To be successfully presented, farce has to come off with polish and that is just what the Summer Theatre cast had Monday night.

Petticoat Fever is a play about a wireless station operator in Northern Labrador, Dascom Dinsmore, played by Harry Geldard. Dinsmore is longing for female company, preferably white and beautiful.

Into his bachelor radio shack come Sir James Fenton (David Powell) and his fiancee Ethel Campion (newcomer Barbara Cummings). Dinsmore is, of course, smitten immediately, and Miss Campion reluctantly finds herself attracted to Dinsmore. A little later Dinsmore's fiancee, played by Charlotte Schrager, arrives for her marriage, two years late.

The situation and the plot from there on are of course predictable, as in most farces. What happens as the obvious plot unfolds is what makes the play. In this case there were some excellent additions brought in by the Rev. Arthur Shapman, an Anglican rector, played by Ronald Bailey and Captain John Landry played by Peter McCombe.

ACTING GOOD

The play was full of good acting. Probably the actor who contributed the most to his part was David Powell playing Sir James, the hearty bore aroused to protect his bride-to-be.

Powell's acting was faultless to the point that he seemed completely natural. He played with restraint and his part thereby gained in strength.

Harry Geldard was almost equally as good as the isolated wireless operator with petticoat fever. His gyrations in foolish pursuit of the first girl in five months, the first white girl in seven months, and the first beautiful white girl he had seen in two years provided the fun. He did it neatly and with dash.

These two roles carried the play and these two actors carried the roles.

Barbara Cummings proved herself a handsome addition to the Summer Theatre cast, and will probably show more of her ability in more demanding roles. What she was required to do in this play, she did convincingly.

Charlotte Schrager playing the unsympathetic part of the scheming female managed to impart enough freshness and vivacity to make her a convincing menace to the course of true love.

It is no news to Summer Theatre playgoers that Ron Bailey can act. He too avoided the pitfall of overplaying the part of an English vicar. He was deft and pleasing.

Captain John Landry in the hands of Peter McCombe had a Scottish accent, and suffered not a scrap for it. The character created was pithy as it was brief.

Johnnie Young hid in a parka in the jiggling role of Kimo, Dinsmore's servant and his girl friends Little Seal and Snow Bird were played by girls with the improbable names of Goo Chong and Popo Moot.

Wilf Pegg created a fine hodge-podge of a shack as the setting that was worth applause and would have received it if the audience had not been so busy examining all that was in it.

House Informed Attache Needed In Brussels

LONDON (Reuters)—The House of Commons was gravely assured Monday that "it is necessary" for Britain to have an air attache at Brussels.

That was all the government had to say about the re-assigning abroad of Group Capt. Peter Townsend, 38, whose name has been linked romantically with that of Princess Margaret.

Townsend was not mentioned by name, and as tradition prevents the Commons from discussing the personal affairs of the Royal Family, no discussion developed.

Labor member Emrys Hughes raised the matter during the daily question period. He asked if there was "any good reason why there should be a new air attache at Brussels where there is a considerable diplomatic staff."

He said the government had recently announced a policy of reducing the number of attaches wherever possible.

Selwyn Lloyd, minister of state for foreign affairs, replied: "There was an air attache at Brussels and he is being replaced. It is necessary to have such an officer at this post."

Townsend, Second World War ace who was appointed a court attendant by the late King George VI, is due to leave for Brussels this week.

Find Christie Lied In Claim Of Killing Seventh Woman

LONDON (Reuters)—An official probe decided today that justice was done to a man who was hanged for murder three years ago and that mass-slayer John Christie lied when he claimed he himself was the guilty man.

Truck driver Timothy Evans lived in the same house where Christie strangled at least six women. Evans was charged with killing his wife and baby daughter, convicted of the baby's death and hanged.

Christie's sensational confession at his later trial that he was responsible for Mrs. Evans' death prompted the government to set up an official probe into the Evans' case.

Reporting today, the day before Christie is to be hanged, the committee ruled that Evans, too was a murderer, and there was no miscarriage of justice.

The report, drawn up by a prominent lawyer, J. Scott Henderson, said that Christie's confession was "not only unreliable but untrue."

"I have therefore to report that in my opinion there is no ground for thinking that there may have been any miscarriage of justice in the conviction of Evans for the murder of Geraldine Evans" (the 14-month-old baby), Henderson's report said.

Henderson's report said there could be no doubt Evans was responsible for the deaths of both his wife and baby.

Henderson said he was satisfied that Christie gradually came to the conclusion that it would be helpful in his defence if he confessed to the murder of Mrs. Evans. Christie's defence was insanity.

He added: "In saying this I wish to make it clear that I do not think that his solicitor or his doctor did anything improper to induce him to make his statements about Mrs. Evans."

The report quoted evidence from Rev. W. G. Morgan, chaplain of Pentonville prison, where Christie is due to be hanged at 9 a. m. local time Wednesday

Morgan stated: "Christiesaid he had become confused in constant interviews with his solicitor. He said he had held out for a considerable time that he was not responsible for the death of Mrs. Evans.

"He said that in the course of his interviews he gained the impression that it was necessary for him to confess to murders. The actual phrase which he used stuck in my mind because of the incongruity.

"It was 'the more the merrier.'"

Rev. W. Crone Resigns Over Funds' Use

The Rev. Walter S. Crone, a former minister of the Church of the Open Bible in Peterborough, recently resigned as associate pastor of the Churchill Tabernacle in Buffalo, charging that the tabernacle by diverting missionary funds to other purposes, is "not keeping faith" with its subscibers.

Mr. Crone was minister in Peterborough for 10 years before going to Buffalo last October.

In a letter to Dr. Clinton H. Churchill, tabernacle pastor, Mr. Crone offered his resignation "effective July 31 or immediately as you choose." His letter to Dr. Churchill said:

"You will recall that on Monday afternoon of June 22, 1953, I told you that a certain condition existed in the Missionary Department of Churchill Tabernacle, over which I was gravely concerned.

NOT KEEPING FAITH

"Specifically, Churchill Tabernacle was giving to direct the work of Christian Missions only a very small percentage of the moneys it was receiving for that purpose. Our subscribers were giving their money in good faith, but the tabernacle was not keeping faith with these good people. Instead, the majority of the funds were being used for other purposes. Regardless of how legitimate and good these purposes might be, they are not what such money was given for.

"During our conversation together, I suggested that we would do well to bring our missionary allocations up to balance income, adding that we should also publish an annual financial statement. You gave me no encouragement whatever.

"Since that date, I have waited with the hope that you would give further consideration to this matter and make the necessary adjustments. To my knowledge, nothing has been done in this regard."

Mr. Crone said further in his letter that he met with Dr. Churchill July 8 to discuss the matter and is satisfied that "you have no intention of making the proper adjustments."

Mr. Crone later said "I went there with the idea of helping build up a work that was at a very low ebb."

USED IN MONTHLY

He said that between 30 per cent and 40 per cent of the funds earmarked for missionary purposes go to pay for The Evangelist, a tabernacle monthly publication and a local employee who does work among shut-ins.

He added that most persons who give for missionary purposes "are under the impression their money is going abroad." He said that while he has been at the tabernacle "only about 20 per cent of such funds have gone to missionary societies."

Home-made Gun Barrel Hits Pierces 15-Year-Old's Skull

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) The barrel from a home-made gun was buried three inches in the skull of a 15-year-old boy Sunday.

Today the youth was reported "doing fine" in a hospital here.

Bill Shriver's pipe-gun backfired in a field. He walked home, supporting the three-foot, half-inch pipe with his hands to prevent it from pushing against the right eyeball.

Neighbors found the youth and called his grandparents, who were away visiting, and the fire department rescue squad.

Firemen found the boy sitting calmly in a chair.

"I don't know how we're going to get you through that door with the pipe," they said.

"That's easy," young Shriver replied. "I'll walk through." And he did.

Billy made the gun from galvanized pipe, blocking one end with a homemade stock. He had apparently been sighting the gun when a charge of black powder blew the stock off and forced the pipe back.

Casual Bandits

Guelph Workers Sign New Terms

GUELPH (CP)—Settlement of a strike which has tied up operations at Harding Carpets and Guelph Yarns plants since June 17 was announced today. More than 500 workers returned to their jobs and the factories will be in full operation by Wednesday.

A new two-year agreement signed between the company and Local 741 of the Textile Workers Union (CIO-CCL) provides for a wage increase of two cents an hour, effective July 1, 1953, and an additional two cents an hour effective Feb. 1, 1954.

Weavers at Harding Carpets who refused to cross the picket lines of the Guelph yarns pickets, but who were not involved in the walkout, also returned to work today.

The boy, Thomas Johnson, was pinned face down under two feet of water by the 3,000-pound truck after it skidded off a road and overturned on the bank of Young's river. The 5-foot, 8-inch father, Howard Johnson, 42, managed to tip the truck from its side back onto its wheels.

Two-Freighter Crash Sinks 1, Damages 1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 7,869-ton freighter Jacob Luckenbach plunged to the bottom of the Pacific Ocean minutes after an early morning collision today, but all crew members were rescued, the U. S. coast guard said.

The outbound Luckenbach, reported to have been headed for the Far East from the Oakland, Calif., army depot, collided with the 8,449-ton Hawaiian Pilot, inbound from Hawaii, in dense fog about 18 miles southwest of the Golden Gate. There was no immediate indication how badly the Hawaiian Pilot was damaged.

PremierBecomes PM In Any Work For Crown

VICTORIA (CP) — When is a premier a prime minister?

When he's handling anything to do with the Crown, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Moday.

Premier Bennett, in a press conference, was replying to criticism here over his use of the term "prime minister." The controversy started when it was noted the words "prime minister" were inscribed on an attache case he carries.

Critics contended the term "prime minister" is reserved for Canada's leader.

But Premier Bennett said he has received confirmation that he may use that title. A letter signed by the secretary to the Queen thanking him for a message of loyalty and devotion at the time of the Coronation was addressed to "my dear prime minister."

"I use 'premier' in normal government functions, but in anything to do with the Crown, it's 'prime minister,'" Mr. Bennett said.

He also said the official list of precedence in Canada lists the "prime ministers" of the provinces as 20th in order.

At Ottawa, a well-known parliamentary authority said provincial leaders could call themselves either premier or prime minister.

Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, author of Beauchesne's "Parliamentary Rules and Forms," said that the distinction between the two terms was made by the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King at the 1946 federal-provincial conferences. The distinction was made, he said, merely to help eliminate any confusion which might have resulted.

Bids To Talk On Margaret, Laborite Firmly Shut Up

LONDON (AP)—A Labor party member served notice today he will try again to get the House of Commons talking about Princess Margaret's reported romance with a divorced air hero. The House speaker politely but firmly shut him up Monday.

Laborite Emrys Hughes said he will file another question in the House Wednesday addressed to the air minister. Officially he wants to know why the ministry is assigning a new air attache to Britain's embassy in Brussels.

The new attache is Group Capt. Peter Townsend, 38, a divorced man and until his transfer an equerry in the Royal Household for nine years. It has been reported he and the Princess are in love, and some British newspapers have speculated he is being sent out of the country because the Church of England opposes a divorced person remarrying, particularly with royalty.

Neither Townsend's name nor Margaret's was mentioned in Commons Monday, but Hughes asked why a new air attache was being sent to Brussels "where there already is a considerable diplomatic station."

Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd replied that the present attache in Brussels is being replaced and "in the view of Her Majesty's Government, it is necessary to have such an officer in that post."

Hughes then said he thought the government was supposed to economize on such attaches.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said the major leagues, acting in joint session Monday night, adopted a rule which limits drafting of territory except from Oct. 1 to Dec. 1.

This eliminates the possibility of St. Louis Browns' or any other franchise being moved except during that period.

The majors also turned down a proposal by the National League to cut the player limit to 23 men. The National League voted in favor of the change, but the American League and Commissioner Frick voted to retain the present 25-man limit.

Agreement Ends Unofficial Cheese Support

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Cheese Producers' Association has agreed for the present to refrain from bidding on the cheese exchange, it was learned Monday.

This in effect removed an unofficial support price for cheddar cheese midway between two prices set by the federal government—a 24-cent floor price and a 30-cent "end" price.

The agreement followed a meeting last week of association and federal agricultural officials and representatives of the cheese-processing companies. It is expected to result in lower cheese prices and quicker sale of the 180,000 pounds of cheddar now coming onto the market every week.

Under the Agricultural Products Co-Operative Marketing Act, the federal government provided that the floor price for cheddar must not fall below 80 per cent of the average price over the preceding three years. This worked out at 24 cents.

Under the farm products marketing act, the federal government undertook to pay a 30-cent price for all cheddar produced between April 1 and Sept. 30 of this year, and remaining in the hands of producers as of next Oct. 31.

The cheese Board Producers Association had undertaken to maintain an unofficial support price by keeping bids of about 28 cents on the exchanges. These bids were calculated to equal the 30-cent end price, minus handling and shrinkage charges.

There have been no sales of cheddar for the last two weeks. Last sales were at about 28¼ cents.

Officials expect that removal of the cheese association bid will cause the price to drop "slightly." They were unable to say by how much.

Television Fee In Britain $5.60, No Advertising Plugs

By EDWIN S. ROSENTHAL

LONDON (Reuters)—The British televiewer pays £2 ($5.60) for a year's worth of daily entertainment without advertising plugs, and also without most of the features most popular on American television.

Crime thrillers are out, except for a tepid Saturday-night serial. So are weekly big-name shows.

Occasionally, Britain's top comedians, including Arthur Askey, Ted Ray, Max Bygraves and Terry Thomas, face the TV cameras but the BBC can't afford to give them weekly spots at acceptable salaries.

Weekends are the only times when the owners of Britain's 2,500,000 video sets see chorus girls, comedians and the old run of vaudeville acts. Usually, this type of "low brow" entertainment is wrapped up in a tight, one-hour program Saturday night.

Probably the most surprising omission is that of films.

What then does the British televiewer get for his £2, thee cost of an annual licence purchased at any post office.

First of all, the scheduled programs outside of televised public events don't start until mid-afternoon and even then don't run continuously until the shut-down time just before 11 p.m.

Sometimes there is a women's hour starting at 3 p.m. That is followed at 4 o'clock with a 15-minute program entitled "Watch with Mother" for children under five years of age. The program consists of a popular puppet named Andy Pandy and his teddy bear.

The TV starts again at 5 p.m. for one of the BBC's mainstays of both radio and TV, "Children's Hour." For an hour or sometimes two after this, the single channel shuts down while Britons presumably get home from the day's work and eat dinner.

Between 7 and 8 p.m., the evening's continuous program begins with a 15-minute newsreel. From then on, the program varies each evening, but often a play produced early in the week will be repeated.

Britain's TV plays, about two to three a week, are excellently performed by some of the nation's best actors. Many scrips are original, others are well-known ones by British, French, American and other playwrights.

There is also emphasis on "educational" subjects such as science talks, descriptive films on India, and discussions and renditions of classical music.

These are mixed in with novelty subjects, showing, for instance, the various jobs, professions and industries of Britain.

Without commercials to tide over program gaps, the BBC resorts to "interludes" in which viewers see tropical fish swimming about a tank, ocean waves breaking on rocks, wind rustling a wheat field or a slowly revolving windmill, to the accompaniment of soft music.

Two well-established programs are British versions of the American "What's my Line?" and "Down You Go" shows. The BBC makes only slight variations in the successful American formula and credits the United States for originating the ideas.

Bride-Like Gifts

Every bride has two main interests besides the man-of-her-life: the attractiveness of her home and the loveliness of herself to please her groom. A gift of fragrance can appeal to both. A set of perfumed soaps will delight her for it combines practicality with sheer luxury. Perfumed bath, hand and guest soap in matching scent will give her bathroom and powder room a fully-equipped atmosphere. The extra cakes of soap stored in her linen closet will bring a bride-like fragrance to her trousseau linens. A set of sachet pillows will make fragrant her lingerie, handkerchiefs and gloves, giving her added pleasure each time she opens the drawer. Tucked into her suitcase for the wedding trip, sachet pillows add an intangible but definite glamour to unpacking upon arrival at her honeymoon destination.

Brush Hair Often

Your hairbrush, always important to your grooming, becomes even more so in summer. The very short coiffure, which is whisked into place with a few flicks of a brush, puts it to frequent use. And comfort demands that you lift your locks with a brush often to let the air circulate through your hair.

Selection of a brush is not a matter of buying the first one that comes to hand. Examine it carefully before you purchase.

Keep your brush clean so that you won't be putting soil back into your hair. Wash it in warm suds to which you may add a few drops of ammonia.

FRUIT COCKTAIL PARFAIT

Tall cool ice cream parfaits are the "sophisticated sisters" of the ever popular sundae. Preparation is easy . . . just alternate layer of rich vanilla ice cream with generous spoonfuls of chilled and drained canned fruit cocktail in tall parfait glasses. Reserve a few of the maraschino-style cherries for a bright garnish. (You may use juice glasses rather than the regular parfait glasses if you wish.)

ROAST CHICKEN FOR THE PICNIC

When serving roast chicken at a picnic try making sandwiches of bread and butter and the chicken dressing—then the chicken can be eaten in the fingers and you don't have to worry about forks for the dressing.

Beauty's A Year 'Round Job

Right along now, as you're packing the fishing tackle and remembering to put in baby's favorite rattle, you're probably hearing your husband muttering — "and I'm not going to shave the whole darned time we're at the cottage.

Well, he's probably handsome enough to forgo beautifying. But all of us girls know that our type of beauty isn't the kind you can let go to seed and feel comfortable about it. True, we're going to forget-- maybe— the nail polish and the more studied make-up of town. But we're going to make hay while the sun shines and do a lot of good for ourselves when there are only the pines and the sun to see us.

Suppose you're going to do a lot of fishing. If you're not already conditioned to tanning, you'll want lotions and protection. Never, never go without anything on your skin —even if you're hugging the fire of a rainy day. A light [illegible] gives your [illegible] tion that keeps it fresher, younger-looking — a sort of a screen between you and the elements.

You'll be shaving your legs— or using a depilatory. Tone down the shine and keep your leg skin soft with a hand and body lotion. Especially work it in on your heels— sandals and open-backed slippers are especially hard — and you don't want calloused, rough spots. Every day, your hand and body lotion keeps them soft.

Maybe you're lucky and have rain water to shampoo your hair. But maybe the water's hard as a rock. That's where a new and marvellous shampoo just introduced is so helpful. Its especially made to keep your permanent wave bouncy and full of spring.

If you've been out fishing or golfing, sometimes your skin feels a little windburned or sore. Then's the time for a penetrating cleanser that pours from its squeeze-me bottle like farmer's luxurious cream. Keeps even suntender skin clean and guarded against blackheads.

Skeeter bites? Pat on a special firming lotion or astringent to take out the sting. Then smooth on a sophisticated cream base in a shade to match your skin. For sun-tanned summer skins there's a tropical tone that blends in beautifully and gives you a fine base for make-up.

If you really need a new permanent but haven't the time before leaving to get it, tuck one into your bag. Uh-huh, a home permanent. Your teen-age daughter— even your husband can be inveighed into giving it to you.

There's always the day —or the evening— when you have to go into the village or to the movies or a dance. Don't forget when you slip into your girdle that a good dusting with talc helps make your foundation feel so much more comfortable. We like a clover fragrance — so much like the country and so very appropriate.

No, beauty can't take a vacation. Everybody needs all the beauty possible— all the time. Especially when you're on vacation and the moon comes up pretty over the lake and the music sets your toes to dancing.

FALL, '53—A slim dress, emphasizing the hips, disguises its pleats, in a new fall fashion. Grey, lightwool, it has the designers '53 "crescent" trim, in bespangled black wool fringes. The brief, double-breasted front ends in a corresponding crescent design. Previewed at New York's fall fashion week. Note medium long length.

Inside Story -- Cotton Lingerie

More than one woman this summer is hailing the return of cotton lingerie for wearing even on the most elegant occasion. It's not the heavy utilitarians kind grandmother used to wear, either. Gay with eyelet embroidery, inserts, flounces and applique, even bows and ribbons, cotton is reappearing in white and pastel shades with plain or coloured trim. The frou-frou is as saucy as that which goes with crepe or nylon.

If you really want the ultimate in the new high-fashion under-pinnings, sew your own. You can have as much glamour as you like on them with remarkably little expense. You may want to make some in a special style or colour for wearing under a particular summer dress.

Beginners in home dressmaking will find a cotton slip sewing bee an ideal project for learning some of the fundamentals of stitching. Cotton is one of the [illegible] fabrics to sew on. A slip is one of the simplest patterns to follow.

With fine cotton thread you can apply trim by machine with as dainty effects as most hand-sewing. You may want to finish the skirt with scallops or ruffles.

Cotton is easy to sew. It keeps its whiteness nicely after washing. It is cool next to the skin. It's inexpensive. It gives body beneath a sheer organdy or nylon frock. And the new cotton plisse does not need ironing.

DID YOU KNOW?

If washed properly and often, white nylon should not become discolored. Hard water, however, turns soap suds into a scum which clings to fibres and is difficult to rinse out. Repeated exposure to this scum will cause discoloration after a time and for this reason water softeners are recommended for washing nylon garments. Most detergents contain water softening agents.

New Tablecloths Of Dress Fabrics

Newest summer tablecloths are of nylon with lace edges, as cool and refreshing as iced lemonade. Pop them into your washing machine and they'll turn out fresh and pretty with no need for an iron.

Other materials that add a summer touch to your table are denim, in plaid or plain colors, checkered gingham, and gaily striped seersucker, all easily washed.

A new note is to attach self-covered buttons to the cloth, at each place setting so napkins can be buttoned on. This is particularly pretty when black and white denim plaid is used for the tablecloth, and bright red cloth for the napkins.

Kelly-Sutherland

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Park St. Baptist church, Saturday afternoon when the Rev. A. S. Roblin united in marriage Louisa Pauline, eldest daughter of Mrs. Sutherland and the late James Sutherland, and Michael Vernon Kelly, son of Mr. Larry Kelly and the late Mrs. Kelly.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. James Sutherland. Her gown was of slipper satin with a nylon net overskirt and was fashioned with a Queen Anne collar and embroidered yoke, and the skirt extended in a cathedral train. Her headdress was a seeded pearl tiara which held her veil of nylon net, and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Miss Gladys Sutherland was maid of honor for her sister, wearing a waltz-length gown of yellow taffeta with nylon net overskirt. Miss Velma Todd as bridesmaid was similarly frocked in mauve. They wore heart-shaped picture hats and mittens in matching colors and they carried nosegays of yellow carnations and pink and white roses.

The groom's attendant was Clair McGill. Ushers were Danny Sutherland and Danny Kelly, brothers of the bride and groom.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clair McGill where the bride's mother assisted to receive, dressed in navy and wearing white accessories and a corsage of red carnations. Also receiving was the groom's sister-in-law Mrs. Daniel Kelly who had chosen a similar ensemble.

Among the guests were friends from Toronto.

The couple are motoring to Montreal and points east on their honeymoon, the bride travelling in a mauve linen suit with which she wore a corsage of yellow and white carnations when going away.

They will live at 475 Stewart Street.

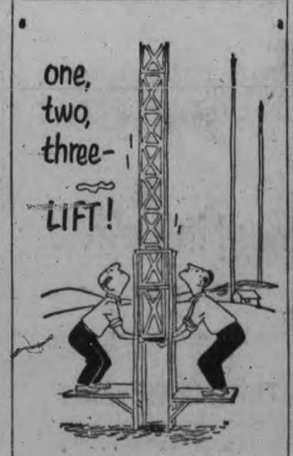
THE NARROW LOOK makes coat silhouette news for fall. Shown here (left) is the closely fitted coat in imported wool. Color is a jewel-like green. Stand-up collar is notched, hips are rounded. Box coat (centre) in a deep red monotone tweed is this autumn's answer to the loose silhouette of the past. This has large, squared convertible jabot collar, shoulders seamed for natural fit. Short evening coat (right) is practical as well as beautiful. It's white in a wool called ermine and wraps about the body. Directoire collar is coupled with natural shoulder line, careful cut.

Fall Coat's Silhouette Tubular And Narrow

In a tapered and tubular mood, the coat takes on a narrow look for autumn. This is the coat silhouette making the most fashion news.

Fur, as trim, has made an impressive comeback. It's used liberally in big collars or cuff muffs, and in ascots, capes and cowls. It takes on pale colors, too, and even appears in blond and snowy white.

When you set out to buy your fall coat, watch for a new importance at the top. This means built-up collars, cape collars, wide shoulder collars that wrap and stand-away collars. It means the Empire look in the bustline and many yokes.



Some width at the top is achieved through use of the dolman or bat-wing sleeve. These offer contrast to a generally slim line through the body.

Look for the belled hemline (also called funnel or trumpet) as replacement for the very loose silhouette of the seasons past.

The fitted coat makes its annual "comeback" in slim lines but also has appeal in the bloused and belted version.

Color shows a marked leaning to the blond-to-browns, with particular emphasis on the taupes. Nobody's going to snub black for fall, of course, but there's also a rich sprinkling of vibrant colors, the greens and reds and deep purples.

In fabrics, there are both brushed and sleek effects with a particular emphasis on the elegance of broadcloth.

How WOULD you build a 200-foot television tower without a single construction worker leaving the ground.

Here's how Bell Telephone Company did it. They made eight-foot tower sections out of aluminum tubing. Then they placed the first section within a base on the ground. Next they hoisted that section and fastened another section under neath it. They kept on repeating the process — raising the completed part off the ground by means of a hand winch. One test tower was dismantled and re-erected on another site, all in one day. Just goes to show that we live in an age of speed — and aluminum. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan)

DOROTHY DIX:

Prospect Of Fatherhood Bewildering To Many Men

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married for eighteen months and expect my baby next month. In all this time Dan has been so good to me and I love him very much, but now I find that I am faced with a problem. During the last few months I have noticed that he has become irritable and now he says he no longer loves me, but has been seeing another woman He hasn't asked for a divorce, but I am on edge wondering when the request will come.

WILMA

THE CHILD MAY WIN FATHER

ANSWER: The prospect of fatherhood is a bewildering one, and some men react in mysterious ways to their new responsibility. Your husband seems to be unconsciously rejecting it, and his effort to seek affection without obligation is shown in his attention to a woman who has no claim on him. When the baby arrives, he'll undoubtedly return to his normal, paternal self, and give the new member of the family his just due of love and attention. Wait and see what develops in the next month.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX. I am upset about a dear friend of mine Sylvia. She had a misunderstanding with Adele, a mutual friend and though Adele has apologized for her part in the trouble, Sylvia refuses to accept the apology or return to their former status of friendship. I think she is wrong. but how can I tell her so?

MARY G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: One of the meanest, and most childish things a person can do is to persist stubbornly in maintaining a quarrel after an apology has been made. There's nothing more Adele can do; and Sylvia is very wrong to withhold forgiveness. Beyond telling her this, there's little you can do to patch things up. Almost any effort will only add fuel to the fire and strengthen Sylvia's determination to continue the misunderstanding.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am quite interested in a young man at my office, and would like to know how I can go about meeting him Although I pass him in the corridor he never says hello to me.

R M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER. It's the lady's privilege to speak first, and certainly there could be no difficulty about your bidding him a cheerful "good morning." If he's interested, he'll take full advantage of your overture. If you feel particularly formal, why not have a co-worker introduce you both? In a place of business, however, such formality would be rather out of place

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX. For the past three years I've been in love with Elijah, who also declared his love for me. Last summer he went to California and wrote me three or four times a week. When he returned, a schoolmate said she was in love with him and that he loved her, too. Other people have verified the fact that they go out together, though he still comes to see me. Should I continue my friendship with him or not?

VIOLET

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't take the word of other people on a matter of so great importance. Let the young man tell you himself whether or not he's in love with someone else. Since the evidence in the case is overwhelmingly on the affirmative side, he probably does tell the girl he cares for her, in which case you should most certainly end the friendship.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I was asked to a dance by two boys, Charles and Bob. Charles asked me first, but I told him I'd have to think it over. Then Bob came along with his invitation and I knew he was the one I wanted to go with How can I tell Charles without hurting his feelings?

DOTTY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It can't be done, for any attempt on your part to string the situation out will only result in a more serious hurt. The kindest thing to do is to tell Charles as soon as possible that you prefer going with Bob.

30 Canadian Debs Learn Curtsy For Presentation

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Thirty Canadian debutantes went to a diplomat's home Monday to learn how to curtsy to a queen.

The Canadian girls got their briefing to make sure nothing goes wrong at Thursday's presentation party in Buckingham Palace, where they will be among 300 young women from the Commonwealth who will curtsy in the presence of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh. The Royal couple will be seated on twin thrones on a raised platform.

Lt.-Col. J. M. Hugo, reception and entertainment secretary at the Commonwealth relations office, addressed the Canadian debutantes on the proper way to curtsy. He had one special tip—watch that invitation card.

"Don't lose it, and don't crumple it into a ball," he said. "Some girls are so jittery they screw the cards up into a pulp. That won't do, because the lord chamberlain must be able to read what it says."

Col Hugo said the proper place to make the cursty will be denoted with a "tiny mark" in front of the Queen's throne. There will be a similar designation before the duke's chair.

There was some animated woman's talk about hats and veils, and it was finally decided that it would be all right to wear a hat and a veil, but not a veil by itself.

The Canadian debutantes will be looked after by Mrs. Norman Robertson, wife of the Canadian High Commissioner.

Mrs. Robertson was also hostess at Monday's briefing, given in the High Commissioner's official residence in Upper Brook street, Mayfair.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Freeze These Desserts Or Eat Them Now

I've been thinking. It was hard but I held myself at gunpoint and did it.

The reason for this strenuous exercise is this: some of you own home freezers and are very ambitious about the lovely foods you are going to make up and store in it, then spring on your guests when they turn up unexpectedly.

It is all very commendable and efficient BUT there are so many who do not have freezers I want to give those readers some recipes too.

So my brain wave produced the idea of giving you recipes that could be made up and stored for future use in the freezer OR used as soon as they are made for lovely cold summer desserts.

Fair enough isn't it? I'm happy to boot.

CHOCOLATE CAKE ROLL

It is a chocolate cake made like a jelly roll. using ice cream for the filling.

One-half cup sifted cake flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¾ teaspoon baking soda, 3 table spoons cold water, 1 pint each mint ice cream and strawberry ice cream (or 1 quart of any ice cream you desire). Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt 3 times. Place eggs in a deep bowl and gradually add ¾ cup sugar while beating constantly, and continue to beat until this mixture is thick and lemon colored and very much increased in volume. Add flour mixture all at once and stir until just mixed. Add vanilla. Melt chocolate and remove it from heat and add immediately the 2 tablespoons sugar, soda and water and stir this until thick and light. Fold into batter at once, blending well. Have ready an oblong pan 15 x 10 x 1 inches, lined with wax paper and greased again. Bake exactly 15 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. Remove from oven and turn out at once onto a clean towel. Let cool. Spread one-half of the cake with the mint ice cream, the other half with the strawberry ice cream. Roll up as for a jelly roll. For good appearance trim off one-half inch of crusty ends. If to be frozen wrap in moisture-vapor-proof paper and freeze at once. If to be eaten on the day it is made it may be eaten at this stage but is better if placed in tray of refrigerator and frozen solid and then served directly from the frozen compartment without thawing. Freezer life of this cake is 2 months.

FROZEN LEMON TORTE

This is a dainty and refreshing lemon dessert—ideal for summer meals.

Crush vanilla wafters and measure ¾ cup. Line a greased or buttered refrigerator tray wtih these crushed crumbs—using only half of them. In top of double boiler mix together 3 beaten egg yolks, ¼ cup lemon juice, greated rind of 1 lemon, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ cup sugar and cook, stirring, over boiling water until thick. Cool. Have chilled ½ cup evaporated milk, and beat it in a cold bowl with rotary beater until whipped. Beat until stiff the leftover 3 egg whites. Fold both of these whipped ingredients into the cooled lemon mixture. Pour over the wafer crumbs and cover evenly with the remaining crumbs. If to be frozen for future use wrap in moisture-vapor-proof paper and fast-freeze. If to be used currently. freeze in refrigerator for 4 hours. Serve in finger-width slices or in squares. Freezer life of this torte is 1 month.

THREE-IN-ONE ICE BOX COOKIES

One cup butter ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup white sugar, 1 beaten egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups stirred but not sifted flour, ½ teaspoon soda, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 square bitter chocolate, ½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans. Cream the butter, and gradually cream the sugars into it until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla and beat well. Sift together the flour, soda and salt and gradually stir in until mixed. Divide dough into 3 portions. Leave one part plain. Melt the chocolate in double boiler and add it to one part, stirring it in evenly. Add the chopped nuts to third part. Shape each portion of dough into a long 2-inch wide roll. Wrap in moisture-vapor-proof paper and fast freeze if to be kept for future use. If to be used currently wrap in double thickness of wax paper and chill until hard. To bake, slice dough in ⅛ inch-thick slices and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 or 12 minutes.

6—In Memoriam

GARNER—In loving memory of my dear husband, Arthur Thomas Garner, who passed away July 14, 1952.
I am lonesome here without you, husband dear,
I miss you more each day
Somehow life does not seem the same
Since you were called away.
My heart still aches with sadness,
My eyes shed many a tear,
God knows how much I miss you
As ends the first sad year.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by loving wife, Minnie.

GARNER—In loving memory of Arthur T. Garner, who passed away July 14 1952.
We cannot clasp your hand, father dear,
Your face we cannot see;
But let this little token
Tell that we still remember thee.
—Ever remembered by Daughter, Shirley and Son-in-law Peter.

THEOBALD—In loving memory of Baby Teddy, who passed away July 14, 1951.
Sweet little flower of heavenly birth,
He was too fair to bloom on earth.
—Ever remembered by Uncle Ron and Aunt Loretta.

THEOBALD—In loving memory of Teddy Theobald, who passed away July 14, 1951.
He was a flwer too sweet for earth,
Sent here but for a while:
God marked him when He gave him birth,
And took him with a smile.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Dad, and Billy.

7—Card of Thanks

The Family of the late Mrs. David McGregor take this opportunity to thank Rev. Henry Cotton, friends and neighbors, Wire and Cable Club, and those who sent floral tributes, cards of sympathy, or helped in any way during the loss of a dear wife and mother.

Splendor Back

Abbott Sees No Chance For Drew

NANAIMO, B. C. (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott, opening his western speaking tour here Monday night, said he "can only think George Drew doesn't really believe he will have a chance to implement his election promises."

Mr. Abbott referred to claims by the Progressive Conservative leader that his party would reduce the national budget by $500,000,000 a year.

"I've now had nearly 10 years' experience with the expenditures, taxation and the general fiscal policy of Canada," Mr. Abbott said. "and to do this you would either have to substantially reduce services, in particular, defence or by borrowing."

Mr. Abbott said he hadn't heard Mr. Drew suggest cutting down family allowances or old-age pensions.

"I am convinced that you cannot substantially reduce expenditures without hurting defence, and on that you cannot afford to take a chance. I for one, don't want to take that responsibility."

Owen Sound Hiker Dies, Hit By Auto

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Chester Cass, about 35, of Owen Sound was killed Monday night when struck by a car near here. Police said he had been hitch-hiking.

Believe Plane Crashes After Blasts Heard

SARNIA (CP)—Two mysterious explosions were heard here at about 10:15 a. m. today.

Police attributed the blasts to a plane they said crashed on the Indian reserve on the outskirts of this chemical city.

However, search parties were unable to find any trace of a plane. Another plane joined the search.

Radar Expert Named Treasurer Of Society

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. John T. Henderson, a radar expert with the National Research Council here, has been named treasurer of the Royal Society of Canada, it was announced today.

As chief of the NRC's radio section, Dr. Henderson inaugurated and directed research and development of radar equipment for the armed forces.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough

Concluding, she predicted victory and said: "We have a platform, a leader, and an organization across the country more efficiently run and more united than ever before."

Mrs. Fairclough was introduced by Mrs. Maurice Holt, a PC vice-president, and she was thanked by Mrs. John Cridland, president of the Women's Conservative Association. Henry Batten was chairman.

Three speakers—Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Fairclough and Mr. Fraser—were sharply critical of the St. Laurent government for calling the election on August 10. They felt it was a deliberate attempt to hold the vote at a time when the most number of voters would be away from their homes on vacations.

Mr. Fraser, in his first address to a public meeting in this campaign, continued Mrs. Fairclough's attack on the government. He claimed high taxation and mismanagement.

"No Canadian government has ever taken so much in taxes and returned so little in services," he said. "Look at the creeping cost of a government too long in office":

Government travel expenses—$541 an hour in 1939 and $6,113 in 1953;

Telephone, telegraph and postage expenses—$109 an hour in 1939 and $1,929 in 1953;

Publicity, films, advertising—$72 an hour in 1939 and $1,142 in 1953.

TREATED ALL ALIKE

Mr. Fraser said that during his 13 years as MP he had treated the requests of all his constituents alike, regardless of race, creed or politics.

"I've been at the service of the people of this riding 365 days of the year," he said, "and I have been since I was elected in 1940."

Mr. Fraser said that Mr. Drew could cut taxes by $500,000,000, and he ridiculed the critics. He said Attlee had said Churchill couldn't cut taxes, but Churchill, when returned as prime minister, cut taxes even lower than he promised. And President Eisenhower has lopped billions from the United States budget, he said, even though Harry Truman and his fellow Democrats had said it couldn't be done.

"Next year you'll see the United States will have lower taxes and the United States' war effort won't have suffered a bit," said Mr. Fraser.

He pledged his party's support and his personal support to family allowances and old age pensions. As far back as 1941 he had advocated old age pensions without the means test, he said.

Other speakers at the PC rally were John F. Foote, president of the Young PCs, and the Hon. Harold R. Scott, Ontario minister without portfolio.

Toronto Critics Echo Ovation For Guiness

TORONTO (CP) — Newspaper critics today echoed the ovation given British Actor Alec Guinness and others of the cast of Richard III, the play which Monday night started off the Shakespearean Festival here.

Jack Karr of the Toronto Daily Star said: "Whether . . . anybody else in the cast can match Guinness in acting will not be proven in Richard III, for Shakespeare provided nobody else with much more than a look in. . . ."

Rose Macdonald of The Telegram said that "if Mr. Guinness' performance was a 'tour de force', so was that of Miss Irene Worth as Margaret the widow of Henry VI)."

Tito Names New Envoy To Go To Moscow

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia announced today that Russia has approved Dobrivoje Vidic as Yugoslav ambassador to Moscow.

This completes preliminary formalities initiated by Russia last month to resume diplomatic representation in the two capitals at ambassadorial level. After the Soviet-dominated Cominform ousted Yugoslav President Marshal Tito's Communist party in 1948 on charges of "nationalism," both Yugoslavia and he Soviet Union recalled their respective ambassadors and carried on diplomatic relations through charges d'affaires and severely reduced staffs.

On June 16 Yugoslavia approved the selection of Vassily Alexeyevich Valkov as Soviet ambassador.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Letters will go out this week asking municipalities, chambers of commerce and boards of trade in Middlesex and Elgin counties to appoint representatives to a committee on establishment of a provincial park at Port Stanley.

They are being sent from the office of City Clerk R. H. Cooper, of London, as the result of a meeting held July 8 here by representatives of councils and boards of trade or chambers of commerce of this city, St. Thomas and Port Stanley.

The proposed committee is to include one representative each from councils of Port Stanley, St. Thomas, London, Elgin and Middlesex Counties and from each of the boards of trade or chamber in the three municipalities.

No date for the committee's first meeting will be set until the lineup of representatives is known.

5-Hour Atlantic Flight Slowed By Headwinds

BALTIMORE (CP)—A Canberra jet bomber attempting to fly from Britain to South America in one day reached Baltimore at 7:39 a.m. EDT today—six hours and 47 minutes after leaving Wharton, England. After a quick refuelling, the twin-jet bomber took off for Markay, near Caracas, in Venezuela.

Capt. John Hackett, the pilot, said strong headwinds had slowed the flight. The hop from Wharton to Gander, Nfld., took five hours and the trip from Gander to Baltimore one hour and 47 minutes.

Take 3,400 Barrels Monthly From Wells

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Production of crude oil from shallow wells in the north part of Aldborough township, 40 miles west of here, has increased to the point where approximately 3,400 barrels a month are being taken out. The oil is transported by trucks to Sarnia.

Top production from the best wells drilled to date is only about 25 barrels a day, but the oil is struck at the comparatively shallow depth of 400 feet.

ROME (AP)—Alcide De Gasperi today formally accepted the task of forming his eighth consecutive government for post-war Italy.

The 72-year-old statesman said he probably would present his new cabinet to President Luigi Einaudi tomorrow.

De Gasperi, prime minister for the last eight years, resigned June 29 as required by election of a new parliament early last month.

About 500 officers and men under the command of Col. H. A. Phillip of Kingston, Ont., are scheduled to leave Friday for Amsterdam as rear echelons for Canadian troops in Germany.

Plaster Fall Hurts 45

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Plaster crashed down from a movie-house ceiling and 45 persons were injured. Women and children rushed in panic to the exits after the plaster broke loose in the jammed theatre.

Impaired Driver Fined Minimum

Joseph Hill, 53, of 621 Watts Ave., was fined the minimum, $50, in magistrate's court today on a charge of impaired driving.

The charge was reduced from an original count of drunk driving, laid June 7 by OPP Constable George Lough and Thomas Armitage.

A blood sample of the accused taken by Dr. C. F. Cahill after Hill was taken into custody, showed his blood contained two parts of alcohol per thousand of blood.

Evidence showed, however, that Hill acted in a reasonable manner after the two constables stopped him about nine o'clock the night of June 7 on Highway 7. He was stopped after narrowly missing the cruiser and another vehicle in passing on the highway.

UNSTEADY

His breath smelled of what seemed like alcohol, the constables testified while he appeared unsteady on his feet and spoke incoherently.

Defence counsel T. J. Carley maintained, however, his speech and walking difficulties stemmed from physical disabilities and attempted to prove on Hill's own testimony, the accused acted in a natural and normal manner throughout the episode.

As a result of a diabetic disease, Hill said he had consumed a spoonful of medicinal alcohol earlier in the day and prior to his contact with the police took 10 drops of aromatic spirits of ammonia with sugar. He had spent the afternoon at Chemong Lake where he suffered a seizure.

The accused testified as to being "somewhat ill" while driving and not paying too much attention.

He also claimed that persons with large amounts of sugar in their bloodstream also have an abnormal alcoholic content, too.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter, imposed the minimum impaired driving penalty, $50 and $5 costs.

Revoke Quarantine On Hog Cholera

The counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Durham and Northumberland are within the area from which the hog cholera quarantine since May 21 has been revoked by the federal Department of Agriculture.

The dividing line on the east was the boundary between Hastings County on one side, and Peterborough-Northumberland on the other. Restrictions on the movement of hogs out of the 29 counties west of Hastings has been lifted excepting those under quarantine on individual premises. Movement of hogs into or out of community sales yards is prohibited throughout the province.

Parents Away

"I noticed the light but I couldn't leave dad. I didn't know how he'd turn out," said Lebow.

Walter Thatcher, 15, James Mercer, 18, and George Kelly, all of Toronto, were also staying with the MacRaes.

"We were staying there and had come in from fishing. It was just getting dark," said Thatcher. "They (the babies) were all asleep and the oldest one, Bernice, was awake reading."

"I knew them; they were neighbours. We had been camping, but they asked us to stay for the week," added Thatcher. "We went into the cottage after fishing and were going to get something to eat, but the supplies were low."

WENT TO BANCROFT

Thatcher then explained that the three boys" decided to go into Bancroft." It was when they were coming back that they saw the fire from a half-mile away, "all fire and smoke."

"When we got down there, it was all on fire, except the bottom part." Thatcher then said MacRae was badly hurt by the tar coming off the roof when he (MacRae) had gone near the window, adding that "the tar from the roof came over his head."

Lorne LeBow said the children were in the southwest corner of the cabin. Norm Cheeseman was sleeping on the top bunk, Donna MacRae on the bottom bunk. They were found there today. Nearby Bernice MacRae was found at the end of the bunk beds, the baby half-way between the crib and the bunk.

PICKED UP BABY

"It looked as though Bernice had apparently picked him (the baby) out of the cot and then was overcome," said LeBow.

Police were told a coal oil lantern had been left burning on a table. After the fire it was found under the ruins of the table and police believed that somehow it set fire to the table.

Today MacRae said there hadn't been any fire in the stove.

"I believe the girl lit it. I believe that she lit that stove. It's the only thing I can figure out," said MacRae.

Thatcher said that at 9:30 p.m. Berniece had "said she was cold".

Three other boys, Fred Mercer, Jim Johnston and Bob Davey, all of Toronto, had just left at 8:30 p.m., heading back to Toronto. When they received the message of the tragedy when arriving there, they returned to Horseshoe Lake.

At the time of the fire, the Cheeseman boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Cheeseman, of Toronto, were on a fishing trip east of North Bay. They were located today and notified by police at Deux Rivieres, Ontario.

Dr. O. W. Anderson, coroner, said the children apparently died of asphyxiation and that no inquest will be held. The bodies will be sent to an undertaker in Mount Dennis, near Weston.

Bread: "I like that." Ice cream: "No, too cold." Tears: "I want my bread." Milk: "Well, not bad."

MARKUSSIE is a chubby, three-year-old Eskimo boy from Fort Chimo, where nights are short, winters long and the average yearly temperature is 12 degrees below freezing. He's in Montreal convalescing after a bout with meningitis —and, as a good traveller should, he's quickly picking up the habits of his new surroundings. All but one, that is: he doesn't like ice cream. The reason? Well, it's embarrassing, but if you must know, it's because—well, the ice cream is too cold for little Markussie. Now that's a damaging admission, particularly from an Eskimo. But neither Markussie nor his many friends seem to mind a bit. Ice cream or no ice cream, the little boy, with the sweetest smile this side of the Arctic Circle, has won their hearts.

Miners' Walkout Closes Three Porcupine Mines

TIMMINS (CP) — Three small gold mines in this rich Porcupine area were closed Monday and picketed by 750 miners who have gone on strike during the last two days. There were fears the walkouts may spread to other diggings.

The latest walkout came Monday at Preston East Dome mines when 350 workers began picketing after the night shift came off duty.

Saturday some 200 miners at five properties of the Broulan Reef mines began picketing and another 150 men of the Hallnor mines refused to cross the lines to get to their shafts.

The struck mines are junior gold producers in one of the continent's richest gold-mining areas. The big Hollinger and McIntyre mines are nearby.

CHAIN REACTION

The Preston local of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), representing the workers at the three mines, said in a statement that Monday's walkout was part of a chain reaction from the Broulan strike. They charged that Walter Brown, Broulan company manager, had touched "off the explosion by trying to intimidate union members and destroy the union there."

At Preston, there has been unrest since last March when the company refused to accept a wage recommendation by a conciliation board.

Mr. Brown termed the strike at Broulan illegal.

Basic rate at Broulan is $1.02 an hour for surface workers and $1.16 for those underground. Wage rates at the other mines are about the same.

At Toronto, Labor Minister Daley said he will try to get union officials and the companies together in an attempt to end the strikes.

ALASKA VOLCANO—A dense cloud pours from the crater of 11,050-foot Mount Spurr, one of the three Alaska volcanoes which exploded suddenly last week, sending smoke and ash over a wide area. Word from the area today reveals that members of an expedition, led by Dr. Serge A. Korff, New York University professor of physics, have established an observation post atop Mount Wrangell, a dormant volcano, to enable them to warn nearby residents should further eruptions endanger their lives.

Canadians Just Statistics To Gov't Says Candidate

LINDSAY (ENS)—If we do not have a government possessing the human instinct we will continue to have the troubles that plague Canada now, said Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, MP, addressing a gathering of some 250 Progressive Conservative women here Monday afternoon. The government has got away from the people. Their indifference, arrogant attitude has made the people of Canada a list of statistics, not human beings. Mrs. Fairclough spoke in the evening at Peterborough.

She lashed out at the federal governments refusal to assist the municipalities in taxation and promised that the Conservatives would allow the municipalities to tax federal property throughout the country. She also dwelt at length on the unemployment insurance question and noted the large reserves being built up while benefits remain the same and the municipalities are charged for the extra money necessary to keep the unemployed fed and clothed.

The election of August tenth she said was another chance for the people of the country to voice their opinion of the government. It's just like a marriage ceremony, he said, that says speak now or hereafter hold your peace. To find the alternative offered to the voters she said all that was necessary was an inspection of the 16-point PC manifesto. Every point in it has been carefully studied and has evidence to back it up.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. C W. Hodgson, wife of the member for the riding and thanked by Mrs. Arthur Welch, wife of the provincial secretary.

C. W. Hodgson, PC candidate, addressed brief remarks to the gathering, and directed some sharp sarcasm to the visit last week of Lionel Chevrier, minister of transport. "I wonder if his plane might have been an RCAF craft?" he said. "They would have no hesitation using public funds for their campaign".

He also remarked, "one can tell me that every soldier got 28 suits of underwear last year, but they were bought and paid for," and is stealing a mile and a half of railroad track a trivial thing?"

He concluded by pointing out that the women now controlled the vote in Canada and noting that there were more women present at his meeting than attended the Liberal's meeting for Chevrier, asked for their support.

Pleads Guilty To Car Theft

COBOURG —(ENS)— Rudolph Leonard of Ottawa pleaded guilty Monday to car theft, dangerous driving and several false pretense charges and was remanded a week for sentence while his record is checked.

He was arrested by constables L. Huskelton and E. Butler of Cobourg after a break-in at Port Hope. Chief C. W. Graham of Port Hope said that on July 7, Hersey's garage was broken into and a car owned by Robert Hart of Cobourg, was stolen. On the way to Cobourg the car was in an accident and damaged to the extent of about $400. The false pretense charges numbered four and involved cheques in which the accused used the rubber stamp of a construction company in signing them.

SOLD BEER

"I have been in the hospital and cannot do heavy work so I sold beer to raise a little money to help get out of debt and in another month I intended to quit as I would have been pretty well in the clear," said Howard Cooke of Murray township in pleading guilty to a keeping-for-sale charge. Provincial Constable L. Stinson said that he had been keeping Cooke's house under observation and found that he had been selling beer and liquor.

"Well you have been frank about it all," commented Magistrate R. B. Baxter in levying $150 and costs and declaring the premises a public place under the L.C.A. for a period of one year.

Ewald Kosin, L. Bruisois and Seymour McNaughton, employed on a CPR construction job at Colborne, pleaded guilty to being drunk on Saturday and were fined $10 and costs.

ORANGEMAN FINED

Norman Thorne of Omemee, described as an enthusiastic Orangeman who was turning cartwheels on the main street the day of theOrange Walk, paid $10 and costs for being drunk. Fred Sero, Deseronto Indian, age 69, still wearing his orange ribbon, was another casualty of the Orange celebration of Saturday and was fined $10 and costs on a drunk charge.

David McAlpine of Toronto was fined $10 and costs for failing to report an aceident which occurred to his car on June 17 in Cavan township. Police said the damage was around $200. The defendant said he thought it was only $50 and didn't bother to report it.

ASKS ADJOURNMENT

Cecil Smith of Toronto asked on adjournment until July 24 when he appeared on a drunk driving charge. He explained that his holidays started on that date and he didn't want to lose any pay. The magistrate commented that it was "a great way to spend a vacation," but granted the adjournment.

Keith and Fred Purdy, Haldimand township youths pleaded guilty to assault, the assault occurring in their act of grabbing a 14 year old boy and pouring some old car oil on his sweater and pants. The magistrate said it was a poor idea of a joke on their part and remanded them out of custody for a week and advised them to apologize to the boy and his family and pay for the damaged clothing.

Serge Matte of Montreal was found guilty of theft of an air force coat from the CNR station at Trenton and was remanded a week for sentence.

COWBOY GETS ROUGH RIDE — Rodeo riding can be rough and dangerous work as this scene from the Calgary Stampede illustrates. Bob Fisher, of Neutral Hills, Alta., had a narrow escape from severe injury when a savage-tempered Brahma bull threw him and tried to gore him, stepped on his back, then was drawn away by close-riding cowboys who rushed to Fisher's rescue. Fisher suffered a shaking up.

Crippling Rheumatism Costs Nation Millions, Society Director Tells Rotary

"About 600,000 Canadians are suffering from some form of rheumatic disease, said Dr. Donald Graham as he addressed the Rotary members at their luncheon, Monday noon. "More than 100,000 of these victims are suffering a disability and 15,000 are permanently and totally impaired.

Dr. Graham, MD, FRCP, of Leaside, Onatrio, is director of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society and was introduced to the luncheon by Dr. Lloyd Thompson.

"I don't believe that the magnitude of this problem is fully realized," went on Dr. Graham. Those who are only temporarily affected by these crippling diseases lose 9,500,000 working days and $17,000,000 in wages per year.

Meetings to discuss the problem were begun in 1947, under the leadership of the minister of health and welfare and the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society and has been active for four years as a result.

A program has been set up which intends to supply facilities for (1) Research, (2) Post graduate study for doctors, (3) Public education, (4) Expansion of treatment.

CAN WORK TO CURE

"Although at present, the cause of many of the more serious rheumatic diseases is unknown, this does not mean that something cannot be accomplished in the way of a cure. Research is going on constantly in this regard and is financed by grants to the various medical schools throughout Canada. Early treatment can retain or regain normal or near normal living.

"Family doctors must be able to recognize and know how to treat these diseases and consequently must receive some training. Under our program a few specialists are being trained as well. Some two-year fellowships have been granted in the U.K., U.S.A. and Canada for this purpose.

"Thirdly, the people must be educated so that they can determine the disease and know enough to go to a doctor before it is too late for successful treatment. This is being done by means of films, magazines and newspaper articles.

"The final step, the most difficult and one of the most important is the treating of patients. The shortage of hospital beds and the duration of confinement to which some of these victims are subject, creates the problem of how to reach them all. Thus, the CA & R Society has developed mobile units, fitted with competent physiotherapists and physiotherapy equipment, to attend the home patients.

"Not only is the disease to be contended with but also the problem of rehabilitating the patients. This creates serious problems in job placement and requires trained counsellors. Federal public health grants, issued through provincial outlets, finance the mobile units—the annual cost of one unit being $5,900. The approximate cost of one treatment is $3 and the patient is asked to pay as much of this as he can. The returns are under two per cent of the actual cost however and there is an annual campaign for funds."

Japan Hands Protest To Korean Republic

TOKYO (AP)—Japan handed a protest note to the Republic of Korea Monday as it accused Korean policemen of firing on a Japanese coast guard patrol boat from a disputed islet midway between the two countries in the Sea of Japan.

The note denounced what it called "RoK nationals' intrusion of Japanese territory and fishing in Japanese waters" and demanded payment for damage to the 450-ton Japanese coast guard boat Hekura.

Japan also asked punishment of the Korean officials responsible and assurance the Sunday morning incident would not be repeated.

Paris Riots Kill 7, Wound 100

2,000 Demonstrators Clash With Police In Bastille Day Parade

PARIS —(Reuters)— Seven persons were killed and more than 100 wounded when some 2,000 North African demonstrators clashed with police after a Communist-led Bastille Day parade in Paris Tuesday night.

Six of the dead were North Africans and the seventh was a French Communist trade union leader. They fell when police opened fire to disperse the mob of demonstrators, brandishing clubs and knives.

Among the wounded, for which the highest estimate was 135, were at least 82 policemen.

POLICE CARS OVERTURNED

Three police vehicles were overturned and burned. Several private motor cars were wrecked. Store windows were shattered and sidewalk cafes turned into a shambles of broken chairs and glasses.

The fight, in the vast Place de la Nation in pouring rain, lasted about half an hour.

Strong police pickets remained on guard all night but no further incidents occurred. When calm was restored, hundreds of Parisians came to celebrate their national day by dancing amid the debris of the battle.

EXCHANGE BLOWS

The Communist party reported later that "Fascists" had stoned its headquarters in central Paris. Non-Communist sources said a passing group of French parachutists, who had marched in a great parade down the Champs Elysees in the morning, were greeted with shouts of "assassins" by Communist guards. The parachutists took missiles from a building site and bombarded Communist party headquarters while the guards retaliated by hurling bottles.

All sections of the press today deplored the riots, left wing papers criticizing the police and right wing papers demanding stern measures against the Communist party. Some called for better living conditions for the big North African population in the capital.

Egyptians Claim British Plot

CAIRO (Reuters)—The Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram says it has obtained secret British documents revealing a plot to overthrow the Naguib regime. A British military spokesman described the report as "absolute nonsense."

Al Ahram said the documents, dated last March, called for a "chain of plots and criminal measures" of which the British traffic cordon around Ismailia since last Monday is one link. British authorities ordered a check-up of all traffic to and from the Canal Zone city after the alleged kidnapping six days ago of a British airman.

The newspaper published a photostatic reproduction of an alleged British intelligence document dispatched from the Canal Zone to London. It asked for funds to finance Egyptians, especially students, "who are willing to change things here."

The British spokesman said "no official message would be sent in that form."

Russia Ready To Take Part In UN Program

GENEVA, Switzerland (Reuters) Russia today announced readiness to take part in the United Nations technical assistance program for underdeveloped countries and promised 4,000,000 rubles in 1953.

The Soviet delegate, Amasasp Arutiunian, made the announcement at a meeting of the United Nations economic and social council here.

Russia had shunned the aid scheme since its inception.

The Russian donation would amount to approximately $1,000,000 at the artificially-pegged rate of exchange.

This first indication that the Soviet Union had any intention of contributing to the program came as the United States introduced a resolution to implement President Eisenhower's call for an international fund for the development of under-developed countries to be achieved through savings by internationally-supervised world - wide disarmament.

Wheat Marketing Conference

CHATHAM (CP)—Wheat committees from five southwestern Ontario counties meet sometime this week to discuss a new marketing scheme for the province's winter wheat crop. The meeting was called by the wheat committee of the Kent Federation of Agriculture Tuesday night when growers demanded action because of the low market price of winter wheat. With harvesting of the 1953 crop under way in Kent and Essex counties, dealers are offering $1.50 a bushel for wheat delivered in Chatham. This is one of the lowest harvest prices on record. Some growers reported $1.45 a bushel offered for grain contracts this year.

While a marketing scheme has been discussed previously, this is the first big attempt to set up a board for the crop. Growers now are represented on the wheat committee of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

The committee was organied by producers in 1948 when the crop was taken out of the wheat control board of Canada. However, it has no legal bargaining power and cannot negotiate or control the price of winter wheat.

Growers considered returning to the jurisdiction of the wheat board but rejected the idea because of the fact that winter or soft wheat is grown almost exclusively in Ontario.

Ontario's winter wheat harvest usually is about 20,000,000 bushels a year. Kent is the largest producer, with a large percentage of the crop grown in the southwestern section of Ontario.

ANNUAL PRODUCTION

Simcoe and York counties annually produce about 1,000,000 bushels. Some 20,000 bushels is grown each year in the Algoma district of Northern Ontario.

One of the organizers of the wheat commiztee, Daryl Jubenville of Tilbury East, told the federation Tuesday night that 90 per cent of the crop is consumed on the domestic market.

Flour made from soft wheat is used for pastries, spaghetti, soda crackers and in the confectionery trade. Unlike the western or hard wheat, it is not used for the manufacture of bread.

Calling of the emergency meeting followed a protest from the Essex federation Monday night when a government floor price on winter wheat was urged.

The Essex group also urged an investigation into the storage facilities for the crop. Investigation by the marketing committee of the Kent federation showed that plenty of storage was available.

Mr. Jubenville indicated that the federal government would make terminal storage available at Sarnia in an emergency.

Liberal Economic Stupidity Assailed In Drew Speech

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Progressive Conservative leader George Drew assailed what he termed the Liberal government's "economic stupidity" Tuesday night. Following a stop at Moncton this morning, the Progressive Conservative leader was due in Charlottetown in the afternoon. He plans a flight to Newfoundland, via Moncton, on Thursday.

Before a Saint John theatre audience of 1,600 Tuesday night, Mr. Drew referred to statements recently attributed to External Affairs Minister Pearson. He had learned that Mr. Pearson said Monday night that the government is working with other Commonwealth countries and the United States on plans to make the pound convertible.

"May I congratulate these modern Pauls on their way to a new Damascus," Mr. Drew said. "These men sneered at our suggestion we could break the dollar-pound barrier. It has been more than two years since we called on the government to take steps to break the barrier."

HAVE LOST TRADE

Since then, government complacency and economic stupidity had been responsible for lost trade. The "conversion to economic common sense" came a little late.

"These are the all-wise men who are saying we can't cut at least $500,000,000 from taxes. They will wake up to their economic stupidity as much on this last as they did on the first."

The Progressive Conservative leader also emphasized the "failure" of the government to retain markets in the Commonwealth generally. In 1949, every government supporter was against a Progres-

Christie Hanged For 7 Slayings

LONDON (AP)—John Reginald Halliday Christie, the Notting Hill sex strangler who confessed he killed seven women but might have murdered more, was hanged today in Pentonville prison.

Even as he died, a controversy raged over whether the mild-appearing transport worker and wartime auxiliary policeman was guilty of a baby's murder for which another man was hanged three years ago.

The case of the insanity-pleading slayer, who walled up his victim's bodies in his apartment or buried them in his garden, shocked Britain as no other series of murders has done since Jack the Ripper.

The sentence was carried out by Albert Pierrepont, England's chief hangman.

Pierrepont placed the noose with its attached black hood over Christie's head just before the scheduled hour, 9 a. m. (4 a. m. EDT). Then the trap was sprung with a crash that echoed throughout the grim prison.

A crowd of some 200 persons, including many schoolchildren, were gathered outside the prison gate. A truckload of police waited near the gate and the police patrol in nearby Caledonian road had been increased, but there was no disturbance.

Report East German Revolt Claimed Total Of 587 Lives

BERLIN (AP) — A Hamburg newspaper said today that the June 17 East German revolt claimed 587 lives, including 141 executed by Soviet firing squads.

The paper, Die Welt, said 1,870 other persons were wounded during the uprising.

These figures, far exceeding any previous estimates, have been confirmed by Gen. Wilhelm Zaisser, East German minister for state security, in an official report to Soviet authorities, Die Welt said.

Thus far the East German government has said publicly that only 25 persons were killed and 278 wounded in the revolt. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told his Parliament 62 had been executed.

Die Welt added:

Zaisser had informed the Russians that 5,143 strikers were arrested, of whom 2,917 were freed without trial and 1,076 were sentenced to a total of 6,321 years in prison. The remaining 1,150 were still being held for investigation.

In addition to the strikers, 1,756 Communist police and officials were arrested, either for joining the rioters or refusing to fight them.

Zaisser estimated financial loss due to the rioting at almost 29,000,000 East marks (about $1,200,000). Most of this represented the loss in production because of the strikes, with property damage put at only 9,000,000 East marks ($357,000). Other high Communist officials have estimated production loss at twice Zaisser's figure

Die Welt said Zaisser made his report July 10.

Reds Renew Attack At Kumsong

Believe New Assault Now Aimed At Main Allied Road

SEOUL (AP)—Fresh Chinese Communist troops supported by tanks and thunderous artillery, opened a new drive at dusk today south of Kumsong on the Korean east-central front, ending a brief lull in the biggest Red offensive in more than two years.

Frontline officers said 3,000 Reds hurled a savage two-prong assault and another 3,000 were believed ready to be thrown into the renewed fight, aimed at an Allied road net.

Fighting was described by officers as heavy where the Reds hit the line.

There was no immediate report of fighting along the rest of the 20-mile front between Kumhwa and the Pukhan river which 80,000 Reds rolled back an undisclosed distance Monday and Tuesday.

LONG PLANNED

A Chinese junior officer captured today revealed the initial Red assault had been long planned.

Initial frontline reports said there was heavy Communist shelling the front. Allied guns answered with heavy volleys, sending shells screaming into Red positions in a steady roar.

Twenty to 30 Communist tanks were believed in the immediate vicinity of the new fight below Kumsong.

A combination of stubborn South Korean resistance, driving rain and a blistering curtain of Allied artillery fire had stalled the massive Red drive by 11 a.m. Tuesday along the front.

As sturdy RoK troops braced themselves against attack in the approaching darkness, Allied light planes reported sighting numerous company and battalion-size buildups. Some of the sightings were made in the Kumsong river area, where the RoKs withdrew Tuesday to the south bank under orders from Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

Earlier today, the 8th army commander flew to the front for the second straight day and said the line had been stabilized.

NOT REAL PERIL

The size of the gains was restricted information by order of the 8th army. But while solid, they did not seem in themselves any real peril to the Allied position, frontline reports said.

Red infiltration units were reported as much as four miles behind the Allied main line.

Light spotter planes that flew through rain and low clouds reported the Reds were shuttling artillery, supplies and fresh intantry toward newly-occupied positions.

Allied air power—grounded by the rain and mist through most of the furious fighting—waited for clearing weather to roar northward toward the swarming Chinese.

Plane Search Now Abandoned

HONOLULU (AP)—The Hawaiian sea frontier has called off the air-sea search for victims of the Transocean Air Lines passenger plane crash Saturday, 350 miles east of Wake Island, in which 58 persons perished.

Fourteen mutilated bodies were recovered before the search halted.

The U. S. Navy transport Barrett, which first came upon the plane wreckage, radioed that the plane crash apparently was caused by an explosion.

The Barrett added that there was "no possibility of finding survivors alive."

The sailors fought off sharks to retrieve the bodies from the water, and on one occasion, the Barrett radioed, was unable to get three bodies "because of the sharks."

Solandt Turns Down Big Offer From U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of Canada's defence research board, has turned down an offer to head a $10,000,000-a-year research project in the United States, a co-worker said Tuesday.

The job would have paid about $35,000 a year to the scientist, who now gets $15,000.

The offer came from a medical-chemical corporation, which the informant did not name.

Dr. Solandt is holidaying in the U.S.

Jet Crashes RCAF Pilot Safe

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP)—Air defence command headquarters here said today an RCAF F-86 Sabre jet from Chatham, N. B., crashed early today near Presque Isle, Me., after the pilot baled out safely.

The pilot was PO. B. Cushing of Bedford, N. S.

Cushing was on a training flight. Cause of the crash was not immediately known.

Arrest Official's Son

BERLIN —(AP)— Soviet secret police have arrested the son of East Germany's Communist minister of justice, Max Fechner, in a midnight raid on his suburban East Berlin home, the anti-Communist League of Free Jurists reported today. The league, which maintains a network of informants in the Soviet zone, said uniformed MVD agents in three automobiles seized both Max Fechner Jr., 30, and his wife Tuesday night.

No Early Hope For Sask. Dam St. Laurent Says

REGINA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has swept away Saskatchewan's hopes of getting Liberal government support for early fulfillment of its greatest irrigation and power dream.

He stated frankly last night that he is not yet convinced that the big South Saskatchewan project, a deeply controversial political issue in this land of bitter drought memories, will be beneficial to all of Canada.

And until he is convinced of its country-wide benefits — such as those that will result from the St. Lawrence Seaway—he will not be preparde to recommend it to Parliament, the Prime Minister added in a speech before some 2,300 persons attending a Liberal rally that filled the local armories.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, in an introductory speech said he had backed the project for many years. It was one of the proposals he had made to the cabinet in the 18 years that he has been a federal cabinet minister and the only one still unfulfilled.

DUE TO LIBERALS

Both the Progressive Conservatives and the CCF said they would build the dam if elected to power, but he felt sure that if the dam is constructed it will be because of Liberal policies.

Mr. St. Laurent clarified his position on the dam, after attacking both the Progressive Conservatives and the CCF. He suggested the PCs have "betrayed" Canada's interests by not disclosing what their "secret weapon" is for recovering Canada's markets in the sterling area.

There was no easy solution to the dollar shortage overseas, but it was "by no means hopeless." It could be solved by patience, hard work and international goodwill.

Canada had provided some help, but the key to the problem "lies largely in the United States, and we can only hope that our American neighbors will adopt farsighted policies that will break down the barrier between dollar and non-dollar countries."

NO EARLY HOPE

2 Dutch Princesses Visit Canadian Couple

THE HAGUE (AP)—Two Dutch princesses are on their way to the United States today for a six weeks vacation with a Canadian couple.

They will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Feaver of Ottawa at their Cape Cod summer home.

Crown Princess Beatrix, 15, and Princess Irene, 13, took off from Shipol airport Tuesday night. Their parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, saw them off.

"I like it this way," said Princess Beatrix to her parents. "This time you are seeing us off instead of you leaving."

The girls were accompanied by C. Sesink, chief of police at the royal palace and chief commissioner of government police.

Louis Ingram Given Full Powers To Settle Strike

Louis H. Ingram, vice-president in charge of personnel of the Quaker Oats Co., arrived in Saskatoon today with full powers to make a settlement with the 115 striking employees there. He flew to Saskatoon Tuesday night after an afternoon conference with top officials of management and Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL). This bid to end the long strike—today beginning its 13th week—came after two company trucks loaded with feed turned back Tuesday noon after meeting the massed picketing of the Peterborough strikers.

There was no violence and just one minor injury as a result of two scuffles Tuesday at the Simcoe St. picket post. A striker, Owen Reid, 25, of 386 Stewart St., received a grazed ankle when hit by one of the two three-ton trucks driven by non-union company employees from Trenton, but he was able to remain on the picket line.

The trucks pushed through the strikers shortly after 9 a.m. but failed to get out again when they tried at 12:10 p.m. No further attempts were made to get the trucks out of company property. An extra heavy picket was posted at Simcoe St. and at London St. during the night to meet any move to get the vehicles out but nothing happened.

AIR LET OUT OF TIRE

A few minutes before midnight, as the pickets were assembling at the Simcoe St. post, the sound of air escaping from a tire was heard coming from the direction of the two trucks. There were no lights on in the vicinity—an unusual thing, union officials say—so nobody could be seen prowling around the trucks.

Today city police informed the union that a tire on one truck had been deflated. But union officials said they knew nothing about it.

"Somebody's perverted idea of a joke," was the sole comment today of James G. Wharry, general manager.

FURTHER CONCESSIONS

A special despatch to The Examiner today from Saskatoon says that the strike there seems near an end. The Saskatoon correspondent quotes W. P. Noble, manager of the plant, as saying that the company had embodied further concessions in a new offer to the union. The previous offer had been rejected.

The Examiner correspondent also says that union officials were not available for comment and it was not known if a union meeting had been called to consider the new offer. The Saskatoon workers struck the same day as their fellow unionists in Peterborough.

The key to ending the long strike rests in Saskatoon. Last Sunday the 435 Peterborough strikers voted to accept a company offer involving wages, hours and swing-shifts, but they added a rider that there must be a settle-

Head For Hills, Men

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. —(AP)—Head for the hills, men—they're making steel rolling pins. Houseware manufacturers, never ones to let well enough alone, have come up with a shiny, new model of the old wooden skull-cracker. They say their chrome-plated, steel rollers "last indefinitely, don't warp and can't crack." The "can't crack" claim, the manufacturers admit, only takes in the pin itself, not what it might come in contact with.

Definite Trace Of Lost Child Found In Bush

MINAKI, Ont. (CP)—Search parties combed a narrow strip of land between two lakes near Wade, Ont., early today as the first definite trace of a five-year-old girl, lost since July 5, rekindled a cold search.

Two Kenora men, Harry Hawes and Joe Bynski, discovered a spot nearby where Geraldine Huggan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jared Huggan of Winnipeg, fell on her face while traversing a swampy area near the shore of Long lake.

MINAKI, Ont.— (CP) — Searchers today found little Geraldine Huggan dead in the swamp and bush country of northwestern Ontario.

Clear footprints were found near the spot and hand prints and the mark of a tiny face showed where the child fell.

At Kenora, the Ontario provincial police said the footprints were measurable and fitted the size of the shoes worn by the child when she wandered away from her parents' summer cottage near Wade, 10 days ago.

NOT PREVIOUSLY SEARCHED

The section between the lakes was not searched before the discovery.

Police called for volunteers Tuesday night as an Army unit from Winnipeg had already abandoned the search and returned to the city before the discovery was made. An RCAF helicopter brought news of the find to Kenora, refueled and buzzed back over the area.

OPP officials said the tracks were accompanied by a trace of cloth from the child's clothing. They said the new clues are genuine but footprints and another trace of cloth reported Monday were a false lead.

There is no indication whether the child is alive or dead but police are certain she is somewhere on a narrow track of land between Long lake and Catastrophe lake, about two miles southwest of Wade.

Beria Deputy Been Dismissed

LONDON (AP)—The chief of security forces in Lavrenty P. Beria's home republic, Georgia, has been dismissed.

Moscow radio announced the dismissal today. It may be the start of a systematic purge of Beria lieutenants in key Soviet posts.

The man fired in Georgia, D. G. Dekanozov, had taken his job only three months ago. The post is that of minister of state security. Moscow announced in April, when he was appointed, that his predecessor as minister of state security had been arrested.

Dekanozov was a former deputy foreign minister of the Soviet Union and once was ambassador to Germany.

Beria himself is awaiting trial as a traitor.

Canadian Planes Inspected By Queen At Last Review

ODIHAM, England (CP)—The might of Britain's Royal Air Force —including top-secret jet bombers and supersonic fighters just off the assembly lines—thundered in split-second precision over the Queen today in her last armed services Coronation review.

For over an hour the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh shaded their eyes and craned their necks as a majestic procession of 643 planes —including 36 RCAF Sabre jets— roared overhead.

Earlier on the ground the Queen, in a paper-thin shantung duster coat of air force blue and the Duke in the uniform of marshal of the RAF, inspected row on row of planes and men.

Overhead two jet fighters, skywriting in vapor trails, traced out "ER" for Elizabeth Regina.

Twelve RCAF Sabres and their Canadian crews figured in the ground review. The Canadian contingent from RCAF fighter wing at North Luffenham, England, was commanded by Wing Cmdr. Douglas Lindsay of Arnprior, Ont. Others incluided Flt. Lts. Dean Kelly of Peterborough, Ont., and P. S. Walker of Ottawa.

Rain, which poured down when Elizabeth and Philip arrived at the field, gave over to bright sunshine as airmen marched by the reviewing stand.

Almost 25,000 spectators jammed into the airfield's enclosures for the spectacular review, the biggest in the history of the RAF. Earlier many of them had lined the road from the Odiham rail station to greet the Queen and Duke as they arrived.

Iranian Parliament In Virtual Collapse

TEHRAN (AP)—Iran's Parliament was closed down in virtual collapse today following the resignation of 27 deputies supporting Premier Mohammed Mossadegh. Their walkout left the aged premier to govern without any legislative interference.

With the resignations, the Majlis, Iran's last remaining legislative house, was unable to muster a quorum (69 of its 79 members). Mossadegh dissolved the Senate last October.

The premier has announced he will hold a referendum on his policies and will resign if the public's vote does not back him up. He has, however, not issued any plans for holding the referendum.

The parliamentary crisis came after months of wrangling over unprecedented powers granted Mossadegh last summer, permitting him to govern by decree.

Challenge Russia To Join 4-Power Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Britain, France and the United States posed an immediate challenge to Russia today to join in a four-power foreign ministers meeting aimed at reuniting East and West Germany.

The call for a session next autumn on Germany, and on completing an Austrian independence treaty, was agreed upon by British, U.S., and French foreign ministers in a five-day conference which ended with issuance of a communique Tuesday night.

Notes from all three western governments were prepared for dispatch to Moscow within 24 hours.

The proposal on Germany represents initiative by the west to put squarely up to the Kremlin—in the face of its internal Beria purge and in the light of anti-Communist unrest in East Germany—a challenge to do something definite about one of the worst sources of tension.

WANT TRUE LIBERTY

State Secretary John Foster Dulles of the U.S., the British acting foreign secretary, the Marquess of Salisbury, and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault also called for restoration of "true liberty" to the Soviet satellite peoples of Eastern Europe and announced that if those countries achieve freedom the door to unity with the community now being created in Western Europe is open to them.

On Far Eastern problems, the three ministers announced that economic embargoes against Communist China would be continued indefinitely after an armistice and that the policy of barring Red China from the United Nations would continue pending further consultation.

Britain and France joined with the United States in pledging to work for peaceful unification of Korea.

WARN AGAINST AGGRESSION

The three warned Red China against using prospective peace in Korea for new aggressions elsewhere in Asia. They also said that, if the Reds break an armistice with a new attack on South Korea, the United States, Britain and France will again go to war.

They said also they had considered measures for winning the war against communism in Indo-China.

If Russia accepts the bid for a foreign ministers' meeting on Germany and if this meeting results in steps toward German unity, U.S. officials said it could lead to a Big Four conference at the Eisenhower- Malenkov Churchill level.

Father Electrocuted Installing Well

BRUSSELS (CP)—A father of three small children was electrocuted and another man seriously burned about the hands Tuesday when a 20-foot length of pipe they were installing in a well touched an overhead hydro wire on the farm of Frank Walters, Concession 9, Morris Township.

Killed was Kenneth Coleman, 28, of Brussels, an employee of Krauler Brothers, plumbers, of Brussels.

Admitted to hospital was Fred Walters, son of the farm owner, who was helping the plumbers install the pipe in the well.

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto at 9.30 a.m.

Synopsis:

The prevailing weather in Ontario remains quite settled. Skies are predominately clear, but during the late afternoon and early evening hours isolated showers and thundershowers are occurring at widely separated points across the province. The main factor influencing the present weather picture is a stationary high pressure area centred over the Atlantic Ocean but extending back across the New England states into Ontario. A series of disturbances moving up the Atlantic seaboard has effectively blocked the normal eastward progression of high and low pressure areas which daily cross the continent. As a result of this impeding action little significant change in the weather may be expected.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Thursday:

Lake Erie, Lake Huron, Lake Ontario, Niagara, Georgian Bay, Haliburton, southern Kirkland Lake regions, Windsor, London, Toronto, Hamilton, North Bay, Sudbury cities: Sunny with a few cloudy intervals today and Thursday. Little change in temperature. Winds light. Low tonight and high Thursday at St. Thomas and Windsor 60 and 90, Wingham, Trenton, Muskoka, Killaloe, North Bay and Sudbury 50 and 85, London, St. Catharines and Hamilton 60 and 90, Toronto 65 and 85. Summary for Thursday: Mostly sunny.

Pollution Placards Taken Off Beaches

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Pollution placards have been removed from Jones Beach at Port Weller and Mississauga Beach at Niagara-on-the-Lake, the St. Catharines-Lincoln health unit said today.

Four beaches in the Grimsby area have also passed the unit's tests. They are Grimsby Beach, Nelles Beach, Hand's Beach and Ofield's Beach, all in the west end of the county.

Placards warning of pollution remain at Lakeside Beach in Port Dalhousie, Municipal Beach in Port Weller and the Lions Club beach and the Boy Scout swimming area in the Niagara river at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Expect Showdown On Truce, Talks May Break Down

PANMUNJOM (AP)—An authoritative source said today a showdown is coming between Allied and Communist truce negotiators Thursday in a secret session which will "make or break the talks." There is a very distinct possibility of another breakdown in the talks," the source said. He added that the veil of secrecy will be lifted from the negotiations if there is a breakdown. There were strong indications the showdown would come over Red demands for the recapture of non-Communist Korean prisoners freed last month and iron-clad guarantees from the United Nations that South Korea would honor a truce.

The source said Thursday's negotiating session "will be the showdown. The meeting will make or break the talks."

The source, who could not be identified, gave his estimate of the truce situation after the Chinese Communist radio claimed the UN command negotiators "walked out" of Wednesday's meeting.

ANOTHER MEETING

But Peiping radio made it clear there would be another meeting at the customary hour of 11 a. m. on Thursday (10 p. m. EDT Wednesday).

The Peiping radio said:

"The other side unilaterally declared a recess and walked out of the meetings."

A UN Command spokesman said only: "No comment. We never comment on Communist propaganda broadcasts."

OFFICERS PESSIMISTIC

Allied officers here were openly pessimistic over chances of an early armistice, but elsewhere there was continued optimism that negotiators would agree soon.

Allied officers in direct contact with the negotiations said the Reds have taken a tougher position and are insisting that the UN Command provide concrete guarantees that South Korea will observe an armistice.

These same officers, who refused to be quoted by name, said the big Communist attack on the east-central front indicates the Reds do not plan to sign a truce soon.

On the other hand, President Eisenhower's special truce envoy said as he landed in the U. S. Tuesday that the agreement he reached with President Syngman Rhee "should assure the signing of an armistice if the Communists are sincere in their desire for peace."

"We could sign a truce tomorrow in good faith with the Communists," said Assistant State Secretary Walter Robertson on his arrival at McChord Field, Wash.

Eisenhower himself was pictured by U. S. congressional leaders in Washington as believing a Korean truce is near.

The Communist radio at the North Korean capital of Pyongyang said Tuesday night that 90 per cent of the 27,000 anti-Communist North Korean war prisoners freed from Allied camps last month now are at Pohang, north of Pusan on the east coast.

Cheese Industry Back On Feet

STRATFORD (CP)—The cheese industry appears to have overcome its biggest hurdle—the price problem.

In one of the biggest business sessions in exchange history nearly three-month's make of cheese was sold here Tuesday on the western Ontario cheese exchange with prices ranging from 27½ to 28-5-16 cents a pound.

It was the first sale since April 16. Since that time manufacturers have been withholding cheese because the bottom dropped out of the price.

Cheese makers expect the price to rise to 29 cents by September.

The next exchange session, to board cheese made during the last half of July will be held here Aug. 4.

Tornado Aid Plan Deplorable

STRATFORD (CP)—The council of South Easthope township said Tuesday night that the Ontario government's program to aid victims of the May 21 tornado is "deplorable."

Council members passed a resolution criticizing the government for its stand and asked that it grant 50 per cent of the amount raised in municipalities on a "house-to-house canvass" rather than a percentage of money granted directly by municipal councils.

The government, in its aid program announced two weeks ago, agreed to reimburse municipal councils by 50 per cent for any money granted to help victims of the twister, which hit hard at southwestern Ontario.

Say Arsonist Starts 4 Fires

BEAMSVILLE (CP)—Four of 10 fires that broke out here during the last three weeks were started by an arsonist, the Ontario fire marshal's department said today.

One blaze destroyed a basket and box warehouse and another razed a garage. The other two fires were in a store and a barn but were put out quickly by firemen. The warehouse was owned by the Canadian Canners Limited.

Beamsville is 10 miles west of St. Catharines.

Stock Prices Continue To Edge Forward

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued to edge forward in heavy early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials and western oils led. Base metals joined in the rally with lesser gains.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals continued to rise as Conwest, Bonville, Avillabona, Gunner and Chimo added pennies. Sudbury Contact encountered profit-taking and settled back a few cents.

Utilities sparked the advance in industrials. Other firm sections were papers, liquors, foods and miscellaneous industrials. Individual shares recorded gains paced by Canadian Dredge. Stedman, Aluminium New and Weston preferred were up.

Golds showed narrowly higher as seniors firmed but juniors and holding companies mixed in light trading. Down were Madsen, Broulan Reef and Preston East Dome in juniors. Kerr Addison an Hollinger went forward in seniors.

Western oils chalked up gains ranging to 40 cents as Gridoil, Central Explorations, Western Leasehold and Calgary and Edmonton brightened, Canada Williston dropped 28 cents.

Higher-priced issues led base metals. Smelters, Hudson Bay and International Nickel rose fractions while Eastern Metals added 12 12 cents in lower-priced stocks.

The cab was later recovered at Burlington Beach.

Residents Use Too Much Water

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Residents sprayed so much water on their lawns Tuesday that city council issued an emergency order restricting the use of a garden hose to certain hours of the day.

Some 18,000,000 gallons an hour was drained from storage tanks early Tuesday night. Council said it reduced water pressure to a dangerous point.

Under the restrictions, no hoses may run in the city, in nearby Port Dalhousie, or in Grantham township between 6:30 a. m., and 6:30 p. m.

Residents living in houses with odd numbers are allowed to water their lawns only three days a week, and those living in even-numbered houses water on other days.

Everyone has the go-ahead to use hoses on Sunday.

CAN'T BE FOOTBALL

As for the irrigation and power project, Mr. St. Laurent felt this was "too serious" an issue to be made into a "political football." His position would be the same whether it was an election year or not. He did not even want to make a statement on it during his campaigning, but he might have been considered "pretty cowardly" if he didn't.

The project, as envisioned by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration would harness the South Saskatchewan river to build an irrigation and power site between Elbow and Outlook, Sask., to water some 450,000 acres and provide 150,000 horsepower.

The PFRA in 1950, said it would cost $105,000,000 but a Royal Commission last year said it would cost $250,000,000 and turned it down as uneconomic.

ESTIMATE VERY HIGH

Mr. St. Laurent said the commission estimate was "very high." Mr. Gardiner and Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan said the cost would be about $125,000,000.

"We've got to get a factual basis which we can consider as proper to make a decision in the interests of the Canadian nation as a whole," the prime minister said.

Mr. St. Laurent appealed against thoughts of secession. In his native province of Quebec, there were some persons who felt there should be a French nationalist party in federal politics. This he felt, would be a "crime" for it would serve regional interests. He didn't feel that any one region would want to secede from the rest of us." Canada was a good country and its citizens were good Canadians. They should remain strong and united.

Mr. St. Laurent turns his campaigning today toward the Lakehead for an evening speech at Port Arthur, home riding of Trade Minister Howe. Thursday he visits Sudbury before hitting the Quebec campaign trail.

NO CHANCE OF COALITION

After the address, Mr. Drew told a questioner there is "not the slightest chance" of Progressive Conservatives forming a coalition with Socialists. "We are Conservatives, not Socialists."

Mr. Drew spent Monday on New Brunswick's north shore. Reaching Fredericton Tuesday, he addressed about 450 persons in a hotel ballroom and dealt in part with hydro development and housing.

The federal government should give financial help to hydro development in every province where federal co-operation is required, he said. As for housing, down payments could be reduced and borrowing terms eased.

Marciano Signs To Defend Title

NEW YORK (AP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano today signed to defend his title against Roland la Starza of New York at the Polo Grounds, New York, on Sept. 24. It will be Marciano's second defence of the title he won from Jersey Joe Walcott last September.

Contracts for the 15-round championship bout were signed at the offices of the New York state athletic commission.

James D. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club which will promote the bout, said the possibility of home and theatre television would be explored.

Marciano will receive 42½ per cent of the gate receipts and La Starza 17½ per cent. The contract has a six-month return bout clause.

Suggest Committee For Conservation Work

TORONTO (CP)—The Conservation Counteil of Ontario recommended today that a special conservation committee be formed by the Ontario government to foster and guide conservation projects in the province.

The council, in a report to the government, says the inter-department committee should be chosen by Agriculture Minister F. S. Thomas.

The report contains 51 recommendations from conservation experts who spent 10 months compiling a 36-page booklet. It stresses the need for more specialists in agricultural sections of Ontario for farm planning, soil testing, drainage surveys, soil improvement and agricultural engineering.

He will be replaced by Supt. J. H. T. Poudrette, 45, native of Rockland, Ont., now in charge of criminal investigation for "H" division (Nova Scotia).

Changes Mind? Magistrate Dismisses Case

Magistrate R. B. Baxter had what appeared to be a change of heart in Magistrate's Court today and dismissed a careless driving charge against Phillip Seifried, 362 Aberdeen Ave., minutes after dismissing a charge of failing to report an accident against the accused.

The driver of Seifried's truck April 11 when it downed a hydro pole was not identified. From evidence, however, it seemed the "only rational conclusion" to Magistrate Baxter that the accused was the driver.

He made this observation as A. L. Elliott, QC, defence counsel, argued that evidence indicated Seifried had the opportunity to drive, but did not have the sole opportunity.

"Who do you suggest could have driven the truck?" the magistrate asked.

In reply, Mr. Elliott said another person might have been the driver.

CALL EVERYONE?

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw asked "Am I to call every person in this county or these five counties or the Province of Ontario or in the whole of Canada to show they weren't there?"

After further argument, the magistrate said he would dismiss the charge whereupon Crown Attorney Bradshaw literally leaped to his feet.

"A judge and jury are entitled to draw reasonable inferences and you are too, Your Worship. But if a man carrying a smoking shotgun ran out of a house where someone had been shot, then the prosecution would have to call everyone in the world to prove they weren't there.

"If the defence produces a witness to swear he was driving, then it's an entirely different matter."

CONFLICTING EVIDENCE

Magistrate Baxter shook his head. "I said I wasn't going to argue any more but . . . in the first place there was conflicting evidence by crown witnesses. . ." He made reference to the confliction but failed to give his second reason for upholding the dismissal.

Evidence on the careless driving charge also applied to a charge of failing to report an accident resulting in damage apparently in excess of $50.

Crown Attorney Bradshaw presented a circumstantial case but closed it without any reference to the amount of damage.

Magistrate Baxter pointed out then that no reference was made to the amount of damage, and the crown suggested he could call that evidence.

When Magistrate Baxter seemed indecisive, the crown stated "I don't know whether Your Worship is one of the magistrates that operates on the sporting theory," that is the theory of being a referee and not saying anything until the cases conclude; "or the theory of 'let right be done'."

He maintained decisions should be made with the latter in mind.

After pondering this, Magistrate Baxter observed that "to adopt Mr. Bradshaw's suggestion I would submit before the conclusion of his case that he hadn't given the amount of damage."

ON CROWN'S SIDE

He continued: "In that case I thnik the public and members of the bar would soon come to the conclusion that the magistrates were on the crown's side. I dismiss the charge on the grounds there was no evidence on the damage."

After OPP Constable Wallace Mohns described the scene of the accident, Lorne Armstrong, RR 3, Peterborough, described how it happened. He had been driving east on Parkhill Rd. about 8:30 at night when he saw a truck coming west at a point about a half-mile west of Peterborough.

EDGED TO SOUTH

As the truck approached, it gradually edged to the south side, forcing Armstrong into the south ditch. The truck going at an estimated 40 to 45 miles per hour, swerved across the road, into the north ditch, and struck the hydro pole.

By the time Armstrong went back to the truck he found no one inside it, but at the time he heard someone running through the adjoining field. He left to phone police.

Clarence Blodgett of 184 Dublin St. was next on the scene. Having passed there 15 or 20 minutes prior to the accident and seeing nothing amiss, he knew the accident had happened since then.

About five minutes after Blodgett stopped, Seifried appeared from the north side. They were friends so Blodgett tried to help Seifried get his truck out of the ditch. This failing, he offered the accused a ride home.

During that time nothing was said regarding how the accident occurred, Blodgett told the court.

DIFFERENT STORY

Noble Harrison of RR 3, Peterborough, told a different story of Blodgett's and Seifried's encounter.

As he approached from his farm house after hearing the crash, he heard someone climbing the wire fence. Seifried, he said, saw Harrison and disappeared again, then emerged after Blodgett came along and called out: "Phil, come on out."

Seifried emerged again and they drove away togteher.

Except for a description, later, of the damage, this constituted the evidence. Magistrate Baxter commented "I think Blodgett knows a lot more about this accident than he's told us."

The accused, however, was freed on both counts.

Won't Question Truman Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep-Wis) said today the federal bureau of investigation has assured him that former president Harry S. Truman did not withhold any information he received from Canada about an atomic spy plot.

In view of this, McCarthy said, there would be no occasion for the Senate investigations sub-committee he heads to call Truman for questioning.

A little more than two weeks ago, while Truman was on a vacation trip east, McCarthy said there had been "constant reports" that the ex-president had not turned over to the FBI a list of some 150 Soviet spy suspects received from Canadian authorities.

McCarthy fired off a letter to Attorney-General Herbert Brownell asking whether the justice department and the FBI ever got such a list from Truman. He called this a first step toward deciding whether to ask the investigations sub-committee to call Truman as a witness.

Declares Drew One Of Most Hated Canadians

TORONTO (CP)—Colin Campbell, former Ontario Liberal cabinet minister, said Tuesday night that George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, is "probably one of the most hated men in Canada."

Mr. Campbell spoke in Pell constituency where the Progressive Conservative candidate is Gordon Graydon. At about the same time, Mr. Graydon said of Mr. Drew in a federal election campaign campaign speech at Thorold "that I have never met another man who was so satisfactory in political life."

Mr. Campbell said today he meant Mr. Drew was hated "politically . . . not personally." In his speech on behalf of A. J. C. O'Marra he said that the Progressive Conservative party's opening newspaper campaign advertisement omitted any mention of the party leadership.

Mr. O'Marra, at the same meeting as Mr. Campbell said: "Why, even Gordon Graydon doesn't mention the party he represents on his election posters. He just asks people to vote for Graydon. That's not the way he'd do if he was proud of his party."

Mr. Graydon, in his remarks on Mr. Drew, said: "No one has ever been able to say he wasn't honest. No one has ever been able to say he was out to get anything for himself in political life, and no one has ever been able to say he couldn't handle any job that came along."

Oshawa Man Has 97th Birthday

MONTREAL (CP) — Thomas Henry Everson of Oshawa, Ont., spent his 97th birthday today as guest of his son and daughter-in-law here.

He has been a resident of Oshawa since 1888, where he owned a hardware and grain business for more than 60 years.

Mr. Everson said he rode to his first job as postmaster at Manitou, Man., in 1883, on the first CPR train from Winnipeg to that point. Manitou was then the end of the run.

His wife, who will be 86 this year, said her husband has always been greatly interested in civic affairs and "is a living refutation of the belief that hard work kills people!"

Mr. Everson, chipper in a pearl grey suit and red satin tie, said he is teetotaler, but has always enjoured a pipe.

Communist Paper Apologizes For Slip

NEW YORK (AP)—The Daily Worker, Communist party organ, has apologized to its readers for referring to the late Julius and Ethel Rosenberg as "atom spies."

The Worker explained Tuesday that the story which appeared on Monday "was a reprint from a capitalist press clipping."

"We are deeply sorry," the paper added, "that slipshod copy editing permitted this vile attack on the martyred Rosenbergs to appear in our paper."

The Rosenbergs, husband and wife, were executed last month for conspiring to give atom secrets to Russia.

St. Laurent Fears PCs Plan New Tariff-Raising Binge

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The heat was on Canada's political leaders Tuesday. Prime Minister St. Laurent bore the brunt of it. Temperatures bubbled up to the 90s in Saskatchewan but the 71-year-old prime minister walked among sweating crowds at the Yorkton Fair, shaking hands with young and old. Even in seaside New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, where George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and M. J. Coldwell, CCF head, were campaigning for the Aug. 10 federal election, the mercury neared 80. The political talk in the July heat was of dollar-sterling difficulties, trade and tariffs, and a national health scheme. After listening to dissertations on such generally dry subjects, listeners made for ice cream parlors, soft drink stands and beer parlors.

At Saint John, Mr. Drew referred to a statement made at Ottawa the previous night by External Affairs Minister Pearson that Canada is working with other Commonwealth countries and the United States on plans for sterling convertibility.

COMES TOO LATE

The Liberal government's "conversion to economic common sense comes a little late," Mr. Drew said. The Progressive Conservatives two years ago had called on the government to take steps to break the dollar-pound barrier, but the government had "sneered" at the suggestion.

"Now they admit it can be done. I congratulate them on the fact they have finally accepted reality."

Mr. Drew promised during his 50-minute speech that a Progressive Conservative government would act immediately to reopen British markets for Canada's basic producers.

Earlier, at Fredericton, Mr. Drew said the federal government should give financial backing to hydro development "in every province where federal co-operation is required."

Mr. St. Laurent, after addressing a grandstand audience at the Yorkton Fair—his fourth Western exhibition in as many days—moved on to Regina where he said that if the Progressive Conservatives have their way, there is danger "Canada will go on another tariff-raising binge."

PROVED DISASTROUS

He contended before a Liberal rally that the Progressive Conservatives, if elected, would return to the trade policies which he said had proved disastrous in the early 1930s. They would erect new trade barriers, giving "some sort of artificial stimulus" to uneconomic manufacturing.

"Mr. Bennett (R. B. Bennett, former Conservative prime minister) said he was going to 'blast' his way into foreign markets. His idea of building up trade was to force other countries to take Canadian exports, but to make it as difficult as possible for them to sell their goods here in Canada. Whenever Mr. Bennett got into trouble, he raised a tariff or in some way or other put new restrictions on imports. And during those years, Canadian trade fell to lower and lower levels and the depression became deeper and deeper."

The prime minister, like Mr. Drew, referred to dollar-sterling difficulties: "The dollar-pound barrier is a United Kingdom barrier, not a Canadian barrier, and I don't know how a Conservative government in Canada could lift that barrier as long as the Conservative government in the United Kingdom feels it is needed to protect their limited supply of dollars."

NOT CONVINCED

At another point, Mr. St. Laurent said he still isn't convinced that the South Saskatchewan irrigation and power project would be of benefit to all Canada. If he were returned to power next month, he wouldn't recommend the project to Parliament until he was convinced of its country-wide benefits.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who introduced the prime minister, said he has been advocating the South Saskatchewan project for years.

Mr. St. Laurent said he doesn't want to make a "political football" out of the project but it might have been considered cowardly of him if he hadn't stated his views. When he made a promise, he said, he wanted to be in a position to keep it. But he could make no promise nor give any encouragement to Saskatchewan that the project would be built.

After a feed of cold lobster, Mr. Coldwell told a Summerside, P.E.I. audience hat a national health plan, advocated by the CCF, might cost as much as $800,000,000.

TOO COSTLY

"This, according to the Liberals, is too costly. Trade Minister C. D. Howe says the government will introduce a health insurance scheme as soon as it can be done without placing an undue burden on the Canadian people."

This is a "ridiculous" excuse, Mr. Coldwell said. "Canadians, as individuals and through their governments, are spending about $675,000,000 a year on health costs and their protection is not adequate."

Canadians couldn't afford to be without a proper health insurance program. Lack of proper preventive health services not only contributed to a lowering of the nation's health standards but was to a large extent responsible for "irreparable damage" to the country's economy.

"How many needless deaths have occurred because the person who needs medical attention has put off seeing a doctor for fear of not being able to pay for his treatment?" Mr. Coldwell asked.

Today, Mr. St. Laurent visits the Lakehead. Mr. Drew, following in the campaign tracks of Mr. Coldwell, goes to Moncton, N.B., Summerside and Charlottetown. Mr. Coldwell moves on to Halifax.

757 Candidates Named For August 10 Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The number of candidates for the Aug. 10 Dominion election reached 757 Tuesday, it is shown in an unofficial compilation by The Canadian Press.

When official nominations close Monday, July 27, in 242 of the country's 263 constituencies the total may surpass the record of 954, set in 1945. The number now is only 91 short of the 1949 total of 848.

Nominations closed Monday, four weeks in advance of the election, in 21 large, scattered constituencies where it takes more time to deliver ballots and other election material to remote polls.

Two constituencies — Queens in Prince Edward Island, and Halifax —have two members each, bringing to 265 the number to be elected across the country. There were 262 seats at stake in 1949 and 245 in 1945.

LIBERAL SCORE

So far, the Liberals have nominated 257 candidates in 256 constituencies. In one, Glengarry-Prescott in Ontario, the party has two candidates. Each was a member of the last House, one for Glengarry and one for Prescott which were combined in a redistribution, and each was selected by a nominating convention.

The Progressive Conservatives have 209 candidates, the CCF 141 and Social Credit 51. The Communist Labor - Progressive Party has named 93 candidates, compared with 19 in 1949 and 68 in 1945. There are six others, mostly Independents.

Already, 39 women have entered the race compared with 15 in 1949. The Labor-Progressives lead with 19 women candidates. The CCF has nine, Progressive Conservatives eight, Liberals two and Social Credit one. Most of the women—21—are in Ontario.

Cigarette Tax Cut WouldCurbSmuggling

WINDSOR (CP)—Percy McKee, Progressive Conservative candidate in Essex South, said Tuesday night reduction of federal cigaret taxes would cut the smuggling of United States cigarets and instill new life in the southwestern Ontario tobacco-growing area.

Addressing a campaign meeting at nearby Sandwich South Township, Mr. McKee said "empty, unused tobacco barns in Kent and Essex counties" are "monuments to the stupidity" of the government.

"We have not only lost our tobacco market in Great Britain through bad salesmanship but we have lost our own Canadian market by stupid overtaxation and the creation of smugglers.

Question:

Mr. Swanston, what do you consider to be your strong advantages over your opponent in the Dominion election?

Answer:

First, I was born here, earn my living here, and have served eleven years in municipal government here. He does not live in the riding. Next, I am a Liberal, and the the Liberals will form the next Government of Canada. I shall be able to speak for this riding as a Government M.P. and not as a critic in Opposition. Finally, I have an optimistic program for Peterborough West, and many years in Opposition have forced my opponent into a habit of negative thinking.

Says Root Of Mining Unrest Due To Ottawa Indifference

TIMMINS. — Maurice Belanger, Progressive Conservative candidate in the riding of Timmins, Tuesday night charged that labor unrest in the Porcupine camp, which has made six mining properties strike-bound since last Saturday, is a direct result of federal government indifference to gold mining and to the tens of thousands of persons who obtain their living from the industry.

Mr. Belanger declared that lack of effort by Ottawa to seek an increase in the price of gold, and lack of adequate cost-aid from the government had precipitated the disputes which have thrown 750 men out of work and which threaten to spread to the entire 13 producing mines of the district.

"Ottawa has shown an appalling indifference to the workers of the gold industry. The strikes which have occurred here must be squarely laid on the doorstep of the federal government, Mr. Belanger stated.

He declared that increased cost-aid was required at once, and that a large part of it should be allocated by law into the pay envelopes of miners.

The strike situation here today seemed ready to explode into a complicated political battle. Roland Michener, Progressive Conservative candidate for Toronto-St. Paul's, is secretary treasurer of the Broulan Reef Mine, which threatened Monday to sue the United Steelworkers Union for damages as a result of the walkout at the mine last Saturday.

TO LAUNCH ASSAULT

It is expected that Charles Millard, Steelworkers' national director and CCF candidate in York West will launch an assault on Broulan and Mitchener when he speaks here on the weekend, and will attempt to underscore the fact that a Tory candidate is suing a labor union.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that Millard is opposed in his own riding by Rodney Adamson, long-time Progressive Conservative spokesman for the gold mining industry. It is expected that the strikes here will become a major issue in that riding.

Charging that the 80,000 people of Northern Ontario who look to the gold industry for their livelihood had no adequate representation at Ottawa, Mr. Belanger stated that neither Karl Eyre, the present MP for Timmins, nor Walter Little, Liberal incumbent in Temiskaming, had lifted their voice to state properly the plight of persons dependent on the industry.

"The situation in gold mining is no longer just a matter of how much profits are paid to shareholders. It has got down into the lives of the workers in the industry and of all residents of gold communities."

It was disgraceful, he declared, that gold miners, workers in an essential industry which has sustained Canada in times of economic stress, received less pay than office boys in Southern Ontario. Base rate in some mines is 98 cents an hour.

"And there is a difference of 60 cents an hour in the wage rates of miners here and of those in the base metal industries at Sudbury. The situation, whreeby a gold miner is unable to support his family properly in a time of soaring prices, is a direct responsibilitw of Ottawa," Mr. Belanger stated.

Gets First Hand Information

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP)—CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell and his secretary sat down beside two men discussing politics when they boarded a train at Moncton Tuesday for a trip here in an election campaign tour of the Maritimes.

Said one of the men:

"I see Coldwell spoke in Moncton last night and is heading for Summerside today. He'll have to do some talking to make some headway over there."

As the conversation continued, Mr. Coldwell and his secretary began laughing with the two, both apparently die-hard Progressive Conservatives.

One fellow then said to Mr. Coldwell: "You're not a politician are you?" His secretary replied: "Yes, this is Mr. Coldwell." They then shook his hand and quickly changed the conversation.

Locomotive Firemen Oppose Seaway Plan

BOSTON (AP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen is on record as opposing construction of the St. Lawrence seaway.

The brotherhood, an independent union which claims to represent 100,000 railroad employees in the United States, voiced its opposition Tuesday in a resolution adopted at its 36th annual convention.

The resolution called the proposed seaway "unsound, impracticable financially and uneconomical."

Graydon Says Liberals Much Too Extravagant

THOROLD (CP)—George Graydon, the Progressive Conservative member for Peel in the last House, said Tuesday night the Liberal government "is wading waist-deep in waste."

Speaking at a political meeting in support of C. L. Robins, PC candidate for Welland riding, Mr. Graydon said the Liberals are "too extravagant and too wasteful" with one government department after another trying to see how much money they can spend rather than how much they can save.

Coldwell Discusses Cost Of National Health Plan

By KINGSLEY BROWN, JR.

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP)—CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell came to this wealthy town Tuesday and told of the cost of his main election promise, a national health plan. Mr. Coldwell, addressing about 150 persons in a town of 6,500 made by scientific farmers one of the richest per capita in Canada, said it might cost as much as $600,000,000. He said:

"This, according to the Liberals, is too costly. Trade and Commerce Minister C. D. Howe says the government will introduce a health-insurance scheme as soon as it can be done without placing an undue burden on the Canadian people."

He said this excuse was "ridiculous." "Canadians, as individuals and through their governments, are spending about $675,000,000 a year on health costs and their protection is not adequate."

Mr. Coldwell arrived here by train and car from Moncton.

Mr. Coldwell said his party believes that Canadians cannot afford to do without a proper health-insurance program. Lack of proper preventative healht services not only contributed to a lowering of the nation's health standards but was to a large extent responsible for the "irreparable damage" to the nation's economy.

"How many needless deaths have occurred because the person who needs medical attention has put off seeing a doctor for fear of not being able to pay for his treatment?" he asked.

He said his party believed that no single measure would aid Canadians in so many ways as the introduction of a health plan financed on the basis of ability to pay instead of a flat rate for every individual citizen.

Fluoridation For Peterborough

Peterborough's Medical Officer of Health has asked the City Council to consider fluoridating the municipal water supply. This was requested many weeks ago. We are not urging that the matter should be attended to in a hurry; we are merely putting out a reminder that it has been brought up. We hope considered action will be taken on it before this year's Council is dissolved.

* * *

The case for fluoridation has been pretty completely proved, by the Brantford experiment and by longer use of fluoridated water in American cities. England, slower to change long-tested ways, is considering fluoridation on a national scale, but will conduct experiments first. It has been pointed out that because of the large amount of fish in the British diet, more fluorine is commonly available to British children than to Canadian. Fish flesh contains fluorine in measurable quantities.

* * *

The latest Canadian city to authorize putting fluorine in the municipal water supply is Saskatoon. We want to point out that the matter was not promoted at the behest of a stampeding popular opinion, but by the people who should be most concerned and best informed about it, the dentists. The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix says:

"The circumstances under which this recommendation was made are worth noting. The subject of fluoridation was not brought before last Thursday's committee meeting in City Hall by some curious alderman who had come across a reference to fluoridation among the papers in his desk. Nor was it introduced by representatives of some well-meaning organization with a bee in its bonnet. Fluoridation was brought to the attention of the standing committee by a special fluoridation committee of the Saskatoon Dental Society. The chairman of this committee is Dr. S. R. Gelmon. His co-members are Dr. F. A. Fernet, president of the society, and Dr. P. Rabatich, public school dental inspector. In other words, this was no spur-of-the-moment decision, but one based on the advice of the people most qualified to judge: The dentists."

* * *

To date the Peterborough Dental Society has been rather passive about the question, although some of its officers are enthusiastic proponents of fluoridation. The City Council would be aided, not only in arriving at its decision, but in securing general approval for that decision, if the Peterborough Dental Society came out strongly for it. The question of fluoridation in Peterborough would be given a vigorous impulse if, for instance the Peterborough Dental Society were to say, as did Dr. G. Kinneard, director of regional health services for Saskatchewan, that "we are confronted with the greatest bargain of the century in the field of public health". In support of the "bargain", the Saskatoon Dental Society was able to tell Saskatoon ratepayers and Council that the cost of fluoridating the city's water would be less than six cents a person a year, and that the annual cost of filling cavities in Saskatoon children's mouths was about eight dollars a child.

The Music Teacher And The Community

During the last few days music teachers from the whole of Canada have been assembling in Toronto to listen to talks and concerts and to discuss matters of concern to their profession. This gathering has passed comparatively unnoticed amongst the variety of violent deaths and political upheavals that usually hold the centre of the stage. Yet the outcome of these periodical meetings can have an incalculable effect on the youth of this country.

There are two sorts of convention. The first type probably exists only in the imagination of Hollywood. The second, the working convention, is the norm, and to judge from the very full program of the convention of the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers, they were very busy indeed.

The CFMTA is not a trades union. While they are keenly interested in the economic side of their profession they are not trying to bargain for higher fees and shorter working hours. Owing to the great diversity of conditions in different centres any attempt at standardization of minimum fees would inevitable fail. This body is a professional association devoted to raising the standards of a profession that has often been maligned. They feel that the best method of accomplishing their object is to institute a system of registering qualified music teachers. Unfortunately the only means of assessing their abilities is by means of their technical qualifications as expressed by letters after their names or by the examination results of their pupils. Presumably this will remain so until some better way of gauging than examinations will have been discovered by our intrepid scientists.

Music teaching is a highly competitive field of human endeavour (except in country districts, where the demand usually outruns the supply) and a highly important part of the work of the association lies in the domain of formulating and enforcing a code of professional ethics amongst its members.

The exchange of ideas on teaching methods is another of the many aspects of the work of the association, which is organized in local branches, provincial associations and finally at the national level. The CFMTA has developed from very modest beginnings a few years ago to a body that can fairly claim to speak for the whole profession. There are still many qualified teachers who have not yet taken the step of applying for membership, but it may be safely said that anyone engaging a registered music teacher may be assured that their child will receive competent guidance.

The importance of the music teacher to the child cannot be overestimated. Unlike most other teachers he can give his undivided attention to the individual pupil. If he can establish the right relationship with his pupil he can be an enormous influence for good in the life of the child. Methods may come and methods may go, but the most important factor in a teacher is his ability to strike fire from the pupil and to nurse that flame. Ultimately the true objective of all teaching is to render the teacher superfluous, so that the pupil can be his own teacher and sternest critic. The born teacher can do everything wrong according to the theories of psychologists (which are incidentally in a continual state of flux)—and get away with it. The average teacher can by study of various methods, by the memory of his own most successful teachers in the past and by actual teaching, attain to a modest success. It is a difficult and wearing profession to those who take their duties seriously, and the financial rewards are slight, but the value of these servants of the community can be measured only in the gratitude of past pupils who have been led through the practice of the art of music to some awareness of beauty and possibly to see through to that transcendent beauty which pervades the whole of creation for those who have eyes to see and ears to hear.

Canada's Cable Tie To Europe

When the trans-Atlantic cable between Britain and Canada went out of service during the last war, Canadians were not immediately put back into the Dark Ages—dark, that is, because of a black-out of news. Wireless closed the gap effectively. The war news came in as speedily, unlike war news in the days before the first cable was at last successfully laid across the Atlantic (1866).

We ruminate about cables because right now an unusual ship is setting out from Britain to renew the 1600-mile cable across the Atlantic from Portcurne, near Land's End (England) to Harbour Grace, Newfoundland. This vital cable was not the one laid in 1866; it was put down in 1874. It serves the Canadian mainland by means of a 600-mile extension to Halifax, and is also linked to the Cable and Wireless Company's cables to Australia and New Zealand by trans-Canada landlines.

The job which the cable ship Monarch is now sailing west to undertake is one of the most important assignments of her career, because the Cable and Wireless Company's cable across the Atlantic is still, despite radio, an extremely important means of communication between this continent and Europe. Work on the renewal of the trans-Atlantic cable was begun last year when 800 miles of it were replaced. This enabled the service, cut off during the war, to be renewed last August 6th. The Monarch is expected to complete the renewal, as well as the Newfoundland to Halifax cable, by mid-August. Total cost of the operation will be nearly six million dollars.

Should you be wondering what a cable ship is, we tender these facts about the Monarch. She is 8,055 tons gross, and was specifically designed for deep sea cable laying. She carries about 2,600 nautical miles of deep sea cable in four cylindrical tanks which have a total capacity of 125,000 cubic feet. She is oil-fired and was the first cable ship to be fitted with electrically operated cable gear. And that is all we know about the Monarch.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The Rev. E. G. Hansell, advocate of Social Credit, says of that political faith, "You don't have to understand it, just feel it in your heart." Doesn't anybody have to understand it?

The Queen's husband, we learn, may properly be referred to as His Royal Highness, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, or simply as the Duke of Edinburgh, but he cannot be called Prince Philip because he is not a Prince. Thus we set out on forty or fifty years of people correcting one another, quarreling, and patronizing one another on this point.

Dictatorship Defied

by J. HALCRO FERGUSON

TWO weeks after the successful military coup in Colombia, which removed the oppressive Conservative Government of President Laureano Gomez, the country is quiet and indeed happy for the first time since 1946, when a split in the Liberal Party let the Conservatives into power.

◇ ◇ ◇

OPENING the National Constituent Assembly on June 15, the new Acting President, Lieutenant-General Gustavo Rojas Pinilla, himself a moderate Conservative and a career engineer-officer for over thirty years, promised much-needed reforms after the repressions of the Gomez regime had produced paralysis in parts of the country where it was in full control and near-anarchy where it was not.

◇ ◇ ◇

HE spoke with knowledge of the support of the people of Bogota, who the day before had paraded for seven hours to demonstrate their joy at their "liberation." General Rojas himself said that he could not remember ever having seen such a huge crowd of sincere and enthusiastic people. Perhaps, he hazarded, they had so demonstrated "because they had been dangerously near to being oppressed." The General, unlike his colleagues in some other Latin American countries, is obviously not given to over-statement. In the last few years an uncounted number of thousands of Colombians had been killed in clashes between Government forces and "bandits," the Colombian Press—a very fine one—had been shackled, and Protestant churches had been burned down with police connivance.

◇ ◇ ◇

NOW the Liberal guerrilla fighters ("bandits" to the former President) are arriving at military posts and surrendering their arms, after which they are allowed to go free. The mood in Colombia is indeed akin to world reactions to such events as the easing of the Cold War and the spontaneous uprising in East Germany. Like the latter, it may have repercussions beyond Colombia's borders.

◇ ◇

IT HAD been looking as if democracy were losing ground all over Latin America since the end of the second world war. Peron was still in control in Argentina, Chileans had elected a former dictator to the Presidency, Peru had fallen under the "benevolent dictatorship" of Brigadier-General Manuel Odria, former dictators had been legally re-elected in Brazil and Ecuador, and General Fulgencio Batista had once again taken over the Cuban Government. Only democratic little Uruguay had moved further away (by a constitutional amendment) from rather than nearer to dictatorship. The Colombia coup has proved, like the East German uprising, that a modern dictatorial state can after all be successfully defied.

◇ ◇

ONE neighbouring Government which must be watching events in Colombia rather warily is that of Venezuela. With a long history of dictatorship alternating with internal commotion, Venezuela after the war held its first full and free general election, which returned to power the leftist-liberal Accion Democratica Party which governed the country peacefully until 1949 when it was overthrown by a group of young officers. The leader of the group was subsequently assassinated and succeeded by Colonel Perez Jimenez. In 1952 Colonel Perez considered himself well-entrenched enough and well-enough protected by discriminatory electoral laws to risk an election. To his great astonishment, and despite the fact that Accion Democratica, the most powerful opposition party, had been banned, the opposition won. Perez promptly cried "foul" and annulled the elections.

◇ ◇ ◇

DEPITE booming prosperity based on Venezuela's oil resources, the country is bubbling with discontent. Police raids are frequent and thousands of poltical prisoners have been herded into jungle camps where the death roll due to sickness and inadequate facilities is high. Four successive Secretaries General of the underground Accion Democratica have been "liquidated."

To the world the Venezuelan Government tries to present a picture of a happy, progressive country, and its propaganda agencies flood foreign countries with publications showing new workers' housing estates, super highways, and other such projects, of which dictatorial regimes are so fond.

◇ ◇

VENEZUELAN oppositionists complain that foreigners seem to be fooled by these pretensions, and complain that the Press, particularly in the United States, has done little in its columns to counteract the paid advertising of Venezuelan Government agencies and the published speeches of President Perez professing devotion to democracy and admiration of the United States, which readers consequently take at their face value. The organ of the Venezuelan exiles, "Temoignage Venezuelien," published in Paris, last month published a long and angry editorial to this effect, and in other Latin countries there have been similar complaints that south of the border the United States seems to court its enemies and ignore its friends.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANOTHER criticism of the United States comes from Guatemala, where, as in Argentina, any stick serves to beat Uncle Sam with. The Guatemalan complaint, voiced by the "Voz De Guatemala" radio station, is about the execution of the Rosenbergs. It quotes the London "News Chronicle" as having said that "the couple must undoubtedly have suffered horrible agony because of a legal system which seems to have been playing like a cat (with a mouse) for two long years." This is a curious criticism to be used by the Guatemalans. When I was in Guatemala last year three young playboys were executed for the senseless murder of a taxi-driver. There was no shadow of doubt about their guilt, but there was widespread criticism of their execution by both Press and public because their trials had taken in all over four years.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE Argentine Government continues its efforts to persuade Argentines that Peron is universally beloved and admired abroad (except, of course, by the "imperialists of Wall Street"). Rear-Admiral Tessaire, who represented Argentina at the Coronation in London, is reported to have told the Press that the English people and their rulers had shown great interest in "the fundamental principles of social justice and the personality of its creator, General Peron." The Admiral added that the Queen had "reiterated her sympathy for Argentina and for the work of its Chief Executive."

During the same week, at the International Labour Office Conference in Geneva, the Argentine workers' and employers' delegations protested to the Conference Committee "against the application of conventions and recommendations of the Malvinas Islands in United Kingdom territory" when they really belonged to Argentina. The Malvinas are better known as the Falkland Islands.

On the following day the Organization of American States agreed to a suggestion of Argentina and Guatemala that the "problem" of non-autonomous territories in America be put on the agenda of the next Foreign Minister's meeting to be held in Caracas next month.

◇ ◇ ◇

THESE territories are the Falklands, British Honduras, claimed by Guatemala, and British, French and Dutch Guiana, which border on Brazil but have never been claimed by anybody. Of these only British Guiana has expressed, through its elected representatives, its ideas about its future. It wants to be a self-governing Dominion of the British Commonwealth, possibly within a West Indian Federation.

An American View: DOGGONE EMBARRASSING, WHAT?

Letters To The Editor

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL

Dear Editor: We hear of a suggested retirement of that wonderful statesman, Sir Winston Churchill— but right here, I can say with conviction, that if such takes place the said retirement, will not take place in our hearts— for He will always be there. An American writer recently said, we can never forget the heroism of British courage, shown by Sir Winston Churchill. Anyone very observant of facts, as they unfold before us today, also can say the fearful roll call of heroism is sufficient witness, to the valor of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

No man in history, has shown more heroism than the Prime Minister, Sir Winston. It is inevitable that for generations to come, our children, and their children, will read the story of the man and be proud because the democratic world paid attention to words of his, that shook the world, and the like of which no man before him, ever dared to utter. "All I can promise is—Blood, Sweat, and Tears". Fortunate indeed, are those of us, who live in the same world with such a man.

Long may he remain hereabouts, after his work shall have been finished, and may he be pleased with the world he has done so much to save for all men, for all time.

Yes, when the lights of freedom were burning low, and despair had taken root, a light appeared on the horizon of hope. That light was Sir Winston Churchill, the most amazing man of our time.

Never before in our time, has one man done so much for so many. His honesty, frankness, and courage, are virtues the pattern of which, others may follow with enduring profit.

Yours very truly,
H. GILBERT
Civic Hospital Staff.

WILLIAM AND MARY

Sir: May I hope to have space in your paper for some remarks. I have read with interest your descriptions of Consorts of the Reigning British Queens.

I would like to correct your paper on a few things in referring to William and Mary.

Mary was not the Daughter of King Charles I but the Daughter of King James II.

It was also mentioned that the battle of the Boyne was not an important or decisive victory but has captured popular fancy.

That battle was fought for Religious and Civil liberty for all; that is why the 12th July is celebrated each year.

We are fighting the Communists today for the same thing as our forefathers fought for Civil and Religious freedom for all.

W. BUILDER

(Ed. Note: We acknowledge our slip concerning Queen Mary II. We agree that the Battle of the Boyne had important consequences for Ireland, but the battle was in itself of little tactical importance and the losses were small. William had 35,000 and lost barely 500; James had 25,000 and lost 1,500.)

"F.D.R.O.K.U.N.R.R.A."

(Montreal Matin)

A large portion of the American press has, for some years, adopted the great familiarity of speaking of persons in the public view, whether in national or international politics. Thus President Eisenhower is just "Ike" for such sheets as the New York Mirror, the New York News and a multitude of others. These newspapers go even further. "Bess" is Mrs. Truman and "Mamie" is Mrs. Eisenhower! We could cite a multitude of other equally typical cases. French-speaking journalists, particularly those engaged in editing and make-up will tell you that such a formula has certain advantages. . . Imagine what happens when names as long as Eisenhower absolutely must be used. "Ike" takes three times fewer letters, three times less space. A few years ago a big heading might have been seen in an American paper: "F.D.R.O.K.U.N.R.R.A." . . . It is worth noting that several American newspapers have already announced to their readers that they will abandon the practice of giving nicknames to important people. It is an evidence of good taste on their part.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, wherewith his spirit was troubled, and his sleep brake from him.

Then the king commanded to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, for to shew the king his dreams. So they came and stood before the king . . .

Then spake the Chaldeans to the king in Syriack, O king, live for ever; tell thy servants the dream, and we will shew the interpretation.

The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, The thing is gone from me: if ye will not make known unto me the dream, with the interpretation thereof, ye shall be cut in pieces, and your houses shall be made a dunghill . . .

The Chaldeans answered before the king, and said, There is not a man upon earth that can shew the king's matter; therefore there is no king, lord, nor ruler, that asked such things at any magician, or astologer, or Chaldean . . .

And the decree went forth that the wise men should be slain; and they sought Daniel and his fellows to be slain . . .

Then Daniel went in, and desired of the king that he would give him time, and that he would shew the king the interpretation . . .

Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel in a night vision. Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven.

Daniel answered and said, Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever: for wisdom and might are his: and he changeth the times and the seasons: he removeth kings, and setteth up kings: he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding: he revealeth the deep and secret things: he knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with him.

I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, who hast given me wisdom and might, and hast made known unto me now what we desired of thee: for thou hast now made known unto us the king's matter. (Dan. 2:1, 2, 4, 5, 10, 13, 16, 19-23.)

Revive The Double Ministry

(Le Devoir, Montreal)

We ourselves choose our members of parliament, even if the choice is too often limited by the candidatures—more or less satisfactory—submitted to us by the political parties. We do not choose our ministers who are selected by the leader of the majority party, who is generally an English-speaking politician. It is a situation which cannot fail to be dangerous. The head of an Anglo-Canadian government is scarcely tempted to choose as minister the lieutenant whom he knows to be vowed to French claims, unless he has absolute need of him for election purposes. And the minister, who doubtless has his mandate as member from his compatriots but his portfolio from the party dominated by the Anglo-Saxon element, is greatly tempted to run with the hare and hunt with the hounds. The tradition of a double ministry in which the French-speaking leader has something to say in the choice of his French-speaking colleagues has unfortunately fallen into disuse . . . That tradition must be revived. It constituted a protection for us.

WHICH?

The old alumnus, at the pre-game rally, was disparaging the skill of modern football players.

"When I was in college," he boasted, "I helped Harvard beat Yale for three years straight."

"Is that so, sir?" queried the quarterback, politely. "And which team were you on?"

Canadian Auto Industry On Its Way To New Records

TORONTO — The Canadian Automobile Industry concentrated in Southern Ontario, is well on its way towards new production records which may put Canada in third position among the nations which manufacture motor vehicles.

Last year's production of 433,729 units was surpassed only by production in the United States, Great Britain and France.

During the first five months of this year, Canadian plants turned out 240,245 cars and trucks. Even taking into consideration the production fall-off in the autumn when auto plants will be shifting over to 1954 models, the five-months figure puts the industry within shooting distance of a record half million units in 1953.

Sparking the unprecedented volume is the continuing strong domestic demand for automobiles. The usual springtime increase in sales developed earlier than usual because of the mild winter, and while there was a late spring fall-off, sales in May were still five and one-half per cent. higher than in May 1952.

Contributing greatly to the industry's well-being is peace between management and auto workers. Ford, Chrysler and General [illegible] three of the Canadian Auto Industry employing a total of 35,000 workers—recently signed agreements with the United Automobile Workers Union providing for wage rate increases. Feeder plants making auto parts are following their example.

General Motors President William A. Wecker, whose company produced nearly half of all the cars and trucks made in Canada last year, recently predicted continued growth and prosperity for teh industry because "the Automobile Industry grows with Canada."

Confederate Money Boom Sweeping Deep South

BY EARL MAZO.

CHARLESTON — A money boom is sweeping the Deep South —Confederate money, that is.

Confederate $1, $2, $100, and even 25 and 50 cent paper bills are being bought up as fast as they can be located by folks who are paying all sorts of fancy prices for them. In some cases, more United States dollars are paid than the face value of the Confederate money, according to Herman Schindler, one of the leading experts on the subject.

The buying spree has even poured over into the frankly counterfeit Confederate money market. Only Yankees, however, are buying the phony bills, added Mr. Schindler, whose Schindler's Antique Shop in King Street here, is the largest exchange for the genuine stuff in the Southeast.

Mr. Schindler recalled that just a few years ago otherwise sane individuals carelessly and indiscriminately stacked Confederate money into heaps of attic trash that was burned during spring clean-ups.

THE REAWAKENING

"Unfortunately, for many years after certain troubles encountered by the South in 1865, there was not much confidence abroad in truly Southern money," Mr. Schindler continued. "The reawakening came just recently."

Since then, there simply has not been enough Confederate money uncovered to meet the demand, much of which "comes from intelligent folks in the North."

The happiest moment in the Schindler shop this year came when a young man, a Southerner of heretofore unchallengeable loyalty, appeared with a bundle of Confederate bills for which he accepted $1,000 in United States money.

The man explained that, if need be, he would testify under oath to any interested Confederate committee that the only reason he was parting with the Confederate money was that he wanted a television set and Charleston merchants would accept only United States money for television sets.

Mr. Schindler and other experts frankly admit they can offer no all-inclusive explanation for the new strength and vigor being gained by Confederate money 88 years after the War Between the States (erroneously known in some areas as the Civil War) ended in what was then considered defeat for the Confederate South.

THE SOUTH WILL RISE

Some people contend it is related to the hobby of collecting rare but otherwise worthless money. (As is well known, however, folks offering that sort of explanation at one time or another have had secret and maybe even open and brazen associations with Yankees.)

Mr. Schindler, like many others in Charleston, prefers to believe the boom represents a generally renewed confidence "in the simple fact that the South will rise again."

Subsidize Education Of Retarded Children

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario education department will subsidize the education of retarded children to the extent of $250 a pupil annually under an amendment to the Education Act published Tuesday.

The amendment was passed by the Ontario Legislature at the last session.

The grant will be paid to parent groups on the basis of average daily attendance for each month in which classes operate. The Ontario Association for Retarded Children is responsible for statements to the deputy minister giving full statistics.

Children up to 18 years of age, incapable of development beyond the mentality of a child of eight, must be admitted free of charge.

55 Teachers Go To U.K. In Annual Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Fifty - five Canadian teachers will go to Britain to replace an equal number of British teachers who are coming to Canada for a year.

The annual exchange is arranged by the League of British Commonwealth and Empire in conjunction with the British ministry of education.

Among Ontario teachers in the group are: Mabel Armstrong, Chatham; Verna Elizabeth Revere, St. Thomas; Bernice Margaret St. thomas; Bernice Margaret Brown, St. Catharines; Doris Helen Burns, Simcoe.

Too Much Vinegar

Speak Nicely To Americans Advises Woman, Labor MP

By MARJORIE EARL

LONDON (Reuters)—Mrs. Jean Mann, sharp-tongued Labor Member of Parliament, believes she has the secret for getting along with Americans, speak to them nicely.

"Every woman knows, when she goes out to get herself the most important thing in life, a man, that she does not arm herself with a bucketful of vinegar," said the 61-year-old grandmother who is one of 21 women in the House of Commons.

"More flies get caught with a spoonful of honey. We have sent bucketfuls of vinegar to America when we should have close contact and co-operation."

RUN PROOF NYLONS

Her latest idea for increasing British trade with the United States, and also easing the lot of housewives, is the production of run-proof nylons. They'd sell like hotcakes, she says.

This is just one of many ideas put forward by this active woman who is known as "the housewives' voice" by her supporters and "the woman who talks most through her hat" by her enemies.

She is a former member of the Glasgow city council, a magistrate a housing expert (she once planned a model town for 30,000), an accountant, business woman, lecturer and happily-married mother of five children, three of them doctors.

In a legislative body not noted for its interest in women's affairs she has raised her determined Scots voice against slums, overcrowding, the cost of housing, poor clothing standards, badly planned kitchens in state subsidized houses, electric light bills, care of the aged, divorce, smutty jokes on the radio, discipline of teen-age daughters, juvenile delinquency and anti-Americanism in Britain.

MARRIAGE GUIDANCE

Among other things, including run-proof nylons, she has fought for sales tax reductions, marriage guidance, sex instruction in schools, legal rights for the housewife and recreation for the young.

"The cure for juvenile delinquency is not bigger and better police forces and jails but bigger and better homes and recreation centres," she says.

During every Parliamentary recess (a period of several weeks between sessions) Mrs. Mann plays what she calls, "my household game."

She and her invalid husband try to live on the government old-age pension of about $15 a week for two, to prove that it can't be done. At the first opportunity when the House reconvenes, Mrs. Mann brandishes her unbalanced budget and demands a better deal for the pensioners.

QUARRELS WITH OWN PARTY

Although she is a Socialist she quarrels with her own party as often as she tilts with the Tories. The oldest Mann battle has been to change British law so that married women will have a legal right to a share of their husband's income.

She and another woman MP Mrs. Irene White, drummed up so much support from all parties for a change in the law that former prime minister Clement Attlee appointed a royal commission to uncover all the facts of divorce, marriage and the legal dependence of wives.

Property Said More Valuable If Turned Into Parking Lot

CALGARY (CP)—One by one, Calgary's old downtown homes are falling into the hands of the wrecker or mover.

The reasons are high taxation and a growing need for commercial sites and parking space. The process has been accelerated in the last two years.

High taxes make it uneconomical to have residential buildings occupy space which could yield many times the rental as a business block. Although some of the old homes have doubled and trebled earnings when broken down into apartments, the returns still can't compare.

So great is the need for parking space, particularly around larger stores, that it is profitable to tear a building down. Real-estate operators say the process will continue as long as Calgary's parking problem is so far from solution.

Old buildings are not an entire loss. Bungalows are not too hard to move but two-storey homes present more of a problem.

If they are of sound construction, they will stand the strain of hauling. If necessary, the roof is removed to permit the house to pass under trolley wires.

One difficulty which may lead to wrecking rather than removal is scarcity of lots. Moving a house if a slow process and movers prefer a shift less than two miles if possible. The problem lies in the lack of suitable lots within that radius of the centre of the city.

Cost of moving a house and setting it up again on a new site is rarely under $5,000. A lot costs about $1,500 and a bsement has to be built.

Mexican Team Hopes To Give Canadians Run

MONTREAL (CP)—The Mexican Davis Cup team, with two days on the Mount Royal grass courts under their belts, hope to give the Canadians a run for their money when they meet this weekend in the North American zone Davis Cup tie.

The Mexicans have won two of their three encounters with Canada in Davis Cup play. They took the Canadians 5-0 in 1946 and downed them 4-1 in 1948. Last year the Canadians took the tie 5-0.

But last year there was trouble between two powerful tennis factions in Mexico, and the team that came up here wasn't as good as it might have been.

Only one man on that team had ever played on grass courts before coming to Canada, and coming from a dry climate, they were badly troubled by Montreal's humidity.

SETTLE PROBLEMS

This year's team is the result of the Mexican tennis family's getting together and settling their problems.

Their No. 1 man, Mario Llamas was here last year, and though beaten, put up a memorable struggle and has improved. In practice he has shown a strong all-round game with few weaknesses.

Rafael Ortega has uncovered a terrific service and overhead for fans watching practices; and Francisco (Pancho) Contreras had played with Vancouver's Lorne Main and Paul Willey while at college at Modesto, Calif.

The Mexicans have been playing on grass courts for the last two weeks at Forest Hills, with Fred Earle, well-known American coach, working on them. They have been getting used to the humidity.

NOT SO MUCH POWER

Then too, they aren't looking for the power they came up against last year. For one thing, Bren Macken, Canada's No. 1 player has retired from cup play for business reasons.

Main and Henri Rochon, both cup veterans are back, but Rochon hasn't shown too well this year and has pulled a thigh muscle which could take time healing properly. Bob Bedard too is injured—a torn ligament in his back—and is doubtful, while Willey has been both brilliant and erratic in practice.

Newport Dream Saratoga Winner

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP)—Newport Dream turned in a six-length victory in the $5,000 Saratoga two-year-old trot Tuesday night for his second straight Grand Circuit victory.

The bay son of Axomite from Octave Blake's Newport stock farm at South Plainfield, N.J., came from behind to win at Saratoga Raceway.

Driven by Del Cameron, he was clocked in 2:08 2-5.

11 Canadians Enter Philadelphia Regatta

TORONTO (CP)—Nine oarsmen and two scullers will represent Canada Saturday and Sunday at the annual United States National Regatta in Philadelphia.

The Hamilton Leander Boat Club will send Bobby Williams and Bill Hammond to compete in two singles races while the St. Catharines Rowing Club will enter its crack heavyweight eight in the intermediate eight event.

Williams, one of Canada's top scullers, will contest the championship singles, an event he won in 1951. Hammond will row the senior 145-pound singles.

Royals, Bisons Divide Doubleheader

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Flip a coin and take your choice—Montreal Royals or Buffalo Bisons. That's the way the International Baseball League pennant race shapes up today.

The first-place Royals blanked the Herd 2-0 in the opener of a doubleheader at Buffalo Tuesday and felt they were on easy street. But the surging Bisons turned the tables on the leaders in the second game, winning 4-1 to remain in hot pursuit.

So far the Royals have a 2-1 lead in their four-game series with second-place Bisons—one of the most crucial series of the current campaign. They would like nothing better than to take the final game of the affair, for a victory for Buffalo tonight would pull the club within a half-game of Montreal. The Bisons now are 1½ games back.

THANK BURGESS

Rochester Red Wings, who are third, can thank rookie outfielder Tom Burgess for their 12-7 victory Tuesday night over sixth-place Syracuse Chiefs. Burgess drove in seven runs with two homers and a single.

A ninth-inning homer, with two on and none out, by Jack Graham gave Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 win over tail-end Springfield Cubs. The Orioles are in fourth spot.

Righthander Bob Trice pitched and batted Ottawa Athletics to a 4-3 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. Trice allowed eight hits, whacked a homer and scored the winning run in the fifth for his 12th win against five losses.

HOMERS COUNT

In the Buffalo twin-bill, Gil Mills shaded veteran Earl Harrist in the opener to gain his sixth mound triumph for Montreal. Both gave up five safeties, but homers off Harrist by Tim Thompson and Ken Wood spelled Buffalo's downfall.

Jack Wallaesa's 20th circuit clout, with a mate aboard in the seventh, was the decisive blow in the Bison second-game triumph. Paul Foytack scattered six Montreal hits in his sixth pitching victory.

Secretary Frank Feaver of the OASA advises that all players' certificates must be signed no later than July 15 (which is today) and mailed to him by July 20. Players' sections must be carried by club managers in all playdown games. Those having changed places of residence after March 15 must report such change to the association. Senior "B" clubs are to be ready to proceed into provincial playdowns by Aug. 29, all sections below that by Aug. 15—which includes our intermediate entry. We also send in a senior "B" club from the men's loop. Draws will be made ere the end of this month. We trust the local league officials are hep to these OASA rulings.

* * * * * *

Time also rolls on for the Lakeshore League Baseball League and the intermediate teams are all scrambling for playoff spots. Our Liflocs will go into OBA junior "A" playdowns, possibly first against either Belleville or Toronto. But, meantime, they must finish out their schedule, and they tackle Whitby Merchants here at 6:30 tonight in Riverside Park, weather being oke. No other tilts listed for Howie Dalton's crew this week, unless they can pick up a postponement a bit later. Whitby is in the fight for second spot now and may make it, but Lindsay looks best at the moment, next to the leading Oshawa Transporters. Local seniors make Lindsay a real threat.

Ike Shows The Way

Licking the pencil vigorously for an hour or so, we compiled the latest scoring marks for the OLA senior Petes' Trailermen. Again Ike Hildebrand shows the way with no less than 70 points in the 18 games he has played to date. Ike must think he is still fighting for top sniping honors in the AHL! He is fourth high in the OLA and has led the Thorpe team throughout this season. His 39 goals are tops in that section. The Trailermen haven't too many more games left in the schedule as they drive hard in a try to hurdle St. Kitts into first place. They may do it this week. Meantime, they're really rolling—and compiling a fine scoring mark—and we think they'll take Toronto-Orillia Yorks here on Friday.

* * * * * *

Ross Powless is proving the second high scorer lately for Peterborough, coming along like a prairie fire in recent weeks. The big Indian has 65 points and is playing a lot of two-way lacrosse. Curly Mason is up there as usual, too, with 60, one more than Jerry Fitzgerald. That's a mighty neat showing for Jerry, as a defenceman, and his play-making role is emphasized with his 44 assists. Yet he also is tops in checking. Jerry will be teaching school this fall in Toronto but we hope still available for lacrosse here. Slater, Ashbee, Thorpe, Smith, Wipper and O'Hearn are doing okay, as well, on the Petes' attack. The champs aren't slowing up much yet, eh?

Concerning The Pats

Peterborough Pats are off this evening for Long Branch in OLA junior "A" play, and are still uncertain of getting a postponed game run off here Saturday. They've also written twice to the OLA secretary asking for a decision of the Dundas' four-point default (or was it?) when they failed to show here last start. Meantime, the provincial association has issued a standing as of July 12 which shows Long Branch atop the heap with 19 points, one more than Brampton—whom the Pats beat here the other eve—as Oakville is third with 15 points. Locals are listed with 12 on that date, St. Kitts having six, and Dundas being without a win. Schedule ends by Aug. with top four clubs in group playoffs.

Seabrooke's yanked out a thrilling 6-5 win o'er Revoy's at the Bowl last night in men's softball to keep close to the leading TPT Petes. Bob Wyatt started a triple-play in the ninth to cut down a Revoy rally and let the Sullivan squad breathe easily again. Lefty Doris and Dick McCracken hooked up in a nifty slab duel. Other joust saw TPT take UEW 10-2 with Haddy Eakins having a mound edge this time on Howie Dalton, whose support was wobbly. Good clutch hitting by most of the winners rolled up the count, Gus Leonard in particular wielding a mean mace. Games tomorrow. Revoy's vs. TPT, and Seabrooke's vs. UEW. It winds up next week.

Marciano's Brother Playing In Quebec

TORONTO (CP)—Lou Marciano, 18-year-old brother of world heavyweight boxing champion, Rocky Marciano, will play baseball with Three Rivers of the Quebec Provincial League for the rest of the season.

Marciano, a third baseman, was signed recently by the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League and was farmed out Tuesday.

Last year, he hit .295 with Edmundston of the Maine-New Brunswick League.

TPT Boys Take The UEW In City League

TPT Transports outscored UEW Tuesday night at the East City Bowl 10-2, before a fine crowd, in the nightcap of the regular men's senior softball twin set; the victory was number 11 for the popular hockey squad handled by George Bennett and Tommy Casey against but four losses, and enabled the hustling band to remain atop the loop a game and a half ahead of Seabrooke Motors.

Haddie Eakins and Howie Dalton opposed one another over the route and the former held the edge this game aided in his efforts by some fine fielding and timely stickwork by his cohorts. Eakins allowed 10 hits, Dalton 11; the former fanned six and walked as many, the latter whiffed one and issued but one ticket. Extra-base clouting however, and effective clutch hitting by TPTs told the story as, led by Gus Leonard with a double and homer, Herm Castle, Jack Mackness (two RBIs), Ted Collins and Buck Legrow each with triples, Junior West—the Bennett crew generally made life miserable for Tommy Walton's clever crew of battlers.

The usually steady fielding of UE faltered slightly with four miscues, against one for TP and two of these were costly indeed, to hurt Dalton's efforts.

Charges CAHA Keeps $110,000 Tied Up

SMITHS FALLS (CP)—Dr. J. A. McCue, president of Smiths Falls Rideaus of the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League said Tuesday night the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is keeping $110,000 tied up in government bonds while some member clubs are strapped for funds.

He spoke to an open meeting of hockey fans called to discuss means of ridding the Smiths Falls team of a $3,000 deficit. The meeting named a committee of fans to organize a fund drive.

The meeting was also told that Rideaus had been promised $550 for each of 11 games the club played in Allan Cup competition but had received only $425 a game from the CAHA.

Lt.-Col. S. Johnson Heads Qualifiers

BISLEY, England (Reuters)—Lt.-Col. S. Johnson of the Calgary Regiment headed the 20 Commonwealth qualifiers Tuesday for the final of the St. George's Challenge Vase and Gold Cross at Bisley.

Johnson, who won the King's Prize in 1939, scored 73—only one less than the top scorer, H. M. Charles of Wales.

The 100 qualifiers will shoot off the final over 900 yards Thursday.

Hildebrand High For Petes With 70 Scoring Points And Ross Powless Second

Tricky Ike Hildebrand tops the Petes' Trailermen to date in OLA senior "A" scoring with a total of 70 points. He leads in goals scored with 39 in 18 scheduled games of the Petes' 20, and has 31 assists fo rhis total. The classy Petes' forward (an AHL star at Cleveland in the winter) has led the Thorpe team, a close second at present to the leading St. Catharines Athletics, all season in the scoring department, and is in the first four scorers in the six-team OLA group this week. The schedule ends in the first week of August.

CLIMBED FAST

Big Ross Powless has climbed fast lately in sniping for the Trailermen and is second now to Ike with 65 points, made up of 32 goals and 33 assists. His nine-point effort in Hamilton in the last game pulled the popular Indian up ahead of Curly Mason, another smart forward, who boasts 60 points at the moment. The Petes have scored 611 points, of which 309 are goals, only St. Catharines with 363 goals being ahead of them in this department. Petes easily are best in points against with just 174, St. Kitts having 209.

Topping local defencemen is husky Jerry Fitzgerald with 59 points, and he is best with assists, having helped on 44 markers. Russ Slater, Don Ashbee, Bob Thorpe, Roger Smith and Harry Wipper have all had at least two points a game, and Nip O'Hearn is close behind. The list to date:

Smith Leading Lacrosse Scorer

TORONTO (CP)—Doug Smith of St. Catharines Athletics has taken over as top scorer of the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association. He has piled up 32 goals and 65 assists for 97 points in games up to and including Saturday.

Statistics released by the OLA Tuesday lists Kent Croft of Orillia Terriers as the second best marksman with 50 goals and 34 assists for 84 points. Leo Teatero, also of Orillia, follows him with 39 tallies and 32 assists for 71 points.

Ike Hildebrand of Peterborough Trailermen is fourth with 37 goals and 29 assists for 66 points. Following him is Derry Davies of St. Catharines with 39 goals and 25 assists for 64 points.

St. Catharines is in first place with a total of 17 victories and five losses for 34 points. Its closest contender is Peterborough with 15 wins and four losses for 30 points.

Orillia is third with 12 wins and eight losses for 24 points and Fergus follows with a 9-7 record for 18 points. Hamilton and Mimico are six and seventh respectively.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Tonight, mixed doubles. Choose your partner, $1.00 a pair — at 7:30 o'clock.

Without any argument, Tuesday night was by far the best night for bowling this season. It was just perfect, and a little over 100 bowlers took advantage.

After last night's games, F. Martin and A. Black are tied for first place in the men's schedule.

Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Beatty took first honors down in Brighton on Tuesday.

Tom McMillan, Sr., who vices on George Coleman's rink, is leaving today for a month's trip to Scotland. He is flying over. We join with the members of the club in wishing Tom a happy flight both ways.

Players are entered from Port Arthur, Kirkland Lake, Sudbury, Timmins, Windsor and Toronto. The 36-hole competition will be held at the Oakdale Club.

Seabrooke Gets Close One From Revoy's

Seabrooke Motors edged out a 6-5 victory over Revoys in the opener of Tuesday night's men's city softball twin-bill at the East City Bowl, to keep close on the heels of the league-leading TP Transports, who also won. A dramatic ending featured the thrilling contest as, with the bases loaded in the home ninth and none away, Bobby Wyatt speared Red Wasson's low liner to start a triple play and squelch a late Revoy rally for what indicated almost certain victory.

Lefty Doris emerged the victor in a sparkling duel with Revoy ace Dick McCracken, who yielded nothing to his adversary in a rather heartbreaking loss. Lefty yielded to Jim Driscoll in the ninth with two aboard; but both died there after pinch-hitter Wasson reached first on an error to load the sacks, and set the stage for the triple killing.

McCracken allowed nine hits, Doris eight, the former walked five, the latter two, and two strikeouts were credited to the doleful portsider. Each team erred thrice, though many brilliant fielding features studded the contest—with Gord Henry, Mart Donoghue, Red Wasson, and Jake Jaquith particularly smart.

In the ninth N. Wasson walked, Cupoli was safe on a miscue, as was pinch-hitting coach Cam Wasson; Red Wasson lined sharply to Wyatt low; the quick-thinking third baseman touched third, retiring Neil Wasson off the bag, then threw to Sullivan to also retire runner Cam Wasson, trapped off the sack.

Cricket Teams Stage Sensational Tilt

MANCHESTER, Eng. (Reuters) —In one of the most sensational and incident-crammed hours that Old Trafford has ever experienced, Australia lost eight second-inning wickets for only 35 runs before drawing the third test match with England here Tuesday. The first two test matches were also draws.

After the start of the final day's play had been delayed until after lunch, England easily averted the follow-on and went on to score 276, 42 runs behind the Australian first-inning total of 318.

When England resumed its first innings, it was 1,000-to-one against anything but a draw. Wicketkeeper Godrey Evans, always a crowd-pleaser, added some thrills with his 44 not out.

The Australians started aggressively, with Captain Lindsay Hassett taking two fours off Alec Bedser in the first over.

But bowler Jim Laker found the pitch to his liking, getting a vicious lift and good offspin to the ball, and got Arthur Morris out by a catch to Len Hutton and Hassett to a brilliant catch by Trevor Bailey.

Evans stumped one batsman and caught another out. Then bowler John Wardle hit his stride and dismissed four men for only four runs.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Dressen Envious Of Pitching

CINCINNATI (AP) — Charlie Dressen, victorious National League manager, said wistfully after Tuesday's all-star game:

"I wish I had that kind of pitching all season."

Dressen's Brooklyn Dodgers are in front of the league standings again this season, but they've had hurling trouble all season.

Casey Stengel, whose American Leaguers took their fourth straight drubbing 5-1, agreed that his hitters weren't hitting.

It was a bitter pill for him to swallow. He has beaten the National League entry four-straight times in the world series with his New York Yankees but he never has been able to win an all-star game.

Happiest guy for the Nationals was Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn shortstop Although he had played in seven previous games he hasn't had a hit in 13 times at bat until he knocked out a single and a double Tuesday and drove in two runs.

Anne Sharp Chosen To Head Golf Team

TORONTO (CP)—Anne Sharp of Lookout Point, provincial women's golf champion, will head the Ontario golf team in the interprovincial match at London Aug. 6-7.

She was chosen Tuesday after a series of tests conducted by the Ontario branch of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union.

Others in the team are Mrs. J. G. McCarter of Lambton, Toronto champion, Mrs. J. B. Seawright of Scarboro and Shirley Woodley of the ladies' club.

Gilt-Edged Pitching Gives Dressen All-Stars 5-1 Win Over American League

CINCINNATI (CP)—Gilt-edged pitching made up for a lack of the National League's vaunted power Tuesday as Chuck Dressen led his dream team to a 5-1 victory over the American League. In a game in which neither side hit a home run and the offensive was left to oldsters like Enos Slaughter, Pee Wee Reese and Johnny Mize, the sharp hurling of Robin Roberts, Warren Spahn, Curt Simmons and Murry Dickson provided the edge as they limited the losers to five hits, all singles.

Manager Casey Stengel of the losers suffered additional grief when his star centre - fielder, Mickey Mantle, aggravated a pulled leg-muscle in the seventh inning and limped from the game, a doubtful starter in the Yanks' next start against St. Louis Browns Thursday.

GREATEST PERFORMANCE

Apart from the pitchers, the outstanding individual performer was the 37-year-old Slaughter, whose 10th all-star appearance was his greatest. The St. Louis Cardinal veteran had two hits, drove in a run, scored two more, stole a base and made the top fielding play, a diving catch of Harvey Kuenn's low liner in the seventh inning.

Reese's double was the only extra-base hit. The Brooklyn shortstop also had a single, driving in a run with each bingle. Pitcher Dickson and pinch-hitter Richie Ashburn drove in the other two National League tallies.

The American Leaguers were shut out on two hits until the ninth inning when Minnie Minoso singled home a run after previous safeties by Ferris Fain and Mize.

Lefty Billy Pierce of Chicago White Sox matched Roberts with scoreless one-hit pitching over the first three frames.

But the Yankees' Allie Reynolds yielded two tallies in the fifth inning and was tagged with the loss. Southpaw Spahn of Milwaukee, who didn't yield a hit through the fourth and fifth, was the victor.

Old Satchel Paige, making his first all-star appearance, was tagged for two runs by the winners in the eighth inning. Cleveland's Mike Garcia gave up four hits in a two-inning stint but got by with only a single tally charged against him.

Abbott Gives $100,000 To Help Empire Games

VANCOUVER (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott Tuesday turned over a federal cheque for $100,000 to the British Empire Games Society to help finance the 1954 games here. The cheque is half of a proposed federal grant of $200,000 to the games. The first half was approved by Parliament and the other is expected to be voted next year.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manager Jack Stahl, who led Boston Red Sox to an American League pennant and World Series victory in 1912, was dismissed by the club 40 years ago today—less than a year after his successes.

HOLD THAT TIGER—Ralph Branca was pleased when Detroit took him from Brooklyn for the $10,000 waiver price. The big right-hander had been of little help to the Dodgers since Bobby Thomson hit the three-run homer off him that clinched the 1951 pennant for the Giants.

Coat Of Arms Louis XV Put In Museum

QUEBEC (CP)—An old wooden escutcheon showing the coat of arms of King Louis XV of France will get a new home soon when it is moved from the city council room to the Quebec Provincial Museum here.

City fathers who arranged the move with Gerard Morisset, museum director, figure that after 225 years the shield has enough historical importance to warrant "safe-keeping against the threat of fire."

The city, however, will not drop its property rights over the heavy four-foot shield. A little plaque to be attached to the base will read: "This blazon is the property of the City of Quebec."

In exchange, the council will receive a copy of the shield, the copy to be made from the original which was carved in 1727 by Noel Levasseur of Quebec.

An earlier copy was sent to Hastings, England in a trade for the original. The reason is explained in a plaque at the base of the original which says: "This shield of the king, taken from one of the gates of Quebec at the capture of this city in 1759 and offered to the City of Hastings by General Murray, first British governor of Canada, was graciously returned to the City of Quebec by the Hastings city council, July 16, 1925."

A red and gold crown tops the painted sculpture which is wreathed by laurel and acanthus leaves. In the centre are three fleur-de-lis on a blue field surrounded by a gold-colored chain holding the Cross of St. Louis.

Find Canopy

TRENTON (CP) — A canopy which flew off a jet aircraft during a training flight Monday has been located four miles east of Belleville and returned to the RCAF base here, officials said Tuesday. The canopy was considered dangerous since it carried a charge of dynamite used to eject the cockpit cover in case of emergency.

Federation Passes

LONDON (Reuters) — The bill paving the way for federation of Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland became law Tuesday when the Queen gave Royal Assent. Lord Jowitt, leader of the Socialist opposition in the upper hourse, said the Labor party will cease its opposition to the bill now it is law, and co-operate to make it a success.

Italian Saint Proclaimed Stenogs Patron

ROME — Pope Pius XII has proclaimed Saint Cassianus a fourth-century martyr—known as a "master in the art of reproducing words with very short signs —as the patron of Italian stenographers, the Vatican has announced.

Cassianus was set upon and slain by his shorthand pupils with the very styluses, or styli, with which he had taught them the useful art of stenography. He was put to death because he refused to make an act of apostacy, or rejection of his early Christian faith.

The saint came from the town of Imola, near Bologna, and was known in the pre-Gregg, pre-Pittman, pre-Speedwriting era as a master of "ars notaria."

Commonwealth Division Supplied By Helicopter

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Ottawa soon will be studying a report on one of the few developments Korea has contributed to the art of modern war.

A bulky document being compiled at Commonwealth Division headquarters describes "Operation Skyhook" in which for three days the division was supplied exclusively by 21 Sikorsky H-19 helicopters.

The report being prepared by a staff under Maj. H. A. Trimble of Ottawa, second-in-command of the formation's army service corps, will go to Ottawa, London, Canberra and Wellington—Commonwealth countries with units fighting here.

SIMULATE FLOOD

For the exercise the Imjin river —theoretically separating the operational from the administrative and servicing elements of the division—was considered to be in flood and its bridges washed out.

The Eighth Army looks on helicopters as just another kind of truck for moving men, equipment and supplies when other means fail. The $300,000 Sikorskys, therefore, were attached to the division's army service corps for the exercise. The 56th Canadian General Transport Company, RCASC, commanded by Maj. E. G. Hessian of London, grounded most of its trucks.

After the three-day work-out the Canadian drivers said: "Helicopters? you can have 'em!"

They weren't impressed, for it's the drivers who loaded and unloaded the aircraft. Mobilized as stevedores, they formed human chains to stow 1,200 pounds of rations at a time inside the machines, or to prepare the 800-pound sling-loads of ammunition and gasoline for hooking onto apparatus underneath the aircraft.

Other work parties worked at the unloading zones, getting the dumped supplies clear and stacked for issuing later to units.

Stones and sand stirred up by the whirling rotors inflicted cuts and broke one man's camera lens. A tail rotor decapitated one Korean assistant. It was hot, grimy, uncomfortable work.

Helicopters came and went every two or three minutes and needed only 20 minutes for each six-mile turn-around.

40-SECOND JOB

At peak perfection, a helicopter could land, be loaded by a chain of eight men and take off again in 40 seconds.

Only advantage appreciated by the men was that each had at least one "chopper" flight during the exercise, and a chance to learn about aircraft previously seen only evacuating casualties.

They learned that it costs $300 an hour to operate a helicopter, that for every hour in flight it needs six in maintenance, that the cost of the rotor blade alone is that of a small luxury automobile.

They learned, too, that weather affects helicopter efficiency. On a hot, humid day helicopters have trouble lifting.

MADE 1,135 LIFTS

In three days "Skyhook" saw a total of 1,135 lifts and 474 tons of supplies carried.

Besides meeting such situations as the marooning of a formation, helicopters could be used, for instance, to fly in mass reinforcements or supplies to a threatened forward area, to round up "stragglers" and return them to the front, to evacuate casualties. In planned operations, after an air drop of paratroops, helicopters might lift in successive waves until a ground link-up has been effected.

The idea behind "Skyhook" was to train the division in just one aspect of helicopter co-operation.

Until "Skyhook" the only previous time Canadians had been supplied in operations by air drops was April 25, 1951, when after winning the battle of Kapyong the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, had ammunition and rations parachuted in from flying box-cars.

Engineers Plan To Meet Soon

TORONTO (CP) — Engineers from the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission and the New York State Power Authority will probably meet within the next two weeks to begin preliminary co-ordination work on the St. Lawrence power project, Robert H. Saunders, commission chairman, said Tuesday night

Mr. Saunders held a conference with Chairman John Burton of the New York agency during the weekend and offered the power authority all the St. Lawrence information gathered by the commission.

Mr. Burton will come to Toronto later this month for further discussions. The New York agency has to wait for 30 days before its licence from the Federal Power Commission takes effect.

Mr. Saunders said he is still hopeful that a start can be made on the project before winter.

Seek To Put Town Of Leamington On Map

LEAMINGTON (CP) — Town council will attempt to have Leamington put on the map.

The council decided to write to the American Automobile Association when it discovered Leamington, about 28 miles southeast of Windsor, is not on maps issued by the association.

Mayor Grace McFarland said Leamington is the biggest town between Windsor and Niagara Falls on Route No. 3.

Sneak Thief Takes $1,500 Diamond Ring

TORONTO (CP)—A sneak thief got away with a $1,500 diamond ring from a store Tuesday by substituting a paste ring for the one on display.

A police circular warning jewelers of a thief employing such methods lay on top of the cash register at the time.

Homer F. Procter, president of the firm, said there were several customers in the store at the time.

FOR YOUNG MEN OF 16

The way to a fine future

The Canadian Army's Soldier Apprentice Plan is the answer for many young men 16 years of age seeking a job with a future. This plan offers a combination of:

- thorough trades training in one of 16 trades.
- academic training — in such subjects as physics, chemistry, algebra, English.
- military training — the basic training of the Canadian Soldier.

Soldier Apprentices live in separate wings under the supervision of selected military and civilian teachers. A carefully balanced programme brings out the best in these young men. Learning and living with other young Canadians stimulates healthy and happy comradeship, as well as pride in their units.

Soldier Apprentices are eligible for all Army benefits, pensions and the 30 days annual leave. They receive half pay while 16 and full pay upon reaching their 17th birthday.

The young man who is interested in the happy, healthy and purposeful life of the Soldier Apprentice should investigate immediately.

Place Of Music In Worship Features Service

SPRINGVILLE (ENS) — "Religion Through Music and Song" was the theme of the union service of the Springville and Fairmount congregation. This service was held at Fairmount church and was in charge of the Young Adult Group whose members come from both churches.

In introducing the topic, Mrs. A. E. Larke said "religion has much to learn from music; for religion deals with life and music is the perfect symbol of life.

"Music is the medium of communication between spiritual beings. God himself speaks through music and song.

"The songs of the people keep alive their spiritual aspirations," said Mrs. Larke. "They cheer, refine and elevate. They furnish the atmosphere whereby one may be lifted, if he will, nearer to God. Music is as much the creation of God as electricity. It is one of the mightiest factors in human life in its influence on ideas, modes and ideals."

Mr. Charles Knight led in the responsive reading and Mr. Clifford Johnston led in prayer.

The offering was also received by two members of the group—Miss Jean Hanbidge and Mrs. Clifford Johnston.

Percy Johnston in introducing the children's hymn told how William Cushing was inspired to write that hymn when he read Malachi 3 verse 17—"They shall be Mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that day when I make up My jewels."

Mrs. Percy Johnston gave a talk on the life of our beloved hymn writer, Joseph Scriven, and read part of his best known hymn, "What a Friend We Have In Jesus". It was written to comfort his mother in a time of special sorrow.

Mrs. Cecil Neals told the story of Charles Bennard, the evangelist, through whose mind the theme and the tune of "The Old Rugged Cross" had been running but the inspiration to write this hymn didn't come until his own personal Gethsemane led him to say "I'll be true to the cross of Jesus, I will cling to it, please God, all my life." The words seemed to tumble forth and it swept the American continent.

Mrs. Larke sang "The Old Rugged Cross" with the congregation joining in on the chorus.

Roger Hanbidge gave interesting biographies of Fanny Crosby, of America and her British contemporary, Frances Ridley Havergal.

Raymond Kelk told the story of Issac Watts, the first author to paraphrase the psalms so they were set to music. For 300 years previously, church people were only permitted to offer praise to God in the words of Scripture. The service closed with the congregation singing Issac Watt's famous Hymn, "When I Survey The Wondrous Cross", and the Benediction.

Union Services will be held next Sunday morning at 11:15 a.m. in Springville Church, with Rev. Chas. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in charge of the service.

WHEN THESE TWO AUTOMOBILES collided head-on on the Warkworth-Hastings Road on Tuesday evening, three men were injured and taken to the Belleville hospital. (Wm. Reid Photo.)

Warkworth Doctor In Car Crash

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Three men were injured 6:30 p.m. Tuesday when two automobiles collided head-on on a county road between Warkworth and Hastings, and a half-mile south of Cuff's Corners.

A car driven by Digby R. Sawtell, 45, of 247 Airdrie Road, Leaside, was proceeding north, and had just rounded a curve up a fairly steep grade. Vincent Jones, 52, of RR 3, Warkworth, was proceeding south approaching the curve when the two vehicles met almost head-on.

Dr. F. R. Brintnell of Warkworth, who was riding as a passenger in the car driven by Sawtell was the most severely injured. He suffered a possible broken hip. Sawtell suffered undetermined minor injuries, while Jones was thought to have several broken ribs. All were taken to Belleville General hospital by Bennett's ambulance of Campbellford.

The force of the impact welded the two vehicles together, and the combined efforts of a wrecking truck and several crow-bars were needed to separate them before they could be towed away.

Provincial Constable Archie Eady of Campbellford, who is investigating the mishap said that no charges have been laid, but that the investigation is not yet complete. The injured men were treated by Dr. R. F. Jolliffe of Warkworth.

Trip Through West Described To WA

WARKWORTH (ENS). — The Women's Association of the Oak Heights United Church held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Archie Ferguson. The president, Mrs. L. Tucker, opened the meeting. Mrs. C. Payne was convener for the devotional period. The Scripture reading from Matthew, 6th chapter, was given by Mrs. E. Pratt. Miss Payne chose for her topic "Two Things Hard to Learn." Mrs. Archie Ferguson and Mrs. E. Pratt sang "God's Way is the Right Way," with all singing the chorus, acompanied by Mrs. C. Ferguson.

Mrs. Tucker conducted the business meeting. Reports were given from the various standing committees.

Mrs. John Ferguson gave a travelogue of her "Summer Tour of 1950," which was taken by bus with a group of about 90 teachers. They travelled through Western Canada and through a great part of the Western States and states bordering on Canada. Some of the places visited were Yellowstone Canyon and Falls, the Geyser known as Old Faithful, Calgary where they attended the Stampede, Banff, Lake Louise, etc. In the seven weeks' trip they covered 9,000 miles.

A 25-cent wrapped gift sale was held, followed by lunch served by the hostess and committee.

Begin Survey

TOKYO (Reuters)—The National Railway Corporation announced that it has begun a survey for a projected underwater tunnel across the 10-mile Tsugaru strait between Honshu and Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island. A team is conducting blasting experiments off Yoshioka, on Hokkaido's southwestern tip, the announcement said.

Says Provinces Won't Dare Not Join Plan

COLLINGWOOD— No provincial government will dare stay out of the national health program which will be introduced at the next session of parliament, David Croll, Liberal candidate in Toronto Spadina, predicted Tuesday night.

"If they stayed out, they not only would be depriving their people of a progressive health measure, but they would be contributing their tax dollars for the health insurance programs of other provinces," he told a Liberal meeting at Collingwood High School.

Mr. Croll was reiterating and fortifying a prediction he made recently in Midland that Ottawa would take the initiative and introduce health insurance legislation without waiting for the provinces to make up their minds.

The coverage of private health insurance plans is too narrow, their service too restricted, and their cost too high, Mr. Croll said.

And the PC proposal—to subsidize a "checkerboard of varying plans" across Canada — by no stretch of the imagination could be called a national plan by anyone, "except the Tories, who no longer can be considered a national party."

Newspaper Suspended

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The government said it had suspended the newspaper El Siglo for one day and briefly detained its editor, Gabriel Carreno. The government information office gave no reason. Another newspaper, El Diario de Colombia, said the suspension followed publication by El Siglo of a political editorial which the government did not like.

Expect Licence In 30 Days For Power Plan

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP)—The chairman of the New York state power authority says that he expects it will receive a federal licence within 30 days to join Canada in developing St. Lawrence river power.

John E. Burton said Tuesday night that about six months after a licence is received the authority will advertise for bids on construction of New York's share of the $600,000,000 project.

The federal power commission has granted the authority permission to join the Ontario hydro electric power commission in building power plants on the International Rapids section of the river. The issuance of a licence would make formal that approval.

6 MONTHS NEEDED

Burton said about six months would be needed for preparation of final construction plans before bids could be sought.

Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario commission, said Tuesday night in Toronto that he hoped the project could be started before winter.

Saunders said engineers from the two agencies will probably meet within the next two weeks to begin preliminary co-ordination work.

Won't Act Immediately On Housing Bylaw

TORONTO (CP)—Reeve Fred McMahon Tuesday night assured North York residents that no steps would be taken immediately to enforce the township's one-family residence by-law.

At a meeting of the North York central community council Mr. McMahon said the Sept. 1 deadline, established earlier, would be changed.

A resolution was passed asking that enforcement of the by-law be put to a vote of the people. After the vote was taken the reeve said no action would be taken until after the resolution had been discussed by council.

Need Tighter Laws Against Dumping

ST. Catharines (CP) — C. F. Woodward, president of the Primary Textiles Institute of Canada, said Tuesday night that tight anti-dumping regulations are urgently needed to stop the flood of "below-cost" textile imports from the United States.

He said imports from the U. S. jumped from $4,375,000 in 1950 to $14,956,000 in 1952. They were continuing an upward trend.

"Canadian workers are working short time," he said, "to help the American manufacturer to over-produce and further lower costs."

P.M. Statements Misleading—CCF

WINNIPEG (CP) — Stanley Knowles, CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre in the last House of Commons and a leading spokesman for his party, said Tuesday night that Prime Minister St. Laurent made statements to mislead the Canadian people as to where the Liberals stand on national health insurance.

Speaking at a nomination meeting which chose Leonard Evans of Transcona, Man., CCF candidate for St. Boniface, Mr. Knowles said Health Minister Martin told Parliament the government would not recommend health insurance on a national scale at this time.

Mr. Knowles said he warned the Liberals at that time not to try to use health insurance in their election platform but Mr. St. Laurent had recently expressed the hope that Canada "some day will have health insurance."

"The right of all Canadian people to health care is all too sacred to be kicked around like a political football," said Mr. Knowles.

Heroic Nurse

NEWHAVEN, England (CP)—The "pauper's grave" of a heroic Irish-born nurse was discovered in this Sussex town by the British Legion, which has had it suitably marked and cared for. The nurse, 60-year-old Mary Elizabeth Collins, aided Allied troops in Paris prisons during the Second World War.

Aluminum Prices Climb After Pay Hike

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Aluminum Company of America, which five days ago granted 30,000 employees a pay boost, has increased aluminum prices from one-half to one cent a pound.

The increases are a half cent on 99 per cent minimum average aluminum pig and one cent on 99 per cent plus basic ingot. This brings the price of pig to 20 cents a pound and ingot to 21½.

Prices on other grades of ingot were increased one-half cent a pound or more depending upon form and composition. The company said other price advances will follow soon.

Alcoa is the largest aluminum producer in the U. S.

In Montreal, a spokesman for the Aluminum Company of Canada said no change is expected in the Canadian price of aluminum.

The Alcan spokesman said: "I've heard nothing about any proposed price change here. Conditions in the States are not the same as in Canada."

Achievement Day Held In Stirling

STIRLING (ENS)—Achievement Day for the home-making clubs of Hastings County was held in Stirling Community hall on Friday. "The Supper Club" was the project carried on by 10 clubs with 85 club members completing the project.

The leaders of the group were congratulated on the way they had carried on the work and each received a badge.

The highlight of the afternoon program was the presentation of three provincial honor certificates for the completion of 12-home-making club projects. These went to Shirley Kerr and Mary Reid of Plainfield and Jean Moore of Queensboro. They will be presented with pins later.

Mrs. S. Faulkner of Stirling, mother of two small children, was taken to Kingston hospital Tuesday morning suffering from polio. The infection appeared to be in her throat.

Earl Lowes Sells Many Articles To Magazines

Earl Lowes, 134 Sutherland Ave., has sold more than 50 stories to Canadian and American magazines in his first year of free-lance magazine writing. He recently "hit" the front cover of a leading American business magazine and had a leading story and other pictures in the same magazine.

The magazine that used his 2,000-word story in a leading position was "Diner and Restaurant" printed in Duluth, Minn.

Mr. Lowes' story and the photographs that accompanied it were about Dave Foster and his Peterborough restaurants. Mr. Foster, a 34-year-old former member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, moved to Peterborough four years ago to become successful in the restaurant business. He first opened a small grill on King St. and three years later opened his large, elaborate restaurant on George St. between King and Sherbrooke St.

"Diner and Restaurant" liked the story so well that they gave it a most prominent position in their publication. The front cover carried an exterior picture of Foster's Restaurant while the inside of the book showed interior pictures of the restaurant and the owner. Mr. Lowes wrote the 2,000-word story. The pictures to accompany it were taken by Jim Choate, of Choate Studios.

EARL LOWES

Mr. Lowes also sold a story on the same restaurants to Canadian Hotel Review and Restaurant and that publication also gave the story a prominent spot and they used five pictures to accompany the story.

Mr. Lowes is a native of Peterborough and he started his newspaper work with the Peterborough Examiner when they were located on George Street. He worked on the Examiner in 1928 and 1929 and then moved to Detroit where he worked on a newspaper. He again worked at the Peterborough Examiner in 1934 and 1935 before going into other work.

Twelve years ago he became Peterborough district correspondent for The Telegram, Toronto, and four years ago he also became district correspondent for The Globe and Mail. He still is correspondent for both papers. Some of the other Canadian and American publications that have accepted his stories are: Family Herald and Weekly Star; Drug Merchandising; The American Jeweller and Horologist; Men's Wear of Canada; Sanitary Engineer; Turkey World; Canadian Hotel Review and Restaurant; The Trader and Canadian Jeweller; The Sporting Goods Dealer; Style; Holstein Michigander; Our Dumb Animals; Laundry and Dry Cleaning; Farmer's Magazine; Hardware and Metal; Painting and Decorating Contractor; Canadian Grocer; and Canadian Baker.

Hard Labor Sentence Quashed For Terrorist

KITALE, Kenya (Reuters)—The Kenya Supreme Court today quashed "Burning Spear" Jomo Kenyatta's hard labor sentence and ordered the controversial native leader to be tried again on charges of running the Mau Mau anti-white terror cult.

The Supreme Court also ordered new trials for five other African leaders convicted and sentenced along with Kenyatta this spring.

The court held that Ransley Thacker, special magistrate who sentenced the men to seven years' hard labor, had no jurisdiction to try them.

The men were arrested last October a few hours after a state of emergency was declared in Kenya because of Mau Mau attacks.

All the accused pleaded innocent.

South Korea To Get Billion

SEOUL (AP)—The U. S. plans to give South Korea about $1,900,000,000 in the next three years to aid Korean reconstruction, RoK Prime Minister Paik Too Chin said today.

President Eisenhower will ask the U. S. Congress to approve $883,000,000 for the three-year program, said Paik, who also is finance minister.

In addition, he said, the United Nations Korean reconstruction agency plans to give South Korea $71,000,000 while U. S. relief donations will amount to about $75,000,000 for 1954.

Paik said he was optimistic concerning South Korea's economic recovery because of the impending aid. He said Henry J. Tasca, U. S. economic adviser to Korea, has made surveys "to restore the living standard of the Korean people to the pre-war level."

HURON HEAVILY DAMAGED—The Canadian destroyer Huron ran aground off the communist North Korean coast Monday and suffered heavy damage, the navy announced July 13. There were no casualties. Shakespeare Performance Shallow N.Y. Critic Says

NEW YORK (CP)—"Spectacular production; shallow performance."

That's the "nutshell" description the New York Times' drama critic, Brooks Atkinson uses today to describe Monday night's performance of "Richard III" that opened the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Ont.

Atkinson says that Tyrone Guthrie, director, and Tanya Moiseiwitsch, designer, have created "an original show out of an ingenious setting, stunning costumes and fluid movement."

But, Atkinson says, "Shakespeare's bloody drama of evil and consequences comes off at second best amid such overpowering externals."

"As the scheming Duke of Gloucester, (Alec) Guinness does settle down to work in the last act, when he plays a king hedged about with treachery and forced to fight for his life . . . These (last) scenes are Mr. Guinness' finest and the most coherent in the entire performance."

ALMOST TOO LATE

By this time, however, Atkinson says, "it is almost too late to make a headlong melodrama out of the legend of the evil genius of the House of York.

"For Mr. Guinness is a brilliant comedian, and he plays the first two acts in a light, witty key of subtle persiflage.

As Queen Margaret, Irene Worth "gives a penetrating performance of real quality. Her acting has scope and bravura in the style of one of the furies.

"Robert Goodier's resolute, cool-headed Richmond helps enormously to put into balance the dramatic forces of the last act. . . .

"Although Robert Christie's Buckingham has voice and stature, it conveys little of the cynical opportunism of that forceful man of mind and action.

GENERALLY COMPETENT

"The cast is a long one, but generally competent and talented, for Mr. Guinness is better supported than many stars who play Shakespeare."

Walter Kerr says in the New York Herald Tribune that the Guinness role is a tourist-trade natural not only for its rustic authenticity but because it gives a superb comedian "a crack at the bloodiest villain of them all."

On the whole Kerr praises Guinness' portrayal of Richard but says that although the comedian is fun to watch, there is "maybe too much fun."

". . . Before the second of the production's three parts is over, the clown in Mr. Guinness has got the upper hand. Having wept over Hastings' head, he tosses it away like a football. Having casually remarked, 'chop off his head man,' he looks up with a 'what-have-I-said?' expression worthy of Stan Laurel."

He adds that "though the full roar of Shakespeare's 'Richard' may be missing from this summer-time excursion, Stratford still is in possession of a jaunty, colorful show."

Threatens To Complain

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton has threatened to complain to the RCMP unless the crown attorney takes faster action to stop whoever is mailing her anti-semitic propaganda. LUNGE GRABS PICKEREL

Fishing guide Forrest Dennis of Crowe Lake was guiding Morris Ruben of Verona, Pa., when, after hooking a pickerel a 'lunge grabbed for it, knocked the pickerel off the single-hook line and got caught itself. The big one was finally landed and weighed 20 pounds. The guide's theory for luring big ones is simple, "Use big bait".

FELL FROM CAR

Mary Ann Carr, four, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carr of Ennismore, was held overnight in Civic Hospital where she was treated after she fell out of a moving car. The child sustained lacerations to her upper lips, nose and skull and brush burns. Hospital officials say her condition is satisfactory.

COMMEMORATE E. A. PECK

The name of the late Edward Armour Peck, who was head of the law firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry, was proposed for the name of a suitable new street in Ashburnham at a meeting in the City Hall Tuesday. It was placed on City Engineer Chalmers' list. With him were Mayor Waddell and Ald. Anglesey. The council requested them to consider the renaming of some streets that have been duplicated in annexation of township areas.

FISHING REPORT, CROWE RIVER

Young Michael Kouri rowed his two brothers-in-law down the Crowe River below Marmora for a spot of pan fishing. After hooking a rock bass a 'lunge grabbed the "baited" hook and after some tussling, without a gaff, the anglers managed to land the big fish, a 13¾ pounder. A week before Michael's brother, Richard, is reported to have taken a pickerel weighing about nine pounds in the same spot.

Rambling Reporter

NOT BISLEY TIMBER

This is a story of two sharpshooters—a man and a skunk. It happened recently in a berry patch at Stewart Hall. A farmer spied the skunk foraging in his garden and yelled for his sister to bring the .22. She did and the farmer opened fire and his aim was poor. Each bullet that he pumped into the vicinity of the ambling skunk caused it to start and jump while it went on its way. But finally a shot found the mark and the berry patch was safe once more. On being chided by his sister about poor marksmanship, the farmer admitted that he wasn't a crack shot by any means and that the next time he was willing to let the sister take over.

Mrs. David Law 80 Years In City Dies At Age 94

Mrs. Anne Eliza Law, widow of David Law, who predeceased her in 1927, died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. Routly, 336 Downie St.

5,780 People On Holiday Friday Night

Many Factories Close For Two Weeks In Annual Shut Down

When they leave their factories and offices Frdiay evening 5,780 employees in Peterborough industry will be starting their annual two-week vacations. And a week later the number of employees on vacation will soar over the 6,000 mark.

During this two-week period there is a mass exodus from the city and downtown merchants have to shrug off the usual dip in sales. Even the heavy influx of tourists cannot make up for the drop in business and the semi-evacuated appearance of the city.

RETAIN SKELETON STAFF

Taking their cue from the Canadian General Electric Co., the city's largest industry, most firms shut down the plants and give both the production employees and the clerical employees their vacations at the same time. A skeleton staff of maintenance men and watchmen remain.

Some employees have three-week vacations but this third week is generally arranged at some other time by mutual consent. Many of the men who have a third week pick the fall when hunting season is on; others have already had it.

CGE employees leave work this Friday and do not come back till Tuesday August 4. They get an extra day as Monday is the Civic Holiday. On holidays from the evening of July 17 to the morning of August 4 are the following firms and the approximate number of their employees:

CGE 4,000, Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co. 135, Western Clock Co. 700, DeLaval Co. Ltd. 400, A. Wander Ltd. 40, Dominion Woollens and Worsteds 200, Canadian Raybestos Co. 170, Canadian Nashua Paper Co. (one department) 25, and Colonial Weaving Co. 60.

The gumming department of Canadian Nashua Paper, consisting of 25 employees, are the only ones off in a group at that firm; the 75 others have their holidays scattered throughout the year.

During the second week of the big factory shutdown in Peterborough, some 250 employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. begin holidaying. They are off from the evening of July 24 to the morning of August 10.

800 ON AGUST 3

The 800 Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. employees are on vacation August 3 to August 17, inclusive. They start work on Tuesday, August 18.

There is no shutdown of the large Canada Packers plant here. The 300 employees make individual arrangements for their vacations.

This is a busy season for the Canadian Sealright Co. so there is no plant shutdown till fall for their 70 employees. The exact date for their vacation period has not yet been decided. It is usually around Thanksgiving.

Bears Raid Cabin Tourists Take Off

Bears and tourists frightened each other out of the Bancroft area in a brief encounter Sunday and neither has been seen since.

Tenants of a bungalow at Six-Point Lodge were awakened by a racket in their kitchen in early morning hours Sunday and upon insection, saw a black bear in the flashlight beam. The lady screamed, the door banged, the bear took off through the screen and headed for the bush. A few hours later, the same bear or another, came back and noisily ransacked the garbage can. The dog was aroused and gave chase—luckily not catching the bear.

The tenants packed and left next morning after describing something more resembling an Alaska Kodiak than any black bear found in this vicinity.

Mrs. Greene, owner of the lodge, is inclined to believe that the mischief was the work of two well-grown cubs. She says, a frightened bear will run for miles without stopping or looking back.

Injured Teen-Ager Dies In Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Shutsa, 18, of Guelph, one of seven teen-agers injured in an automobile accident Sunday, died in hospital here today.

The group was thrown from the car when it overturned on the Puslinch road, three miles west of Guelph. Police said the car swerved to avoid a parked vehicle.

TAIL-GATE RIDER — Whenever Jim Mitchell, Sherbrooke St. West, goes for a drive in his half-ton truck, his pet, Smokey, a police dog, must go along too. But Smokey doesn't like the front seat; he prefers to sit on the tail gate. This way he sees everything and is much cooler. He takes his favorite position only when the car is moving so this demonstration had to be arranged by Jim Mitchell. Smokey also likes boats and a quick spin around the lake. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Vagrant Adds 1 More Penalty To List Of 65

After hearing a promise from an accused charged with vagrancy that he would be "out of town within an hour," Magistrate R. B. Baxter sent him out of town his own way . . . for six months.

The penalty was imposed in view of Joseph Turcotte's previous record, between 65 and 75 convictions on charges ranging from drunk to breaches of the Railway Act.

"I submit the accused's record, Your Worship," Crown Attorney Bradshaw said as he walked over with a sheaf of papers to the bench. "It's a very long one."

RIGHT!

After leafing through it a second, Magistrate Baxter observed: "That's an understatement". He estimated the number of previous convictions at between 65 and 75.

"I would judge, Your Worship, he's one of the crop of war veterans who have thought the world has owed them a living ever since," the Crown commented.

Turcotte, a 40 year-old laborer, has no fixed address, but said he last stayed at Kingston.

His address for the next six months will be one of Ontario's reformatories.

Outboards Stolen

COBOURG —(ENS)—Five outboard motors have been stolen recently from tourist resorts in the Rice Lake district Prov. Const. Lyle Erskine revealed today. He believes it is the work of a ring operating from outside the district. Two of the motors were stolen July 7 on the north shore of Rice Lake and three Sunday in Gore's Landing.

Hamilton Has More Shipping

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton harbor handled almost half a million more tons of shipping in the first six months of 1953 than in the same period in 1952 it was revealed today by Ross Harstone, chairman of the board of harbor commissioners.

From Jan. 1 to June 30 this year, a total of 2,551,735 tons of shipping went through the harbor. This was an increase of 439,572 tons, almost 25 per cent over the same six months last year.

Increased activity at Dominion Foundries and Steel Limited and the Steel Company of Canada Limited was said by Mr. Harstone to be one of the reasons for the increase, along with foreign cargoes of cement.

CARS HIT AT CURB

Damage was estimated at $70 in a two-car accident on Stewart St. Tuesday, involving David F. Lehman, 64, of 650 Downie, and Mrs. Grace Wilson, 45, of RR 3, Lakefield. Lehman was parked at the east curb of Stewart St. when he pulled out from the curb and met in collision with the right side of the Wilson car, driving north. Damages to the Lehman car were set at $25, and to the Wilson vehicle, $45.

Services Paid On Lots Hatton Property

If you are thinking of buying a lot and building a house for yourself, here is a little tip, carrying a profit, to remember:

The services are paid for on the 95 lots of the former Hatton property that are to be sold by Central Mortgage and Housing Company sometime this fall.

Sewer and water mains and the roadway were laid by Wartime Housing Company when the property was bought for temporary housing accommodation for workers moving into Peterborough for industrial employment during the war.

MAY REBUILD ROADS

That means, no charges for water connections, no taxes for sewer debentures, but it may be that the roads, Holloway, Armstrong, and Victory Drive, will be rebuilt with more concern for permanence than when they were first prepared.

John Wocker, of Central Mortgage, said today that the evacuated Hatton property would be resurveyed. That may take three months. As recently reported from a city council meeting, the original 157 lots are to be reduced to 95, each with a frontage of 60 feet.

The interesting fact is that when the Corporation decides on the price of the 95 lots, the cost of services will be included in the package.

Young Bicyclist Hits Windshield

A 14 year-old bicyclist sustained a cut to the left shoulder, bruises and shock after he catapulted from the seat of the bike into a car window after the car hit head-on.

The boy, Gerald Vincent, 624 Charlotte St., did not require hospital treatment. He had pulled around a double parked car on Water St. while riding south and struck the oncoming car.

The northbound vehicle was driven by Austin Morris, 483 Hamilton St.

Damage was estimated at $25 to the car and $20 to the bicycle.

Simpson-Sears To Erect Department Store On 10-Acre Site In City

Company Plans To Develop Property At Lansdowne St. and Monaghan Rd. Into Important Shopping Centre

Simpsons-Sears Limited, Toronto, have selected Peterborough as the site of their first department store to be built in Eastern Canada. This announcement today was authorized by the president of the company, E. G. Burton. Property has been bought at the southwest corner of Lansdowne St. and Monaghan Rd., Mr. Burton stated, tenders will be called for in the near future, and it is expected that construction will be begun early in the fall.

"In addition to the new Simpsons-Sears store, it is planned to develop the property as an important shopping centre."

AMPLE PARKING SPACE

"The ten-acre area is readily accessible by public transportation, and ample parking space will be available for customers.

"The Simpsons-Sears store will be a modern two-storey building with a gross floor space of 51,055 square feet.

"A full range of merchandise will be available, including the famous Sears lines, many of which are now being manufactured in Canada.

"This is the fourth new department store to be announced by Simpson-Sears, since the formation of the company, January 8, 1953. The others are in Vancouver, Nanaimo and Hamilton."

ON LANSDOWNE ST.

Of collateral interest in this announcement is the location of the Peterborough store and its significance as a trend in modern merchandising. The ten acres mentioned by Mr. Burton are on the south side of Lansdowne St., opposite St. Peter's cemetery.

It faces both on Monaghan Road and Lansdowne St. Recently it was learned that Canadian Oil Company has taken a 40-year yease on 20,000 sq. ft. at that corner. Their frontage extends 100 feet south on Monaghan Road and 200 ft. westerly on Lansdowne St.

Simpsons-Sears have bought the rest of the block that used to be known as the John Curran property. In its entirety it consisted of approximately twelve acres with a total linear frontage of 660 feet on Lansdowne St.

A hint of this Simpsons-Sears project, promising an important new development in the city's merchandising, was mentioned in the Examiner a week ago, but the release of the news was not authorized until late Tuesday afternoon.

It was first reported to the Examiner by City Clerk Outram in confidence that has been respected since then, probably 10 weeks ago. The company's organization last January was generally recognized as an amalgamation of interests of the R. Simpson Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Sear-Roebuck Co. in the United States.

In the news last winter it was indicated that Simpsons-Sears would proceed to acquire a chain of merchandising outlets across Canada. Of deep satisfaction to Peterborough and its citizens is Mr. Burton's statement that the construction of the first store in the eastern provinces will be in this city.

MADE SURVEY OF CITY

A thorough survey of the city preceded the acquiring of the Lansdowne St. site. With some ten acres now at their disposal, the company has ample room for building with a spacious area of off-street parking.

This location reflects the recognition by business today of the advantage of adjoining parking space for customer cars. It is close to three of the city's bus lines reaching into the southwest section of the city, and more than that, Peterborough itself is the centre of a large trading area of 40 to 50 miles radius.

Mr. Burton's statement included the information that plans are now being drawn for the Peterborough store. There may be further promise in what may be the policy of the company to have its supplier manufacturing plants develop in the cities chosen for its retail stores. Presumably Simpsons-Sears merchandising may extend here into its mail order department.

First surprise of the choice of local site was immediately followed by the realization of trend in new business locations making essential provision for the automobile trade.

Executors of the John Curran estate are: Fred J. Overend, Frank J. Hickey and William Grady. It was a bequest to the House of Providence by the late John Curran.

"We have been in touch with Simpsons-Sears since the first of last November," Mayor Waddell said today. "That is when an agent of the new company arrived here to make a survey and eventually to recommend a site.

"I consider this is one of the most important developments in the city in quite a number of years. I am sure we will all be delighted to know that Peterborough stands near the top in the company's list of cities across Canada in which Simpsons-Sears intend to build their new chain of mercantile stores. We have known that Mr. E. G. Burton was quite keen for Peterborough. This shopping centre should be an important addition to the business life of the city."

SCENE OF TWO TRAGEDIES in almost a year is small Horseshoe Lake about 15 miles north of Bancroft. Monday night four Toronto children, Bernice, Donna and Donald MacRae, and Norman Cheeseman were burned to death when a two-room cabin owned by Donald R. MacRae of Weston, a Toronto suburb, burned to the ground. The patch of ruins can be seen on the near shore. A year ago, July 6, Yvonne MacRae, a sister, saved a girl in the lake while two other girls, both from Maynooth, drowned at a point marked by the X. Harry Oakman's aerial photo clearly shows the tragic scene.

Port Traffic At Halifax Showing Steady Increase

By JACK BEST

HALIFAX (CP)—Though traffic in some important commodities has ceased because of economic upheaval at home and abroad, this seaport has watched its waterfront business grow steadily since the end of the war.

To some extent, Halifax has beaten the boom-bust cycle that used to bring partial recession when the St. Lawrence river opened to ocean shipping in the spring. A fairly steady stream of passenger and cargo ships has arrived here since the ports of Montreal and Quebec City opened this year.

J. R. Mitchell, port manager, says Newfoundland's entry into Confederation had a lot to do with the improvement. Much of the cargo formerly shipped to the 10th province from United States ports now goes through Halifax.

In addition, large quantities of Newfoundland fish now are brought here for trans-shipment.

FAR EAST BUSINESS

Another significant development is increased trade from the Far East in crude rubber, tea and other cargo. Two or three ships arrive from the Orient each week whereas often in the past a month produced no greater volume.

Mr. Mitchell estimates that volume handled has doubled since before the war. In the forefront of the expansion is grain, of which 13,779,750 bushels were shipped during the first six months of this year, an increase of nearly 4,000,000 bushels over the same period in 1952.

Port authorities are expecting big things of a 2,000,000-bushel elevator and steel conveyor being built at a cost of about $1,500,000 and scheduled for completion in December.

The new elevator will bring the total waterfront capacity to 4,250,000 bushels and permit large-scale stockpiling of grain during the summer for shipment immediately after the winter season opens in December. Until now movement of grain to the Maritimes has not begun until the St. Lawrence ports close and first shipments from here were held up until January.

INCREASED VOLUME

Commodities which have risen in import volume include crude and fuel oils, 2,500,000 tons of which were handled in 1952 compared with 11,000 tons in 1937, and gasoline which jumped from 309,000 to 600,000 tons in the same period.

On the export side, 26,000 tons of aluminum were shipped in 1952. It wasn't even mentioned in the 1937 report.

On the other hand the shutdown of the Acadia sugar refinery at nearby Woodside 11 years ago erased imports of raw sugar which totalled 65,000 tons in 1937.

Exports of apples from the Annapolis valley, which sent 76,000 tons to the United Kingdom in 1937, stopped altogether last year as the UK continued to have exchange difficulties.

Canadians Given Chance In Play At Stratford

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — A reigning actress of the British stage and a group of young Canadian actors combined their talents Tuesday night for the presentation of "All's Well That Ends Well," the second production at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

Irene Worth and the Canadians shared most of the stage time, a reverse of the opening night performance of "Richard III" in which the play was carried by 29-year-old Alex Guinness, famed British stage and film actor. Guinness appeared in Tuesday night's presentation, which will alternate with "Richard III" throughout the five-week festival, but he took rather a back seat.

"All's Well," it is believed, has never before been presented on the professional stage in North America. It was in modern dress.

GETS HER MAN

Miss Worth, 37-year-old American-born veteran of both the British and American stage, portrays Helena, the heroine who sets out to get her man—and does.

The hero, Bertram, is played by Donald Harron, versatile young Toronto actor, well-known for his work on the CBC and on the stage in Canada, the United States and Britain.

The king of France is played by Guinness and Diana, by Beatrice Lennard, a native of Toronto.

Eleanor Stuart a native of Montreal, plays Bertram's mother.

Plan Display Jet Strength

SOESTERBERG AIRBASE, Holland (CP)—Canada's contribution toward arming North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations will be exhibited here July 18 when the Royal Netherlands Air Force celebrates its 40th anniversary with a display of jet strength.

More than 400 planes from Canada and seven other NATO nations will join in Western Europe's biggest air show, from the field where the first Netherlands air force plane took off in 1913.

Representing Canada will be three squadrons of Canadian-built Sabre jet fighters from the RCAF's No. 3 fighter wing at Zweibruecken, Germany. Leading them will be Wing Cmdr. R. T. P. Davidson of Vancouver.

With the United States and United Kingdom, Canada has supplied arms and training to the rebuilt Netherlands air force, as she has to France, Denmark, Italy and Belgium.

Supplied under her two-year, $361,383,000 mutual air program have been armaments, ammunition, jet engines and other equipment. Last year, she trained 1,400 pilots and navigators for continental NATO countries.

Guest of honor at the air show will be Queen Juliana of The Netherlands.

Four Lodges March At Bancroft July 11

BANCROFT (ENS)—Orange celebrations in Bancroft were on a smaller scale than usual this year, only four lodges, those of Palmer Rapids, Monteagle Valley, Maple Leaf, and Bancroft paraded.

The parade was led through the town by the Madoc town band and wound up at the sportsground where the gathering was addressed by Wor. Bro. Higgins, county master, Wor. Bro. T. W. Tryon, PCM, and Wor. Bro. H. A. Graham.

Races and field events were held and a baseball game between Hermon and Bancroft was won by the home team.

A dinner was served in the Legion Hall by the Bancroft Ladies LOBA.

Privy Council Still Hearing Appeal Cases

LONDON (CP) — Canada's connection with the judicial committee of Britain's Privy Council is in the same situation as the song which had ended but whose melody lingered on.

Canada cut off civil judicial appeals to the Privy Council in 1949, establishing that the Supreme Court of Canada henceforth would serve as the final appeal.

The Privy Council however, still hears about eight or more Canadian appeals a year, under the decision that cases in process prior to January, 1949, could be taken to the Privy Council for appeal purposes, if necessary.

No one knows or will estimate the number of Canadian cases still to be heard. Officials of the administrative part of the council court know officially how many probably will be heard this year. They can only guess how many are to come.

So far this year, the privy council has disposed of five cases, granted leave to appeal in one case and is scheduled to try to fit two or three more appeals in, if possible.

TENSION IN EGYPT—A British soldier grips a bayoneted rifle as he and fellow troops guard a bridge across Sweet Water Canal at Ismailia in the troubled Canal Zone after angry Egyptian officials defied an ultimatum to return a kidnapped British airman. British troops have clamped an iron ring of armored cars and machine guns around the strategic Canal Zone town and ordered a search of all vehicles and trains moving in and out of the area. Below, an armed Tommy stoops to search a line of grim-faced bus passengers on the outskirts of the tank-cordoned city.

The 15 players cancelled passages on the liner Queen Elizabeth in Paris late Thursday after United States immigration officials refused permission for the team to stay at Glen Cove, the Long Island home of the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

Choosing Black No Way To Appear Slim

You're probably familiar with the picture of the overweight woman trying to look thinner by enveloping herself in black. Perhaps the picture is of yourself.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that head-to-toe black is your onl ysolution or even the best one. It looks even more funereal on you than on your slimmer sisters. You'll want at least one black dress in your wardrobe, of course. But be sure to relieve it with at least one touch of color.

You can wear almost any color that you'll be wearing when you're slimmer. There are only a few dont's. Don't wear light pastels, such as chartreuse or shocking pink. Some white is very "youthifying" for you but it mustn't be an all-white dress. And the white should not be chalky, but more on the oyster side.

Your choice of fabric is probably wider than you believed possible. You have your pick of taffeta, pliable worsted, lace, faille, chiffon, dull crepe, linen, and cottons with body.

Avoid bulky fabrics such as the heavy tweeds and wools. On the other hand, there must be sufficient body in the fabric to eliminate possible clinging. Have your skirts lined with taffeta if there is a tendency for them to "sit out."

The rule for necklines is simple. Avoid the round—whether in a high, round neckline, a Peter Pan collar or a bateau. You are limited here. There is only the square neckline or the narrow V, as plunging as modesty permits.

The fleshiest part of the arm should always be covered but with a puffed sleeve. The sleeve should never cut into and outline the flesh.

Bancroft Man Weds Toronto Girl

North Parkdale United Church manse, Toronto, was the setting for a wedding recently when Miss Louise Burton, of Toronto, was united in marriage with Mr. Gerald Edward Towle of Bancroft.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burton of Niagara Falls, Ontario. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Francis Towle of Bancroft and the late Mrs. Towle. The Rev. Milton Sanderson performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a dress of ice blue silk shantung, white hat and matching accessories and her flowers were a cascade of pink roses and white gladioli.

Miss A. B. Bell of Collingwood was maid of honor, wearing a gown of daffodil yellow nylon net over satin, fashioned on red-ingie lines, navy blue satin, and white gloves, and she carried a nosegay of pale blue carnations and pink roses.

Mr. Jack Russell was groomsman for his cousin.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's brother Mr. Norman Burton, Long Branch, Ont.

For the honeymoon the bride travelled in a navy blue dress with white accessories. On their return they will live in Bancroft.

THE FITTED SUIT is far and away the suit this fall. We show one version (left) in a mauvy woollen mixture. Very fitted, it has black velvet Mandarin-type collar and curved, pointed flange at bust line. Box jacket suit (right) nips in at the waist. This design is in an Italian rib worsted, the jacket in red and the skirt in black.

Autumn Suits Fitted With Gentleness

The suit assumes a soft and gentle look for fall. This is the year of the fitted suit; even the box suit has taken on a tapered look about the jacket.

The variations in the fitted suit are many but all are characterized by a rounded hipline. Newest of the variations is the suit that's bloused and belted in easy fashion. Tucks, pleats or shirring come from smooth yokes and are narrowed at the waist by a belt, wide or narrow.

In one of the many sleek fabrics, the black suit takes on a newly elegant look and is often given a touch of mink at collar or cuffs. Shiny trim, in harmony with fabric, finds expression in jet or braid or satin binding. Velvet makes another sleek touch.

The tapered box suit and the short jacket suit have prettier tops. A short jacket often appears in the company fo a peg-top skirt.

In picking your suit this year, remember that there's a fitted suit for each need and figure type. You'll find the suit that's exactly right for you, with only a little hunting. Pick out your color from black, the rosy reds, the shades ranging from beige to brown. Try a sleek fabric or tweed flecked with color, a colored fannel or one of the herringbones.

Parents Use Summer Camps As Dumping Grounds

TORONTO (CP)—Camps taking children under six years of age are in danger of becoming dumping grounds for youngsters from broken homes.

This is the opinion of Mary Barker, national secretary of health and physical education of the Young Women's Christian Association, who said here in a recent interview that a child should be about 12 or 13 before being sent to camp.

Children under the ages of eight or nine are not ready for "real camping" and group participation, she said. Some 1,000 children under six years of age were in so-called summer camps last year in Ontario.

It is a serious problem, she feels, that has come to the fore since the Second World War and can also be seen in the increasing demand for nursery schools.

SEEK HIGHER STANDARDS

The Ontario Camping Association, Miss Barker said, is attempting to have standards set to avoid the situation developing whereby any place with clean water could be called a camp.

Many parents, perhaps both working, are only trying to do what they think best for their children, she said. But the very young child who attends "nursery" boarding school and then goes to "pre-camping camp" knows little of family life.

Camping has long been a major project with the YWCA.

Twenty-one YWCA's across Canada have camps and an estimated 6,000 to 7,000 will attend them this summer.

Average cost for a week at one of these camps is $22 and some youngsters are subsidized by various organizations.

At one time the business girl was a great camper but today few go to camps, Miss Barker said. She believes the wide choice of resorts and "packaged trips" is the explanation.

Canadian Ballet Company To Appear At U.S. Festival

TORONTO (CP)—The National Ballet Company will open its new season and make its first appearance in the United States with a week-long series of performances starting Aug. 4 at the famed Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival held near Lee, Mass.

It is the first time a ballet company from outside the United States has been asked to appear at the festival, founded and directed by Ted Shawn. The festival features such top names in the dancing world as Alicia Markova, Toronto-born Melissa Hayden and Jose Limon.

The Canadian company, under direction of Celia France, will take 15 dances. Musical director George Crum of Toronto and stage manager David Haber of Quebec City, also will accompany the group.

The Canadians repertoire includes "Lilac Garden," choreographed by Anthony Tudor, in which Miss Franca made her ballet debut in London; the second act of "Coppelia;" "Afternoon of a Faun," choreographed by Miss Franca; the first act pas de deux from "Giselle;" the second act of "Nuteracker," and the pas de deux from "Don Quixote."

The National Ballet Company, formed in February, 1951, gave its premier performance in November of the same year. Last year it played to more than 65,000 persons on a coast-to-coast tour.

Dancers who are to attend the festival are: Celia Franca, Lillian Jarvis, Olivia Wyatt, Glen Gibson, Myrna Aaron, of Toronto; Louis Smith, Robert Ito, Vancouver; Grant Strate, Cardston, Alta.; David Adams, Winnipeg; Judie Colpman, Kenora, Ont.; Colleen Keeney, St. Thomas, Ont.; Earl Kraul, London, Ont.; James Ronaldson, Montreal; Juris Gotshalks and his wife, Irene Apine, Halifax.

The company will start a tour of the Maritime Provinces in September. Western Canada will be visited in January.

No Feathers From Sky Says Charlotte

Mayor Whitton will take to the sky in a helicopter next Fall to start off the Ottawa Community Chest campaign, but she and Board of Control today shot down a proposal to drop 40,000 red feathers (some attached to $5 merchandise certificates) over Confederation Square.

The "feathers from the sky" proposal was received by the Board today in a letter from the advertising committee of the Community Chests.

The Board supported the position taken by Works Commissioner Irvine who pointed out that "unless all traffic is stopped there would be a danger of accidents in the rush to find certificates".

He stated the "collection of discarded litter would involve extra street cleaning work".

"Why can't we co-operate with these people and help push the Red Feather campaign?" Controller Donaldson asked.

"We are co-operating Mayor Whitton retorted.

"I was asked to go up in a helicopter over centre town at the start of the drive, and I've agreed to do that.

"But can you imagine what it would be like, with 40,000 red feathers raining down in that busy area within a short time, at a busy hour, and crowds of people including children running everywhere in a search for maybe 100 certificates that might be among the 40,000 feathers?"

E. R. Fisher, chairman of the advertising committee of the Community Chests, said special Red Feather editions of newspapers were planned, for September 30, at which time most of the important local retailers would advertise "Red Feather Specials" for sale October 1.

To attract more people to the downtown area on that day, permission was asked to drop 40,000 red feathers (they would be made of cardboard, about eight inches long) in Confederation Square the morning of October 1. Attached to "certain of them" would be $1 and $5 merchandise certificates.

Board of Control turned down the request on grounds of safety, the litter which would result, and the recommendation of the works commissioners.

St. John Officer Sails To U.K.

LONDON, Ont. (CP).—Mrs. R. H. Back of London, St. John Ambulance Brigade Cadet Officer for Ontario, sails today for England to attend the Cadet Commonwealth Camp at Ockenden, Essex, July 31 to Aug. 7.

A district officer in England before coming to Canada in 1946, Mrs. Back organized the original wartime camp in 1943.

More than 2,000 cadets and officers will attend from Australia, New Zealand, Union of South Africa, India, Rhodesia, Kenya, Malta, Singapore, Canada and Ireland.

Three other Canadians attending are: Mabel Samson and Irene Trowsdale, both of the Victoria Nursing Cadet Division, Victoria, B.C., and Margaret Davies of Ottawa.

Girl 9 Admits 3 Burglaries

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP).—A nine-year-old girl who banged on a big steel safe with a hammer in an attempt to open it was held for juvenile court authorities as a confessed burglar.

Sheriff's officers were more than surprised — they wouldn't believe her confession at first.

"We were extremely doubtful that the youngster accomplished the three burglaries alone," said Hal Doss, chief criminal deputy. "Having completed our investigation, we are convinced she did enter all three places."

Picked up after the burglary of a private residence, the child told officers of two more burglaries. In one, the child said, "I used a hammer to pound on that big thing in the corner to get it open."

She failed, but took other articles. In a roller rink she escaped with skates valued at $32, a billfold, candy and souvenir coins.

DOROTHY DIX:

Good Neighbor Fails To Attend Church

DEAR MISS DIX: We want your opinion of one of our neighbors. She is a newcomer from a distant state, and her ways are altogether different than ours. For one thing, we are all religious, and regular churchgoers. She never goes to church. She is a good woman, a wonderful wife and mother, with two fine, married children. She's very popular with the young people in town, and they [illegible] her. She's very intelligent and well-educated. She's right at hand when anyone is sick or in trouble, and always seems to know just what to do. She seems to have just two main interests, her home and her garden. She raises flowers, which the rest of us think is foolish since the ground would be more usefully employed if planted with vegetables. Our children tell us that we should try to be more like her rather than try to change her to our ways.

MRS. W. J.

ANSWER: I'd like to live in your community and have a neighbor like yours. Once in a blue moon I hear of one; usually my mail contains nothing but complaints about sour, unfriendly persons who want no part of community life.

PRAISE FOR NEIGHBOR

Of course the ideal situation would be for your neighbor to go to church, and be neighborly as she is. You and the other people of your town have fine intentions: it would be well, however, to leave the evangelizing to your minister, and learn the fundamentals of true charity from your new neighbor. Don't worry about her garden, either. Vegetables are necessary, of course, but beauty also has an important place in life. If sermons are to be found in stones, they are present a hundredfold in a flowering garden. Why not try to raise a few flowers yourself, and see if serving their loveliness doesn't give you a new outlook?

Never let the conventionalities of religion blind you to the goodness in people. Accept, gratefully, the blessing of a good neighbor, and by example, rather than outspoken criticism, show her the value of your way, and don't fail to see hers.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What does a girl do, when after seven years of married life her husband begins to go out almost every night on any pretext? He plays ball, attends meetings at the men's club, or works for a church fund-raising campaign. We have two children, so naturally I can't go with him as we can't afford a baby sitter. We only have three rooms, therefore, I can't find much to occupy my time. I'm sure there's no other woman involved.

FRAN

ANSWER: Since your husband has found relaxation with church and community work, you can do likewise. Your older child is in kindergarten, which must give you an opportunity to meet young mothers in similar circumstances. You could exchange baby-sitting services with them, getting out with your husband one night a week, and finding a little time during the day to help out, perhaps, on the same fund-raising campaign. Ask to do some work for this fund, such as addressing envelopes at home, or a similar job that can be done during your leisure time. Discuss the problem with your husband, even though he's reluctant to talk at first. Matters as vital as this should not be permitted to slide along in hope of an ultimate solution. They must be faced as they come along.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a girl of 16, in love with my chemistry teacher. I think he likes me, too, but my friends tease me about him. Don't you think my love for him could be sincere?

BERYL

ANSWER: If the teacher is as attractive as you describe him, be assured, most other girls in school are equally in love with him. If your one-sided romance satisfies you, go ahead with your crush, but don't expect your love to be returned.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cheese and Bacon Casserole On Special-Purpose Menu

Mac 'n Cheese 'n Bacon Casserole
Buttered New Beets
Individual Salads
Fresh Raspberries or Blueberries and Cream
Last-Minute Cake with Topping
Iced Coffee or Iced Tea

The virtues of this meal are twofold. If you are almost out of food before you buy your weekend groceries and you are short of time, the macaroni dish solves the first problem and the last-minute cake the second.

If you will pardon a smidgin of boastfulness I want to draw your attention to the topping of the cake. Brown sugar and nuts sprinkled on top of the unbaked batter is an old story, but the cocoa added to the sugar is a new idea I think, and gives the finished effect of a crunchy chocolate frosting. My young people loved it.

MAC 'N CHEESE 'N BACON CASSEROLE

For four people boil ½-pound macaroni or spaghetti or noodles in 1 quart salted water until tender. Drain. Turn this into a casserole. Add 3 cups hot milk in which you have heated ½-pound sliced processed cheese. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Top with slices of back bacon—there should be 2 slices for each person to be served. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 60 or 75 minutes.

Sometimes I find that when I make a bowlful of salad a little of it is left. I lament this for I hate waste. So I have taken to making individual salads on bread-and-butter plates and they are always eaten to the last leaf. For this one on each plate I put ¼ of a small head of lettuce, 4 slices each cucumber and tomato and 4 radishes. We passed mayonnaise. Carrot strips could have been added or strips of green pepper.

LAST-MINUTE CAKE WITH TOPPING

Sift flour and measure 1½ cups. Stand sifter in mixing bowl, put flour in it, add 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and sift together into bowl. Now add 4 tablespoons soft shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat hard until batter is smooth. Pour into buttered square pan which has been lined with buttered wax paper. Mix together 1 tablespoon cocoa, 2/3 cup brown sugar and sprinkle evenly over batter. Sprinkle over that ½ cup chopped walnuts. Bake cake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 minutes. Allow to cool in pan, then cut into squares.

ICED COFFEE

Make coffee twice as strong as for hot coffee. Fill tall glasses with ice cubes. If you like sugar add it now. (The reducers would add a sucaryl tablet at this stage if they take their coffee sweet.) Pour boiling hot double strength coffee directly over the ice cubes to within 1-inch of top of glass. Those who take cream will enjoy this next idea. Pour very heavy cream very carefully into the glass at the very edge—or pour it into a spoon and tip the spoon so the cream flows down the side of the glass. This way the heavy cream forms a layer on top of the coffee. Carefully slip in your straw. The bottom of the straw will be full of heavy cream, then follows the iced coffee. The effect of these layered flavors is delicious. A restaurant in New York charges 60 cents for this summer cooler.

ICED TEA

Fill tall glasses with ice. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and sugar if used. Brew tea 4 minutes, using twice as much tea as usual. Pour hot tea directly over ice until full. The glasses will not break. Garnish with twist or slice of orange or lemon or sprig of mint.

Fashions

MIX! MATCH!

Half-sizers. Double your wardrobe—sew this gay trio of separates. Halter-weskit, skirt, bolero to mix and match—never a "what-to-wear" worry all summer. They're proportioned to fit and flatter short, fuller figures.

Pattern 9075: Half sizes 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½, 22½, 24½. Size 16½ weskit and skirt 3⅛ yards 39-inch; bolero 1⅜ yards.

This easy-to-use pattern gives perfect fit. Complete, illustrated Sew Chart shows you every step.

Socialists Honor German Revolt Dead

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (Reuters) Socialists of 33 nations today observed one minute's silence in memory of East European workers who recently "gave their lives in the cause of freedom."

Morgan Phillips, chairman of the Socialist international and secretary of Britain's Labor party, requested the tribute at the opening of the international's four-day conference here.

The 133 delegates took over the House of Parliament building for the conference, called to work out a common attitude towards the international situation, colonialism, European co-operation and relations with Asian Socialists.

They heard a welcoming address by Premier Tag Erlander, who is also chairman of Sweden's Social Democratic party.

Phillips, commenting on recent upheavals in the Kremlin, said the fall of Lavrenty Beria, Russia's No. 2 man, constituted "an indictment by the Soviet regime against itself."

In a wide review of international affairs, he commented that the United States, while it had made a great contribution towards the aim of independence and liberty, was "in danger of being undermined by the growth of witch hunting, with Senator McCarthy as grand inquisitor."

He concluded his speech with a call for a four-power meeting to test "the new situation in Russia" by dealing with the question of treaties for Germany and for Austria.

Arab Clashes

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—An Israeli army spokesman said that seven Arabs were killed, two wounded and 16 detained "in clashes between Israel security forces and armed infiltrators who crossed the lines into Israel during the week ending July 9."

Smugglers' Cache

PALERMO (Reuters) — Twenty thousand packages of U.S. cigarettes, enough to last an ordinary smoker all his life, were found in a grotto on the coast near here, where they had apparently been hidden by smugglers, police reported.

SHOOTING GALLERY—Children in Elmira, N.Y., wait with their parents outside the Riverside School clinic for their Gamma Globulin shots to protect them from polio. Some 35,000 youngsters passed through the city's 23 clinics to take part in the nation's greatest mass inoculation program.

Train Derailed

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ten cars of the Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train, "The Mountaineer," en route to Chicago from Vancouver, were derailed Tuesday near Stephen, B.C., in the Rockies. All cars remained upright and no one was injured.

Set 1956 Target Date

CALGARY (CP) — The Prairie section of the Trans-Canada Highway will be completed by 1956 and Canadians can expect a direct, hard-surfaced route from ocean to ocean by 1960, Maj.-Gen. Hugh A. Young, deputy resources minister, said Tuesday.

Wild Ride

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A 12-year-old boy experimented with the controls of a steamroller while the operator was absent. The driver heard the big machine roll, sprinted furiously, and grabbed the youth before the roller toppled over a bank.

Loan Scheme For Fishermen

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government plans to start a fishermen's improvement loan scheme, Fisheries Minister Sinclair said Tuesday night.

The minister said it is proposed to introduce the plan once a new scheme of cheap insurance for fishing boats and gear is in successful operation. The boat-insurance project was adopted by Parliament at its last session.

Mr. Sinclair's election campaign address was recorded for delivery over the trans-Canada network of the CBC.

Dealing with the Progressive Conservatives' pledge to cut the tax bill by $500,000,000 a year, Mr. Sinclair said George Drew has maintained an "unusual silence" on this point since broaching the tax-cut idea three years ago.

"If he really has a workable plan to save $500,000,000 a year," Mr. Sinclair said, "then this extraordinary silence has been a very expensive one for the Canadian people, costing us $1,500,000,000 in the last three years."

Drew Promise "Extravagant"

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said Tuesday night Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew's promise to reduce taxes "by some huge figure" is an extravagant promise.

He accused Mr. Drew of making unfounded charges against the Liberal government and said Liberal financial policy is "sensible housekeeping."

"A party in office should not have to make wild promises to the electorate to get votes," he told an election rally. "If the Liberal party ever goes to that extreme, then I believe we would be very near the end of democratic government in Canada."

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

Squandermania has infested every Government Department in Ottawa! Look at your tax bill... look at today's prices (which hidden taxes help to boost)... take a good look at the soaring cost of Government!

YOU pay the bills for this titanic spending spree—millions of dollars spent for administrative expenses, more millions every year, more taxes, more Government spending, more millions down the drain!

No wonder a Government Minister can say: "What's a million? A million dollars is not a very important matter!"

No wonder Government Ministers are saying now: "We can't cut your taxes!"

TRAVEL EXPENSES

The older this Government gets, the more it spends to "get around" —look what's happened to travel expenses:

1938-39 - $ 4,725,000
(Estimated)
*—or just about $6,113 spent every hour of the day for travel expenses!

TELEPHONE, TELEGRAPH & POSTAGE

These items are steadily on the increase!

1938-39 - $ 960,248
1949-50 - $ 8,970,000
1953-54 - $16,902,160*
(Estimated)
*—$1,929 every hour of every day!

WASTE IN DEFENCE

Waste, inefficiency and extravagance in the Defence Department has been documented by the Currie Report, the McNab Report and the Auditor-General's Report . . . and this toll of waste and extravagance is one good reason why it costs Canada $1.1 BILLIONS MORE to put 100,000 men under arms ($22,035 per man) than it costs the United States ($10,756 per man) for a comparable number!

PROPERTY DEALS

The Government squandered $4,000,000 on 500 huts at a military camp. One year later, these were dismantled—they had never been used! The Government rented office space for $128,500—and never occupied the space! For one building designed to cover 21 acres, including surrounding grounds, the Government bought 281½ acres of pasture-land at $824 an acre!

"WASTE" CURRIE REPORT

These quotations are from Col. G. S. Currie's Report on the shocking conditions in the Defence Department: "A general breakdown in the system of administration, supervision and accounting... Accounting records in a chaotic condition and of little use in determining the nature and extent of irregularities... Waste and inefficiency far more costly in loss than that covered by actual dishonesty."

"CHAOS" AUDITOR-GENERAL'S REPORT

The Auditor-General is responsible only to Parliament. His annual report is an impartial survey of Government financial operations. His Report presented this year stated: "There are chaotic accounting methods in the whole Department of National Defence ... No civilian authority answerable to Parliament exercises direct control after procurement (of stockpiled defence materials) . . ." In addition, the Auditor-General reported ten specific irregularities created by slip-shod administration in the Defence Department.

"EXTRAVAGANCE" McNAB REPORT

The McNab Report was made to the Defence Department four years before the Currie Report. His findings of waste, extravagance and inefficiency in administration were ignored. When the Progressive Conservative Party asked that the Report be made public, the Government DENIED THE REPORT HAD EVER BEEN MADE. But when Mr. McNab stated that he had made a report, the Government "discovered" it but STILL REFUSED TO MAKE IT PUBLIC!

A Government that can't stop waste can't cut taxes!

Barbara Ann Serves As Maid

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A maid quit her job for the summer here and Barbara Ann Scott stepped into her shoes.

Barbara is baby-sitting for the president of the University of Western Ontario and his wife, Dr and Mrs. E. G. Hall of London, who are in Europe.

Barbara arrived to visit when the Halls were packing for a trip to Europe with their three oldest children. The two younger children, Elizabeth three and one-year-old George were to stay with a maid.

The maid changed her mind and the world famous figure skater volunteered to do the job.

"Never had so much fun in my life," said Barbara. "I'm very domesticated, you know, and I'm smart, too. By ten every morning I have the babies fed, bathed and out. I have the dishes done and the washing on the line."

30 Tobacco Farms Damaged By Hail

SIMCOE (CP)—About 30 tobacco farms between here and Delhi suffered damage as a hail storm lashed the area Monday night. Loss was initially estimated in the thousands of dollars by insurance adjusters.

At least four tobaccomen suffered 100 per cent loss, with another dozen reporting heavy damage. The other reports varying losses from practically nil to 50 per cent.

Aylmer, Straffordville and Ingersoll reported no hail damage, although some areas were drenched with rain.

Most damage occurred along a seven-mile stretch between the 11th and 12th concession of Wingham Township.

Plane Crash-Lands In Town Outskirts

NEWMARKET (CP) — A light plane crash-landed on the northern outskirts of the town shortly after taking off from a farmer's field. The pilot, Orla Larson, 25, and a passenger, Jim Watson, 35, both of Kingston, escaped injury.

Larson said the plane was about 10 feet off the ground when it hit an air pocket. Rather than risk hitting telephone wires he said he headed the plane for an adjacent field. The aircraft, which was damaged, belongs to the Kingston Flying Club of which both men are members.

Urge Tide Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maine's congressional delegation Tuesday urged a House of Representatives foreign affairs sub-committee to approve a $3,000,000 survey to determine the cost and economic feasibility of a Passamaquoddy tidal-power project near the Maine-Canada boundary. The present proposal is for an international project by Canada and the United States, utilizing Passamaquoddy Bay in American waters in a two-pool system to generate power. The estimated potential is 1,000,000 horsepower annually.

Order N.Y. State Begin Power Project In Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—The New York State power authority, armed with a federal licence to join Canada in developing St. Lawrence river power, must start digging on the project within one year. The federal power commission Wednesday formally awarded the authority a licence to build the United States' portion of the $600,000,000 hydro-electric development. The commission stipulated that work must begin within 12 months and must be completed within seven years. The output of 12,600,000,000 kilowatts a year is to be divided equally between northeastern states and Canada.

In Ithaca, N. Y., John E. Burton, chairman of the state authority, said he expected it would have no difficulty in meeting the deadlines. However, Burton anticipates it will be six months before blueprints will have been brought up to date so that the authority can seek bids from construction firms.

In Toronto, Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro-electric commission, said "We hope to start this fall on work which has to be done on this side of the river."

The FPC previously had approved New York's request to become the U. S. partner in the venture.

The state authority proposes to finance its share of the cost with a bond issue, which will not be backed by state credit. The bonds will be repaid with revenue from the sale of power.

The commission said that power from the plants on the International Rapids section of the river should be made available to nearby states within economic transmission distance. The authority already has conferred with officials of New England states to arrange distribution.

In the event of disagreement over allocations, the commission reserved the right to determine what is "reasonable" and to "secure compliance with this requirement."

The FPC ruled that it did not have the authority to require that the authority give preference to public and co-operative systems alike would have access to the power.

TAKE FOUR YEARS

The chairman said it would take four years to develop the first supply of energy, and three more years to reach full capacity.

In granting the licence to the New York authority, the FPC rejected the rival application of Public Power and Water Co., a private firm in Trenton, N. J. The commission said Public Power had presented no satisfactory plan for financing the development.

Public Power has petitioned the U. S. Court of Appeals for an order that would prohibit the commission from granting the licence to New York The court has not yet acted on the petition.

Burton said he was not certain whether the legal action would delay the authority's plans. He indicated the state agency would go ahead if financiers would advance money for construction before the case had been settled.

Dowling Hurls Charge Of McCarthyism

F. W. Dowling, district director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America today in a letter to R. R. Faryon, president of the Quaker Oats Co., answers charges made by Mr. Faryon in a statement published in The Examiner on Monday.

Mr. Dowling gives his answer to Mr. Faryon's charge of "double-crossing" and he in turn charges Mr. Faryon with importing "McCarthyism into Canada."

This exchange of letters between management and labor came about as a result of the vote taken last Sunday when the employees of the Quaker Oats Co. voted to accept the company offer. But their return to work hinged on an agreement being reached in Saskatoon where employees of the second Canadian Quaker plant are on strike.

(A complete text of Mr. Dowling's letter will be found on page 34.)

DEFINES McCARTHYISM

Mr. Dowling after his charge of importing McCarthyism goes on to say that an American authority has defined McCarthyism as "a method of making charges take the place of evidence and logic."

Russ Ukraine Shakeup Announced

Minister of Justice In East Germany Ousted In Crackdown

BERLIN (AP)—The Communists announced a shakeup in the Soviet Ukraine today in the mushrooming purge of security and justice officials in the U.S.S.R. and in restive East Germany.

In the third Communist shakeup in the last two days, Moscow radio announced the appointment of Timofiy A. Strokach as interior minister of the Ukrainian republic—second biggest of the 16 in the Soviet Union and long reported to be a hotbed of nationalist resentment against Kremlin dictates.

Wednesday night East Germany's puppet government announced it had purged Max Fechner, minister of justice, as "an enemy of the republic." This is a charge punishable by death. In Fechner's place the Reds named "Red" Hilde Benjamin, a woman jurist with a reputation for dealing mercilessly with crimes against the Red regime.

FOLLOWS BERIA OUSTING

The purge follows the ousting of Lavrenty P. Beria, the former Soviet police boss, and apparently results from that act. The officials affected are those dealing with law enforcement or internal security—the task of keeping the people in line.

The purge of Fechner, a Socialist turned Communist seven years ago, came 12 hours after Moscow radio had announced the dismissal of one of Beria's top lieutenants in the Soviet Republic of Georgia. He was Minister of State Security Vladimir G. Dekanozov. The broadcast said he was expelled from the party. Presumably he also lost his government job.

The Soviet Ukraine has always been a headache for the men in the driver's seat in Moscow. It is a rich grain-producing area and vital to the Soviet economy. When Hitler's troops overran the Ukraine in the last war many Ukrainians reportedly welcomed them at first as deliverers from Communist tyranny.

Mother, 2 Children Drown In Lake In Rescue Attempt

QUADEVILLE (CP)—A mother and her two children were drowned Wednesday in a chain rescue attempt involving the mother, her son, her husband and another boy. Mrs. Lila Yuke, 36, her 13-year-old daughter, Barbara, and 10-year-old son, Ivan were drowned in nearby Cameron lake, about 90 miles west of Ottawa. Mrs. Yuke got into difficulties trying to save Barbara. Ivan swam to their rescue, kept them above water for a while but was drowned with them. Mr. Yuke, a cripple, waded towards them and tried to pull them ashore, helped by Neil Brohart, 9.

SLIP BEYOND REACH

But the three members of his family slipped beyond reach and Mr. Yuke got into his automobile to bring help. When he returned it was too late.

By that time, Neil also was missing but he was found about 15 minutes later. He also had been in difficulties when Mr. Yuke left for help. The boy succeeded in getting ashore and had run home for help.

Mrs. Yuke's body was recovered by a neighbor, Earl Schisen, and the two children's bodies were found by Howard Jessup about 15 minutes later. Respiration equipment was brought from a nearby RCAF station but attempts to revive the victims failed.

Hilaire Belloc Noted Writer Dies Of Burns

GUILDFORD, England (AP) — Hilaire Belloc, 82, poet, novelist and historian, died today from burns received when he fell into a fireplace at his home Sunday.

Belloc was one of the literary giants who dominated the decades at the turn of the century. Through two generations, beginning in 1896, Belloc's facile but meticulous pen poured out a seemingly endless cascade of brilliant essays, novels, histories, poetry and light verse. Altogether he wrote 153 books.

He was born in France, but became a British subject in 1902.

Always a fervent Roman Catholic, Belloc was once described as a "genially pugnacious protagonist of the Catholic faith in English literature."

Belloc was widely known as a controversialist. He not only debated religion and politics, but also set himself up as a military critic and throughout the First World War and for years thereafter analyzed the various battles. A favorite antagonist was H. G. Wells.

He was a contemporary of G. K. Chesterton and George Bernard Shaw.

His younger son's death in the Second World War came as the last great personal tragedy in his life. He had lost his elder son in the First World War. His wife, formerly Miss Elodie Hogan, of Napa, Calif., died in 1914.

Many British critics regarded Belloc as one of the most polished masters of the English language.

They looked back at such travel works as "The Path of Rome," "Hills and the Sea," "The Thames," "The Road," "The Stane Street," and "The Cruise of the Nona"; his novels: "Mr. Clutterbuck's Election" and "Mr. Petre," his satires on politics and finance; historical biographies such as "Napoleon" and "Cromwell"; studies in political theory like "The Servile State," and the religious inquiry "Europe and the Faith."

Drew Promises To Enlarge Air Defences

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Progressive Conservative leader, George Drew, campaigning in this city where Canada's first Confederation conference was held in 1864, said Wednesday night there is "no protection" against the federal government invading the fields of provincial and municipal government.

In a criticism of the government's Emergency Powers Act, Mr. Drew said there has been "a steady centralization of power in Canada which will destroy our federal system if the whole trend is not reversed and reversed soon."

"Here in this historic city, principles were settled which were the essential condition of Canadian unity. It is the pledge of the Conservative party to restore that constitution to its full integrity and purpose," Mr. Drew said.

He coupled with that a promise, made here and earlier yesterday at Summerside, P.E.I., to expand Canada's air defences.

DO DOUBLE JOB

Through efficient methods, he said, a Progressive Conservative government could do this at the same time it put into effect its promise to cut taxes by $500,000,000 a year.

He denied what he said was a "whispering campaign" telling servicemen at the RCAF's Summerside air navigation school that a Conservative government would reduce the armed forces.

"Young men and women in uniform can count on expanded activities in the air force under a Conservative government," he said here.

Howe's Trade Policies Defended By St. Laurent

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent suggested last night that George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, shouldn't come to the Lakehead and "attempt to teach grandmother how to suck eggs." "Grandmother" was Trade Minister Howe, Liberal member of the House for Port Arthur.

Mr. Drew, in the course of his recent western campaign tour, promised he would build a steel mill at the Lakehead. Mr. St. Laurent wondered if the Opposition Leader planned to operate it as a "socialistic enterprise."

"For if Mr. Drew meant that the industry would be operated by private enterprise I feel certain that Mr. Howe is as well suited as any man to advise business if and when a steel mill is economically feasible."

The prime minister, on the last leg of his western tour, spoke at a Liberal rally attended by 1,500 persons who filled the Port Arthur-Fort William Exhibition hall and spilled out on he surrounding grounds. Loudspeakers were strung up outside

DISTRIBUTE PAMPHLETS

Before the rally got under way representatives of the Labor-Progressive Party stood outside the hall distributing pamphlets calling Mr. Howe a "pompous bureaucrat" and the "chief spokesman for United States monopolies in Canada."

The pamphlets irked 80-year-old Rev. Don McIvor, Liberal representative for Fort William, who accused one of the women distributors of being a Communist.

"When you are accusing Mr. Howe, you are not helping the Lakehead," he said. "What have you Communists done for the Lakehead?"

Hundreds of persons cheered Mr. St. Laurent as he left his hotel for a tour of the twin cities Wednesday.

At the rally, he said he is hopeful that Canadians will see ocean traffic moving up the St. Lawrence river to the Lakehead "before the end of this decade."

OUTLINES BENEFITS

He outlined the benefits Canada, and particularly the Lakehead, will receive from construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway project and estimated that in hydro production alone the development will provide a total saving in electrical

S. Koreans Hurl Chinese Back

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL (AP)—The Chinese Reds today hurled a fierce 10,000-man attack at Kumhwa—keystone of the Allied line in central Korea—after yielding up to a mile to counter-attacking South Koreans a few miles to the east.

"All hell has broken loose, but we are holding there," said a U. S. adviser to RoK troops defending the vital junction of Kumhwa, where five major roads meet.

About 15 miles to the northeast, 45,000 South Korean troops backed by thunderous U. S. air, artillery and tank support recaptured up to a mile of ground lost to the greatest Red offensive in two years this week—an offensive which U. S. staff officers said the Chinese launched while using uniformed Russian officers as military advisers.

The South Koreans struck under an umbrella of hundreds of U. S. and Australian jet planes which softened up the Reds in the first day of good flying weather since the big Red assault opened.

Associated Press correspondent Forrest Edwards reported the Chinese falling back disorganized from territory they gained Monday and Tuesday in a massive offensive which carried an officially-disclosed four miles.

U. S. tanks and big guns hammered the Communists and waves of Allied planes flew more than 1,000 strikes.

Honor Two Golfers

FONTHILL (CP) — Townsfolk here will put on a big shindig next Wednesday for two golfers who brought fame to Fonthill.

A celebration is planned to honor 19-year-old Marlene Stewart, who recently won the British amateur open golf championship, and Anne Sharpe, 24-year-old winner of the Ontario ladies' open and the Eastern Ontario ladies' open.

Strange Factors In 3 Deaths

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Dr. Lionel Rioux, Gaspe coroner, said today "heads are missing" from some of the bodies of three United States hunters found Wednesday.

QUEBEC (CP)—Solicitor General Rivard said today "strange elements" in the death of three United States bear hunters whose bodies were found in Gaspe peninsula Wednesday "warrant full-scale investigation."

The wooded area where the bodies of Eugene H. Lindsey, 47, his son Robert, 17, and Albert Clark, 20, all of Holidaysburg, Penn., were found has been closed off by provincial police. The bodies, found three miles from their abandoned truck, were not moved pending arrival of police officials.

Mr. Rivard said:

"There is not enough information available yet for me to state that the hunters did not die naturally but there are strange elements that warrant a full-scale investigation."

It has been impossible so far to obtain from police a description of the state in which the bodies of the three men were found.

The Americans had left June 12 on a bear-hunting expedition in a truck. They had taken enough food for two weeks. Most of the food was still intact in the truck when it was located by police.

1500 Oshawa Workers Ignore Strike Order

OSHAWA (CP)—Some 1,500 construction workers stayed on the job today at the new General Motors plant being built here despite their warnings Wednesday to take part in a sympathy strike.

Kenneth Lunney, AFL organizer, said Wednesday that construction men might walk off today in sympathy with 125 striking truck drivers. But the construction strike was forestalled when the truck drivers decided not to picket.

Violence flared Wednesday when strikers hauled a non-union driver from his vehicle and roughed him up.

Mr. Lunney said the men, members of the International Union of Teamsters (AFL) were called out Wednesday when it became impossible for them to make a living without carrying greater loads than those allotted in the city's bylaws.

Firm UN Demand For Quick Truce

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Nations command has placed before Red truce negotiators at Panmunjom a firm demand that they agree at once to take the steps necessary for prompt signing of an armistice.

On instructions from Washington, authoritative informants said today, Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison is understood to have told the Reds that they now have sufficient assurances from the UN side that South Korean President Syngman Rhee will co-operate in observance of the truce terms and there is no longer any reason why they should delay the signing.

The Reds have also been told, it was said, that their insistence upon recapture of 27,000 PoWs held in South Korea and released by Rhee a month ago simply is not going to be met.

The UN position is represented here as having been put to the Reds with great firmness and with a suggestion that they should take a couple of days to think it over. There was an air of finality about the UN statement which may have carried to the Communists the implication that there is nothing further to negotiate about and that the UN side is fed up with Communist efforts to exploit its troubles with Rhee.

Canadian Singer Beaten, Stabbed

NEW YORK (CP)—The nude, bloodied body of a lovely Canadian-born blonde singer was found in her west side Manhattan apartment today by police who went there after reading a man's suicide note.

The young woman, Florence Forsberg, a native of Fort Frances, Ont., was a vocalist in the chorus of the Broadway hit, "Wonderful Town." She had been beaten about the head and stabbed and there were marks on her throat, police said.

The death note was written by Lester Johnsen, 25, who, police said, apparently killed himself with a rifle in his own bedroom about two miles away.

The note said:

"I killed Florence Forsberg." And it gave her address—34 West 69th street, just off Central Park.

Dr. Jerome de Crosse said she appeared to have been dead three or four hours when police found her.

Mrs. Johnsen said her son and Miss Forsberg had been friends.

No motive for the slaying could be learned immediately.

Miners Defy Picket Orders

TIMMINS (CP) — Hundreds of restless miners converged on three strike-bound gold-mining companies at the crack of dawn today and said they will defy any court injunction ordering them to stop picketing properties in the rich Porcupine camp.

There was no violence.

Two hundred hardrock workers from nearby mines joined strikers at Broulan Reef. Preston East Dome and Hallnor Mines early this morning. They came 10 hours after members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) reaffirmed demands for higher wages and shorter working hours at a big union rally.

The men who swelled the picket ranks are not on strike, however. Most of them arrived at the Broulan property in answer to a call from Leo Behie, local union representative, who Wednesday night asked non-striking miners in the area to give pickets a hand.

Beaver Needs Course In Engineering Ways

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP)—This beaver just needs a course in engineering.

The young rodent keeps trying to fill up a hole in the dam at Lake Wappapello in southeast Missouri. Only trouble is the hole is the dam's spillway.

Conservation agent Jim Featherston, called in by army engineers to help thwart the animal's plans, said the beaver entered the lake recently, began felling trees and floating them into the spillway gates.

And so far the beaver is winning the fight.

Report Fifth Fire Within Three Weeks

BEAMSVILLE (CP)—The fifth fire in three weeks destroyed 350 bales of hay here Wednesday night, shortly before a specially-appointed watchman started his rounds to watch for arson attempts.

Fires burned previously at a garage, a store, a barn and a warehouse in this town near St. Catharines. Evidence of incendiarism was found at two of them.

Recently a watchman was named to tour the town after dark. Officials of the Ontario fire marshal's office are investigating the blazes.

British Decide To Lift Ismailia Restrictions

CAIRO (AP) — British officials announced today they are lifting immediately restrictions on road and rail traffic they placed around the Suez Canal zone town of Ismailia Monday.

The British set up roadblocks and started checking all traffic in and out of the mid-Suez centre. They charged that a British airman, missing since last Thursday, had been abducted and at least one Egyptian officer was implicated. The Egyptians denied any part in the disappearance.

Would Protect Hens

Charge U.K. Birds Forced To Work Long 14-Hour Day

LONDON (Reuters)—The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals today began a campaign to protect 5,000,000 British hens.

It alleges that the hens are forced to work a 14-hour day and that poultry farmers henpeck them.

It is cruel, says the RSPCA, the way farmers put their other chickens in coops so small they can't turn around.

Then, electric lights don't allow any lay-offs, and the hens put in between 14 and 16 hours a day, and make dozens more eggs a day than their farm-roving sisters.

"It's a restricted, unnatural life," a society spokesman said Wednesday night.

Nonsense, said the ministry of agriculture, "the hens live sheltered, comfortable, healthy lives. If there was anything wrong they would stop laying." Furthermore, a spokesman added, these boxed-up hens don't have to put up with bullying by anti-social sisters in the farmyard.

And, furthermore, the ministry said, a ban on battery laying would be cruel to 50,000,000 British people, who would have 150,000,000 less eggs a year.

Eggs came off the ration list in Britain this year.

Unsatisfactory Report

Jet Base In France Headache For RCAF

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Citizen, in a dispatch from Gros Tenquin, France, reported Wednesday that facilities at the Canadian jet-fighter base there "have given the RCAF more headaches than it has had at any air station anywhere, at home or abroad."

The dispatch was written by Ross Munro, assistant publisher of the Vancouver Province reporting for the Southam News Service.

It says since the three squadrons of No. 2 fighter wing arrived at Gros Tenquin last October the Canadians have been confronted with a multitude of "difficulties and frustrations, ranging from a faulty runway for their lightning-fast planes to near-impossible living conditions on the base in a sea of mud."

The base was built by the French during the last year, Munro says, at a cost estimated "as high as $5,000,000 and $6,000,000—and more millions will have to be poured in here before it is anywhere near a satisfactory permanent establishment."

CONSTANT COST

"Gros Tenquin is going to be a constant cost for years to come if the Canadians remain there. The whole depressing business verges on a scandal."

Air Vice-Marshal F. R. Miller, vice chief of air staff, said in an interview at Ottawa that Mr. Munro's story contains certain inaccuracies and lacks essential information.

The RCAF knew that the station was incomplete, "that the last nail had not been driven or the last amenity provided. But NATO plans called for us to be there by that date and the pressure of the international situation was strong enough to justify the movement despite the semi-completed form of Gros Tenquin."

BASE ON LEASE

He said the Canadian Sabre jets were the only planes in Europe at the time that could match the Russian MiG-15 jets. The Gros Tenquin station never was considered a permanent one but a base on lease to Canada during the 15-year NATO agreement. The French required that the site be returned to a tillable state which also ruled out more permanent construction.

"We now are over the hump at Gros Tenquin," said the air vice-mashal. "Conditions never will be as bad as they were last winter—and we admit they were bad, although not as bad as at United States bases where the men live under canvas."

Mass Shooting Threat Halts Berlin Strike

BERLIN (AP)—A Russian threat to shoot every 10th striker broke a new strike by workers in the big Zeiss optical plant at Jena, East Germany, the anti-Communist League of Free Jurists reported today.

The league said Zeiss workers sat down on their jobs last Saturday in protest against the "empty promises" of reform by their Communist bosses. They demanded release of their comrades arrested in the June 17 revolt, the firing of the plant management, and restoration of free voting in all East Germany.

After three days of the sitdown, the league said, the Soviet commandant in Jena marched into the plant and threatened to "shoot every 10th striker" unless they resumed work. Since then, according to the league, the strikers have worked—but very slowly, still in a mood of bitter protest.

Big 4 Put Moscow On Spot Over German Unity

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western proposals for a Big Four meeting on Germany put squarely up to Moscow today the next move in the developing diplomatic battle over German unification. The proposal is regarded here as a hot one for the Reds to handle because reunification is something that no country which wants support in Germany can oppose. And yet the unification which the United States, Britain and France clearly seek is one which would associate a united Germany closely with the West and, if possible, bring it into the Western European defence lineup.

The Russians thus are being asked to accept a foreign ministers' meeting to consider rolling the Iron Curtain back at least to the borders of Poland. The Western powers have reserved the right to restore certain Polish areas to a united Germany. If they should succeed, the rollback would be even greater.

PROPOSALS SENT

The proposals for a meeting "of limited duration . . . about the end of September at a place to be mutually agreed" were made to the Russians Wednesday in notes delivered to their embassies in London, Paris and Washington. The notes were released Wednesday night and the proposals in all are the same.

This line of action by the Western nations grows out of decisions made here by U.S. State Secretary Dulles, Britain's acting foreign secretary, the Marquess of Salisbury, and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to seek Big Four talks on Germany following the West German elections of Sept. 6. It was agreed that to hold them before that time would embarrass the West German government.

SUBJECTS TO BE DISCUSSED

These three subjects were proposed for discussion:

1. The organization of free elections in West Germany, controlled by the Western powers, in divided Berlin and Soviet East Germany. There would be discussion of establishment of political freedoms by all Germans "before, during and after elections."

2. Proposed creation of an all-German government "with freedom of action in internal and external affairs."

3. Final agreement on a treaty ending the occupation and restoring the independence of Austria.

The Western powers told Russia steps proposed on Germany "must precede the opening of discussions with the Soviet government for a German peace treaty."

Singer's Death Great Shock To Father

FORT FRANCES (CP)—A news report today brought the first word to Fort Frances clothier Bert Forsberg that his beautiful adopted daughter had been slain in her New York apartment.

The news was passed to him through a friend, notified by Canadian Press correspondent.

Miss Forsberg, about 26, was a vocalist in the chorus of a Broadway show. She was found stabbed and beaten to death.

Mr. Forsberg, a widower, was comforted by friends in this international border town, 200 miles southeast of Winnipeg.

Miss Forsberg began her singing career here in public school festivals.

TRAINED IN BOSTON

She continued her studies at the Winnipeg Bornoff School of Music. She undertook further training in Boston and at the Julliard School of Music in New York. Her professional appearances included shows in radio and television as well as Canadian Broadcasting Corporation productions.

She made her debut on the CBC in the spring of 1940 and later sang in Swedish on the program "Canadians All."

Miss Forsberg sang in "Wonderful Town," and after the show she had planned to return to Fort Frances.

She made several European singing tours, the last in 1952.

Buck Foresees Coalition Party

REGINA (CP)—Tim Buck said Wednesday night he foresees a future coalition of the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party he heads, the CCF and Social Credit to "defeat monopoly capitalism."

"We will fight for that coalition of the new parties," Mr. Buck said in an election campaign address to an audience of 184 people in the 1,800-seat exhibition auditorium.

"It will be a national crusade and by the logic of history, it is also Canada's path to socialism."

Mr. Buck attacked the present CCF leadership for supporting Liberal policy of "knuckling down to the United States." The national Communist leader said Progressive Conservative leader George Drew had supported the Canadian Ukrainian committee in Toronto, "predominantly men who fought in Hitler's armies and came to Canada as confirmed Nazis."

"People now are turning from the old parties to the CCF and Social Credit parties," he said. "But they will not find a new national policy there. Only to the extent that the Labor-Progressive party demonstrates the need for such a policy will there develop within the CCF and Social Credit parties elements that also want it."

Drew Promises

At Summerside, he said: "Far from reducing our armed forces we believe that for the money we are spending we should have more effective forces."

A country like Canada needed a "large, powerful and mobile" air force both for home defence and overseas commitments.

FLIES TO NEWFOUNDLAND

Today Mr. Drew flies to Newfoundland for an evening meeting tonight in St. John's. In his campaigning in this island province yesterday, on a rainy day, he spoke to 200 persons in a Summerside theatre and another 500 in Charlottetown community hall.

The section of his Charlottetown speech dealing with constitutional issues was recorded for a half-hour broadcast later in the evening over the trans-Canada network in the CBC's free-time political series.

He said that under the Emergency Power Act, "with a few minor exceptions which really have no important effect, the government can do anything by order-in-council which can be done by Parliament, the provincial legislatures or municipal councils."

The government's assurances it would not "invade" provincial fields of jurisdiction "offers no protection whatever to those who rely on our constitution."

When the Emergency Powers Act was extended for another year at the last session of Parliament, the government had promised not to use those powers while the Commons was in session.

A short time late the government passed an order-in-council under the act and "suppressed" knowledge of the order until it was too late to discuss it in open Parliament.

AFRAID OF CURBS

The prime minister had regretted no agreement had been reached on ways of amending the constitution in Canada.

"There is only one reason that this has not been done. That is because the present federal government doesn't want any clear definition of authority which might limit its arbitrary powers."

"No longer must it be possible for any government, which has acted without parliamentary authority, to reply as this government did, 'if we want to get away with it, who is going to stop us.'"

Wolves Devour Missing Child, Find Remains

MINAKI, Ont. (CP)—A tiny plaid shirt, a pair of blue jeans, some underclothing and a few tufts of long brown hair were all that was left of five-year-old Geraldine Huggan.

The tragic end of an intensive search of mosquito-infested northwestern Ontario bushland came about noon Wednesday.

It was a hunch on the part of prospector Harry Hawes of Kenora that sent searchers back to the swampy area between Long lake and Catastrophe lake, about two miles southwest of Wade, where the child disappeared from her grandparents cottage.

"There was not enough left for either a proper burial or an inquest," said Dr. D. J. Mason, coroner. The hair was infested with maggots and signs of wolf hair on nearby bushes led to the conclusion the body was devoured about 48 hours before discovery.

DIED FROM EXPOSURE

Dr. Mason said death probably came from exposure followed some time later by mutilation by the wolf. There was no blood on the clothing.

Police said the area where the body was found was covered by searchers last Thursday and Friday. The child wandered from the cottage July 5 in search of flowers for her mother. It was assumed Geraldine went into the section some time after searchers covered it the first time.

A false lead, discovered Monday, kept activity east of the area where the child was found until late Tuesday.

Hawes and plumber Joe Bynski of Kenora, acting on Hawes' hunch, came across a place near the shore of Long lake where the child had fallen on her face. Measureable foot prints, hands and face prints proved they were on the right track.

An Army unit from Winnipeg had returned to the city, but the new signs sent 100 volunteers into the spent Tuesday night camped on the area early Wednesday. Hawes V-neck of land between the lakes and started searching again at dawn Wednesday.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jared Huggan of Winnipeg, left Wade, where Mr. Huggan spent untold hours with the searchers, for Kenora by plane to identify their child's clothing shortly after the discovery was made.

Searchers Find Bodies Of Three U.S. Hunters

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Searchers Wednesday found the bodies of three United States hunters who entered the [illegible]t west of here about June 1

The bodies [illegible]ne H. Lindsey, 47, his son, R[illegible]., 17, and Albert Clark, 20, all of Holidaysburg, Penn., were found about three miles from their abandoned truck.

The truck, its battery run down, was found last Friday about 65 miles west of here, in dense bush land, on an old logging road along the St. Jean river.

The hunters had left on a bear-hunting expedition with provisions for about two weeks. Most of the food was found in the truck, Quebec Provincial Police said.

FIRST BLOW

The first blow in the anticipated East German purge did not strike either of the two most-hated Communists in the regime, deputy premier and party secretary general Walter Ulbricht and State Security Minister Wilhelm Zaisser.

Westerners have expected Ulbricht to go ever since the June 17 outbreak of violence. Policeman Zaisser's fall has been predicted since the disgrace of Beria, communism's top man in that line.

Instead the first ax chopped down Fechner, 60, bald, heavy-jowled, a former toolmaker, and a former Socialist who espoused communism in 1946. Of all the top Communist clique, refugees say he was the only one who ever showed sympathy and understanding toward the victims of the system he enforced.

The 41-word communique announcing his ouster did not disclose details of the accusations against him.

FANATICAL RED

Fechner's successor, 50-year-old Mrs. Benjamin, has been a fanatical Communist since 1928. The Nazis murdered her husband, a Jewish doctor, in a concentration camp. Though also a Jew, she and their son escaped their attentions.

Her career reached a fearsome height in 1952 when for three months she presided at a series of "show trials" of alleged political and economic criminals.

She condemned two to the guillotine, eight others to life imprisonment and handed out sentences totalling 190 years to 17 other accused. In Western courts, their crimes at the most would have been classed as misdemeanors.

United States Must Reduce Trade Barriers

NEW YORK—The United States will soon "be beating the bushes" for world markets unless it removes or reduces existing trade barriers, Warren Lee Pierson, chairman of the board of Trans World Airlines and chairman of the United States Council of the International Chamber of Commerce, said here.

"Our Congress has lost all sense of realities about the country's trade policy," he told a press conference. "The people of the United States are much more liberal in their trade policies than is the Congress. Members of Congress are going to find that out."

Mr. Pierson returned from an extended tour of most of Western Europe. He headed the American delegation to the 14th Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce held in Vienna.

IMPRESSIONS OF EUROPE

"My impressions of Europe are not as optimistic as they might be," he told a group of about 50 writers, including many representatives of the foreign press. "Political instability in France is being reflected in other countries. There is a lack of leadership."

He sees no chance for any change in the French situation "until there is such a mess that they'll do what they have to do." This country should make plain to the French its "disappointment" that they have "not risen to the occasion."

EMPHASIZE THE ECONOMIC

The United States should place more emphasis on the economic and less on the military and political aspects of Europe's problems, Mr. Pierson believes. Ways to change the present emphasis are lower tariffs, improved customs procedures and repealing "Buy American" legislation.

In support of his strong plea for the "Trade—Not Aid" program, he said that many Western nations would be glad to trade with Communist nations if the latter prove able to provide goods. If, then, we put pressure on our allies not to trade with Russia and her satellites, we should be careful to remove barriers that would close our own markets.

Dowling Hurls

Mr. Dowling also says Mr. Faryon is seeking to wreck the union in Saskatoon and "once you had destroyed the local in Saskatoon you would start to withdraw concessions in Peterborough, and with the Saskatoon plant completely under control of your company you would eventually smash the local in Peterborough and withdraw all that they managed to gain by their determined fight."

MR. FARYON REPLIES

Mr. Faryon in reply to Mr. Dowling said today:

"No one need take my word about this situation, they can get the true facts from the Mayor and his committee. Quaker employees voted overwhelmingly to accept the company's offer negotiated by the Mayor's committee but qualify their acceptance by an amendment put up by the Toronto International office of the Union that while they voted to accept the offer they would remain on strike until Saskatoon was settled, that Saskatoon is still on strike is very confusing because in his letter Mr. Dowling says: 'All they are asking is that your company meet the pattern of wages and hours which have been accepted by other mills with which our Union has contracts in both eastern and western Canada'. We have already offered to sign a contract with Saskatoon on wages and hours equal to any mill in western Canada and even higher wages than a recent contract signed in Saskatoon by Mr. Dowling's organization."

SECOND CONDITION

As another condition of the licence the commission stipulated that the New York authority install diversion facilities at the Massena canal. It said the question of who should pay for them would be "determined later."

The canal supplies water for power purposes to the St. Lawrence Power Co., a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America. Counsel for Alcoa has maintained that the state should pay for the diversion, and the authority has disagreed.

Burton said he will go to Toronto next week for talks with Saunders. Engineers of the two agencies are expected to meet later.

Wombat Is Extremely Grumpy, Digs Hole 100 Feet Underground And Sits And Sulks

By JOHN O'REILLY

NEW YORK. — Four hundred and fifty Australian animals dominated by a dozen grumpy wombats, have arrived here and caused considerable stir when they were unloaded. It was said to be the largest shipment of Australian critters ever to arrive in New York.

There were six dromedaries — now raised freely in Australia — which were hustled off to the quarantine station at Clifton, N.J., to be kept in isolation for a month for fear of hoof and mouth disease. There were black swans and wallabies, kookaburras and a dingo, the wild dog of Australia. There were 136 giant red kangaroos, the biggest gang of these hoppy marsupials ever seen outside of down under.

Most of the animals were destined for the Catskill Game Farm, at Catskill, New York. They were imported by the International Fertilizer & Chemical Corporation, which has been doing a brisk business in animals for the past 18 months.

First we will take up the wombats, although any man who attempts to take up a wombat is foolhardy. The wombat is something like an over-sized ground hog. It may weigh 85 pounds. It has a large head and small eyes. Above all it is extremely grumpy. It digs a hole up to 100 feet underground and sits in there and sulks.

Lt. Gen. E. K. Smart, Consul General of Australia in New York, who was on hand to meet the animals, agreed that wombats were grumpy.

"They don't play any part in the national life of Australia," he said. "They don't even vote."

On the other hand it was a delight to see so many kangaroos arrive in one herd. Roland Lindemann, proprietor of the Catskill Game Farm, said he would keep most of the kangaroos up there but that he had made arrangements to send some of them to zoos.

The six dromedaries, one-hump jobs, were housed in a metal structure on deck. When it came time to unload them, they turned out to be somewhat grumpy, too, although not nearly as grumpy as the wombats. They balked at being led out of their sea-going corral.

One man walked in front, pulling a rope and holding out a handful of hay, while another pushed from behind. Finally, the first camel was enticed into an unloading platform and was hoisted to the dock. The second camel was just as stubborn. It was several hours before the recalcitrant dromedaries were all ashore.

There were many birds of the parrot family in the shipment but they were taken off when the ship called at Boston and placed in quarantine there as a precaution against psittacosis.

Some of the kangaroos were said to have young in their pouches but during the hustle and bustle of unloading nobody remembered to check.

Report Prices Mixed In Listless Trading

TORONTO (CP)—Prices mixed in listless afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials settled back at mixed prices after weakness appeared in leading sections. Golds eased while western oils traded evenly. Base metals were the only group to show firmness.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals fell back in three of four issues traded. Down were Chimo, Gunnar, Conwest and Anaconda, Sudbury Contact continued to trade heavily as it gained pennies.

Industrials lost after papers and utilities came under pressure. Prices stayed within a $1 range in all sections except miscellaneous industrials, where Southam dropped 1⅛ points on the sale of a block of 25 shares. Brighter sections were banks and liquors.

Golds drew little interest as seniors added small amounts, juniors eased while holding companies mixed. Broulan Reef and Preston East Dome dropped pennies.

Higher-priced base metals were up, led by Quemont, Noranda and Smelters. In lower-priced issues, Cassiar and Dominion Asbestos firmed but Labrador eased.

Western oils moved a narrow list of stocks at mixed prices. Peruvian and Royalite fell back but Great Pains and Trans-Empire firmed.

Chinese Ask Recess To Saturday

Believe Break Near In Stalemated Armistice Talks

PANMUNJOM —(AP)—The Communists called today for a recess until Saturday in the Korean armistice negotiations —presumably to consider a new Allied proposal—as speculation mounted that a break is near in the stalemated talks.

Authoritative quarters had predicted a showdown today. But the negotiators talked only for 24 minutes, and then recessed until 2 p. m. Saturday (1 a. m. EDT Saturday).

There was no official hint as to what went on during the brief meeting, which was delayed for 15 minutes while the United Nations Command delegation awaited a hurried message from its base camp at Munsan.

HELD THE FLOOR

But observers outside the conference hut noted that Allied interpreters held the floor most of the time to deliver three separate statements.

Communist correspondent Alan Winnington of the London Daily Worker said the Reds asked for the recess, suggesting that the Communists planned to relay a new UN proposal to headquarters for an answer.

Gen. Mark Clark, the UN commander, flew to Seoul from Tokyo Thursday and accused the Reds of violating the secrecy which shrouds the armistice talks.

Clark told reporters a Peiping radio report that Allied delegates staged a walkout at Wednesday's negotiating session "violated the executive nature of the truce sessions."

TURNS SECRE[illegible]

The Peiping radio turned secretive again Thursday night. The broadcast said only:

"At the Korean armistice negotiations in Panmunjom the delegations of both sides held an executive session today."

Clark talked for 50 minutes with South Korean President Syngman Rhee. There was no announcement of what was discussed but informed sources said the two talked of the truce talks at Panmunjom and the massive Communist attack on the east-central front.

Prime Minister Paik Too Chin and Defence Minister Sohn Won Il sat in on the meeting.

Clark also conferred with Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, 8th army commander, on the military situation.

Clark's sudden arrival heightened speculation that a crisis of some sort was impending at Panmunjom.

Efforts to wrap up final details of a truce apparently have been stalled by Communist demands for iron-clad guarantees that South Korea would honor a truce and for the recapture of 27,000 anti-Communist Korean prisoners freed on orders of President Rhee last month.

MUST ACCEPT FACTS

Informed sources here speculated that the UN delegation may have told the communists in strong terms that if the Reds want an armistice they must accept some of the facts developing from South Korea's opposition to a truce.

Some observers said the Allied position might have been couched in terms approaching an ultimatum.

Officers in close touch with the negotiations made no effort to hide their growing concern over the lengthening truce sessions.

There was speculation that the 15-minute delay in Thursday's meeting was to enable Harrison to receive new instructions from higher authorities.

Fleming Predicts 52-Seat Win

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Progressive Conservative party will win 52 seats in Ontario in the federal election Aug. 10, Donald Fleming, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto Eglinton predicted Wednesday. Ontario has 83 seats in all.

Speaking at a meeting in support of Gordon Churchill, PC candidate for Winnipeg South Centre, Mr. Fleming said the election will be a toss-up between Liberals and Conservatives with other parties negligible factors. He predicted the CCF will elect not more than one candidate east of Manitoba and said the Social Credit party is not a factor.

He said Liberal arrogance is highlighted by the party's failure to set a platform before the people.

Mr. Fleming said the Liberals have no coast-to-coast policy and claimed what the party offers in the East would not be recognized in Manitoba. He said the PC platform is solid from one end of Canada to the other.

He blamed loss of overseas agricultural markets and recent United States restrictions on dairy imports on the inactivity of the government at Ottawa.

Says Citizens Need To Know More About Federal Powers

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

A political leader has finally come up with a cold-weather word in the July heat of an election campaign. The word: hockey. The user: George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader. The subject of hockey was introduced while Mr. Drew was saying in Charlottetown last night that the federal government now has powers to take over the functions of provincial and municipal governments despite Canada's constitution. He contended that under the Emergency Powers Act, the federal government can do anything by order-in-council which should be done by Parliament, the provincial legislatures or municipal councils. There were "a few minor exceptions which really have no important effect."

He compared what he said was this current situation to what would happen in a hockey game if "the defending champions amended the rules to suit their own purpose, without even informing the other team what they intended to do. . . . So far as our federal system is concerned we simply don't know today what the rules of the game really are."

SUPPRESSED KNOWLEDGE

Mr. Drew said the Liberal government had promised not to use the Emergency Powers Act while the Commons was in session. But hardly had that promise been given when it had passed an order-in-council "affecting all Canadian shipping." Knowledge of this order had been suppressed until it was too late to discuss it in Parliament.

At Halifax, M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said Canada's steel industry should be nationalized. One reason, he contended, is that it is keeping up prices of its products by refusing to expand.

He said there is nothing in the Liberal record to indicate that it has either the ability or willingness to undertake necessary measures in case of a depression. Only the outbreak of the Korean war and deterioration of the international situation, necessitating a big defence program, had prevented a depression in Canada similar to that in the 1930s.

Mr. Coldwell added that the government has no plans to meet the "strong possibility" of a recession after an armistice in Korea.

The CCF, if elected, would provide the necessary degree of economic planning to maintain full employment.

"We would place our economy on such a basis that Canada's prosperity would not be dependent on war or the threat of war."

Meanwhile, Prime Minister St. Laurent outlined to listeners at the Lakehead what the St. Lawrence Seaway project should mean to Port Arthur and Fort William.

He said he hopes sea-going ships will be steaming up the St. Lawrence river to the Lakehead "before the end of this decade."

He estimated that in hydro-electric output alone, the multi-million-dollar project would provide a saving in power costs to Ontario and New York state of about $75,000,000 a year.

Just before the meeting started, Labor-Progressive Party workers outside the meeting hall distributed leaflets charging that Trade Minister Howe is a "pompous Bureaucrat" and "chief spokesman for United States monopolies in Canada." Mr. Howe, the member for Port Arthur in the last House, was at the meeting.

The Rev. Dan McIvor, Liberal member for Fort William in last Commons, told one of the pamphleteers, a woman: "When you are accusing Mr. Howe, you are not helping the Lakehead. What have you Communists done for the Lakehead?"

At Wetaskiwin, Alta., Finance Minister Abbott said Canadian currency is one of the strongest in the world because of "good people, geography and good government." The Liberal government, he said, had expanded trade, exports and production, besides financing a large defence program.

At Barrie, Health Minister Martin claimed that under Mr. St. Laurent federal-provincial co-operation has been the best in Canada's history.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative member for Peel in the last House, said in a speech at Brantford, that Ontario is "giving leadership in a great trans-Canada move in favor of the Progressive Conservative party."

"There is scarcely a safe seat in Ontario for the Liberal party," he added.

Today's main political bill-of-fare has Mr. St. Laurent at Sudbury, Mr. Drew at St. John's, Nfld., and Mr. Coldwell at Sydney, N.S.

ROTARIZED WOMAN — Bruno Nagler, an Austrian engineer working at the Westchester County airport in New York, has come up with an invention that may make many people airborne in the near future. Called a heliglider, it weighs 65 pounds, climbs vertically like a helicopter and glides down like an old-fashioned autogiro. It straps on like a parachute, has a kite-like rudder in back and uses a 15-foot rotor blade and rocket motor for lift. Here Christ Comninel tries on a motorless heliglider.

Deplores Drew As Leader

ORANGEVILLE (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Wednesday night George Drew is honest, vigorous and capable, but the issue in the election is not his personal character "but whether he is a good man to head the government of Canada."

Mr. Pearson spoke to 150 persons in the Dufferin-Simcoe riding in support of Dick McCullough, Liberal candidate.

Without making any direct reference to Colin Campbell's Port Credit statement Tuesday that Mr. Drew is "one of the most hated men in Canada," Mr. Pearson said it should be possible to criticize individuals and policies "with dignity and without vindictiveness."

Sees Ontario Giving Political Leadership

BRANTFORD (CP) — Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament for Peel in the last House, said Ontario is "giving leadership in a great trans-Canada move in favor of the Progressive Conservative party."

"There is scarcely a safe seat in Ontario for the Liberal party," he said at a political meeting held in support of Jack Shillington, Progressive Conservative candidate for Brantford.

Mr. Graydon said persons normally of Liberal persuasion now are separating themselves from the "monopolistic Liberal government, in a crusade to put in a Conservative government to ease the burden of taxation that is killing the country today."

Steel Industry Nationalization Coldwell Theme

By KINGSLEY BROWN, Jr.

HALIFAX (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, says the Canadian steel industry is keeping up prices of its products by refusing to expand.

"That is one reason why it should be taken out of private hands and nationalized," he said here Wednesday in the third speech of his Maritime federal election campaign tour.

Mr. Coldwell told about 100 persons in a union hall here in a speech dealing mainly with unemployment that steel companies are restricting production in an effort to boost prices.

He said also there is nothing in the Liberal record to indicate that it has either the ability or willingness to undertake necessary measures to avoid a depression.

NARROW ESCAPE

Only the outbreak of the Korean war and deterioration of the international situation, necessitating the undertaking of a large defence program, prevented Canada from having a depression similar to that of the 30s.

He said the government has made no plans to meet the "strong possibility" of a recession setting in after the Korean war.

His party, he said, would undertake the necessary degree of economic planning to maintain full employment.

"We would place our economy on such a basis that Canada's prosperity would not be dependent on war or the threat of war."

The CCF would establish an economic planning commission and a national investment board to see that the finances and credit of the nation are "channelled into the most economically useful and socially desirable investment fields."

Campbellford Speaker

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Farquhar Oliver, MPP, Leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, will speak at the Masonic Temple here this evening in support of Dr. Fred G. Robertson, Liberal candidate for Northumberland.

Cheap Housing Necessary In Canada Cockeram Says

TORONTO—Canada can remain a country of homeowners only iff homes can be purchased for 10 per cent down, Alan Cockeram, Progressive Conservative candidate in South York, told a meeting of Young Progressive Conservatives Wednesday night.

Mr. Cockeram urged long-term housing loans at low interest rates. "The government" he said, "would not suffer and would be protected, always provided the houses are kept in a good state of repair."

Excessive taxation under a Liberal Government is stifling youth, Mr. Cockeram maintained. High wartime taxation, he said, is strangling the initiative of the Canadian people.

The candidate said he believes that when George Drew says he will take certain action, he will take it. The Progressive Conservatives, Mr. Cockeram said, will reduce expenditures by $xxx,xxx,xxx. "This added to the average surplus makes the $500,000,000 which we say will be passed on to the taxpayer."

The Liberal Government had made a negligible reduction in income tax and as a result many working men do not work overtime because the money so earned places them in a higher income tax bracket. The result, Mr. Cockeram said, was that they pay a good portion of overtime pay to the government.

Question:

Mr. Swanston, what do you personally want to do in Parliament?

Answer:

I want to urge the reduction of the taxes which hit the home-owner and the family. In my opinion the burden of tax on just about everything that is needed to build a home, or furnish one, or live in one, is unjust, and I want to do everything in my power to get those taxes reduced. The home is the heart of the nation, and this riding is a place of homes and families. Eleven years on Peterborough's city council have given me considerable insight into the home-owner's problems.

New Faces, Old Problems

A year ago Truman, Churchill and Stalin were at the helm. Of the three it was fairly well known that Truman would probably fade out of the picture. There had been many reports that Stalin was suffering from bad health and would shortly have to resign, but these stories had appeared so often in previous years that people had ceased to put much faith in them. It was generally agreed that Churchill was in pretty good fettle, though he had lost some of his earlier resilience and his hearing was beginning to fail.

* * *

Today we have Eisenhower in place of Truman, and an uneasy group of men headed by Malenkov in the place of Stalin. Sir Winston is still in office, but is having to take an extended holiday while R. A. Butler deputizes for him. Beria has been dismissed with ignominy, while Anthony Eden, like his leader, is in the hands of his doctors.

* * *

It so happens that within the space of one year three of the most influential positions in the whole world are being occupied by new men. The problems they have to face are still the same, and apart from some stiffening of the American attitude coupled with a slight moderation on the part of the Soviets the main lines of policy remain unaltered. America still leads a motley coalition known vaguely as "the Free World" which embraces within its orbit such unlikely elements as Tito's Yugoslavia and Franco's Spain. Britain's problems in Iran, Egypt and Malaya still remain unsolved, while her dollar crisis continues to harass her. She continues to exert a more or less successful moderating influence on the counsels of Washington.

* * *

In view of this it would be unrealistic to expect that the main aims of Russian policy have changed to any perceptible degree with the death of Stalin. The new Soviet leaders have, it must be admitted, shown a slightly more conciliatory spirit, but they have not yet made one major step towards decreasing international tension.

* * *

The peace of the world depends largely on a meeting of the Big Three. The political climate is not favourable at the moment. Sir Winston is still resting and the Russians are having grave internal difficulties. It would be plain suicide for Malenkov to absent himself from the Russian capital to take part in talks at this juncture. Eisenhower is available for the meeting, but American opinion as a whole is unfavourable to the idea. There is a deep-rooted feeling in the minds of the American public that foreign diplomatists and statesmen are far more cunning than the domestic variety, and that consequently the results of any international negotiations are bound to be disadvantageous to the U.S.A. Yalta and Potsdam are the most commonly cited examples nowadays, though most of Roosevelt's "concessions" were made because it was impossible to do anything about it without recourse to war with Russia.

* * *

In this unpromising situation we can only hope that by patience and moderation a better atmosphere for discussion can be created so that some basis of agreement to differ may be found. At present this desirable end seems far off.

Eight Hundred Million Dollars In The Kitty

The Unemployment Insurance Fund now stands at $800,000,000. It looks like a beautiful fund to rob and we are afraid that some larceny may even now be taking place. We do not mean that some "unemployed" people are getting benefits from it to which they are not really entitled. Some of that sort of pilfering was stopped a year ago, for instance, when new wives, employed before their marriage, and who quit their jobs to accept employment as brides, drew unemployment relief when in fact they were fully (though perhaps less remuneratively) employed as housewives. The newest scooping into the $800,000,000 kitty is a perfectly legal one—come August 3rd.

Under legislation passed by the last Parliament, an amendment has been made to the terms under which unemployment relief may be drawn. Formerly the Unemployment Insurance Act barred unemployed persons from benefits if, when unemployed, they became sick and could not call at the Unemployment Insurance Office personally for their cheques, or were incapable, because of illness, to accept an available job. Under the new amendment which comes into force on August 3rd, unemployed persons who are sick may continue to draw the unemployment insurance benefits for as long as they would be qualified to get them if they were capable of working. The new amendment does not apply to persons who become sick or are injured on the job and thus have to quit work. Persons injured on the job and thus rendered unemployed get benefits from the Workmen's Compensation Board.

On second thoughts the new amendment does not seem like robbing the Unemployment Insurance Fund; on the contrary it seems a sensible and humane use of the Fund. We made the suggestion in the first place for this reason: $800,000,000 is a lot of money, but if there were a business and industrial recession and many people were thrown out of work, even that great sum would not last many months. It was created in the first place to cushion workers against hard times; the Fund must be preserved for that primary purpose.

Gossip About Princess Margaret

Part of the backwash of the Coronation is a gush of gossip about H.R.H. Princess Margaret. There are a great many people, it appears, who are eager to marry her off, who nominate suitors for her hand, who then disqualify the suitors on various grounds, and in general behave with a degree of impertinence which they would not dream of showing toward the daughter of a next-door neighbour. They guess about the Princess's private affairs with the greatest freedom. She was observed to look solemn at her father's funeral, surely this is a most unusual thing, and therefore it is assumed that the Princess is of a profoundly religious temperament. A close friend of hers is a Catholic; therefore the Princess may be contemplating a turn toward Catholicism. She is seen to look subdued in Africa, and a royal equerry has been transferred from his post at the Palace to another post in Brussels; so the gossips put two and two together, make seventeen of it, and assume that the Princess must have been in love with the equerry. It is all great fun for the gossips, and as the Princess probably hears very little about it we may assume that it does not hurt her. No more, that is to say, than any girl's reputation is hurt when busybodies make free with it.

Sometimes we think of suggesting that people leave Princess Margaret alone. But then we think better of it, realizing that since the dawn of history nobody has ever been able to refrain from gossiping about a Princess. Because of her high station, a Princess is always fair game. And because we all—even the most democratic of us—have a strain of snob in us somewhere, we cannot keep from speculating about the affairs of our betters—affairs which we have no power to influence.

How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em?

It is at least thirty years since a song was popular which began with the words—

How ya gonna keep 'em
Down on the farm,
After they've seen Paree?

And for thirty years the problem of keeping them down on the farm has been more and more pressing, until now the Ontario Department of Agriculture has issued a circular about it, called How To Keep Your Farm Help.

In 1952 a survey was made of sixteen Ontario townships; 320 farmers were interviewed, and 137 farm workers. The findings are not surprising. Both farmers and hired hands agree that the three most important factors in their relationship are reasonable and regular hours, good food and lodging, and good wages. The average wages now paid on farms, it appears, are five dollars a day for casual labour, $63 a month for seasonal labour (with board and room) and $83 a month for men hired by the year (with board and lodging).

The hired hands expressed a preference for farms that were well-equipped and intelligently managed; they appreciated it when the owner shared heavy and dirty work with them, and they were anxious to make the point that harsh criticism made them discontented with their jobs.

It is interesting that in a parallel list of what farmers and hired hands considered most important they were in agreement on almost every item. But a survey which takes in only 320 farms in 16 townships leaves plenty of room for supposition that this agreement and this intelligent and businesslike attitude does not apply to all Ontario farms. The circular has much to say that is helpful on an important subject, and anyone who wants a copy of it can get one from the Economics department of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

NOTES AND COMMENT

British explorers report finding a tribe of gorillas who eat meat and walk upright; they therefore say that these creatures are "like humans." Pooh, they won't really be like humans until some of the gorillas begin lecturing the others about the wickedness of eating meat, and set up as vegetarians.

Defeat For "Book-Burners"

By ALASTAIR BUCHAN

THE REMARKABLE confusion which has surrounded the new Eisenhower Administration's information program—and which is itself symptomatic of a more important underlying confusion of policy-making—has been dramatically illustrated this week by the resignation of Dr. Robert Johnson from the post of head of the State Department's international information administration after only four months in office.

The reason Dr. Johnson gave for his resignation was ill-health, and while it is probably valid enough, it is clear that what contributed to his breakdown was the barrage of criticism and ridicule surrounding his handling of the "book-burning" issue.

✧ ✧ ✧

DR. JOHNSON is an amiable but not very wise gentleman who has been in magazine publishing most of his life with a brief interlude as the head of a small university. President Eisenhower brought him to Washington because he was an advocate of the Administration's new policy of divorcing the machinery for the dissemination of American information and propaganda abroad (including the "Voice of America" radio transmission) which employs a large staff, from the control of the State Department. The theory behind this was that the State Department should be concerned merely with the evolution of policy and should guide rather than operate the channels of information. This theory was embodied in a reorganisation plan now before Congress, which calls for the creation of a new independent agency directly responsible to the President, to be known as the United States Information Agency.

UNFORTUNATELY, before the reorganisation had time to become effective, the fantastic episode of the banning of left-wing books in American overseas libraries leaked out. Dr. Johnson, it became apparent, was prepared to go to great lengths to avoid falling foul of Senator McCarthy. The absurdity of the directives about the books and of the interpretation put upon them in various overseas libraries became more obvious every day. The President, until then unaware of what was going on, spoke out in general terms at his speech at Dartmouth on June 14 against the policy of "book-burning", at that time being actively—if figuratively—pursued by Dr. Johnston's subordinates

From then on the subject descended from the sublime to the ridiculous. The following day, Mr. John Foster Dulles, the Secretary of State—who had tried to divest himself of responsibility for the question, although Dr. Johnson was still technically responsible to him—admitted that some books might actually have been physically burned. The President partially reverced his forthright stand at his Press conference that week.

ON JUNE 25, Dr. Johnson was forced by questions to admit at a Press conference that ten directives had been issued on the subject of retaining or destroying left-wing and Communist books by American authors or non-contentious books by known Communists, and he was nearly driven from the room by hoots of derision from the Press—a thing I have never seen happen here before. He promised that an eleventh and comprehensive directive would now be issued, but this was partly spiked by the President's statement at his Press conference last week that he would not have removed from the libraries the detective stores of Dashiell Hammett, who once refused to tell a Congressional Committee whether he had ever been a Communist.

Now Dr. Johnson has gone, and a new and apparently more sensible "master" directive has been issued which sets out a precise list of books which may not be put on the shelves of American overseas libraries, although officials refuse to reveal what books are on this list. Mr. Dulles has apologised to Mr. Clarence Streit, the advocate of federalism, for the removal of his book "Union Now" from some libraries and the Administration very much hopes that the matter is now closed.

THE INCIDENT has been an instructive one, for it has shown how limited is the power of Senator McCarthy and the professional "witch-hunters" to intimidate the strong forces of tolerance and good sense in American society. Dr. Johnson—and to a certain extent Mr. Dulles—leant over backwards to placate Senator McCarthy in the matter of the books, and raised a storm of laughter and protest against themselves, to which in the end they had to bow.

Dr. Johnston's departure after a brief and unhappy period of office—the President would probably have asked for his resignation if he had not offered it—is only part of a much larger internal battle within the Administration on the subject of propaganda and psychological warfare. During last year's election campaign, the President laid great emphasis on its importance. One of his first acts was to bring an able war-time propagandist, Mr. C. D. Jackson of "Fortune" Magazine, on to his personal staff, and to set up a committee under another Jackson, Mr. William Jackson, until recently one of the heads of the Central Intelligence Agency, to make recommendations for a permanent organisation to handle propaganda.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE REPORT has been withheld from publication, but, according to unofficial accounts, it throws doubt on the whole value of psychological warfare as something divorced from the evolution of foreign policy. It apparently reverts to what many people believe to be the sounder concept that propaganda is no substitute for correct thought and action, and that bold American leadership and sound international policies are the best form of psychological warfare.

Prisoners?

(Washington Post)

If officials in Washington are as distraught as they purport to be over Syngman Rhee's sabotage of the truce, they ought to be asking some very tough questions of Army commanders in Korea. For it is scarcely conceivable that the release of the North Korean prisoners could have come as a complete surprise to the Eighth Army. Indeed, there is reason to suspect that individual Americans, if they did not participate in the plot, at least knew of it in advance and did nothing to stop it. The unconcealed glee of those few persons in this country who have urged expanded war adds to the suspicion.

HEAPING R ICE BOWL

Letter To The Editor

POWER PLAYS AND POLITICS

Sir: In the minds of many of our citizens, a great deal of doubt and mistrust has been created through statements being issued in connection with the strike at the Quaker Oats plant.

Since I have been personally involved throughout the long drawn out negotiations and the resulting strike, I am taking the liberty here to express my own opinions concerning the strike and also publish statements regarding myself.

The strike at the Quaker Oats plant was no surprise to the employees involved, as the tension had been building up for many years. This condition was undoubtedly aggravated by myself and many more who during a period of years took part in negotiating contracts between the Quaker management and the local union.

My own experience in these matters has taught me to be very wary of ambiguous statements made during discussions and with all due respect to the Quaker Oats management I have often realized, sometimes to my sorrow that verbal agreements and sometimes written ones, can be very easily misinterpreted to serve a purpose other than that which was intended.

Before this unhappy situation can be improved, it is my belief that there are certain members of management's administrative body requiring further tuition on human relations, as too often employees are being treated as cogs in a huge production wheel and not as human beings. It is also true, that myself and others must realize that in this world it is a necessity that in order to improve and advance our conditions we must always be willing to discuss our common problems.

In reference to statements concerning my employment with the United Packinghouse Workers of America I can truthfully state that at no time, in my presence, has my position been threatened by Fred Dowling, Canadian Director of the U.P.W.A.

I can appreciate the statement made by Mr. Reginald R. Faryon in respect to myself carrying out the commitment in respect to recommending acceptance of the Quaker Oats final proposition, but wish to make it clear that the commitment was not a personal one on my behalf, but one on instructions from the committee I represented. I also wish to point out that it was not agreed that the details of the offer were complete and final as no contract is complete and final until both parties have signed same, but, it was agreed that we were in agreeance on the principles involved. It is also quite true that the agreement reached in the city hall as far as contractual commitments are concerned had nothing to do with Saskatoon, but it was also stated that a settlement in Peterborough was contingent on a settlemen being reached in Saskatoon.

Also I wish to make it understood that in attending the meeting called by His Worship Mayor Waddell I attended not as an Alderman representing the city but as a Union representative representing the welfare of the members of Local 293 U.P.W.A.

At the conclusion of the meeting in the city hall I and the committee I represented were quite confident that a settlement once being reached in Peterborough would as a result bring forth a settlement in Saskatoon.

In conclusion I wish to thank His Worship Mayor H. Waddell, Alderman Graham and Alderman Farquharson for taking part in assisting us to reach an agreement in Peterborough and can only hope that the Quaker Oats management will make a sincere effort to negotiate a settlement in Saskatoon with our Sister Local so that efforts put forth by all parties in Peterborough can be fully appreciated.

WILLIAM J. BEGGS,
Field Representative,

Austerity School At Guelph

(HAMILTON SPECTATOR)

BY building an 11-class public school at a cost of less than $15,000 a room, Guelph's Board of Education has set a refreshing example that could well be studied by every community in a province in which new schools have been costing as much as $25,000 a room.

Perhaps Guelph's new school, which consists of a group of five separate buildings made of standardized steel panels, is not beautiful. But it does provide what a school needs —space in which to teach and plenty of light in which to learn. By eliminating the costly frills of long, wide corridors and decorative architecture, it recognizes a basic fact which is all too often forgotten —that the taxpayer's pocket is not bottomless.

A touch of such austerity is the only solution to the present crisis in education —a crisis which results from the collision between the urgent need for more classrooms to house a growing school-age population and the soaring cost of construction.

Austerity in this case has the added virtue of flexibility. Scores of the fancy modern schools which have sprouted all over Ontario since the war are already having to have extra rooms added to them; and making the additions harmonize with the original structures is a costly business —costly in steadily rising taxation. Guelph will be able to expand its new school progressively and less expensively, simply by adding more similar units.

In a time of depression it might be possible to make a case for the construction of large and fancy schools with broad corridors and impressive fronts. At such a time costs fall and there is the need to make work. But in a period of high prices such as at the present there is a simple fact which should never be overlooked: Provided that space and light are adequate, children will learn just as well in a simple prefabricated building as they will in the most impressive architectural confection of concrete and cut stone.

In the last analysis a school is judged by the quality of its teaching, not by the magnificance of its facade.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the apostles gathered themselves together unto Jesus, and told him all things, both what they had done, and what they had taught. And he said unto them, Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while; for there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat. And they departed into a desert place by ship privately. And the people saw them departing, and many knew him, and ran afoot thither out of all cities, and outwent them, and came together unto him. And Jesus, when he came out, saw much people, and was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd; and he began to teach them many things . . . And when he had sent them away, he departed into a mountain to pray. (Mark 6: 30-34, 46.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The Coronation fancy-dress dance was over and the local gossips were comparing notes.

"Mrs. Smithington-Smythe looks upset, don't you think?" said one, gloatingly.

"Yes, my dear. She came as a Hawaiian beauty, with grass skirt and all—and they awarded her first prize in the humorous section as 'The Old Thatched Cottage'."

A young lady went into a drug store and asked if it were possible to hide the taste of castor oil.

"It's horrid stuff, you know. Ugh!" and she shuddered at the thought of it.

"Why, certainly," said the druggist.

Just then another young lady sat down and ordered a chocolate ice cream soda. The druggist asked the patient if she wouldn't like one too. With a smile, she accepted, and drank the soda with much enjoyment.

"Now tell me," she said. "How would you disguise the taste of castor oil?"

The druggist beamed all over. "Aha, my dear young lady. I just gave you some in that soda."

"But, good heavens!" screamed the young lady, "I wanted it for my sister."

Examination Results Too Delayed

(Windsor Star)

Grade 13 students have completed their departmental examinations, and are anxiously awaiting the results. It is an agonizing wait as in most cases the careers of these boys and girls are dependent upon the results.

Unfortunately it is likely this period will be prolonged, if previous years offer the criterion In 1952 it was August 11 before the results of these departmental examinations reached Windsor. Students were preparing to go to university before they actually knew whether they could.

It isn't just that. Often the selection of a university is dependent upon the examination results, because the qualifications for universities differ. Also, the results of the examinations may cause students to reconsider which course they will take at university. And some students have special financial arrangements to make.

There is no logical reason why students should have to wait from late June to mid-August before they know the results. With proper organization it should be quite possible to examine all these papers, and tabulate, the results in a couple of weeks at the most.

The same easy-going and prolonged process has been in operation for years. It can and should be speeded up. It is unfair to the students, and can handicap them in the choice of university or of courses to keep them waiting six weeks or more.

Expect Veterans To Be Davis Cup Mainstays

MONTREAL (CP) — Two veteran Canadian Davis Cup tennis players will probably be doing most of the work in the North American Zone tennis tie against Mexico starting Friday at the Mount Royal Tennis Club.

Lorne Main of Toronto and Vancouver and Henri Rochon of Montreal may play both singles and doubles matches against the strong Mexican team of Mario Llamas, Pancho Contreras and Rafael Ortega. Canadian newcomers Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke and Paul Willey of Vancouver may possibly sit on the sidelines.

Official referee Jacques Vadboncoeur will make the draw for the singles today and doubles Saturday.

Bedard, at first considered a great singles prospect tore a ligament in his back during a recent workout. He said he could still play a singles match with his back taped, but had difficulty reaching for low shots.

NULLIFIES CHANCES

Observers felt, however, that the injury almost nullified his chances of drawing a singles berth.

Rochon pulled a thigh muscle in recent practices but returned after a day's rest and said the leg did not hamper his play.

He was teamed with Main in a doubles practice against Bedard and Willey Wednesday and showed well.

During the past few weeks Main worked out with Willey as a doubles partner and Willey's replacement by Rochon today indicated the young newcomer will not be in the left court position against Mexico Saturday.

He still would be pressed into action, however, if Main or Rochon were exhausted by their singles match.

The three-man Mexican squad worked out later in the afternoon with Brendan Macken, Canada's top-ranking but retired player. Macken joined Ortega in a two-set match against Llamas, 23, and Contreras, 19.

Millbrook Maidens Defeat Bethany Girls

MILLBROOK (ENS)—Bethany girl softballers, who have been defeating the locals with almost monotonous regularity lately, mislaid the formula on Tuesday evening and ended up on the short end of a 17-5 score. It was Millbrook's show all the way as they jumped into a first inning five-run lead. The locals' bats rang out a merry tune of singles, doubles, triples and homers with Margaret Guthrie leading the parade with a pair of homers, a triple and a single for an .800 batting average. Bethany, with a couple of their regulars on the absentee list because of vacations and injuries, ran into one of those evenings when nothing went right, kept trying until the last out and although they lost the game their didn't lose their equanimity—and deserve a big bow for that.

Doreen Todd went the full distance for Millbrook in a neat pitching display marred only by a few four-ball complimentaries while Gail Bristow, opposing pitcher, was the victim of shaky support. Even Marie Carr, classy young Bethany catcher, who has fewer errors chalked up against her than anyone in the league got into the act with a wild peg. R. Hudson topped the Bethany hitters with three for four hits, including a homer.

Lineups:

Bethany: Bigelow, Carr, Edwards, Martichenko, Hudson, Bristow, Fallis, Neals, Bigelow.

Millbrook: Hutchison, N. Richards, Lowery, Guthrie, McDowell, Todd, M. Richards, Powell, Dawson.

Umpires: Ryley, Armstrong.

CUBAN WINS FIGHT

MILWAUKEE (AP)—World welterweight championship Kid Gavilan won an unanimous but unimpressive 10-round decision over Ramon Fuentes of Los Angeles Wednesday night in a non-title bout.

A slim crowd in the Milwaukee Arena saw the Cuban stalk his rugged opponent most of the way, open up with flurries of punches that accumulated points, and score the only damaging punch of the fight, a solid right to the jaw that dropped the Californian for a nine-count near the end of the seventh round.

TITLE GO FOR LONDON

LONDON (AP)—The world middleweight title fight between Britain's Randy Turpin and Bobo Olson of San Francisco, may take place in London in the fall, Turpin's manager, said Wednesday.

The bout originally was scheduled for Aug. 27 in New York. It was postponed until mid-October at the request of Turpin's manager, George Middleton, who said his fighter needed a "little more time to get into proper condition" after an auto accident.

Olson is reported to want to fight in San Francisco.

Will Declare Junior Titlist

TORONTO (CP)—A new Ontario junior golf titlist will be declared today at the Ontario Junior Golf Championship tournament. There will be no defending champion in play as Jerry Knechtel of Kitchener Rockway, last year's winner, is just over the age limit.

A record entry of 89 boys will tee off in the 36-hole event which is being staged at the Oakdale Club. Representatives from all parts of Ontario, are expected. The tournament is divided into three age groups: 16-18, 14-15, and 13 and under.

The winner will represent Ontario in the Canadian junior match-play championships at Montreal Aug. 22-23.

In addition, eight players under 18 will be chosen to make up Ontario's team in the annual junior match against the District of Columbia in Washington next week.

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The King is a pro—long live the King. We mean Eddie Feigner of the King and his Court, that fabulous four-man softball team which tours the States and Canada and makes much moolah each year. He has appeared twice here in recent years and drew walloping big crowds of paid customers under auspices of a service club But OASA officials have taken a dim view of the King cabbaging so much cash from softball devotees and this year have decided that Feigner & Co. Ltd. are professional. What were they before, Mr. Feaver? Hence, it is most unlikely that he will strut his streamlined stuff here this season, but has been doing okay playing in Northern Ontario and 'gainst Intercounty League teams in Western Ontario.

* * * * * *

Feigner has been hurling for 14 years and has fanned 17,924 batters, his fast ball being clocked at 104 mph. He uses all sorts of trick windups and deliveries, many of them admittedly illegal, in his exhibition tours. Fans quite a few batters while he is pitching bindfolded, or from a kneeling position, or maybe tossing 'em in from second base! His three teammates, apart from the catcher, have not much to do, but are placed strategically. All are powerful hitters. We thought of Feigner the other day when watching the all-star ball game on TV and noting the odd windups employed by the veteran Satchel Paige. The announcer said: "Satch doesn't us an illegal pitch, nor is it entirely legal, either!"

A's Lead Sliced Down

From the banana-oil belt of Ontario—Rex Stimers' beloved St. Kitts—comes this item: "That once gigantic 10-point lead boasted by the Athletics just three weeks ago is rapidly vanishing. Today they have exactly two points left and, since the onrushing Peterborough Trailermen have two games in hand, the defending champs are in an excellent position to hurdle the A's into that top place. Until recently the Athletics were playing a steady, methodical brand of lacrosse, which simply overpowered the opposition. Then they ran smack up against the experienced Petes, dropped two games in as many days, and seem to have been slightly off kilter ever since." Let us bow our heads and say, long may they continue so."

* * * * * *

On or off kilter, the Trailermen need look for no romp when Orillia-Toronto Yorks (or is it Greater Orillia?) tackle the Petes here Friday night. That'll be for keeps. Clubs are on even terms to date with two wins and two losses each against each other, and they meet twice more (counting tomorrow) ere schedule's end. A tossup tilt when these strong squads clash, with not a bit of love lost between 'em. Scotty McPhail, Commish McKenzie, the McNulty's, Teatro, et al, don't like any part of Peterborough, and the Petes reciprocate in kind. Locals are out for their eighth straight in a drive to overtake St. Kitts, but Yorks will make 'em earn it every slashing step of the way.

* * * * * *

Re The Peterson Case

Can't tell you much about Denny Peterson's chances of playing for the Trailermen this season, as nothing new developed last p.m. The mauled Mounties of Mimico put a rather ridiculous price tag of $1,000 for his release up to the Petes a few days ago, and Manager Bob Curtin replied that Peterborough couldn't go higher than $200. OLA has a signing deadline of July 15, but Denny signed with the Petes ere that — his only problem now being to get a release from Mimico, as he's still their property, even if he won't play for 'em. If Mounties want to pass up $200 for a player who won't perform for Mimico, then Denny can sit it out the rest of the OLA season and be a free agent next year. Meantime, he moves here Aug. 15 to work and might be able to get in this year's Mann Cup series (which isn't under OLA jurisdiction) if the Petes get that far.

* * * * * *

Whitby toted potent clubs into Riverside last p.m. to to pound out an 11-3 Lakeshore Ball Loop victory o'er the Liflocs. It was a 7-2 game on earned runs, and they were helped by half a dozen walks off Roger Lee — four of 'em in a row in the sixth — and some loose local fielding. Gord Neal and Al MacDonald did the main belting for the Merchants, who are presently in a battle for second place in standing. Lee pitched fine ball at times, but hit the odd wild streak, and then Whitby bunched blows with men on the runways. Jim McGrath put the fire out handily just ere darkness halted proceedings. Brown hurled four-hit ball for Whitby. Locals are hoping to work in a postponement here Saturday aft.

St. John's Triumph

St. John's broke into the victory column in the Catholic Softball League with a 9-8 win last night over Immaculate Conception. They scored three runs in the first inning, four in the fifth and clinched it with a brace in the seventh. The losers tallied three each in the second and fourth, with singles in the third and sixth. Teams:

I.C.: McCormick, Towns, J. Driscoll, Conway, Heffernan, DeCarlo, DeNoble, Anthony, H. Driscoll.

St. John's: Corbett, McCrea, Williams, A. Griffin, Masterson, Woodhouse, D. Griffin, J. McCrea, Phillips.

Juves Awarded OLA Tilt Over Parkdale

Peterborough juveniles were awarded their OLA game here last night by a 7-6 score when Parkdale Lions left the field after a free-for-all in the fourth quarter and refused to return to the game. Referees Rock Batley and Ed Woodcock warned them and then called the game, awarding the win to the local lacrossers.

It was a rugged affair from the start with 20 penalties handed out, 12 minors to the visitors and eight penalties—including two 10-minute majors—to the locals.

Jack Hobart had three tallies for the Petes, Tiny Hunt two and Jerry Blodgett one. Hunt, Al Foote, Stew Brooks, J. Hobart and Danny Sutherland each clicked for an assist.

For Parkdale, Jack Madgett and Charlie Ludlow each counted a pair, with Hugh Devin, Jack McGee and Bob Pulford getting one each. Madgett and Devin had two assists apiece and Jerry Franezak one.

Lions: Rhodes, Ludlow, Devin, McGee, Owen, Franezak, Gabon, Whittington, Dickins, Madgett, Falby, Pulford.

Petes: Feltham, Blodgett, Orde, Foote, Delahey, Brooks, Hobart, Dundas, Drury, Ward, Strickland, D. Sutherland, J. Sutherland, Hunt.

Referees—E. Woodcock and R. Batley.

Tigers Upset Athletics 10-6

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tigers upset the league-leading St. Catharines Athletics 10-6 here Wednesday night in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game. It was the second time within a week that the fifth-place Tigers managed to drop the As.

Tigers led the game all the way with quarter scores of 2-1, 5-2, and 6-5.

The Cats were paced by Jack Bionda's three goals. Other Hamilton scorers were Doug Davidson with two, Red McLain, Jack Sibbild, Butch Guthro, Barney Welch and playing coach Arnold Smith who netted singles.

Derry Davies led for St. Catharines with two goals while singletons went to Skip Teal, Max Wooley, Ted Howe, and Don Frick.

SIGNS NEW BACK

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Clair, coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football league, revealed Wednesday night he has signed Al Brosky, 26-year-old former Illinois University defensive back.

ALL STAR OUT.—Billy Goodman, American League All Star, is out attempting to steal second base in the first inning of the All Star game at Cincinnati's Crosley Field. Pewee Reese, National League, makes the play as umpire Donatelli calls the play. It was the 20th All Star game and the Nationals won it 5-1.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

As we were strolling down from the bowling green the other evening, we noticed a group of small children near the corner of Reid and McDonnel Streets. As we drew near to the children, we noticed one little chap, about five years old, crying as though he had lost every friend in the world.

Curiosity got the better of us, and we soon found out that he had lost his nickel. By this time many had gathered, and among the crowd was a much older boy who apparently knew the little chap. He began to make fun of the "little baby" who would cry over a lost nickel. What was a nickel? He wasn't helping the situation any. To him maybe a nickel was not so much (we doubted if he had one in his pocket). But to the youngster, it was all he had, and he had lost it all.

He was still crying, but not for long. And we noticed that when the hat was passed around, the big "money-man" was the first to go east on McDonnel Street.

The whole incident reminds us of a few verses we once read about a nickel. It goes like this:

TO AN OLD NICKEL

I wonder how many loaves of bread
And how many ice-cream cones you've bought;
How many hundred spools of thread,
How many lessons of thrift you've taught!
Your sides are shiny and smooth and bare,
But you're counted a nickel anywhere.
Did you ever lie in a lean old purse
While someone fearfully counted you?
Such a small bit in a shaking hand,
A thin old nickel a dime or two,
Clutching you close in a frightened way,
Hunger stalking so close that day.
And maybe you rode with the rich and great,
And he laughed at you and your paltry worth,
But he didn't know how much you meant
To the humble and needy poor of earth—
A cup of milk or a frosted bun
For a child who played in the morning sun.
Though you're worn and shabby and sadly bent,
You'd still buy a lolly-pop gay and sweet,
A loaf of bread at the corner shop,
A candle to light at the Virgin's feet:
For a widow's mite in the temple hall
Was counted the greatest gift of all!

Pats Drop One In The OLA To Long Branch

LONG BRANCH—In an OLA junior "A" fixture here last night, the local Long Branch lacrossers took a 14-5 victory over the Peterborough Pats. The latter lost a good chance of climbing in the group race as Oakville lost a 16-8 tilt to St. Catharines in an upset the previous night.

The game here was clean enough with but three penalties apiece, but Long Branch drove from the start to outplay the visitors, who seemed well below form in this contest. Only Curtis, with four goals, gave the Long Branch goalie any trouble, Smith scoring their other one, while Allan and Hobart each earned an assist. The winners' goals were by Ruse 4, Smith 3, Kapasky and Neave 2 each, singles going to Coleman and Rousseau. Eland and Coleman had two assists each, one apiece going to McIntosh, Ruse, Smith, Kapasky and Anderson. Teams:

Pats: Hill, Brioux, O'Reilly, Bloom, Galley, Thomas, Logan, Allan, McDougall, Hobart, Curtis, Daniels, Farley, Smith.

Long Branch: Russell, Passmore, Eland, McIntosh, Ruse, Neave, Coleman, Smith, Rousseau, Kapasky, Tomlinsen, Giroux, Henderson.

HOLE IN ONE

GALT (CP) — Fifteen-year-old Billy Stager scored a hole-in-one Wednesday at the Waterloo County Golf and Country Club here during a warm-up game for today's Ontario Junior Golf Championship final at Toronto's Oakdale course.

Billy sunk his tee shot on the tough par-three 225-yard 11th hole. He was using a no. 3 wood.

Whitby Beats The Liflocs In Lakeshore Ball Contest

Whitby Merchants downed the local Liflocs 11-3 in a Lakeshore Baseball League tussle here last night, the joust being called early in the seventh for darkness. Some robust clouting with ducks on the pond, plus some loose local fielding and a wild streak by Roger Lee in one frame combined to roll up the count. Whitby scored three in the first, two in the fifth and six more in the open sixth inning, Jim McGrath relieving Lee then and whiffing the last batter. Lee allowed 10 hits for seven earned runs and fanned six, but issued five walks. His support was shaky.

A FOUR-HITTER

Gord Brown pitched four-hit ball for Whitby, fanning five and issuing three walks, as he received neat backing, including a double-play, Guye to Bell. The visitors left four aboard while the Dalton lads left six stranded. They scored two of their markers in the fourth and another in the sixth, Murray Byrne driving in two and Ken Pammett one.

Gord Neal was the big sticker for Merchants with four for four, having two runs batted in. Al MacDonald connected for two triples to drive in four. Guye and Ward each had an RBI. The local hitters were Byrne, Pammet, Lingard and MacSporran with one apiece. Lingard and Ferguson each stole a base, the latter later limping off with a sore leg, to be replaced by Douglas. Teams:

Whitby—Bell, 3b; Ward, cf; K. MacDonald, 2b; Neal, lf; A. MacDonald, rf; Guye, ss; Hanna, c; Copeland, 1b; Brown, p.

Liflocs—Kearns, 2b; Foley, rf; MacSporran, cf; Lingard, 1b; Sullivan, lf; Pammett, c; Byrne, 3b; Ferguson, ss; Douglas, ss; Lee, p; McGrath, p.

Major League Ball Stars Return To Business Today

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Major League ball players put away their fishing poles and got back to work today after a three-day midsummer all-star holiday. As if to make up for lost time the majors scheduled 11 games for today and tonight, with most of the action coming after dark. Charlie Dressen awoke from his three-day dream during which he controlled the talents of such pitchers as Robin Roberts, Warren Spahn and Curt Simmons and resumed his daily agony of trying to find a winning assortment from among the throwers on his Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Dodgers return to action with a 1½-game lead in the too-close-for-comfort national league pennant chase, facing St. Louis tonight in the first of a four-game series at home.

Dressen, whose National League all-stars came out on top at Cincinnati as expected, decided to give Preacher Roe another chance to recover his wizardry over the Cards in the first game. The Preacher used to beat the Red Birds by just showing up, but he's been kayoed twice by them this season.

OPEN INVASION

Milwaukee's second-place Braves open their third eastern invasion with a night game in Pittsburgh and the homer-happy Cincinnati Redlegs visit Philadelphia for a twilight-night twin bill. The Phillies, like the Cardinals, are four games off the pace, but own third place by two percentage points.

New York Giants, winners of seven straight before the Dodgers stopped them last Sunday, renew their battle for a first-division spot in a night game against Chicago.

What was Dressen's dream was Casey Stengel's nightmare and the New York Yankee skipper's only pleasant thoughts about the all-star encounter are that it's over. From a personal standpoint he also can remember that he's lost the dream game the last three years and gone on to win his pennant and the World Series.

Stengel's Yankees, who won every game on their last western swing, open their third tour with a twi-night doubleheader against the lowly St. Louis Browns. Casey's biggest problem at the moment is young Mickey Mantle, his all-star centrefielder now reported suffering with water on the knee.

REST MANTLE

Mantle reported he was ready to play but the indications were that Stengel would rest him for a vital doubleheader in Chicago Sunday.

The brash White Sox, who have moved from fifth place to a challenging second in a month, open their home stand with daylight twin bill against Washington. The Sox trail the Yankees by five and have a 13-game home stand coming up.

Cleveland's third-place Indians play host to Philadelphia Athletics in a night game. The Indians fell 8½ games behind by losing four out of five to Chicago just before the all-star intermission.

Fourth-place Boston begins its invasion with a night game in Detroit.

Bisons Thump Royals 7-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The surging Buffalo Bisons Wednesday night pulled within a half-game of Montreal Royals and today threaten to move into a first-place-tie with the International Baseball League leaders.

The Bisons defeated the Royals 7-2 to gain an even split in the four-game series between the clubs at Buffalo. Montreal is not scheduled to play tonight and the Herd can gain the tie with a victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Wednesday night's contest saw catcher Joe Erautt whack his first homer of the year, with two mates aboard, to lead the Bisons. Erautt's blow was the big one in a five-run, forth-inning rally.

Veteran Milt Jordan, returning to action after being out two weeks with an ailing arm, gained credit for his 11th victory after rescuing southpaw Ken Johnson in the fourth-inning rally.

HEAVY HITTING

Heavy hitting featured two other Wednesday night contests.

Rochester Red Wings pounded out 13 hits, including homers by Don Richmond, Tom Burgess and Charley Kress, to belt Syracuse Chiefs 7-0 and sweep a three-game series.

Righthander George Condrick went the route at Rochester for his first shutout of the season.

Toronto Maple Leafs shelled three pitchers for 16 hits and an 8-1 verdict over Ottawa Athletics at the capital. It was Toronto's third win in a completed four-game series.

Don Johnson gave up only three hits for his sixth victory of the season.

In a Baltimore contest, Howie Fox, limiting Springfield to six hits, pitched his eighth victory as the Orioles defeated the Cubs 4-1. Fox had a shutout into the ninth when he faltered, giving up three hits.

Jack Graham of the Orioles hit his 11th homer of the campaign in the sixth.

13 Canadians Qualify In Bisley Shoot

BISLEY, England (Reuters) — Thirteen Canadian marksmen qualified Wednesday for the second stage of the Queen's Prize at Bisley, to be held Saturday.

T. W. Gregory, Ottawa, and E. L. Warner of Sherbrooke, Que., each scored 100, two less than the top scorers in the first stage, G. G. Barratt of Australia and A. T. Hooper of Britain.

Lt.-Col. D. T. Burke of Lansing, Ont., 1924 King's Prize winner, qualified with 98.

CANADIAN SCORES

Scores of other Canadian qualifiers were: G. B. Kay of Hamilton, Ont., and R. W. Hampton of Ottawa, 99; E. R. Jamieson of Vancouver and G. H. Emperingham of Montreal, 98; W. E. Hicks of Edmonton, Steven Johnson of the King's Own Calgary Regiment, and A. S. Emery of Saint John, N.B., 97; C. C. Wilson of Ottawa, S. W. Graham of Toronto and W. J. Stachan 96.

Canada was well represented in the Service Rifle Championship aggregate, compiled Wednesday from the scores in the service-rifle events.

The winner, with 465 out of a possible 525 points, was Sqn. Ldr. C. C. Willott of the R.A.F.—King's Prize winner in 1946.

Officer Cadet E. L. Warner, Ennosville, Que., was eighth with 449. C. F. Rowell, Hamilton, scored 412.

Peter Lind Wins $5,000 Troy Trot

SARATOGA SPRING, N.Y (AP)—Peter Lind, a fast and game son of Volomite, took over the favorite's role for the Hambletonian Wednesday night by winning the $5,000 Troy three-year-old trot on the Grand Circuit program.

The colt owned by the Arden Homestead Stable, Goshen, and L. B. Sheppard, Hanover, Pa., outlasted 13 rivals, including 12 other Hambletonian eligibles, in a three-heat elimination race at Saratoga raceway. He captured the deciding dash in 2:05½ after taking an elimination heat in 2:05 2-5.

7-Pound Pickerel

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — The largest pickerel caught in the Campbellford area was taken by George Lucy on Tuesday night. Mr. Lucy was using a River Runt, trolling in the canal a few hundred yards above the bridge when the big fellow struck.

The fish weighed exactly seven pounds, was 26 inches long, and measured 13 inches in girth.

Lieutenant Killed

KAISERSLAUTERN, Germany (AP)—Russian Lieut. Nikolay Solonar, who deserted to the West and then charged a school teacher here with Red spying, was killed when hit by a truck. Solonar had charged that Olga Robine, a Russian-born school teacher now living here, had tried to get from him a list of all refugees now in West Germany.

Merchants Fall To UEW In Soccer Fray

Croll, UE, again enacted the same performance last evening in the EOL soccer league, as in previous games. Whenever his team is down he goes centre-forward to gain two goals that gives UE two valuable league points before a good attendance on King Edward Park. He converted two penalty shots that resulted in a 3-2 win for UE over Merchants. Referee J. Craig handled an excellent game.

Opening exchanges found Titshall, UE custodian, frustrating close-in attacks by the Merchants forwards. Off-sides and goal-kicks prevailed. Referee J. Craig cautioned the players. A foul against Buchan resulted in Croll smashing the cross-bar with a terrific drive. Eventually the German youth, Merchants' outside right, shot a drive across the goal where E. Lane opened the scoring. Eight minutes later, Holt, outside right, dribbled past his opposition to lift the sphere into the far corner of the net to even the count with an oblique shot. Half time—one apiece.

CROLL BRILLIANT

On resuming, Merchants forced the issue to find UE half-back line nullifying every effort to score. Then a series of scrimmages prevailed in Merchants' territory that had their defence upset. Finally Buchan relieved the pressure. UE replied with a series of raids that made Hutchinson, goalie, concede two fruitless flag-kicks.

Merchants created a suprise when the German youth beat UE goalie with an unsaveable drive to take the lead 2-1. At this stage, Croll went into centre-forward positoin to gain two penalty kicks caused by his opponents' infringements. He converted the spots kicks into the rigging from a different angle to give his team a 3-2 lead. Thereafter, play deteriorated considerably through Murray continually kicking out of play to waste time, while Merchants pressed until final whistle.

Best of the winners were Croll, Holt and Smith; for Merchants, Brownson, Buchan and F. Foster.

Merchants: J. Hutchinson, goal, Al Downer and T. Foster, fullbacks, E. Lane, M. Buchan and Art Downer, halfbacks, W. Downer, L. Payne; H. Payne, G. Downer and Jack Downer, forwards; subs D. Downer, G. Smith, R. Brownson.

UE: R. Titshall, goal, P. Croll and W. Allan, fullbacks, J. Murray F. Mundey and H. Steel, halfbacks, J. Holt, R. Strong, B. Hoyle, R. Davies and G. Smith, forwards; subs, G. Davies and J. Kinston. Referee—J. Craig.

Dewey Administration Attempts To Block Bill

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York Wednesday threw the weight of his Republican state administration against a U.S. Senate committee in an unprecedented move to block passage of a bill calling for private development of the $400,000,000 Niagara power project.

In a joint statment, Dewey, the three other state-elected officials, and Republican legislative leaders said they are "opposed to surrendering these great natural resources for private exploitations."

The statement was sent to the 11 members of the Senate public works committee. The Niagara bill, approved last week by the House of Representatives, reportedly will come before the committee Friday.

BACKING BILL

The Dewey administration has been backing the bill which would authorize the state power authority to build the project.

The statement said the state plan would "feed this cheaper power to the consumer through all existing public, private and co-operative utility companies."

The plan would "avoid costly and wasteful duplication of facilities," and "would save the consumers of our state at least 25,000,000 a year," the statement added.

Albany sources said there were indications the private-power bill would have tougher sledding in the Senate than in the House.

The measure would permit five New York state private utilities to construct facilities that would nearly triple Niagara's hydro-electric output.

NAMED CEMENT

Joseph Aspdin, English inventor of portland cement, named it after the English island of Portland.

NO HOLES BARRED—Survivors of the steamer Jacob Luckenbach, which sank in early morning darkness in San Francisco Bay, look down at a hole made in the bow of Hawaiian Pilot after the two ships collided 17 miles from Golden Gate Bridge. All passengers and crew were rescued.

Tea Parties Called Key To Victory

TORONTO. — Candidates are discovering that in this election it's the personal contact that counts. People dislike attending mass meetings in public halls on warm summer evenings. So, while the family sits in the backyard or on the front porch, the prospective federal member comes down the street for a chat and to answer a few questions.

William Newcombe, CCF candidate in York Centre, said he has found the people relaxed and in a mood to greet the candidate. "It's a completely new election campaign pattern that may backfire on the Liberals who called a summer election," he said.

Mr. Newcombe has worked for campaigners in five federal and provincial elections prior to becoming a federal candidate himself, this year. "The public meeting is something of the past," he said.

Campaign workers for Allan Hollingworth, Liberal candidate in York North, agreed.

GO TO SEE PEOPLE

It is now a case of the candidate going to see the people instead of the people going to see the candidate, said one workers.

A few mass meetings have been planned in the York ridings but mainly it is one round after another of garden and house parties with a mixture of mourning coffee and afternoon tea sessions.

A folksy approach is being planned by Liberal candidate J. D. Thomas in York East. Riding in a bus equipped with a portable platform, Mr. Thomas will spend the next 21 evenings making brief appearances all over the riding.

Mr. Thomas has promised to limit his talks to 20 minutes and they will not be the regular political type speech but a review of the day's news on the election as it appears in the daily newspapers. They'll be followed by question boxes and a round of handshaking.

PITY THE REFEREE—Mike Megyas wonders what to do with a foundling robin, perched atop of his head, which refuses to leave and eats only meat, potatoes and prunes. His problem is further aggravated by his pet cat who wants to eat the robin. To preserve the bird, Megyas has to take it along to work at a sewage disposal plant near Cleveland, Ohio.

Public Forests

MONTREAL (CP) — Ninety-three per cent of all Canadian forest land is still publicly owned, Walace A. Delahey, president of the Canadian Forestry Association, said in a public message urging caution against forest fires.

Construction Slowed

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—The value of building permits taken out during the first six months of 1953 was down 20 per cent from the same period last year. Officials said excessive rainfall during the spring was partly responsible for the construction cut.

VOTE P.C.

HOW ARE YOUR LOCAL TAXES?

TOO HIGH?

Vote Gordon K. FRASER

There is one major reason why the municipalities in this part of Canada are all pressed for money.

That reason is the fantastic tax grab of the present Ottawa government.

In 1930 Ottawa took less than 40 cents of every tax dollar; In 1953 it takes almost 80 cents of every tax dollar.

It is no accident, of course, that the level of government which is closest to the voter has the lowest taxes. They know what people want.

As a first step towards relieving local property tax burdens, the Progressive Conservative Government WILL:

1. Allow municipalities to tax all federal government properties.

2. Exempt all municipal purchases from sales and excise taxes. (On one project in one Canadian city that will save $500,000).

Use Large Pool To Test Designs Of New Vessels

OTTAWA (CP)—If National Research Council scientists went in for swimming on the job, they have Canada's biggest swimming pool to do it in.

As it is, they use their pool—450 feet long, 25 feet wide and 10 feet deep—to solve problems of naval design for the Royal Canadian Navy and for civilian shipbuilding firms.

They use the pool to find out how a new ship design fresh from the drafting-board of the naval architect will behave in the water.

Scale models of the new ships are either towed along on the glass-smooth 700,000-gallon pool or fitted with electric motors complete with scale-model screws and allowed to run themselves.

RADICAL DESIGNS

From data derived from these tests come craft of radically new design.

The specifications of a new type of flat-bottomed tug which will soon be chugging across Great Bear Lake in the Northwest Territories were drawn up from data calculated at the NRC tank. So also were specifications for a new car ferry which will ply between islands of the Pacific Coast and for a new type of lifeboat which may some day brave the gales of the North Atlantic.

Calculating ship specifications is more complicated than specifications for aircraft or submarines. An aircraft flies wholly in the air and a submarine moves wholly under water and either type of craft meets only one type of resistance. But a ship which runs part in the water and part out meets both a water drag and a surface friction drag.

The rig the NRC uses to tow the models is therefore fitted with a variety of instruments, many of local design, for recording the two types of drag. The rig operates by electric current from overhead trollies, trued to within 1-100th of an inch.

REALISTIC CONDITIONS

Everything possible is done to simulate the action of a ship making its way through the water. When the NRC scientists found a test model failed to develop the bow-wave turbulence of a life-size ship, they tried fixing a copper wire near the bow.

The device worked—The extra obstacle created the necessary artificial turbulence and the recording instrument recorded the sort of data it would record had it been installed on a full-size ship.

The testing pool is the property of the NRC's division of mechanical engineering which also operates supersonic wind tunnels for aircraft research, an engine laboratory and a low-teperature laboratory.

Prime Minister Aids Co-operation–Martin

BARRIE (CP) — Federal-provincial co-operation, under Prime Minister St. Laurent, has been the "best in the history of Canada," Health Minister Martin said Wednesday.

Addressing a political meeting at the home of Ralph Snelgrove, Liberal candidate for Simcoe North, Mr. Martin said the people of Canada are "the most fortunate in the world . . and Canada will be the country of the second half of the present century."

USED SUBMARINE

The submarine was first used in the American Civil War by the Confederate Forces at Charleston, S.C.

FRIGID DOWN UNDER—You have to go to Australia's Blue Mountains, 68 miles west of Sydney, to rejoice in this cooling scene. A 15-inch snowfall —a 15-year record — hit Katoomba and shopkeepers experienced a windfall from the snowfall as tourists rushed to the area to enjoy a weekend in the white countryside.

Revive Old Plan To Straighten Highway 35

LINDSAY (ENS) — Somerville township council has lent official endorsement to a suggestion being made by many citizens of Lindsay and district that an old road plan from Lindsay to Fenelon Falls, be revived which would remove many of the dangerous curves between the two and the village of Cameron.

The plan was advanced many years ago, after the construction of highway 35 by Sir Sam Hughes, former MP for Victoria-Haliburton, and minister of defence and militia in the Borden Government.

TOO EXPENSIVE

The plan was discarded, it was reported, as being too expensive in those days. The present highway winds its way through a large swampy area between the town and Cameron, some eight miles away. At one of the curves within a week two persons were killed, and another seriously injured in two collisions.

The plan called for a straight highway north from Lindsay, beginning with the first section of highway 35 in the town. It would continue in an almost straight line to Cameron. The first Lindsay-to-Fenelon Falls road was further west of the present highway and also ran straight for most of the stretch now taken up by the curving highway. The Somerville council resolution recommended to the department of highways that it consider the pla.. for building a diversion past the present road.

Fined and Jailed

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Hegimus Malawski, 43, Wednesday was fined $200 and costs for practising dentistry without a licence .Malawski was also sentenced to six months for indecent assault on a nine-year-old girl.

Repeat Accident

GODERICH (CP)—Charles Ruffell lost three fingers of his right hand a year ago when he was making an adjustment on a shaper machine at a local plant Wednesday, making the same adjustment on the same machine, Ruffel cut the same hand so badly that it may be necessary to amputate part of it.

Board Meets Engineer Over Hydro Problems

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A special meeting of the Public Utilities Commission was held in camera this week. Members of the local board met C. U. Peeling, an American engineer who designed the original hydro system in Campbellford.

He has been asked to investigate the local power situation to help the board arrive at a solution to the power shortage.

Merritton Can Buy Postage Stamps Again

MERRITTON (CP)—The 5,000 residents of Merritton will soon be able to buy stamps again—and forget that special trip to St. Catharines.

Postmaster George Foley of nearby Thorold said Wednesday the Merritton office, which closed July 4 when local merchants refused to continue handling the sub post office, will be run by his office.

The action came after Mayor F. O. Leeson complained that the town was being "treated like a rural outpost."

Residents have been travelling three miles to St. Catharines to get their stamps.

UN Plans Buffalo Herds To Produce Milk In East

NEW YORK (NEA) — Thanks to Bubalus Bubalus and a man from South Dakota, children in Southeast Asia and the Middle East may soon have enough milk to drink.

The South Dakotan is Donald R. Sabin, milk conservation coordinator of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. As part of his official duties, he tourned Southeast Asia and the Middle East, regions where two-thirds of the children go hungry for lack of milk. Over there, Sabin made the acquaintance of Bubalus Bubalus, the buffalo.

Sabin had never seen a buffalo before. (The American "buffalo" is, of course, really a bison.) But he soon came to believe that if modern methods of milk production were applied to buffalo dairying, the milk shortage could be licked.

HELP EGYPT

Already, NIUCEF has agreed to help the Egyptian government set up a drying plant for buffalo milk. Drying plants are necessary to save surpluses from the flush post-monsoon season for year-round distribution.

Buffalo milk isn't new in the Far and Middle East. A buffalo cow gives less milk than a cow cow, but the butter fat content is double. For centuries, buffaloes have been milked, but with haphazard methods. There's no sanitary control, no refrigeration, no disease control, and no modern processing equipment.

With up-to-date facilities, Sabin believes that these countries could produce a good quality, safe milk for children in sufficient quantity to take care of their own. The Indian Government, for one, has expressed a definite interest in such a program of buffalo dairying.

DAIRY CO-OP

Sabin visited a new dairy co-operative in a farm area north of Bombay, where thousands of people are engaged in raising buffaloes for milk. The animals live in clean sheds, surrounded by green fields and flowers, and are giving far more milk than the usual Oriental milk buffalo.

In some ancient countries, however, not even the buffalo can solve the milk problem. So other answers are being sought to the problem of supplying protein to the children. One maye be in protein-rich fish, which can be processed into flour and added to soups or baked in bread.

Another is "milk" made from soya beans. The Indonesian Government, for example, is asking UNICEF's help in setting up a soya bean milk processing and drying plant in Jogjakarta. The Indonesians hope to start producing soya bean milk in quantity next year.

BUBALUS BUBALUS, the buffalo, is a beast of burden and now a milk producer.

Mr. Gardner is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gardner and lived for many years in Norwood where he received his education.

REGINA (CP) — J. S. Gisby, manager of the Saskatchewan Municipal Hail Association, said his company received about 1,000 claims for hail damage in the first 20 days of the hail-insurance season June 10-30. Claims during the same period last year numbered only about 100.

Editor Denies Anti-Semitism

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Ronald Gostick, editor of the Canadian Intelligence Service, said Wednesday he wrote the material which Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa branded as "anti-semitic propaganda."

Mr. Gostick, also a director of the Canadian Anti-Communist League, was replying to an Ottawa report which said Mayor Whitton had threatened to complain to the RCMP unless faster action is taken to stop someone who is mailing her the literature. Mr. Gostick said the mayor is not on his mailing list.

The mayor told board of control Tuesday she had referred the matter to Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier on three occasions—three weeks, six months and 12 months ago—but no action has been taken.

The literature is "the sort of thing which inflamed people to inhuman terrors in Europe," Miss Whitton said. It attempted to identify the Jewish faith with communism.

Mr. Gostick said the league is "anti-Red . . . but not anti-Jewish." He added: "We are very much pro-Christian. If our society benefits by the application of Christian principle then other people . . . will also benefit."

Fined $140 Over Whisky

FORMBY, England (Reuters)—Importer J. K. Wilkie whose "Old Wilkie Scotch Type Whisky" turned out to be made in Holland, was fined $140 here Wednesday on a misleading advertising charge.

The prosecution submitted that scotch whisky is by law, by custom and in the trade, whisky which is wholly distilled in Scotland. Scotch whiskies varied in blend, but there was no such thing as "scotch type" whisky.

The label on the bottle showed a Scotsman and the word "Scotch" was in large letters. There was also a Glasgow address on the label but it was only a warehouse address, the prosecution said.

Will Discuss Pipeline Route

WASHINGTON (AP) — State department officials told Michigan and Wisconsin representatives Wednesday they will discuss with Canada the possibility of routing a projected trans-Canada natural-gas pipeline through the two states.

The proposed pipeline would link Alberta's natural-gas fields with the industrial centres of Eastern Canada. State representates have been trying to get Canadian gas for northern Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Glenn Wilton, president of Midcontinent Pipelines Ltd., Toronto, is reported to have told a meeting that his firm has applied to Canadian authorities for permission to export gas to the United States.

Midcontinent's line, Wilton said, would enter northwestern Minnesota, cross Northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan and leave the U.S. at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Liberal Party Creates New Opportunities

NOTRE DAME DE LOURDES, Man. (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier said at an election rally here Tuesday night that five factors in the program of Canada's Liberal government have created opportunities in the country.

He said they are: the social security program; assistance to private enterprise; development of natural resources; fulfilment of international commitments; and the public works program.

This, he said, is the record on which the government stands.

Joe Angyal Defends Sculling Crown On July 25

By CRAIG SWAYZE

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP) — A quiet unassuming little guy who fights fires for a living will have quite a blaze on his hands July 25 when he defends his Canadian singles title against the best scullers the United States and Canada can offer.

That's when Joe Angyal, the 37-year-old New York city fireman, lines up again such behemoths of rowing as Jack Kelly, Jr., Bobby Williams and Bob Platt in the championship singles, top sculling event of the four-day 71st Royal Canadian Henley Regatta here.

However, it won't faze the 149-pound New York Athletic Club sculler one little bit. He's used to pitting power against size.

NEVER SATISFIED

Joe the Giant Killer, as he is affectionately known throughout North American sculling circles, has never been satisfied with the lightweight crowns he has repeatedly won in 16 years of competition. Even at the United States National Regatta and Canadian Henleys he rows the lightweight events, then takes a breather and heads into the big sculling championships against the heavies.

At next week's Henley, Angyal will enter two lightweight races and move on against the big boys in a pair of heavyweight events.

He will attempt to repeat his 1952 victory in the 145-pound quarter-mile dash, then try to keep clubmate Rudy Jezek's senior 145-pound distance crown for the NYAC. Jezek was called into the U.S. Army shortly after winning the title last July.

Joe's next race will be the open dash, but his biggest test comes in that championship singles contest when he defends his Canadian open sculling title, won last year against Lachine's Gabby Beaudry and Bob Platt of Toronto Dons.

And as a prelude to these Henley races, the iron fireman will scull in the same four events at the 79th annual United States National Regatta Saturday and Sunday at Philadelphia.

Joe Angyal first took to sculling in 1934, learning his style in the old school while with the Ravenswood Boat Club of Long Island City, N.Y. Although short, he developed a long and seemingly effortless stroke packed with dynamite.

Ancient Coin

SWALECLIFF, England (CP)—The British Museum has acquired an ancient coin believed to have come from a wreck in the Thames estuary. It is a small gold piece of the Merovingian mint, Cologne, bearing the name of Gaucemar. It is thought to date from the 7th century.

P.G. & C.C. CHIPSHOTS

Quite a few golfers from the Peterborough club journeyed to Toronto last week and took in the Canadian Open. Everyone came home raving about the good golf played and a few of the boys were out practising some of the tips they picked up watching the name pro's. Slim Pearson had the wedge out and was curling pitch shots around the pin like an old pro.

While the pro's were burning up Scarboro, Jack Hardill was having himself a good game here, carding a neat 76 on Saturday. With a little luck on the greens he might have had a 73. He was playing that well. Jack is really hitting the ball well this year and more will be heard of him before the season's over. In fact nearly all of the boys are starting to get hot and maybe Peterborough Golf Club will take the team prize in the Midland League this coming Saturday.

CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP

Les Reid entered the semi-finals by defeating Stu Williamson two up. Les now meets Herb Bradhurn, a former club champion. In the other bracket Jim Clarkson defeated Moon Wootton 6 and 5 and now meets Ross Forgrave. The two winners of these matches will play off for the championship on August 9.

WESTCLOX TROPHY

No matches were played in this competition. The remaining players are Moon Wootton and Mike O'Leary in the upper bracket and Cec. Campbell in the lower.

BOB ABBOT ROUND ROBIN

Les Reid is running away with this competition. He has a 54 plus with 10 matches played. Quite a number of players are neglecting to play their matches and will have to scramble to get them all in. How about it, fellows.

The Peterborough Golf and Country Club business girls, entertained the Kawartha girls Tuesday night. The weather was most favorable and two-ball foursomes were played. The Kawartha girls came out on top with scores and Roma Brindle and Marg Lundy took the prizes for Kawartha. Peterborough business girls Marg Behan and Jean Castle won the prizes for Peterborough Club. After golf, refreshments were served and a movie shown on various golf clubs and courses of the United States. A short skit "What Not to Wear on The Golf Course" was presented by different members of the Peterborough Club, and Miss Betty Castle was commentator with Miss Elva Boate as pianist. The models were Grace Ingram, Dorothy Langley, Jean Castle, Eleanor Whittaker, Flinda Simmons, Helen Boyce and Joan Gardiner.

Dorothy Harle, on behalf of the Kawartha business girls, thanked the girls from the Peterborough Club for a most enjoyable evening.

Regina Man Being Held Abducting Woman Driver

BISMARCK, N. D. (AP)—An expectant young mother who was abducted Wednesday night by a knife-wielding hitchhiker was found on a roadside early today.

Authorities said Mrs. Albert Geigle, 33, pretty wife of a Strasburg, N. D., grain elevator operator, was dazed but apparently otherwise unharmed except for cuts on her hands suffered as she struggled with the hitch-hiker before she was abducted.

Held for investigation is a man identified by authorities as Donald Blackwell, 31, of Regina. They said he had Mrs. Geigle's checkbook in the pocket of his RCAF uniform when taken into custody. He told officials he couldn't remember even his name.

Geigle said his wife is an expectant mother and was on her way home from seeing a doctor. With her in the car were her three daughters, Carolyn, 3, Shirley Mae, 6, and Peggy Anne, 10; Mrs. Jake Feist and her 10-months-old son, Jimmy; and Mrs. John Unser, all of Strasburg.

The hitch-hiker terrorized the women and children before abducting Mrs. Geigle as he held a knife "as big as a bayonet" to her throat and threatened to kill her.

After riding with the group for almost 50 miles, the hitch-hiker suddenly pulled the large knife from under his jacket. He seized one of the youngsters and said he would stab her if the women and children would not stop screaming.

Mrs. Feist jumped from the car after it stopped and attempted to get passing motorists to help. She said drivers of six cars and four trucks hesitated long enough to see that a struggle was going on, then drove off without helping.

Bronze HeadsMay Be Key To Lost African Culture

WASHINGTON—Eleven bronze heads of high artistic merit, accidentally uncovered 15 years ago in Nigeria's sacred city of Ife (pronounced EE-fay), may be the key to a lost African culture that flourished eight centuries ago.

Artists and anthropologists the world over have sought vainly to identify the sculptors of the heads since 1938 when workmen digging house foundations turned up the delicate bronzes. Recent probing of Ife streets by a Nigerian government archeological expedition turned up a clue.

The scientists found pavements made from broken pieces of pottery set on edge in herringbone patterns. Such intricate work indicated the existence of an early culture comparing favorably to those of Egypt and Europe.

Ife's present inhabitants, who display little artistic talent, then recalled a legend of a woman ruler who centuries ago forced their ancestors to pave their city in this fashion. By adding legend to evidence of bronze heads and mosaic paving, it was deduced that ancient Ifians themselves, rather than some invading civilization of the forgotten past, had fathered a culture that was later allowed to languish.

ATTENDED CORONATION

The legend shed one further bit of light. It says that the ancient queen made the Ifians work so hard they resolved that only men should rule them in future. The present ruler is a man, the Oni of Ife, who attended Queen Elizabeth II's Coronation ceremonies.

Existence of an ancient culture at Ife was first suspected in 1911, when a German expedition discovered several terra cotta heads. The natural and sensitive modelling of the features was unique in tropical Africa, and suggested the art works of Greece and the Renaissance. Next came the discovery of the bronze heads.

Until the mosaic paving was found, scientists had many theories as to the origin of the Ife culture. Some believed Ife was connected with the Etruscans and with the legendary lost civilization of Atlantis described by Plato. Others speculated that a wandering sculptor of the Italian Renaissance must have found his way to Ife.

Ife is the spiritual headquarters of the Yoruba tribe, which believes that man was created in the town.

The Yoruba population, now numbering about 5,000,000, consists of many clans, identifiable by tribal marks scarified on their faces. Women are given to highly ornamental decoration of their bodies and elaborate hairdressing.

When Europeans first penetrated into southern Nigeria, the Yorubas were the region's most advanced social and political tribe, but civil wars and slave raiding gradually diminished their kingdom.

MUD IN HIS EYE—The man in the turret is high and dry, but the driver of this Walker Bulldog tank gets the full benefit (?) of a sea of mud as he puts the tank through its paces at the proving grounds of the Cadillac-Ordnance tank plant, Cleveland, Ohio. "General Mud" has put an unusually realistic obstacle in the path of the tanks, due to quagmire-like conditions of the proving ground following heavy spring and early summer rains.

American Operated College For Escapees From Reds

By BLAKE EHRLICH

"It isn't a pretty chateau," Miss Thompson said, "but it is an eighteenth-century chateau."

From the windows we looked down on the tiny artificial lake and the mouldering statuary on the lawns of the Chateau de Pourtales near Strasbourg, the capital of Alsace, which has recently become the seat of the Council of Europe.

Beneath Mildred Thompson's cheery charm there was a tinge of bewilderment. In all her 25 years as Dean of Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, New York, she had never dreamed of living in a French castle on the Rhine, and yet here she was in her sensible tweeds, deaning away at a collection of ex-jailbirds, vagrants and subversives whose names figure on the police "wanted" lists of 10 nations.

Their names also appear consistently on the honor rolls of the University of Strasbourg, with which they are affiliated.

These 153 boys and 30 girls are as baffled as Miss Thompson when they try to explain to themselves just how it is they come to be here, and over the group there hangs an air of incredulity, as if tomorrow each individual could awake and find himself back where he was—Miss Thompson having tea with her sisters in Athens, Georgia, and Premysl Malek eating sour black bread between shifts in the Czech mines.

Collectively, this strange group is known as le College de l'Europe Libre, financed and administered by the National Committee for a Free Europe. This same Committee also runs Radio Free Europe, one of the world's formidable propaganda outfits, and collects its funds through the Crusade for Freedom.

AMERICAN- RUN COLLEGE

Yet, with all the publicity and advertising media at its disposal, the Committee has refrained from publicizing this American-run college operated for Communist-country escapees.

Outside of the Communist press, this is the first detailed article to be published about the college. Since November 1951, when the school first opened its doors, the Communists have called it a training ground for spies, saboteurs, and for "future American gauleiters."

At first glance, the Chateau de Pourtales seems as forbidding and inscrutable as the Communists claim. In the walled and wooded grounds of the chateau the students live, spending their evenings and summers in "courses of special instruction." The students are rushed between chateau and university in private buses.

A look at the college roster of officials adds to the cloak-and-dagger impression: the comptroller is former deputy director of U.S. Naval Intelligence, Captain A. C. J. Sabalot. C. D. Jackson recently resigned from the vice-chairmanship of the board of trustees to become President Eisenhower's adviser on psychological warfare. The plot thickens when one looks over the scant official statements of the directors. The "intensive purpose" of the college, these statements say, is "to equip" them (the students) for future leadership in their native lands.

Well, then, are the Red charges valid? Is this remote castle part of a secret project—a United States government switch from "containment" to "liberation"?

College authorities smiled when I asked these questions. They reminded me that the Committee is a private organization supported by voluntary contributions, free of any government restraint or supervision.

Month by month, according to the American staff at the chateau, students are emerging from their protective shells. Hesitantly and warily at first, they drop their conditioned response to kindness—"What's in it for you, bud?" Eventually, they are able to accept the idea that they are men and women with rights and a future.

ALL ON SCHOLARSHIPS

Getting to the college is a tough proposition. Nobody can pay or work his way through le College de l'Europe Libre. Everybody who is there is on scholarship and must turn out work of high academic calibre. Besides scholastic abilities, each must demonstrate qualities of leadership to an exacting selection board.

Most applicants learn about the college through a staid 14-line announcement in the Western European press and exile publications. Their letters of inquiry bring a long form to fill out, and it poses such questions as, "What sort of authorization have you to stay in the country where you are now living?" and "For how long are these papers valid?"

Western government agencies help the Committee screen applicants to keep out Communist spies and agents provocateurs, but students with Communist records are not necessarily refused admission.

This "gauleiter program," as the Reds call it—the "special instruction"—adds tremendously to the work-load of an already heavy study schedule. During the summer, when there are no university classes, the weeks are filled by an impressive general conference on European and American affairs. During the school year, visiting lecturers discuss world affairs, and four evenings every week are set aside for seminars conducted in their native languages by exiled tutors of university levels.

LANGUAGE BACKGROUND

I questioned tutors and students about the seminars, but I could detect nothing in the program helpful to the Reds' gauleiter bogy. The seminars are designed to give the exile the kind of background in language, history and traditions he would have had at home in normal times.

Between the summer general conference and the specific homeland seminars there arises one of the college's most perplexing problems: nationalism vs. European unification.

The college wants its graduates to go back to their native lands to become leaders, and in order to be leaders, they must also become patriots.

However, patriotism in the past—narrow, fanatical, nationalistic—has made these smaller nations the pawns of larger ones, and has led to bloodshed and poverty. The kind of new patriot the college wants to shape is one who will surely love his country, but more than that, one who will love it enough to lead it into a peaceful, prosperous union with its neighbors.

ACTION IN GERMANY as this anti-tank crew gets in some real firing practice on the ranges at Hohne, Germany. Canada's 27th Brigade in Germany is in fine fettle, and kept that way by a steady, well-organized training program, under warlike conditions such as this. Want Penmanship Taught In School

OTTAWA (CP) — In flawless handwriting, the International Association of Master Penmen and Teachers of Handwriting reported Wednesday that its members are out to improve people's mastery of the pen. And they're going to start at the source—the school teacher and pupil.

The penmen, among them internationally-known handwriting experts from Canada and the United States, have just concluded their annual meeting at Lindsay.

Substituting a clearly-penned report for the printed form, Fred Richardson of Ottawa, the secretary, says this is what the members decided. Handwriting should be taught in colleges, universities and schools.

Among directors elected was Miss Jean Boyes, Hamilton, E. L. Burton, Toronto; M. E. Cheaney, Sault Ste. Marie, and C. E. Embleton, St. Catharines.

Historic Spot

CANTERBURY, England (CP)—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, 99th in succession from St. Augustine as archbishop of Canterbury, recently visited Ebbsfleet where St. Augustine and his missionaries arrived in 597 AD with their message of Christianity.

EVEREST VICTORS return to London after their successful expedition. Waving the flag is Col. John Hunt, the leader of the expedition. Sherpa Tensing is standing on his immediate left and Edmund Hilliary is slightly behind to his right (the tallest man of the party). The latter two reached the sumit of Mount Everest.

Snakes Invade Annually Manitoba Town

CHATFIELD, Man. (CP)—The Chatfield area, 75 miles north of Winnipeg, lays claim to the most prolific snakes in the world—and the healthiest.

Every spring, harmless garter snakes turn the town into something between a hangover and a nightmare but it doesn't seem to worry Chatfielders.

A few snakes were reported in town this year but nothing to what it was three years ago First signs of the invasion were reported on the highway where numerous snakes, apparently sunning themselves on the gravel, were killed by cars.

Three years ago an attempt was made to wipe out the reptiles with chemicals but it had no noticeable effect.

"We just had to learn to live with them," said A B. Martin, municipal clerk at Inwood, a nearby village.

Chatfield postmaster Ed Hoborough is something of a local authority on snakes. He said it is a poor year for snakes due to the lack of sunshine.

Rock clefts and blasting holes in the area tend literally to become snake pits. Mr. Hoborough visited one of these, about three miles north of Chatfield. He reporte dit was a mass of writhing reptiles.

Potato Surplus Worries Farmers

LEAMINGTON (CP) — Essex County farmers complained Wednesday that a surplus of potatoes in the United States is having a serious affect on the sale price of their crops.

The farm price for potatoes now has reached a low of $1.25 a 75-pound bag which, the farmers say, is about 75 cents below the cost of production.

However, officials of Essex County associated Growers said they believe "the worst is over."

"The potato market shows signs of strengthening slightly," an association spokesman said.

"There now seems to be a slightly better tone on the wholesale market in Toronto and we hope as a result that the price won't drop any further."

SUMMER AT MERIDIAN

Intimation of the year's arrival at the meridian of summer are seen these days in season's broods of swallows on rural telephone wires, in the spectacular coloring of the banks of hollyhocks, in the wild rose's loss of its pink petals, and the advertisements announcing the CNE, Aug. 28-Sept. 12.

ATTENDING MEETING

Bill Van Atter, CO of the Peterborough Air Cadet Squadron, and Maurice Codderre, instructor, will be attending a joint meeting of the Ontario provincial and Toronto central Air Cadet committees at the training command Air Cadet camp, RCAF station, Aylmer, Ont., beginning Saturday. REPORTS CONVENTION

Ralph Standish, a member of the Peterborough Kiwanis club, gave an account of what happened to him at the International convention held in New York recently to his fellow Kiwanians today at their weekly luncheon meeting and proposed that in the future Canada should try to have a Canadian on the executive of the International organization.

First Peek

The new federal building took its first peek over the 10-foot fence on Charlotte St. this week. And citizens had their first chance to see that work had been going on behind that fence during the winter and spring. The first public view, apart from a keyhole view through the fence, consisted of scaffolding and wooden forms for the Mezzanine of the building. The main floor of the new building was finished last week and the pouring of the concrete for the colmuns of the second floor should start in the next few days.

Wheat Ripens First Cutting Reported Early

Fields of wheat that were sown last fall are ripening fast in the Peterborough district, and quite an acreage of land is being prepared for September seeding.

"This is an exceptionally fine crop, one of the best I have seen," Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, said today. "Some farmers have been reporting the appearance of stem rust and root rot. There has also been some lodging of the grain. From my calls in the country and other information I don't think these conditions are general or serious."

Mel McIntyre of Dewart Milling Co. reported first cutting by binder in the Stewart Hall section of Otonabee and also in South Monaghan.

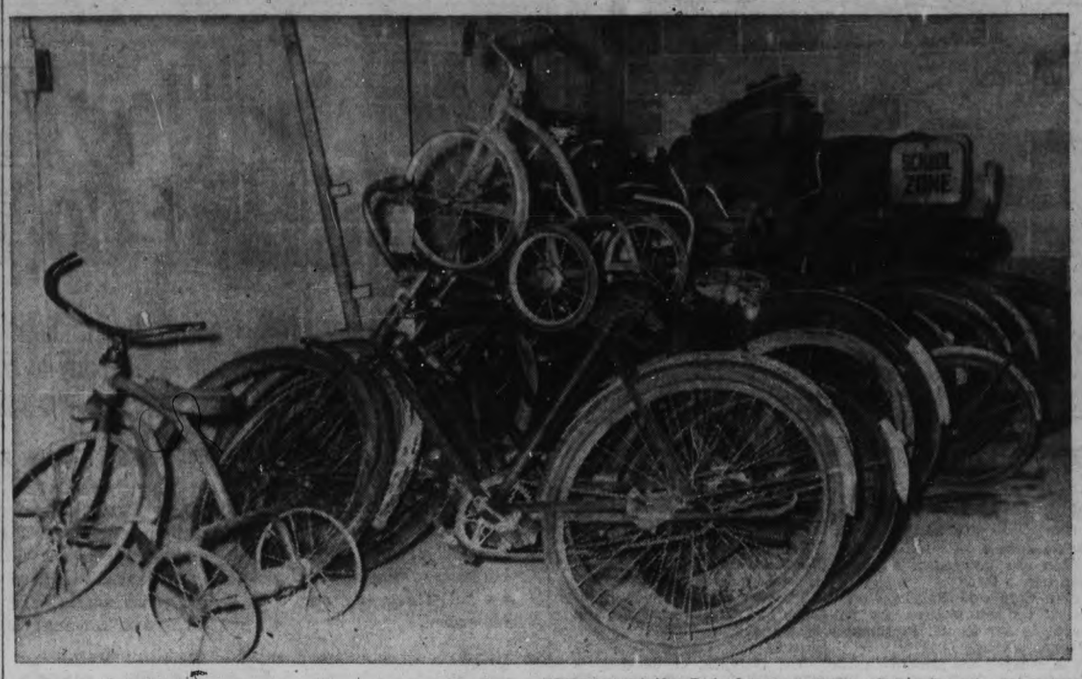
W. W. Dawson relayed to the Examnier his information that Howard Harper in his area and Harold Thorn near Centreville have been cutting this week, the earliest he had heard of.

"A big job is coming on, and farmers generally want to get started at it," Mr. Dawson said.

Use of the binder implies stooking, as different from the combining of fields that is the next method to come into action.

"Wheat has been ripening at a good rate and early oats are turning white. That means a lot of field work to be done."

GRAIN FROM WEST



Mr. McIntyre said he had been offered fall wheat in cars ready for delivery from western Ontario growers. However, there is a storage poblem to be handled here in Peterborough. "We have a lot of storage space," Mr. McIntyre remarked.

Wheat is being quoted at $1.50 a bushel. The opening price a year ago was around $1.75 to $1.85, but a substantial carry over of that season's crop is said to be one factor in present conditions.

Ontario fall wheat, averaging around 20,000,000 bushels, is used in cakes, pastries, biscuits and other products of soft wheat flour as distinct from western Canada's bread grain.

Mr. Paterson commented today that Ed Summers, agricultural representative in Durham, was probably right in his estimate that Robert Armstrong's field of the new Dawbul variety would probably yield 60 bus. to the acre.

Kent, Elgin and Essex counties report binders at work during the last week. The Kent comment is: "An excellent crop is anticipated."

Wildlife On Strike

Park Animals Prefer Woods To Tourists

By JIM ENGLISH

All goggle-eyed at the thought of seeing wildlife at its wildest, I hauled the family up to Algonquin Park in our holidays. Let me tell you, we were a-twitter.

After carefully filling the youngest full of tales of bear, deer, raccoons, tourists and other wild game often seen in the park, we pulled away from our summer headquarters.

Being not quite two, he only absorbed the bear part of it and kept hollering "Burr!" all the way to the park.

On the way, a kindly resort owner filled us in on the spot to have lunch. It was Lake of Two Rivers and had a campsite complete with tables and a sand beach.

Wonderful! we thought, a lovely little lake with a tiny campsite on it, two tables and a stone fireplace—something along that line. There, beyond doubt, we will see all sorts of wildlife.

At the park gates, we stopped and signed a card saying there were three of us in one car. Our copy warned us to give wildlife a chance to cross the road in safety; moreover, we drove at our own risk.

At that warning a flood of pictures flowed into our minds—angry moose charging the auto, an irritated partridge flying headlong into our windshield, annoyed deer stamping their feet at us in a fit of temper.

As we drove along the highway we saw signs that promoted even more mental pictures: "WATCH FOR DEER," "BEAR MAY BE SEEN IN THE EVENING ALONG THIS ROAD," "NATURE TRAIL," and others of that ilk.

The nature trail we stopped at because the radiator started to simmer. There was a spring and we filled the rad, read the guest book provided for those who walked the trail, and chuckled at some of the salty comments of disappontied visitors.

Why, some of them hadn't even seen a deer! My wife and I exchanged knowing smiles; we would see deer and bear too, possibly a moose with any sort of luck. You just had to keep your eyes open.

We passed up the nature trail because of the problem of toting the youngest through the woods.

On we drove, until in the distance we saw a new sign that wasn't too clear. Here, I thought to myself, is a sample of the service park employees give to visitors. Some grizzled guide has painted this on birchbark and is telling up that "MOOSE MAY BE SEEN IN THIS VICINITY."

Then I saw the sign consisted of three words: "WATCH FOR TRUCKS." It was printed on cardboard.

Then we started looking in earnest for wildlife. More signs warned us of "DEER CROSSING," but not a deer did we see. The bears were on strike, too, and not a bear was near the road. We didn't even see a truck.

The box score, by the time we got to the picnic site, was this way: three partridge, one beaverhouse. The partridge were too young to understand they shouldn't go near roads. One had been run over by a car and had no chance to hide.

The beaver house, we judged, was there because the beavers hadn't had time to hide it.

But soon we saw the sign to Lake of Two Rivers. Here, we thought, lies our rustic picnic site. Here we can be alone with nature, observing the flight of pileated woodpeckers, the feeding habits of moose, and here, too, we can watch the monster speckled trout thrashing the lake to a rich white foam.

Then we rounded a turn and spotted a dozen cottages and a resort by the lake. No matter, we thought, the wild creatures will be accustomed to humans.

Then came the turn, a little farther along to the picnic grounds. From a sandy road leading between two majestic pines, we caught a glimpse of sunburned grass by the lakeshore and a few half-hidden twinkles of sun on the water.

Into the open we drove, and before our astonished eyes a vista unfolded of dozens of motor cars, a light airplane on a field in the distance, a dozen dogs barking and chasing each other, and a steady rush of campers with pails to and from pumps.

Beyond them all was the Lake of Two Rivers, beautiful and overpopulated in the sunlight.

In sullen silence we wolfed our sandwiches, feeling that was the closest we would come to wildlife. The youngest looked at us and enquired: "Burrs?"

We shook our heads.

Bikes, Tricycles Accumulate In Police Garage

Paper boys and other bicyclists accustomed to riding on sidewalks might be surprised to learn they're liable for a fine up to $20 or 21 days in jail.

This isn't any recent legislation by Peterborough's city council. As a matter of fact, it's probably one of the oldest bylaws we have, dating all the way back to 1896.

Other bicycle bylaw infractions rate lesser penalties. Under local jurisdiction come the issuance of licences and a bylaw passed in 1941 provides for a fine of $5.00 for failing to have a licence, failing to transfer a licence within six days after selling a bicycle and defacing a licence plate.

Estimates on the number of cyclists in Peterborough who might be affected by this range from 25 to 50 per cent. During the current issue of licences (they're good for three years), 5,312 have been issued as of three o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Some police officers think that upwards of 10,000 bicycles are in use in Peterborough and it's possible that some cyclists have gone through a lifetime of pedalling without ever buying a licence.

SALES ZOOM

Police crack down on offenders about three or four times a year and at these times the sale of licences zooms. It's easier, riders find, to pay 50 cents for a licence than pay $1.00, the usual penalty, for their freedom.

As a result of their reluctance to buy permits, some cyclists have a little difficulty in retrieving their bikes when they misplace, lose or find them stolen.

Currently, about one bicycle a week is stolen in the city. Police right now are coping with juveniles who lift a bike, take it apart and split up the components. They find youths particularly partial to the three-speed transmissions some bikes boast at present.

The department's garage also contains a number of bicycles, many in good condition, that are picked up from time to time. Latest count adds up to 15 adults' bikes, one child's bicycle and two tricycles.

Officers won't be too disappointed if the owners turn up and ride them away.

A word to the wise is sufficient, it is said, and that can be taken as advice to non-licensed owners, bicycles they may have occasion when it is disclosed that police inform the owners of any licensed to pick up.

Getting Warmer

At noon today the thermometer had reached 81, within three degrees of the high spot of 84 Wednesday and seemed well on to passing it during the afternoon as a full blown heat wave remained settled over the province. The day started off warm registering 72 at 9 a.m. Unless something changes the situation the chances are that the mercury will surpass the predicted 85 both today and Friday.

Too Much Water On Lawns May Bring Curbs

Citizens should remind themselves that their liberal sprinkling of lawns at the height of summer will entail official restriction if these circumstances continue.

Policy of the Utilities Commission in other years has been averse to applying controls, but when the people open up all the taps and let them run, some intervention usually follows.

The average sprinkler draws off 250 gallons an hour from the community reservoir at the filtration plant. A heavy rain is comparatively equivalent to 300 to 350 gallons on the average home lawn, and garden.

Voluntary moderation of the use of the city's water supply and pumpage could produce results avoiding the interposition of Commission restriction, but that depends on the sensible response of householders.

The draft of water Tuesday was around 8,000,000 gallons. Rain is needed again both in the city and country. Farmers say their fields have dried fast this week, but the probabilities promise no moisture. The outlook this afternoon was for more heat.

It has been mentioned to the Examiner that an hour-and-a-half of lawn watering daily is ample.

Adopted Sparrow Now Steady Boarder

Al Spencley, 103 Auburn St., is known primarily for his love of flowers. But the genial employee of the Peterborough Utilities is also noted for his fondness for animals and birds.

The trees along his part of the shore of the Otonabee River have numerous home-made bird houses for sparrows, swallows, song sparrows and many other kinds of birds. In one of those houses, his latest pet, an English Sparrow, was hatched.

Two months ago sparrows had just hatched a small family of four in one of the riverside houses. Unfortunately during a storm, the wind ripped the house from its standard, crashing it to the ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencley then took over as foster parents of the birds, which still hadn't their eyes open and were without feathers. Their home became a small box in the Spencley house and their food, bread and milk, instead of the usual baby sparrow feed of grubs.

GREW FAST

The Spencleys nursed the young ones along and they grew and grew. Finally came the day for parting; three went and one stayed on, boarding with Al and his wife.

Now the size of an adult bird, the fourth sparrow keeps well in the Spencley neighborhood. It sleeps in the nearby trees during the warm weather and in the Spencley greenhouse during cold days and nights.

"It comes back first thing every morning for breakfast," said Al. It will come right up to anyone, carefully pecking the bits of bread from a hand.

Al's dog, Beaut, and a neighbor's dog, Rudy, take a dim view of the friendship between Al and his feathered friend. Whenever the bird's close to Al, the dogs crowd in close too, Rudy with his head on Al's knee and Beaut ever so close to Al's big frame.

SPARROW GADGES A MEAL

Let The Buyer Beware Warns Court

A Newfoundlander, living in this area for almost three years, was warned to consult his lawyer about buying a used car when he appeared in police court today.

Basil Young, RR 10, Peterborough, facing a charge of driving a car with inadequate brakes, told the court he had been given permission by a local used car dealer to try out a car with the prospect of buying it.

At Mark and Hunter Sts., about 150 yards from the car lot, he applied the brakes but found they wouldn't work and collided with a car driven by Gary Braund, 290 King St. The accident occurred July 1. About $50 damage was done to the other car.

PC Robert Muldoon, who investigated, said he had gone to the garage where the car was taken and tested the brakes. Pumping the foot brake slowed the car down only slightly and the result was the same with the emergency brake, he said.

"Have you ever heard the expression 'Caveat emptor—Let the buyer beware?'" Magistrate W. R. Philp asked the accused. "That applies here. And you had better speak to your solicitor about buying a used car in Ontario."

CHARGE DISMISSED

The charge was dismissed, as was a further charge of driving without a license. Young told the court he had not driven since coming here from Newfoundland.

"This is no reflection on the officer," said Crown Attorney John A. Bradhsaw, QC, who interrupted Young's evidence to ask that the charge be dismissed. "We're giving the lad a break."

W. B. Gordon was defence counsel for Young.

To Charge Man After Accident Killed Wife, Son

LINDSAY (ENS)—Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan announced here today that a charge of dangerous driving will be laid against James Alexander, 27, of Toronto, following the collision on highway 35 north of Lindsay, three weeks ago, that took the lives of his wife, Margaret and their two year old son, James.

According to Dr. H. G. Metcalfe, the attending physician, Alexander, who was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital with head injuries following the collision, has been released and is at his Toronto home now.

The Crown Attorney, also noted that it is not likely any charges will be laid in the second collision at the same "death curve", a week later, in which a Toronto nurse, Miss Olive Erb, was seriously injured.

No date has been set for the preliminary hearing in the Alexander case.

Believe Penelope Becomes Mama Of Small Platypus

NEW YORK (AP)—The Bronx zoo chain-smoked itself into "reasonable certainty" today that Penelope, its duckbill, has become the mama of a platypus.

Maybe even two.

The blessed event, an excited zoo spokesman thought, occurred Tuesday night. It won't be confirmed probably until October thought.

The thing about playtkittens is that they don't seem to like being born in zoos. In fact they like it so little that it's been recorded only once before—in Australia in 1943.

It goes like this:

Mama-to-be and papa-to-be go acourting. Papap-to-be (Cecil, in this case) may even hold her tail in his mouth as they swim around in circles.

Then mama digs a nesting chamber in her tunnel.

(Platypuses live in tunnels and like to swim.)

Then she lays eggs, anywhere from one to three.

Five days ago Penelope holed herself up and plugged the entrance to her tunnel. Presumably she was setting.

The cautious zoo promptly made sure Cecil couldn't get near her. No telling what he might do

Today Penelope pushed out the plug and casually, to hear the zoo tell it—"just sort of looked around."

KEEP FINGERS CROSSED

there in Australia, and so the zoo is keeping its fingers crossed.

Patytots are shy young things. They like to stay nice and comfy in the nesting chamber for four months.

The platypus, or duckbill, is a delicate animal with a tail like a beaver's and a bill like a duck's. It is about 18 inches long.

New Icebreaker Sails For Arctic

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's newest government icebreaker, the d'Iberville, sailed from Montreal Wednesday night for a cool 12 weeks in Arctic waters.

The d'Iberville, loaded with sufficient fuel oil for her 12,000-mile voyage, will sail first for Newfoundland before turning north to Labrador and the islands off Northern Quebec.

Her passengers are government scientists and Mounties, bearded missionaries and beardless eskimos and a Newfoundland magistrate whose job it will be to fly ashore in one of the ship's two helicopters to swear in deputy returning officers for the Aug. 10 federal election. The magistrate will be H. Noseworthy.

CARRIES SUPPLIES

In her holds she has food and medical supplies, mail for east Arctic outposts, trade goods, and complete pre-fabricated barracks for a new RCMP base.

The RCMP base is being established at Cape Herschel on lonely Ellesmere Island.

Four constables are going to relieve other officers at RCMP posts and to open the new Ellesmere Island base.

All the way north the ship will call at isolated stations to pick up and put down police officers, Hudson Bay Company officials and missionaries.

Carpet Plants Resume Operations After Strike

GUELPH (CP)—The two plants of Harding Carpets and Guelph Yarns resumed operation Wednesday following a month-long strike which tied up the city's largest industry.

A two-year agreement providing for an immediate wage boost of two cents an hour and a further increase of two cents effective next February, ended the dispute Tuesday.

Average wage at the two plants is $1.23 an hour. The individual wage varies owing to numerous operations, top weavers drawing as high as $2 an hour.

More than 500 workers, members of the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO-CCL), struck June 18 to back up contract demands.

TRENTON.—A larger and more effective parachute, one that removes the danger of not opening, has been tested and received official approval at Trenton recently.

Sgt. Lechie of Edmonton and Cpl. R. E. Crawford, Trenton, performed the tests.

Modifications still have to be made before the chute will be produced on a big scale, after which they probably will replace those now in use.

Produced by the Irwin Airchute Co. of Fort Erie, the new parachutes were first used on Monday when veteran jumper Sgt. W. F. Farr made his 55th jump — the first ever made with the new type equipment in Canada or anywhere else.

Features of the chute include a slot in the canopy which can be manipulated so that the jumper's body can be turned and a quick release harness which allows the chute to be dismantled immediately on landing.

The canopy is 32 feet in diameter, compared with the 28 feet of the standard type, and the new chute contains 130 yards of nylon. The standard type contains 88 yards. A descent with the new type chute is made at about 15 mph, against the 18 mph speed of present equipment.

Most important feature of the new parachute — one which has been incorporated by the U.S. and Britain—involves an entirely new theory of release.

When the chutes now used are opened, a pilot chute drags the canopy from the container with the attached lines emerging last. The new version is so designed that there is no pilot-chute and the lines come out of the casing first. This eliminates the danger of having the lines tangled with the canopy which has often proved fatal. It also eliminates the sudden jerk on the jumper's shoulders when the canopy opens.

RCAF officials believe that when modifications have been made to the slot, the new chute will result in a more efficient RCAF air-rescue service across Canada.

You'll be thrilled by its real chicken flavour. Yes, Heinz Chicken Consomme is a brand new "masterpiece" to add to your favourites in the family of Heinz Soups.

I Like To Enjoy My Summer Holidays . . . not spend all my time in the kitchen. That's why I always take a good supply of FRENCH'S INSTANT POTATO to the cottage with me. They're easy to pack—not bulky. And, best of all, it takes just one minute to prepare delicious, creamy mashed potatoes with French's Instant Potato. That means I have more time to relax . . . less time in the kitchen. Just follow the simple directions on the package for the easiest-to-make mashed potatoes you've ever tasted. And so good! French's Instant Potato is made from top-quality potatoes, pre-cooked by a special process that preserves important nutriments—and wonderful flavour!

It's A Pleasure—When The Thermometer Soars—to make yourself a refreshing glass of NEW INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN COFFEE. Did you know?—it's 100% real coffee—made by a new process that keeps the flavour and aroma of freshly ground coffee. Yes, even the very colour and texture are the same. But there's that wonderful "instant" convenience you like so well . . . particularly handy for making iced coffee. You see, New Instant Chase & Sanborn Coffee dissolves like magic in cold (or hot) water. And here's all you have to do to make iced coffee . . .

Place one heaping teaspoon of New Instant Chase & Sanborn in a tall glass. Half fill with tapwater and stir. Then add ice. That's all!

Here's How your baby can learn to drink from a cup without spilling a drop. Just give him the plastic baby tumbler (illustrated here) to drink from. It's a special offer from Heinz, the makers of your baby's favourite foods . . . HEINZ BABY FOODS. M-mmm!—those good meat food products, soups, vegetables and desserts—all expertly blended to give baby extra nourishment. And now Heinz offers this baby cup for just 25c with labels from any six tins of Heinz Baby Foods or from 3 Heins Baby Cereals. Write to me for yours, enclosing labels and money in coin or stamps—Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q.

I Hope you're having lots of sunny days this summer to enjoy your garden or porch. And here's a tip on how to enjoy your outdoor furniture. If it's chrome, you can keep it looking like new with S.O.S. Scouring Pads. Yes, S.O.S. will take that rust off in a twinkling. And that's not all S.O.S. can do to keep things sparkling around your home. Clean your porcelain and basins with it. Easy, isn't it? And S.O.S. will quickly remove any starch burnt on your irons. You see, S.O.S. Scouring Pads are a "magical" combination of sturdy, interwoven fibres and grease-dissolving soap. Outdoors—indoors—S.O.S. is the handiest cleanser there is!

Does Baby Get Bored At Mealtimes and shove his plate away? Why not vary his diet with delicious FARLEY'S RUSKS? Those are the famous English rusks that are so crunchy-sweet and good to taste. And they're a scientific baby formula, as well. You see, they're made from specially milled English wheat flour and other important-for-baby nutrients — and fortified with calcium and phosphorus to aid in bone and tooth development. They can be crushed and spoon fed in warm milk or simply eaten in hand. For children, invalids or old folks, ask for Farley's Rusks in the yellow box with the cellophane top.

Dieting? Authorities on shedding poundage say that it's most important to eat a good breakfast. Keeps you from getting overhungry and consequently over-eating through the rest of the day. They recommend a breakfast of fruit, cereal, skim milk, even bacon and an egg. For the cereal, I suggest hot "CREAM OF WHEAT". It gives you quick-starting food energy, plus iron for good red blood, and calcium and phosphorus for diets deficient in those elements. And "Cream of Wheat" is so delicious, too . . . smooth and delicate in flavour. I can't imagine a better quick start for a "diet day" than "Cream of Wheat."

Here We Are, smack in the middle of the cherry season. So, gather ye cherries while you may, and do down for all you're worth. But be sure you're doing them down with CERTO FRUIT PECTIN. If you follow the Certo recipes exactly, results are —always—so sure. Yes, Certo makes jam and jelly making a real treat. You can have jam or jelly in 1/3 the time of the former long-boil method, and get up to 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit. There are some delicious recipes using cherries, in the booklet under the label of each bottle of Certo, and there are lots of recipes for other fruits, too.

Want Cool, Delicious Thirst-Quenchers for the whole family—and friends when they drop in? Then stock up on SUNKIST LEMONS for iced tea and the best lemonade you've ever made.

Lemonade... Make a frosty-fresh pitcher of tangy Sunkist lemonade each morning. Keep it in the refrigerator and help yourself when you're hot and thirsty.

Iced Tea... with Sunkist Lemons. Be sure to cut the lemons in thick, juicy wedges. Then put them on the side of every glass of tea.

Yes, whether your favourite thirst-quencher is iced tea or lemonade... be sure to use Sunkist Lemons. They're the finest, juiciest grown and, incidentally, an excellent source of Vitamin C.

Some Evening Soon, when the dishes are done and the children are in bed, get out your bank book and count up your savings for the past twelve months. Have you been helping yourself generously enough from each month's pay-cheque . . . or are your savings almost non-existent? Perhaps they've all gone to the butcher, the baker and that little hat shop around the corner. This isn't fair to you. You should have money to show for last year's work. So why not promise yourself that this year's work is going to pay off in a neat little nest-egg in a Savings Account at the BANK OF MONTREAL. Open yours tomorrow at your nearest branch of the B of M.

Now's The Time When Mr. Housefly begins to plague your family's health and comfort. This filthy pest contaminates everything he touches. But he has one arch-enemy . . . Fly-Tox. For economy and convenience, I suggest you ask for the handy, push-button FLY-TOX AEROSOL which is now available in two sizes. The larger is no bigger than a water tumbler yet sprays 100 rooms when used as directed. Quick-killing Fly-Tox is also available as a LIQUID SPRAY in the familiar 8 oz., 16 oz., and 32 oz. tins. Either way it's one of the best forms of family insurance that I know.

Health Minister Martin Asks If Toronto Newspaper Reflects Policies Of P.C. Party

BARRIE—Fear that Globe and Mail editorials on social security, particularly their advocacy of the means test for family allowances and old age pensions, would be reflected in the policies of the Progressive Conservatives was expressed here Wednesday by Health Minister Martin.

Opposition Leader Drew, he remarked, had said there will be no interference with present social security measures.

"But I'm concerned because I don't want any curtailment," Mr. Martin continued. "For that reason I hope that the editorial policies of The Globe and Mail which would restrict social security through the institution of the means test, will not become the policies of the Conservatives. I make this statement because of my position as minister of national health and welfare."

Mr. Martin spoke here on behalf of Ralph Snelgrove, 39-year-old owner of the Barrie radio station, who is Liberal candidate in Simcoe North. Mr. Snelgrove, former president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, is making his first bid for political office.

It was through the co-operative enterprise of all the provinces that the Liberal government under Prime Minister St. Laurent was able to achieve full, positive measures toward improving the health and welfare of Canadians.

"There has been no bickering nor needless squabbles between the two levels of senior government in this country on social security," Mr. Martin continued. "The Canadian way of doing things is not to make headlines by bickering."

CANCER CLINICS

He recalled his meeting earlier in the day with Premier Frost in Toronto.

"We had breakfast together and despite the fact we're in the midst of an election campaign, we didn't even mention politics. We talked about the creation of cancer clinics which Mr. Frost's government now has under way," he said. "We're going to assist in the establishment of the pilot centre for research at Toronto. We're going to make a real onslaught on cancer. We want to provide for early diagnosis and treatment."

Isn't it important, Mr. Martin asked, that Mr. Frost and he could talk so informally about a matter which was so important to the lives of so many people rather than argue about politics?

The health unit in Simcoe County could not have been established without a $232,000 grant from the federal government. The authority for that statement, Mr. Martin declared, was Ontario's own minister of health, Dr. Mackinnon Phillips.

The Royal Victoria Hospital at Barrie had received a grant of $120,000 toward a new wing. It was through grants such as these and with the co-operation of the provinces that 53,000 new hospital beds had been created. Altogether $400,000 had been spent in Simcoe County through the national health program.

"Never before has there been such a co-operative and concerted attack on disease," Mr. Martin concluded.

Execution Stay Given Canadians

BUFFALO — John E. Dwyer, Erie County district attorney, said today he had been notified by the New York State Court of Appeals in Albany that the execution of two Canadians, Maurice O'Dell, 27, and Walter Griffen, 26, has been stayed until October.

The stay was granted because the 90-day period, during which the automatic appeal of a first-degree murder conviction must be taken, expires August 26 when the court will be in summer recess.

The Hamilton men are in the death house at Sing Sing prison. They were convicted of first-degree murder in the hold-up killing of Donald F. Hurd, Buffalo jeweller, last December 9, and were sentenced to die in the electric chair.

PETS ARE LIKE PEOPLE WHEN IT COMES TO NUTRITION!

Unless you are an expert on feeding animals, you can seldom be sure your pet is getting all the essential vitamins and minerals it needs. And no human can know how your pet feels when his food fails to supply enough food value. But you can see what's happening to him! He loses pep and energy, sleeps a lot. His coat grows rough and patchy. Hair falls out. Appetite dwindles, and general health weakens. Your pet becomes nervous, excitable, ill-tempered.

It's Not "Will Petavim Work?" —Petavim Must Work!

PETAVIM is a high potency dietary food supplement for your pet. It combines 5 energy-charged Vitamins and 4 Minerals in a highly concentrated form. PETAVIM'S formula compares favorably with vitamin-mineral supplements for humans! Your pet needs only a small amount of PETAVIM with its regular diet for 20 days to win vigorous health. In fact, it's not a question of will PETAVIM work ... PETAVIM must work in 20 days, or you pay nothing!

When You Check Off The 10th Day 10 ✓

Even in this short time, you will see a distinct improvement in your pet's condition. His coat gets smoother, shinier, and his eyes sparkle. Appetite becomes keener . . . and his energy increases.

Petavim's potent ingredients are building up your pet's stamina and strength—giving him the appearance of a champion. You're the owner of a happier, healthier pet that's full of pep and high spirits!

Read What Pet Owners and Kennel Operators say about Petavim!

Mr. T. N. Thatcher, Clarkson, Ont. writes:
"After taking PETAVIM along with their regular food for only 20 days, our four Scotties, aged 2 to 9 years, all showed marked improvement. Their coats took on a new gloss and their general condition greatly improved. I recommend PETAVIM heartily to other pet owners."

Mr. Ronald Purdy, Schau Belein Kennels, Port Credit, Ont., writes:
"I gave PETAVIM to three Dobermans and a Daschund along with their regular food. I don't know whether PETAVIM can take all the credit, but after the 30th day treatment, the youngest Doberman won First Prize in the Puppy Group at the Sportsman's Show. The judge said his condition was excellent."

Mr. W. C. Brown, R.R. #1, Oakville, Ont., writes:
"When we started including PETAVIM in our 7 year old Collie's diet, he was in poor condition, no pep or appetite. His hair was falling out and he was very excitable. But within 7 days his appetite perked up and he seemed more peppy. After 14 days, his hair stopped falling out and his coat became sleek. By the 30th day, he was in good shape, eating, sleeping and acting much better."

Mrs. Marjorie J. Snider, Deer Haven Kennels, Oakville, Ont., writes:
"We gave four dogs—a Belgian Shepherd, an English Springer, a Collie, and a Cross Breed—a regular dose of PETAVIM with their food. Within 21 days, all four dogs had better coats and were in excellent spirits. By the 30th day, they were enjoying unusually good health."

Critic Lauds Performance Of Second Stratford Play

NEW YORK (CP)—Brooks Atkinson, New York Times drama critic, in reviewing Tuesday night's performance of "All's Well That Ends Well" at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival says it would be impossible to find in North America "a other company so finished in comedy style and so attractive personally."

Although Atkinson terms the second offering at the festival which opened Monday night "a minor Shakespearean pot-boiler" he says it serves well to disclose "the accomplishments of an excellent acting company." "All's Well That Ends Well" will alternate with "Richard III" during the month-long festival.

He says the plan, while having "an artificial and rather distasteful plot" is a "new experience in the theatre because hardly anyone regards it as worth putting on the stage."

Atkinson finds the modern dress used for the play "just modern enough to take Shakespeare out of the distant past," the costumes "stunning," the lighting "ingenious" and Tanya Moiseiwitsch's setting entirely suitable.

Atkinson says director Tyrone Guthrie's production "flows without effort across the apron stage up and down the stairs, through the forest of columns and out of the ports of the pit. It is a spontaneous and delightful bit of inventive theatre in good taste and good humor."

IN TOP FORM

Of the star, Alec Guinness, Atkinson says:

". . . He plays with grace and command, like a man so used to authority that he does not have to mix arrogance with it."

Atkinson says the role of the King of France finds Guinness "in his top form."

And of Irene Worth in the leading role of Helena, Atkinson says:

"Another superb performance that overflows with loveliness, devotion, ceremony and modest guile."

Pickersgill Explains Part In Manager's Demotion

WINNIPEG (CP) — John W. Pickersgill, secretary of state, has explained his part in events leading to the controversial demotion of Robert S. Pitt, former manager of the CNR-owned Fort Garry Hotel here.

Mr. Pickersgill says he did not "complain" of Fort Garry service after a visit to the hotel last summer with Prime Minister St. Laurent, but he did tell CNR President Donald Gordon, in reply to a question, that the Fort Garry compared "unfavorably" with the competing railroad hotel in Winnipeg.

The state secretary gave his version of the incident in a memorandum to Mr. St. Laurent published in the Winnipeg Tribune. The memorandum was sent to the Tribune by Mr. Pickersgill in response to charges of "political interference" in last fall's removal of Mr. Pitt to the CNR's Prince Edward Hotel at Brandon, Man.

POLITICAL ISSUE

The Pitt-Pickersgill matter became a political issue at the last session of Parliament. J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) suggested there had been political interference in Mr. Pitt's shift shortly after the prime minister's Winnipeg visit on the way east from a trip to British Columbia.

At the time of the prime minister's passage through Winnipeg, Mr. Pickersgill was the non-political clerk of the Privy Council.

Mr. Pickersgill said his comments about the Fort Garry service to Mr. Gordon were given when he was talking to the CNR president a couple of weeks later. Mr. Gordon had asked how Mr. Pickersgill had found the service in the CNR's western hotels.

Mr. Pickersgill said he told Mr. Gordon—as he recalled it—that:

"In Winnipeg the CPR is putting it over you like a tent, if my experience is any sample of what is going on."

Earnings Down

CHATHAM (CP) — Canada and Dominion Sugar Company, Limited has announced net profits of $1,468,113, or 98 cents a share, for the 15 months ended March 31—17-per-cent drop from the previous 12-month's figure of $1,779,337 $1.19 a share. W. J. McGregor, president, stated that although sales were up in the fiscal period under review, earnings fell, mainly because of stiff competition from Cuban imports of refined sugars. The Canadian government recently announced restrictions on these imports. The company is altering its fiscal year.

Former German Bigshots Now Serving Canadians

HANNOVER, Germany (CP) — Some Germans who fought against Canadians in the Second World War are eating crow at Canadian tables here. Seem to be liking it, though.

For instance, a former German sergeant-major helped to push Maj. Richard (Jock) Cummings of Toronto off the Dunkerque beaches in 1940. Now he's Cummings' batman-driver.

Cummings, in fact, is boss of all the Germans employed as civilian laborers with the 27th Canadian infantry brigade in Germany. He supervises all matters to do with "provision, allocation and maintenance of accommodation" for 6,000 Canadian troops in Hannover and the satellite brigade towns of Hamelin and Hohne.

Cummings, a 37-year-old native of Weston, joined the British army when he was 17, went to France with the Royal Tank Corps in 1939 and came out through Dunkerque in 1940.

FOUGHT IN ITALY

He later fought with Lord Strathcona's Horse in Italy. He helped to drive the Germans off Monte Cassino and among the batch of prisoners taken by the Canadians was the omnipresent sergeant-major who now is his batman.

As boss of the Germans, Cummings can relate some tales which show how the fortunes of war have given ironic twists to their lives.

There were two full colonels, both winners of the Ritter Kreuz, German equivalent of the Victoria Cross, who started working as cleaners in the Canadian barracks. One was a former Panzer officer, the other had served with the Luftwaffe.

One rose to be foreman of cleaners with a salary of about $50 a month. The other, after a year of good conduct and efficient service, became a file clerk.

NOW BARMAN

A former export manager for 35 years in the Far East—he speaks six languages—now is serving behind a bar in a mess here. His assistant is a former German paratrooper. A clerk is the former commissioner for housing for Hannover. A former tea planter in the East Indies who once had 2,000 persons working for him is Cummings' chief assistant. A former German medical officer is a groundsman for the Canadians.

Cummings says he finds his German workers industrious, disciplined and intelligent, that they feel they are lucky to have jobs. With thousands of displaced persons pouring in from the East zone each month, they can be replaced if they aren't willing to work.

HOUSE WON'T GO "BOOM," MAYBE — Sam Bashara isn't taking any chances. He's building himself this "bomb-proof" house in the exclusive River Road section of Houston, Tex. The walls, which are 15 inches thick, are made of plaster, wood, concrete, steel and stone.

THE BATTLE OF BUTTER SPREADS —Hordes of East Germans pour into the U.S. sector of Berlin for a chance to buy cut-rate food at the outdoor stands set up to meet their demands. President Eisenhower's offer to send food to the striking East Germans was turned down by Red officials, so the food was put on sale at ridiculously low prices in the American zone as the battle of butter between East and West continues.

Says Malan's New Bill To Deprive Jews Of Vote

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Opposition Leader Jacobus Strauss told Parliament Wednesday that Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan's efforts to amend South Africa's 44-year-old constitution may deprive Jews as well as persons of mixed blood from voting with the white population.

Strauss made the statement before a joint session of the Upper and Lower houses after Malan urged approval of his South African Act amendment bill.

The bill prescribes a separate electoral bill for some 50,000 Cape Province colored (mixed blood) voters who hitherto have balloted with the white electorate. Section 35 of the South Africa Act says no voter may be removed from the roll for reasons of "race or color" unless the section is amended by a two-thirds vote of both houses in joint session.

OPENING WEDGE

Strauss, leader of the United party, said that if section 35 is altered "it will be possible to deprive members of the Jewish community of their voting rights on the grounds of race only."

Several leaders of Malan's nationalist party have been widely accused by their political foes of anti-semitic views.

Strauss sought to shelve the Nationalist bill by proposing a crippling amendment during the second reading. The amendment asks that the bill be held up until a joint committee of both Houses studies the issue in detail.

Malan offered a lengthy defence of his bill. He denied it discriminated against any race but merely provided that whites and colored voters each have their own elected representatives in parliament.

"If the bill is not passed," he said, "the color question will be an issue at every election and by-election."

Charges Mayor Fanatical About Liquor

OTTAWA (CP)—A director of the Central Canada Exhibition Association said Wednesday that the Women's Christian Temperance Union and Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa are "becoming fanatical about liquor."

"Instead of being temperate, they've gone fanatic on liquor," Stanley Higman told an Association directors' meeting. He added that the WCTU and Mayor Whitton apparently want to drive Ottawans back to the dark ages of carrying hip flasks.

Mr. Higman was commenting on WCTU criticism that 344 banquet permits, authorizing the serving of liquor, were issued for Lansdowne Park parties last year. The park is operated by the Association.

DISTURBED ABOUT PERMITS

The WCTU had written Mayor Whitton that it was disturbed about the number of permits issued and asked her intervention.

The mayor expressed sympathy for the WCTU stand and said it was "hypocrisy" for city council to pass resolutions against more liquor outlets when six council members were directors of the Central Canada Exhibition Association, which was "going into the liquor business."

Association president S. F. Dadson said the Association has nothing to do with the liquor permits. It merely rented its Lansdowne Park buildings to responsible organizations.

Artificial Legs Are Being Taken To Korea

NEW YORK (AP)—Three rehabilitation workers, one a Canadian, took off today to take artificial "rice paddy" legs to maimed South Koreans.

The limbs, newly developed at the New York University-Bellevue Medical Centre, work on a rocker-base principle that keeps the wearer from getting stuck in the mud.

The three workers are en route, via San Francisco, to a 900-bed hospital for Korean amputees at Tongnae, near Pusan. They are Miss Barbara Schuerck, 25, a vocational therapist, of Boston; Miss Wendy Heaton, 28, a physiotherapist, of Toronto, and Mrs. Bertha Simeone, 37, a registered nurse, of Brewster, N.Y.

Their trip is sponsored by the American - Korean Foundation. The team's first task will be to test the new artificial limbs, which cost but $15 each as compared to $400 for an earlier design.

Racial Laws Forbid Strong Drink

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — South African police are conducting day and night raids in a move to stamp out the "skokiaan queens"—native women who have made a thriving business out of bootlegging stronger alcoholic drinks to natives than are allowed under South Africa's racial laws.

But the raids have not put the bootleggers out of business. Instead of peddling their wares in the open, they now have created week-end "skokie dens" in empty office buildings.

In Johannesburg, South Africans can buy a fairly innocuous native beer, "Kaffir beer," at municipal beer halls, but they cannot legally buy stronger liquor.

Most of the bootleg liquor has a base of fermented yeast, illegally obtained since yeast may not be sold to Africans. The "queens" give these drinks a "kick" by adding carbide, methylated spirit, or one of various other substances which are highly dangerous to the drinker.

The brew is finished off by the addition of the flesh of what the "queen" asserts is a lion, or other wild animals reputed to have great strength and killing power. The liquor sometimes is so strong that it is literally killing. Many deaths have resulted from it.

Banker Dies From Fall

NEW YORK (AP)—Oliver Wolcott Roosevelt, 60, banker and cousin of the late president Theodore Roosevelt, died of injuries suffered in a five-story fall. Roosevelt, according to police, was the victim of an apparent accident in a fall from a low-silled bedroom window of his apartment.

TWEEDS—The costume (left) of charcoal grey tweed has a co-ordinated jacket in nubby tweed. The jacket has a fitted line and a smooth look through the shoulders. The dress is slim but the skirt allows ease, for walking. Shown for fashion editors attending semi-annual press week. A black calf belt and divided black bone buttons for a winter navy wool dress (centre). The bodice is slightly bloused in back. New is the fitted double-breasted coat of Oxford grey astrakhan wool (right). The bodice is loosely cut and rounded with shorter sleeves set in low at the shoulder.

Reeve Charges Lies, Slander To Deputy

COOKSVILLE — In a scathing attack, Reeve Anthony Adamson, of Toronto Township, Wednesday accused Deputy Reeve Mrs. Mary Fix of publicly slandering him and spreading lies in connection with an Ontario Municipal Board hearing on a proposed bylaw.

He told Toronto Township Council that Mrs. Fix had deliberately spread "malicious lies," accusing him of intimidating township solicitor Allan Van Every.

Challenged by Reeve Adamson to reveal her source of information, Mrs. Fix remained silent. She said later, however, that she had heard on good authority that Reeve Adamson had instructed Van Every not to stress council's opposition to an amendment to the bylaw which would have allowed a third shopping centre in the township.

Reeve Adamson said he had suggested to Van Every that he thought it best the township not get involved in a legal squabble with three contracting firms represented at the board hearing.

He said he had done this on the advice of Dr. E. G. Faludi, township planning consultant.

Radio Phone Alarm System Guarding New Oil Pipeline

EDMONTON (CP)—The Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline Company, with $82,000,000 and almost 18 months of work invested in its 711 - mile Edmonton-to-Vancouver pipeline, is taking precautions against any interruption in the flow of Alberta crude oil to the west coast.

Men will be stationed at various points along the route with radio and telephone equipment to flash a danger signal if there is any interruption in the pipeline's normal operation.

Fixed radio stations are being set up at Edmonton, Edson, and Jasper in Alberta, and at Blue River, Black Pool, Kamloops, Brookmere, Hope and Burnaby in British Columbia.

They will serve about 24 radio-equipped vehicles which will patrol the pipeline.

SPECIAL PHONE CIRCUIT

Canadian National Telegraphs has installed a special telephone circuit along the route and this will be leased to Trans Mountain.

In addition, teletype service will be leased from Canadian National Telegraphs at least during the initial period of operation.

Arrangements also are being made for the pipeline to be patrolled by helicoptor during the first winter operation. These aircraft are ideal for operations in mountainous country where orthodox aircraft are hampered by lack of runways.

The pipeline was started in Feb. 1952, with more than 2,300 men engaged in pipe-laying and administrative tasks. More than 3,000,000 feet of 24-inch pipe was hauled by rail and truck to various points along the route, which roughly follows the Canadian National Railways line from Edmonton west through the Yellowhead pass into British Columbia and southwest to Vancouver.

Work crews had to cut their way through mountain rock and bridge 72 stream and river crossings.

The line is expected to be completed in August, three months ahead of schedule. It will have an initial capacity of 120,000 barrels of crude oil a day. This can eventually be boosted to 200,000 barrels a day.

Ask Tank Removed

BERLIN (Reuters)—The West Berlin borough of Zehlendorf demanded that a Soviet tank memorial to war dead should be removed. The borough council asked West Berlin mayor Ernst Reuter to inform the Western Allies that "this tank is . . . a provocation forced upon the conquered by the victor, contrary to all custom."

Bills City for $68

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A man presented a bill of $68 to the city for plants he said were destroyed by the pest control squad. Charles A. Carson said 59 plants, including 32 kinds of roses, have died since a nearby vacant lot was sprayed with bug killer.

New Housing Scheme For Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto paper says in a newspage story today that 250 two, three-and four-bedroom houses to cost between $6,500 and $8,500 each may be built in a city suburb by a group working on a non-profit basis.

No property has yet been purchased nor financial arrangements made, the paper says, but a company has been formed and 250 employees of Avro Canada at nearby Malton will hold a meeting within 10 days.

The newspaper story says the scheme is unique in Canada in that it will employ modern engineering principles on a mass scale, a method used successfully in Europe and the United States.

KEEP COSTS DOWN

The group plans to keep the units within range of the $60-a-week worker by saving on the cost of land, eliminating basements, working without profits and by economies of mass financing.

National Housing Act officials have been consulted and the paper says the group has received favorable consideration. The scheme was started when two Avro employees, looking for homes for themselves and their families, cast about for a new approach to housing.

Washouts Stall Trains In Rockies

CALGARY (CP)—With mainline traffic through the Rocky Mountains disrupted by washouts and a major derailment, the Canadian Pacific Railway operated special re-routing schedules Wednesday night as it rushed track repairs.

Damage was expected to be repaired by about midnight, with schedules returning to normal by Friday.

The disruption followed heavy rain and abnormally high temperatures which thawed mountain snow and sent water cascading over tracks. More than one-third of an inch of rain fell but only sparse showers and a drying trend were expected for Thursday with cooler weather.

Only one person, a porter was slightly injured when 10 cars of the crack Mountaineer, a summer special en route from Vancouver to Chicago with 82 passengers, was derailed on a flood-weakened roadbed Tuesday night. All derailed cars remained upright.

The accident occurred near Stephen, near the Great Divide just west of the Alberta-B.C. border. Passengers were transported back west to Field, B.C., aboard three coaches that had remained upright. From there they were taken by bus to Banff, where they were met by a relief train from Calgary.

Halt Dumping

MONTREAL (CP)—The department of national revenue has ordered tighter customs checks to prevent possible "dumping" of United States textile goods on the Canadian market, following complaints from company and union officials of the industry. L. R. Younger, chief Dominion customs appraiser, said in an interview Wednesday the department has issued explicit directions and customs men have been told to give textile imports a more careful appraisal.

CUT GRASS—AND WORK—Round and 'round goes the lawn mower while Bobby Dixon sits in the sun reading his magazine. His summer job of keeping the grass cut on the Lewis farm at Brooksville, Fla., means little work for him. A rope, attached to the front of the power mower, winds around a central stake and pulls the machine closer and closer in a spiral path.

Fireworks Case

CRYSTAL BEACH (CP)—Decision was reserved Wednesday in the case of three business men charged with selling fireworks in this Welland district resort. C. C. Downey of Toronto, who represented the three businessmen, said the act under which his clients are charged is unconstitutional and beyond the power of a village to enforce.

CCF Government Embarrassed By Sask. Strike

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier says the strike of employees of the Crown-operated Saskatchewan Transportation Company has put the provincial CCF government in a bad position in the election campaign.

Mr. Chevrier spoke Wednesday night at a public meeting in support of Floyd Glass, Liberal candidate in Prince Albert.

"The CCF song" today is different than in 1950, when the federal government had a rail strike on its hands, Mr. Chevrier said.

BACKED RAIL UNION

One of the railways was also a Crown corporation, he said, and at that time the CCF backed the rail unions. Now they were against a unionized group who worked for their own provincial Crown company.

"The CCF out of office appear to adopt one attitude towards labor," Mr. Chevrier charged, "and in office an entirely different one."

Mr. Chevrier declared the federal government is alive to the great potential that existed in Saskatchewan's northland and that Prince Albert was the northern gateway.

This was why a new airstrip had been approved for Prince Albert municipal airport and appropriation of $500,000 had been approved. The airstrip was a part of Liberal policy of developing natural resources.

Abbott Appeases Hecklers At Meeting

By WILF CHISLETT

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott debated vigorously with hecklers and appeased one by pouring him a glass of water at a lively public meeting Wednesday night in this town, 80 miles south of Edmonton.

Two of the hecklers were identified as the same pair who were ejected during an Edmonton speech by Prime Minister St. Laurent Monday night. But nobody was thrown out here, and everyone appeared to enjoy the fun, including Mr. Abbott, who called it "one of the finest meetings I have ever seen."

On the platform with the finance minister were Jean Paul St. Laurent, son of the prime minister, Alberta Liberal leader J. Harper Prowse and Clinton Reed, Liberal candidate for Wetaskiwain constituency.

The audience of some 80 persons first began to stir as Mr. Reed began to outline the government's record.

"What record?" one of the hecklers interjected.

INVITED TO GO HOME

The next speaker, Mr. St. Laurent, said it was the first time he had been on a platform with a cabinet minister outside Eastern Canada. A member of the audience invited him to go back to the East.

After another spirited exchange during which a heckler and someone in the back row threatened each other with fisticuffs, Mr. Abbott waved his spectacles in admonition and asked the heckler why he didn't listen to those on the platform.

"That's a good idea, thank you, sir," the brawny youth replied.

Later, after peppering the speakers with pointed questions, the same man, apparently a Social Credit supporter, asked Mr. Abbott if he could have a drink of water.

EARNS DRINK

"Certainly," Mr. Abbott said, filling a glass. "I think you've earned one."

An elderly man walked up to the platform, doffed his cap, saluted Mr. Abbott solemnly and asked him for a comparison of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative platforms.

The finance minister told him the Conservatives stand for people "who are already pleased with how they are." The Liberals' fiscal and economic policy was framed for the good of the majority of the people.

Campbellford Mark $2,060 For Red Shield

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Although the Salvation Army Red Shield campaign in this district fell short of the $2,500 objective, Captain Mutton states that the campaign was the most successful in the history of this community.

Funds raised in the recent campaign totalled just over $2,060.

Boss Sweet Poison Secretary Shot Him

ROCKHAMPTON, Australia (Reuters)—Police court assembled Wednesday around the hospital bed of Mayor Reginald Pelbeam, shot in the back by his secretary.

Police said the girl, Jean Jennings, 26, said: "He is poison for me—but, ah, what sweet poison. I knew I would have to kill him sooner or later."

She is charged with attempting to kill the 46-year-old mayor.

Pilbeam, testifying with his wife standing beside the hospital bed, said he was driving with Miss Jennings last month in a car when he heard a shot and felt something hit him near the waist.

Miss Jennings' lawyer asked if he denied his association with the secretary. "We haven't been on intimate terms for a long time now," he said.

Modern, Traditional Designs

By HARRIET MORRISON

CHICAGO—The battle over cold versus warm modern designs has replaced the battle of traditional versus modern at the Wholesale Home Furnishings Market here.

Modern design is taken for granted in several forms, varying from country modern to sophisticated. There is apparently a place for all types in homes today. Tables, chairs and cabinets introduced here give the clear signal to mix designs in the living room. Industry leaders are concerned with keeping up with the fast-changing scene.

"We are in the thick of a revolution in public taste, perhaps without parallel in the history of this country because of the speed with which it is occurring and the sharpness of the change," Alfred Auerback, home furnishing consultant, said at a fashion group luncheon meeting.

The speaker stressed that the revolution is occurring among the younger generation and is "sweeping the land". He said that the impact has not yet been felt. The change in taste was described as the desire for more objects designed for many purposes and ease of maintenance, desire for less clutter, more simplicity, flexibility, and more sunshine and air.

Changes in architecture and interior design were also indicated at a press conference where it was said that the air-conditioning for the increase in television and improvement in kitchen equipment are creating changes in interior designs.

Speaking of the modern design movement's growth in the last quarter of a century, Mr. Auerbach said the issue today is whether or not modern must be cold, clinical and austere.

"Is the house to be merely a machine for living or can it be warm, gracious, inviting, restful?" he asked.

British Tailoring Said Tops For 150 Years

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — Every country has its own contribution to make to fashion. England's is fine tailoring. British tailoring has been tops for 150 years, says Digby Morton, London designer, here with his journalist wife, Phyllis, to inspect his new collection of shirts tailored for the girls.

A man with no chip on his shoulder about his own or any one else's place in the sun, this designer believes that women will always want tailored clothes. They are more and more on the move and, after all, "you can't go rushing around the world in a Dior dress or something equally romantic," he says.

One way, though, to annoy this good-humored man is to call his new shirts, designed for Lady Hathaway, blouses. Though the shirts concede to feminine figures with bust darts in the right places, they are man-tailored at heart. They have the brisk, crisp look that has been luring women lately to purloin shirts from their husbands' bureau drawers.

To shirt tradition Digby Morton has added a touch of fun. One of the items in his new collection is is a comic version of a man's old-fashioned dress shirt. Like all the collection, it is made of British cotton, this time striped chambray combined with plain.

The designer's own troubles with laundry inspire a second shirt. Made of black cotton printed in a gold Paisley pattern, it buttons down the side from under sleeves to brief tails, and folds out absolutely flat for easy ironing.

There's more fun in a long-tailed shirt that can be worn in or out and has a cummerbund made of the same bold, striped cotton print. Mr. Morton tailors lace-printed sheer voile and gives it a separate bow tie.

Besides the shirts, Digby Morton has designed a new little group of fall coats and suits for Philip Mangone. Some of them will be reproduced in the original British tweeds. Others will be turned into lighter weight flannels for early wear.

Suits live up to the British tailoring tradition. Mr. Morton takes out his avocation for architecture in their slim skirts, gently fitted and detailed jackets. Topcoats are the dateless, seasonless type, such as a black and white lacy tweed with a shawl collar.

In London, the Mortons occuy a penthouse on top of their working quarters, designed and interior decorated by Mr. Morton. Mrs. Morton has a separate but related career—broadcasting and writing about beauty.

COURTESY CONTEST

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — An Auckland store held a poll of its customers to find the staff member judged most courteous. The winner, Mrs. B. Wheeler, was rewarded with a trip to Australia, where store owners liked the idea so much they asked her to organize similar contests for them.

DOROTHY DIX:

Embittered Mother Declares Raising of Children Is Great Burden

DEAR MISS DIX: A recent correspondent wrote you that "Children are more a burden than enjoyment." She is 100 per cent right. All one has to do is look around and see the torture, heartbreak and tears caused by children, to realize the truth of her statement. Experience is the best teacher, but also the most expensive. I regret more than anything in all the world having a child as a millstone around my neck the balance of my life.

M. E. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

REGRETTABLE AND TRAGIC

ANSWER: What a sad, embittered woman you are. The existence of your child isn't the whole trouble; though you give no explanation for your feeling or of the sad circumstances that have brought you to this tragic belief, it almost certainly goes back to a time before the birth of your child.

No one can possibly deny that there are heartaches and tears wound up in the rearing of a child, but can you name any other way of life that is different? No matter what path one chooses, thorns will be well scattered among the roses. Few indeed are the parents who look back on the years spent raising a family as having been wasted. No effort in the world is as rewarding since no other effort holds the full measure of creation that comes with rearing a child. The architect may receive columns of praise for his beautiful building, the author's best-seller may be acclaimed by critics, but the sacrifices involved in raising a family bring the blessing of God. Fortunately, children need no press agents; most folks love them, yearn to have them, and are more than willing to take the trouble to bring them up properly. It's regrettable and tragic that the priceless gift of a child should have been given to one who doesn't appreciate it. It is denied to many couples who would welcome every sacrifice a baby entails.

You will find few listeners to your misanthropic creed!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two teen-agers who are worried about a party. Every summer the Ladies Auxiliary of our church gives a party, at which there is dancing. The problem is that the boys never ask the girls to dance. How can we make them dance with us?

NAOMI

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: That problem is up to the sponsors of the party, rather than you girls. They are supposed to keep people in circulation, see that the boys dance and that there are no wallflowers. The best way to get shy boys on the dance floor is to have square dancing. This is something that requires no particular dancing skill, and most boys are quite willing to participate.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much in love with a wonderful girl and would like to marry her. This, however, is impossible because her parents don't want her to marry until she finishes high school, which will be in two years. If we elope her parents will turn against me. What do you advise us to do?

FRUSTRATED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since the young lady is 16 at most, and you probably aren't much older, waiting in accordance with her parents' wishes is the best course.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going steady with a boy for six months, and recently learned that he is seeing one of his old girl friends. What shall I do?

C. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since "going steady" implies that dating is with one person only, your friend is violating his part of the understanding. His defection leaves you free to follow suit. Date other boys, and see what reaction you get.

2 Centuries Of Swim Suits

In the history of human costume it is the bathing suit that occupies the briefest space. The Greeks never heard of it and would have thought anyone eccentric who dressed to go swimming.

Where other articles of apparel trace their origins back to ancient times, the bathing suit can't go beyond the middle of the 18th century. Until then outdoor bathing was almost completely ignored by the civilized world.

For a long time people swam indoors, although this was considered not entirely respectable. The first sea-bathers took elaborate precautions to protect themselves from possible onlookers. What was called a bathing machine carried them far from shore and an umbrella-like structure shielded the bathers as they descended into the water. To take part in this new sport, the ladies wore thick flannel robes which tied around the neck and hung down to their heels.

Then followed a voluminous costume consisting of pantaloons and a heavy dress with long sleeves and a high neck. Bathing suits became even more bulky until 1850 when a daring one-piece suit with very short sleeves and knee-length trousers appeared on the beaches. Beneath this new abbreviated costume a corset was always worn.

The beginning of the twentieth century brought shorts, slowly vanishing sleeves and the first display of legs—clad in long black or white stockings.

It was the sun bathing craze of the thirties that brought about the greatest change in swim suit designs. One after another—necklines, armholes, backs, skirts and finally midriffs—receded, until finally a popular costume evolved consisting of shorts and a brassiere. This evolutionary striptease came to a dead end with the Bikini bathing suit.

Now designers are turning to more coverage in beachwear. Fabric rather than nudity is making fashion news. Everything from cotton mattress ticking to velvet and lace of nylon is in the swim.

Since the bathing suit acquired a little history of its own, it has begun to borrow from the past. Some of the most recent designs feature shoulders that are modestly covered with short sleeves or wide straps. Others sport full skirts of pleats.

MISS WENDY M. V. DUNFORD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Dunford of "Glenleigh", Lakefield, whose engagement to Mr. James Ernest Dooley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dooley of Toronto has been announced. Their marriage will take place on Saturday, August 8, in St. John's Anglican Church, Lakefield.

SOAP IS A GOOD PICNIC ACCESSORY

When you pack that picnic basket, include a cake of soap. Someone in your party who has never seen poison ivy before may bring some to you to admire. Quick washing with soap and water will remove the resulting irritating substance from the skin, and will help prevent spreading until proper medication can be applied. Prompt washing with soap of scratches or cuts is excellent first aid treatment and will eliminate much of the danger of infection. It does not mean, however, that no further treatment may be necessary.

SMITH TOWNSHIP COUPLE, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coons of Lot 25, Concession 10, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Wednesday. Seven sons, one daughter, 19 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren feted them at their homestead farm. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coons Ex-Reeve, Wife 50 Years Wed

Still active and very much interested in life around them, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coons, 10th concession, Smith township, celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary Wednesday.

They were joined by their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, as well as neighboring friends, at their home in the evening.

Mr. Coons, 79, keeps tab on all the current events, especially those concerning his immediate vicinity. He has his own opinions and is very capable of expressing them. He was born near Lang, the son of the late James Coons and Margaret Nelson. He has a brother, John Coons, at Sandy Lake, two living sisters, Mrs. Alberta Cundal, Edmonton, and Miss Ethel Coons, Toronto. A third sister, Mrs. Jenny Anderson, died in 1928.

Mr. Coons' father was a pioneer in Harvey township where "the timber had to be cleared before anything could be done." Mrs. Coons, the former Annie Fawcett, lived on the adjoining farm in Harvey and in 1903 she and Henry were married by the Rev. McKnight, in the Knox Presbyterian Church, Lakehurst.

In 1918 they bought lot 25, 10th concession, Smith, from Robert Garbutt and began farming, and raising a family. There are seven boys, Rolly, James Nelson, Clarence, Norman, Carmen, Harold and Allen, and one daughter, Mrs. Bernice Harris.

Mr. Coons was reeve of Smith four times, a member of the county council more times than he can remember—and has been both county and municipal auditor. He was president of the Lakefield Fair Board twice and a member of the board for years.

The radio doesn't interest him, "except when the odd good speaker is on," and he believes that television is just an enlargement of "radio trash." "I'd much rather talk, either seriously or humorously, than listen to a radio."

He retired from active farming three years ago on the advice of his doctor and at present his son-in-law, Vincent Harris, runs the farm.

In addition to his eight children, there are 19 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The members of the couple's immediate family presented each with a gold watch, and during the evening some of their neighbors dropped in and presented them with a gold purse of money.

Besides these many individual gifts were received and other friends and relatives sent flowers and cards expressing their best wishes.

7 BASIC, 100 VARIATIONS

There are seven basic ways to prepare eggs: baked, broiled, cooked in the shell, fried, poached, scrambled and simple omelets. Ingenious housewives have devised hundreds of variations of these seven basic ways and because eggs are one hundred per cent edible, there is no waste. They are an excellent meat substitute in hot weather.

Mrs. John Collins Winner Of DeGraw Trophy

One of the best fields for the annual Marjorie DeGraw trophy tournament at Peterborough Golf Club played through Wednesday's sizzling heat.

The trophy, which is a low net award, went to Mrs. John Collins of the Kawartha Club. Mrs. Collins has a handicap of 36 and this brought her net score to 70. Runners-up on the net were Mrs. Len Lawrence and Miss Marg Behan, both members of the Peterborough Club.

Best golfer of the day was Mrs. Searight of Scarboro Club who had the low gross of 82. Mrs. Stu Williamson, president of the ladies' section at Peterborough Club, was second with an 89. Another guest, Mrs. Lionel Ross, of Cobourg, came third with 90.

There were 95 entries in the tournament, representing 15 clubs from as far west as Kincardine and Brantford and as far east as Napanee. They were teeing off from 9 a.m. until after one o'clock in the afternoon.

Presentation of the trophy and prizes was done by Mrs. Williamson.

Buffet luncheon arrangements were supervised by Mrs. C. G. Graham and Mrs. Alice Leach.

Your Hair-Do In Fall Styles

By LUCIE NOEL

PARIS—Hair stylists Antoine, Guillaume, Elizabeth Arden, Fernand Aubry, Carita & Alexandre, Michel of Helena Rubinstein and Marcel Maggy all have their own ideas for the fall season. It's from these pace setters that a hair-do will be adopted and adapted by many women.

Antoine is still cutting hair short, but styles it to suit and individualize the wearer. His three current lengths are expressed in the stepped Corolla, the horsetail (for young girls) and a very short cut for women with round faces. For evening he believes in trimmed heads.

This is in evidence in many of the forty-five dolls and mannequins he worked on for his hair-do show, entitled "Styles of Yesterday and Tomorrow."

"Styles of today date the minute they're out," says Antoine, "so I am looking at tomorrow—basing inspiration on yesterday. Anyway, some of my best ideas materialize years later. For evening wear I use crystals, beads, pearls. Tiaras look old and age one. I have made one fixed on by rhinestone strands and featuring several rows of arches and spikes."

His daytime styles include many wearable ideas. Thinned-out windblown wisps have a square-cut fringe at the back of the neck. Curls and powder curls are suggested for upswept coiffeurs.

Guillaume, who works hand in hand with Christian Dior, holds regular presentations on an elaborate scale for his international clientele.

TOWARDS LONGER HAIR

He appears to be veering toward longer hair, indicated by brushing the hair behind the ears. He is also partial to parting the hair behind the ears, thus varying his unkempt Savage hairdo. Bangs are shorter, the whole aspect less untidy. In general, his Toulouse-Lautrec trend has come in for a grooming.

Elizabeth Arden introduces her Royal Spring hairdo, favorite with visiting Americans and many peeresses and debutants. It's streamlined, youthful and particularly well adapted to jewels. Arden is an individualist and will not be governed by set standards.

Fernand Aubry likes the not too sleek look except for evening, where he often stylizes a pretty face. A romantic idea is a rose tucked into the center front braid of hair piled high on the head, coronet style.

Carita & Alexandre are doing successful teamwork. Their elegant clientele includes the Countess de Paris and the six Royal Princesses of France, who were all there one day this week. The Duchess of Windsor is an old friend and attended their opening with 3,000 other persons.

Their three new styles are Mascot neo Greek (stylized curls forming a diadem), Fetiche (the hair brushed in opposite movements, back from the brow and swept forward) and Lucky Charm, recalling the 1900 era. Here bangs are featured and the short curls brushed upward. This last one lends itself to evening ornaments, feathers and flowers.

Michel of Helena Rubinstein has come to Paris to open his salon, patterned on the gray and rose establishment in New York. Michel believes in an individual hairdo for every one and is getting away from standard styles. However, his new "coiffeur type" Camelia, cut in layers simulating open petals, best expresses his search for youth and simplicity.

Coldsprings WA Cancels Meeting

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — The Coldsprings Women's Association held their meeting Tuesday night in the Sunday school room with 17 members and eight visitors present.

The president, Mrs. C. Brooks, was in the chair. Miss Edna Jamieson was secretary. The treasurer, Mrs. E. Jamieson, reported a balance on hand of $230.99. Mrs. Newton McIntosh moved a vote of thanks on behalf of the committee, to members for their help and co-operation in the banquet held recently for the Rotary Club of Cobourg.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. J. Gordon. Marlene and Linda Turk, sang a duet. The devotion on "Obedience" was given by Mrs. P. Davidson. Edna Jamieson read the scripture. Mrs. M. Dines was pianist for the hymns. Mrs. J. Gordon and group served lunch.

THE BRIDE'S MOTHER WORE

LOS ANGELES—Striking combinations for bride's mothers' gowns include teal blue lace appliqued on green taffeta; a floor-length slim sheath of silver lace posed over pink taffeta. One dress in royal blue changeable taffeta has a skirt that is slim at the front but achieves back fullness by interesting pleat detail. Cocoa and beige are also effectively designed to make the mother of the bride strikingly fashionable.

COOL WITH FRAGRANCE

A cooling trick is to saturate a piece of cotton or some cleansing tissue with your favorite cologne and rub it along the back of your neck. It will cool you pleasantly and at the same time remove surface soil from the skin. It also helps to keep necklines on dresses and blouses freshly free from perspiration which is so prevalent, in summer heat.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Featuring Friends And Raspberries

Have you counted your blessings lately?

You are better off than a boy I know who is all alone in the world and so shy that he cannot bring himself to invite a cute red-headed girl he has his eye on to a dance. Another young man I know is his only confidante and the shy boy promises he'll invite his intriguing little redhead to an important dance where Guy Lombardo is playing, if the other boy will go on a double date with them as moral support. This dance costs $6.00 per ocuple. The other boy is saving his money for a car, and besides he can dance all evening at the Y.M. for practically nothing (and to G.L.'s records too). However he knows that friendship is more important than money or cars so he's shooting the six bucks.

If you have such trusting friends, don't fret—they are worth their weight in gold.

Besides friends, we in this greatest of all countries have abundant food.

Friends and food—those are blessings you can count, even if you are up to your neck in work or debt or worry over the antics of your young ones.

Some of you will recall a trip I took a few years ago and while away we stopped at a famous roadside restaurant in the middle of the raspberry season (now don't be fresh just because of my Irishisms—we stopped in the middle of the raspberry season—the restaurant wasn't in the middle of a raspberry patch!) anyway, their fresh raspberry pie a la mode (homemade the ice cream was too) is never-to-be-forgotten by this lover of good food.

Do you aim to make a fresh raspberry pie this year?

NOTE: In areas where thimbleberries, boysenberries and Saskatoon berries are abundant they may be used in these recipes in place of raspberries, but change the sugar content to suit your taste.

FRESH RASPBERRY PIE

Line a deep pie plate with rich pastry; sprinkle bottom with two tablespoons dry fine breadcrumbs (to prevent soaking). Into 1 cup of sugar stir 3 tablespoons cornstarch (if you want to make an open pie use arrowroot flour if you want the glaze perfectly clear) and when mixed add 1 cup cold water, then stir this over medium heat until thick. Cook over boiling water stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes. Into pie plate, turn 4 cups washed and drained raspberries then carefully and slowly pour the glaze over them, being sure it trickles down between the berries. Put on gashed upper crust and seal edges well. Brush upper crust with mixture of 1 tablespoon each milk and white sugar. Bake at 400 degrees Fahr for about 40 or 45 minutes. This pie should not be cut until it is perfectly cold or filling will run a little. If you want to cut it within an hour or two after baking use 4 tablespoons cornstarch or arrowroot in the glaze.

The next little number will appeal to the girls whose families lick their lips over whipped cream desserts.

RASPBERRY ICE-BOX CAKE

This may be used for strawberries and loganberries too.

Twenty-four lady fingers (or the equivalent in slices of sponge cake), 1 quart plus a few choice large raspberries, about 1 cup of sugar, 3 beaten eggs, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, ½ teaspoon vanilla or almond flavoring. Line a spring mould, or loaf pan or refrigerator tray with split lady fingers, being sure all the little crevices are filled with the trimmed-off ends or crumbs from the lady fingers. Pick out about one dozen of the choicest berries and crush the remainder after they are washed and drained, and stir the sugar into them. Let them stand for 3 or 4 hours to extract the juice. Drain off all of the juice and stir the beaten eggs into it and cook this mixture in top of double boiler, stirring, until thick. Let cool, Now cut and fold into it the whipped cream and the berry pulp and whichever flavoring you choose. Pour half of it over the lady fingers in the lined mould, add a layer of split lady fingers and the remainder of the berry filling. Chill 24 hours in refrigerator. This is not frozen. If spring mould is used mould does not have to be lined with wax paper, but if loaf pan is used, removal of cake is facilitated if it is lined with wax paper. Turn out on serving dish, garnish with choice berries, and slice in 1-inch slices.

6—In Memoriam

HENDERSON—In loving memory of our darling daughter Susan, who passed away July 16, 1952 and our infant son Karl, who passed away March 14, 1950.
When the dewy night was fading
And the sky in beauty smiled
The angels came into our garden
And picked our sweetest flowers.
—Ever remembered by parents and brother Stuart.

HENDERSON—In loving memory of our granddaughter, Susan Henderson, who passed away one year ago today, July 16, 1952.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of affection
And a heartache still for you.
—Sadly missed by Grandma and Grandpa Downer.

Dowling Charges Faryon With Importing McCarthyism

Charges of "importing McCarthyism into Canada" were made today in a letter written by F. W. Dowling, district director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America, in replying to R. R. Faryon.

Mr. Faryon, president of Quaker Oats Company on Monday charged a "double-cross" when Quaker employees did not return to work. The union had voted Sunday to accept the latest offer, in their strike now in its 14th week. However, acceptance was qualified on condition that agreement be reached in Saskatoon where there is another Quaker strike.

Mr. Dowling defines "McCarthyism" as given by an American authority as "a method of making charges take the place of evidence and logic."

Following is the text of Mr. Dowling's letter:

"It was with amazement that I read your comments as quoted by the Peterborough Examiner alleging a double-cross by myself. For some time I have been aware that your actions in this situation have been dictated by the American Board of Directors of your Company who apparently regard their Canadian employees as some backward form of colonials who can be exploited at their will and pleasure.

"However, I was not aware of the fact that your long sojourn in the United States had exposed you to their mentality and methods to the extent that you are now importing their 'McCarthyism' in Canada along with your company's reactionary policy.

"An eminent authority in the U.S. has defined 'McCarthyism' as "a method of making charges take the place of evidence and logic." Anyone reading your statements as quoted by the Examiner will see how well this fits in your case."

THE WORD DOUBLE-CROSS

"While you use the word 'double-cross' throughout all your statements, you are very careful not to say that either your company or yourself has been double-crossed by myself or any of the officials of our union.

"This is evidently to project you from a demand that you produce some evidence to support your reckless charges. You State that the Mayor and City Council, Alderman Beggs and our local union are the ones I have double-crossed. They, of course, can speak for themselves. All I can say is that at no time in my discussions with Alderman Beggs did I ever mention the fact that he was an employee of our union and should let that fact influence his judgment in his dealings with your company.

"As to the Mayor and other members of the City Council, I have never had the pleasure of meeting any of them at any time and so, therefore, could not have made any promises or double-crossed them in any way.

"While you are very careful to avoid any suggestion that I have gone back on any commitments which I have made to the company, I think it well to put on the record just what took place in the few discussions I have had with you in this situation.

"You will recall that I first talked with you on April 27th. I was in Chicago at the time the strike began and was informed that you had suggested that perhaps a discussion between yourself as president of the company and myself as vice-president and Canadian director of the union, might help to solve the situation. I made a special trip to Peterborough the next day for this purpose. However, when I met you, you informed me that you could see no reason for discussing the situation as you were convinced that the committee and the employees were completely unreasonable and only a few weeks' strike could bring them to their senses and you were determined on this course. Our meeting lasted less than five minutes."

"Our second discussion was on June 22 in the Royal York Hotel at which time I made several suggestions for settlement. All these were rejected by you, and you stated that your purpose in having this meeting was to get an assurance that your proposals would be put before the employees and a fair and impartial vote taken on them. At that time you stated you did not trust the local union committee and requested that I have a representative of our International Union supervise the vote. I stated at time that, while I had implicit trust in Alderman Beggs and the local union committee, if it would help the situation, I would request Assistant Director Sam Hughes to attend. I went further and suggested that the local committe have some impartial person also present when the vote was taken. I understand that they accepted this suggestion and that a member of the press was present when the ballots were counted."

SASKATOON QUESTION

"You will recall that at this meeting I also raised the question of Saskatoon and stated that it was impossible to get a settlement in Peterborough unless the Saskatoon situation was also taken care of. You assured me, as your company has been assuring our people all along, that there would be no problem in settling the strike in Saskatoon. While I cannot claim that this has been a double-cross by you as you did not make any commitments regarding the Saskatoon situation, I must say that your attitude was such as to lead me, as well as other union officials, to believe that what you were saying was that, if the matter in Peterborough was cleaned up, you would settled the Saskatoon situation on a fair basis. This was, to say the least, misleading; if deliberate or not, only you would know.

"In regard to the refusal of the Peterborough local to return to work, may I say that nobody had to urge them, let alone threaten them in any way, to persuade them to stay on the picket line until a solution has been found in Saskatoon. The Peterborough committee, as well as the rank and file employees of your plant, understood perfectly well the tactics your company has pursued in this situation. As soon as the strike started you dangled an easy settlement in front of the Saskatoon workers in an attempt to get them to return to work. This would, of course, have given you an opportunity to get production under way in Canada and so enable you to starve the Peterborough workers into submission."

"When this failed you reversed your tactics and offered an acceptable proposal to the Peterborough workers. When they indicated their willingness to agree and you thought they would return to work, you withdrew any proposals to the Saskatoon local and demanded they return to work without any wage increase whatsoever and a promise that you would put the forty hour week into effect on September 1st. You know this would completely wreck the local union in Saskatoon and the Peterborough workers also recognized this fact. They realized that, once you had destroyed the local in Saskatoon, you would start to withdraw concessions in Peterborough and, with the Saskatoon plant completely under the control of your company, you would eventually smash the local in Peterborough and withdraw all that they managed to gain by their determined fight.

"Fortunately, they had the good sense to protect themselves against this tactic by making it clear that, while they were willing to recommend the proposed settlement, a return to work was conditional upon getting the proposals in writing and a satisfactory settlement in Saskatoon.

"I wonder how long it will take for the workers in your plants to convince you that they are united in a strong union and no attempts by you or your company to split them will be successful. All they are asking is that your company meet the pattern of wages and hours which has been accepted by other mills with which our union has contracts in both Eastern and Western Canada.

"I would suggest that instead of spending your time on such hysterical outbursts as those carried in the Peterborough Examiner, you examine these basic facts and offer your employees a fair and honest settlement.

"Inasmuch as you gave very wide publicity to your statements, I am sending a copy of this letter to the Peterborough Examiner with a request that they print it in answer to your unfounded charges. However, in all fairness, I am sending it to you first before giving it to the press, a courtesy which I would have appreciated from you."

F. W. DOWLING,
District Director.

Also cut in the struggle were Mrs. Unser and William A. Schwartz, a Bismarck insurance man who came to their help after the other drivers had passed them by. Cabinet Shakeup

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Marcos Perez Jiminez relinquished the post of defence minister and announced a general shakeup of his cabinet. Col. Oscar Mazzei, formerly communications minister, was named to the defence post. His old job was taken by Col. Felix Roman Moreno, formerly chief of staff of the armed forces.

Vagrant Jailed 5 Days

Aurele Legacy, 28, of South Bathurst, N.B., was given the alternative of paying a five-dollar fine and $2.50 costs or serving five days in jail when he pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy today. He took the jail term.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, said that the accused had come here looking for a job but hadn't been able to get work and hadn't eaten for two days. He was found lying on the lawn in front of the Legion Hall.

ILL-FATED LINEUP—This is a photo of some of the 50 passengers who boarded a Transocean Airlines plane in Agana, Guam. The four-engine craft crashed hours later near Wake Island, leaving no survivors. All eight crew members are also reported lost. Naval troopships and aircraft picked up floating bodies found in the vicinity of the disaster and then called off further search.

OBITUARY

GEORGE L. WALKER

WARKWORTH (ENS)—A former farmer and garage operator in Warkworth, George L. Walker died Wednesday after being confined to bed two weeks with a heart condition.

Mr. Walker, who was in his 83rd year celebrated with his wife their 50th wedding anniversary in June 1950.

He was born Cramahe township, the only son of the late Robert Walker and Sarah Ann Brintnell. After his marriage he farmed in the northern part of Cramahe township and then bought the homestead of Mrs. Walker's people in Brighton township.

In 1919, with the increasing popularity of the motor car, Mr. Walker moved into Warkworth and started a garage. He retired from this business several years ago.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge.

Mr. Walker is survived by his wife, the former Clara W. Ross, and two daughters, Mrs. Morley E. Smith (Grace) and Mrs. A. Frank Boyce (Jean) both of Warkworth. Two sisters, Mrs. L. Darling of Morganston and Mrs. Bush of Perry N.Y. predeceased him.

The funeral service will be held Friday at 3 p.m. at his home, with the Rev. A. L. Sisco of St. Paul's United Church officiating. Burial will be in Warkworth cemetery.

Pallbearers, all nephews, will be, Lorne and Roy Darling of Morganston; John Darling, Trenton; George Darling, Hilton; Charles Ross, Codrington; and Ross Moore, Peterborough.

Judge Applies Human Touch Gives People Second Chance

GLAMORGAN, Wales (Reuters) Mr. Justice Stable, a judge who once told a magistrate to throw law overboard if it clashed with commonsense, today applied the human touch to a case for the third time in a week.

He called Kenneth David Rees, self-confessed blackmailer, into the witness box, took a seat alongside and chatted with him.

Rees had pleaded guilty to a charge of demanding £200 ($560) from Berwin Davies, a milkman said to have been Rees's wife's lover.

The judge said "Now, Rees, this was not the way to handle a problem of that kind. It was the wrong approach. Do you think you can make it up with your wife."

Rees said he would try. "Do your best," said the judge and sent him away.

On Monday, Mr. Justice Stable left his seat and sat beside a 17-year-old girl found guilty of manslaughter. He sent her to a probation school and told her to "forget all about it."

Wednesday he freed Stanley John Cain, charged with attempting to murder his wife, after Mrs. Cain had pleaded for her husband.

Outside court, Mr. Justice Stable is Sir Wintringham Norton Stable, landowner and farmer and father of two sons.

He is human, but not "soft." In 1941 he gave a 33-year-old shopbreaker another chance. When the man appeared before him again a few weeks later the judge gave him seven years.

Protected Canada Against Reds

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said today the Liberal government has protected Canada against communism without reducing the living standards of the Canadian people.

He made the statement in a five-minute recorded speech in French, broadcast over the French network of the CBC at 11:30 a. m. on free time provided for political broadcasts.

Mr. Claxton, candidate in Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George in the Aug. 10 federal election, said that through "wise and prudent" financial policies the government was able to carry on the defence effort without reducing living standards.

"On the contrary, since to the millions paid in family allowances have been added millions in old age pensions," he said.

"We are enjoying great prosperity; but let us not give the Conservative party either the means of the opportunity to renew the disastrous experience of the Bennett government."

Korean Troops Obey Order Stay, Fight

By FORREST EDWARDS

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (AP) The roads are rivers of men and machines, the valley's nest of thundering artillery.

As our helicopter circles over we see first the heavy guns, belching huge bunker-busting shells at Chinese positions almost 12 miles away.

Then, as we get closer to the front, we see medium guns and light guns and finally heavy mortar batteries.

here and there the Pukhan river banks are alive with the ruddy, tan bodies of South Korean soldiers washing themselves and their mud-soaked uniforms. These are men just out of battle and soon to return.

DRIVING NORTH

We near the front and the big chopper settles down on a flight strip. Only a short distance ahead three South Korean divisions are driving north to regain lost ground as fast as possible.

With Gen. Sun Yup Pak, 32-year-old chief of staff of the RoK army, we pile into jeeps and follow on a round of division command posts. At each one, Paik goes into the war tent with the division commander and his highest staff officers. A phrase or two emerges as Paik strides out:

"I say stay, fight," Paik says quoting his own watchwords that have spread through the army.

"We must fight and throw them back."

Soon we are back in the air. "Discipline better now, morale, too. We fight."

And below the men and machines move onward, to the north.

Archie Bowman Injured By Car

COBOURG (ENS) — Word was received from Toronto by his family last night that Archie Bowman, age 82 of Baltimore, was struck by a car at Richmond Hill, just after he had alighted from a bus on his way to visit some relatives.

He was taken to Toronto General Hospital where it was found that he had sustained a broken pelvis. He also had a small cut on his head and a possible sprained wrist.

His condition was reported as fair last night but due to the fact that he is in excellent physical condition, in spite of his advanced years, he is expected to make good progress.

Mr. Bowman is a native of this district and was for many years clerk of Hamilton township, retiring last year. He is known very well all over Northumberland County.

He is a past Masonic master and ws ain Toronto attending a meeting of the Grand Lodge.

Girl 18 Months Old Killed By Freight

BOLTON (CP)—An 18-months-old girl walked on to a railroad track Wednesday night and was killed by a freight train. The engineer learned about the accident when he arrived at Toronto, 30 miles south.

Police said Deborah Ferguson, was tossed 75 feet by the impact. The father, Elmer Ferguson a railway section hand, missed the child and ran to the tracks just in time to see her being struck.

Edgar Armson

The funeral service for Edgar (Ted) Armson, 74, of RR 3, Norwood, who died Monday in hospital, was held Wednesday at the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. F. J. Sauve of Park St. Alliance Church officiated. The pallbearers were: G. R. Newell, D. Hopkins, William Hopkins, A. Clydsdale, H. Hoard and L. Quackenbush. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery, Havelock.

DRINKS ON THE HOUSE — After watching farmers drink tepid water from a hydrant, Jerry Hinshaw, manager of the Co-op Equity Exchange in Arlington, Kan., decided to do something about it. He installed a barrel in the storeroom and filled it with water and ice so the farmers could fill their jugs while they waited for their grain to be weighed. The only barrel he could get was an old charred-oak keg in which 50 gallons of Ye Olde Tanglefoot had grown to virile manhood. The farmers didn't mind a bit, they drank, joshed, and went away refreshed, speaking highly of the firm's services. Above left, Jerry Hinshaw gives the barrel the sniff check, while farmer Ross Ray fills his jug from the outside tap.

German Youth Travel To Learn Trades

By GARY LEVY

FRANKFURT (Reuters) —Some 500 young German carpenters, tilers and bricklayers are hiking through Europe this summer in the tracks of a tradition 700 years old.

Now that the building season is in full swing one sees them everywhere, distinctive in their all-black bell-bottomed trousers of velvet or corduroy, many - buttoned waistcoats and fancy headgear.

Between 17 and 25, their tradition demands that they remain "on the waltz," as they call it, for three years and one day without going home.

They must walk everywhere. Thumbing rides is frowned upon.

These enterprising youngsters who work their way around the country are members of the guild of "respectable strangers," founded in the 13th century in the Hanseatic city states of Hamburg, Bremen and Luebeck.

The young apprentice who is "bound in" under the coat of arms of the guild gets a narrow black tie, called "the black respectability," which he must wear unknotted and fastened with a tie-pin showing the insignia of his trade.

By this rite he commits himself to three years of wandering, to stay no longer than six weeks in any one place, to pay his debts, work hard and honestly, and to help his comrades "on the waltz."

There is no material gain, but he knows that on his return his comrades will look up to him as a travelled man who really knows

Queen Mother, Princess Conclude Tour In Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (CP)—The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret today left this British self-governing colony at the close of a 16-day tour.

At the airport here the Queen Mother thanked royal tour chauffeur George Nevitt, affectionately kissed Lady Kennedy, wife of the governor and shook hands with officials before boarding a Comet jetliner for London.

With the smiling Princess by her side, she paused at the top of the steps to the plane for a last wave to cheering crowds.

As the Comet climbed smoothly over the surrounding bush, Governor Sir John Kennedy, in scarlet ceremonial uniform, led a final cheer for the royal guests.

DRIVE THROUGH CROWDS

They had driven to the airport through 11 miles of crowds lining the streets.

The Queen Mother wore a pale blue crepe dress with a small matching hat. Margaret travelled in a navy blue suit in stiff silk and a flared skirt. On her head was a straw bonnet.

First stop for the royal couple will be Entebbe, Uganda, where they will attend a garden party before leaving for Khartoum, in the Sudan. They are due at London airport Friday morning after a four-hour stop at Rome in the middle of the night.

During the tour, the Queen Mother travelled 1,146 miles by royal train and more than 500 miles by motor car. She has shaken hands with thousands of persons, made seven speeches and been in the centre of centenary celebrations commemorating the birth of Empire-builder Cecil Rhodes, founder of Rhodesia.

Say Russ Advisers With Chinese Divisons

KUMSONG BULGE, Korea, (AP) U. S. officers said today Russian military advisers were serving with some Chinese divisions which struck along the Kumsong front.

The officers said the uniformed Russians were identified as divisional advisers.

There was no immediate official confirmation of the report.

There was no indication how many Russian advisers were with the Chinese attackers. Apparently the Soviet military experts were at divisional headquarters level or higher.

Brandishing Knife Man Tries To Get Son

LINDSAY (ENS) — A Lindsay man, separated from his wife and desiring custody of two sons, who were staying with his father-in-law in Harcourt, Haliburton County, was Wednesday told by Magistrate W. R. Philp, of Peterborough, that the method he took to try and obtain custody of the children, a week ago, was "the height of foolishness."

According to the father-in-law, Archie Scott, a Harcourt farmer, the two boys aged 3 and 6, were staying with him, and had been for over a year. At 4 a.m. last Saturday, he said the accused, Allan Gilmour, father of the boys, appeared in his bedroom, brandishing a putty-knife and demanded their return to him.

Scott said he took the knife from Gilmour, then calmed him down and phoned police. When Provincial constable Gordon Langton of Haliburton arrived at the farm, he said Gilmour was helping Scott with the haying. A warrant was taken out, on a charge of attempting to assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

Scott testified in court today that he was frightened of Gilmour, and would be in the future." Gilmour who admitted that his methods were slightly irregular, and also that he had "about eight beers" in a Lindsay hotel, before travelling to Harcourt with Scott's neighbours, was put on a bond for a year to keep the peace and to stay away from his father-in-law's farm. He was defended by Col. R. I. Moore, QC.

The woman, Mrs. Helen Hall, of 7 Eagle street, suffered a broken heel and ankle, lacerations and bruises as she tumbled helplessly down the steep cliff into shallow water at its base.

Her husband, Max, who slid down the crumbling enbankment after her, pulled her safely ashore.

She was taken to Port Stanley by boat and transferred to Memorial Hospital at St. Thomas for treatment. Her condition was reported as good.

Hall said he and his wife were on a picnic outing at the lake when the mishap occurred.

Quebec Police Now Believe Three Hunters Murdered

Allies Driven Back Seven Miles In Week's Fighting

SEOUL (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commander of the U.S. 8th army, said today that the huge Chinese offensive this week drove Allied lines back as much as seven miles on the east central front. Taylor identified the 9th U.S. and 2nd South Korean army corps as fighting on the Kumsong front. He also identified the 9th RoK division, heroes of White Horse mountain last October, as hurling the Reds back in a major assault near Kumhwa Thursday night.

Taylor said the 20-month-old Kumsong bulge in the line was smashed back approximately to its original base—a line extending roughly from a point slightly northeast of Kumhwa due east to the Pukhan river.

Taylor said an estimated 10 enemy divisions struck the Kumsong front Monday.

REGROUP UNITS

"Commanders have regrouped their units and have pressed back to contact with the enemy in the first resumption of open warfare in nearly two years," he said.

The 10 divisions represent a fighting force of about 80,000 and a "paper strength" of about 100,000 men.

U. S. corps such as the 9th usually are made up of a mixture of U. S. and South Korean divisions. RoK corps are all Korean.

It was reported today that counter-attacking South Korean infantrymen rolled back Chinese Red gains on both sides of the central front.

SMASHED TO STANDSTILL

Dispatches cleared by heavy military censorship said the RoKs smashed to a bloody standstill a 17,000-man Chinese attack aimed at the vital road centre of Kumhwa, western anchor of the central front. Then they launched a daring counter-attack which recaptured two outpost hills.

Backed by Allied warplanes, tanks and artillery, the South Koreans scored even larger gains—more than a mile—on the Kumsong river front to the east.

Other fighting raged far to the east, as the Communists made light assaults around Luke the Gook's Castle and Anchor hill.

Queen Decorates Conquerors Of Mt. Everest

LONDON (CP)—The Queen decorated members of Britain's successful Mount Everest expedition Thursday night in what was the highlight of a huge presentation and garden party at Buckingham Palace.

In a ceremony performed in a palace reception room, the Queen conferred knighthoods on Col. John Hunt, leader of the expedition and Edmund Hillary, the lanky New Zealand beekeeper who reached the top of the world's highest mountain.

Tenzing, the Nepalese guide who reached the top with Hillary, was invested with the George Medal, Britain's highest award for civilian heroism.

While the smiling Duke of Edinburgh stood by, the 38-year-old Hillary and Col. Hunt knelt in turn before the Queen and she touched their shoulder with a jewelled sword and said "I dub thee knight."

From now on it is Sir Edmund and Col. Sir John.

The Queen also presented each member of the 14-man Everest team with a Coronation medal specially engraved around the edge with the words "Mount Everest Expedition."

It was the Queen's own idea. She wanted to show her appreciation for the conquest of Everest which was announced on the eve of her Coronation June 2, adding to the excitement of the great Coronation event.

After the formal presentations, the Queen and the Duke chatted informally with their guests. Married members of the expedition brought their wives. Tenzing brought both his wife and his two daughters, Nina and Pempem.

Earlier the Queen was host to an estimated 7,500 guests at a gigantic Royal garden party in the palace "backyard." She and the Duke dodged heavy downpours of rain for nearly two hours as they strolled through the crowd in separate lanes, chatting and sharing tea with their guests.

The guests included 36 Canadian debutantes who came to the garden party straight from a presentation indoors at which 300 young women from Commonwealth countries were presented to Her Majesty.

The Queen wore a white grosgrain coat trimmed with navy blue over a navy blue grosgrain frock.

At the earlier presentation the debutantes curtsied before the Queen and the Duke as the Royal couple sat on chairs on a dais within the palace. The Canadian girls had been briefed beforehand on the correct courtsying procedure.

Blind Man Saves 11 In Fire

CLAREMONT, N. H. (AP)—A blind man and an unidentified passerby smashed through an apartment door today and crawled through flames to rescue a 60-year-old man who had collapsed inside.

William Gilman, the blind man, is also credited with saving 10 other persons from injury or death in the two upstairs apartments of a three-apartment building by shouting warnings to them.

Led from the flames was John Brady, who told firefighters he had attempted to escape but was partially overcome by smoke.

Awakened by the heat, Gilman heard the feeble cries of the trapped man and came to his aid.

40 Men Cross Picket Lines

TIMMINS (CP)—Forty hardrock workers, led by two company officials, drove cars through picket lines around Broulan Reef gold mines this morning to restart operations at Broulan after a six-day walkout over wages and hours.

The move came 15 hours after an injunction was served against the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) restricting its members from picketing the Broulan property.

The 40 miners were carried through the picket lines—set up by striking workers at the adjacent Hallnor gold mines Thursday night—in 10 cars. They were led by Broulan President B. W. Lang of Toronto and mine manager Walter F. Brown.

The workers, carrying placards declaring "No Strike at Broulan," passed through the lines without incident. There were about 275 striking miners at the gates.

Daley Moves To Avert Truck Drivers Strike

HAMILTON (CP)—Labor Minister Daley of Ontario has moved to avert a strike of 3,500 southwestern Ontario truck drivers scheduled for next Monday.

He sent telegrams Thursday night to James Groat at Hamilton and Casey Dodds at Windsor, presidents of union locals representing the workers, asking them to meet him at Toronto Monday at 10 a. m. EDT to try to settle the dispute.

The union presidents said they will attend but did not say whether the strike will be postponed pending outcome of the talks. An official of the motor transport industrial relations bureau representing the 36 trucking companies involved was to sit in on Monday's meeting.

Strike votes taken at union locals earlier this week were being counted today, although union officials termed the voting just a matter of form. The union told the motor transport bureau at Toronto a week ago that a strike could be expected next Monday.

Drags Badly Wounded Wife Across Border To Freedom

VIENNA (Reuters) — Hungarian lawyer Geza Kapus told Thursday how he threw his little daughter over an eight-foot barbed wire fence and dragged his wounded wife through a frontier minefield in their escape from their Communist homeland.

Mrs. Kapus had a leg shattered by a border guard's hand grenade. She had the leg amputated in a Vienna hospital and doctors today said for the first time that she has a chance to live.

Mrs. Kapus is a relative of Brig.-Gen. William S. Key, former head of the United States military control commission in Hungary.

They drove by a devious route to a point near the frontier. There they left the car and went on by foot.

They came out of the forest and before them stretched a minefield, then the frontier fence, and freedom.

"When I saw the barbed wire fence only two yards away I thought we were safe", Kapus said. "But suddenly there was a loud explosion and my wife screamed.

I threw the child quickly over the eight-foot wire fence.

Two shots rang out. I grabbed my wife, who was half conscious, and dragged her through the wire.

"We were safe in Austria."

Capture Chief Vietminh Supply Link

Daring Surprise Raid By Paratroopers Near China Border

LANG SON, Indo-China — (AP)—French Union paratroopers today captured Lang Son, within 10 miles of the Communist Chinese frontier, in the boldest raid of the seven-year-old war against the Vietminh. They succeeded in wrecking the chief supply centre for all war equipment supplied to the Vietminh by Red China.

A military spokesman said that while the troops were not expected to occupy Lang Son for long, the attack proved the French had definitely abandoned defensive tactics and were changing over to the offensive.

Five thousand paratroopers were dropped from U. S.-supplied transport planes in the lightning raid in the enemy's back yard. They quickly took over control of Lang Son, which had been in the hands of the Red-led Vietminh for three years.

CAUGHT AT BREAKFAST

The air attack caught the enemy at breakfast. The paratroopers swiftly routed scattered resistance after fighter planes and bombers silenced a group of Vietminh anti-aircraft batteries made up mostly of heavy machine guns.

Apparently three solid weeks of air attack by French fighters and bombers had caused dispersal of most of the enemy's heavy forces into smaller units.

The spokesman said the air drop occurred at 8 a. m. How long the operation will last is not known "but it is evident it is to our interest to end it as soon as possible."

To rejoin the French line the parachutists will have to cover 30 miles of jungle deep in the Vietminh zone, where encounters are expected, the spokesman added.

The French abandoned Lang Son in October, 1950, after losing a series of posts along the border and in the mountainous north.

Canada's Bisley Chances Good

BISLEY, England (Reuters)—Canada's chances of winning the Queen's Prize, most coveted award of the National Rifle Association shoot here, looked good today with the publication of the "Wednesday Aggregate."

This is the aggregate of scores made in the first stage of the Queen's Prize and the City of London Corporation's long range match, both of which were held last Wednesday.

FO T. W. Gregory of Saint John, N.B., was top scorer with 148 points out of a possible 155 in the aggregate, which is regarded as a rehearsal for the Queen's Prize.

Maj. R. W. Hampton, 39, of Ottawa and Camp Borden, Ont., was in fifth place with 143 points.

Two New Zealanders and an Australian were in the middle, representing a strong challenge to Canada.

Prime Minister Not Ashamed Of Majority

SUDBURY (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent feels "no embarrassment" at the size of the Liberal majority in the last House of Commons.

Addressing a Liberal rally here Thursday night Mr. St. Laurent urged voters not to favor the opposition parties just because of the lop-sided majority in the last House The Liberals captured 190 seats in the 262-seat house in the 1949 federal election.

He said that during his cross-country tour "some good Liberals" had suggested it would be better if the party hadn't such a large majority this time.

"But I have felt no embarrassment at the size," the prime minister said. Electors should vote Liberal and not take any risks, he added.

BONDS MAY DROP

He suggested that under a Progressive Conservative government Canadian bonds may drop in value.

"Perhaps the Tories believe in deficit budgeting and in increasing the national debt," Mr. St. Laurent said, in referring to the Progressive Conservative promise to reduce taxes by $500,000,000 a year if elected.

"If they do, the millions of Canadians who hold Victory Bonds and Canada Savings Bonds are not very likely to look on them with much favor."

Steel Nationalization Plan Allows Expansion—Coldwell

SYDNEY (CP)—CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said here Thursday night that nationalization of Canada's iron and steel industry would "remove the obstacles that have thwarted its proper expansion." Speaking to about 300 hooting, stomping listeners, many of them steel workers and coal miners, Mr. Coldwell said socialization of the "entire primary iron and steel industry is the only practical solution to Canada's steel problem."

Such public ownerships, he said, would do away with the profit motive and, under proper economic planning, the steel industry could be integrated with the rest of the economy and "adapted to the needs of Canadians and not just the interests of the shareholders."

It was Mr. Coldwell's last Maritime speech of the federal election campaign. He leaves today for Montreal.

DON'T WANT TO INVEST

The steel industries, he said, refused to expand because they did not want to invest money in new facilities which they were afraid might not prove profitable in a few years time.

"The profit motive continues to dictate the size of the industry, thereby preventing it from meeting Canada's industrial needs. Instead we import the iron and steel from the U.S., contributing to our adverse trade balance with that country."

He singled out as a special target Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, which employs about 15,000 Nova Scotia coal miners and steel workers, most of them in this industrial area.

Mr. Coldwell spoke in support of Clarie Gillis, former coal miner who became the CCF federal member for Cape Breton South 13 years ago, the only representative of his party from the Atlantic Provinces.

Charge Husband With Murder

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A 20-year-old mother, Patricia Nelson, died of head injuries early this morning and her husband was charged with murder.

Police arrested George Nelson, 23, of St. Catharines shortly after his wife died in hospital here. They said they seized a crank from Nelson's car.

Police said Nelson turned up at the Lincoln county jail on Niagara street at 1 a. m. and talked with the turnkey. Officers were called and found Nelson's car parked in front of the jail.

Mrs. Nelson, bloody and unconscious, was sprawled on the front seat of the old-model sedan. She was taken to hospital with multiple head lacerations and a fractured skull. She died without regaining consciousness.

Police said they believe Mrs. Nelson, mother of two children, was attacked on a sideroad about three miles east of Port Weller, 10 miles northeast of here.

Say Bodies Mauled Badly By Animals, But Said Dead First

QUEBEC (CP)—Solicitor General Rivard said today provincial police are investigating the possibility of foul play in the death of three Pennsylvania hunters, found Wednesday in the rugged wilderness of the Gaspe peninsula. In an interview, Mr. Rivard told The Canadian Press: "We are investigating every angle including the possibility that a crime has been committed. In a case of this sort we must check every possible element."

Mr. Rivard described as "absolutely unfounded" a rumor in Gaspe that police have made an arrest in connection with the hunters' deaths.

MAULED BY ANIMALS

Remains of the hunters were found in an area teeming with bears. Police said the bodies had been mauled by wild animals.

Mr. Rivard said it is believed the men "were not attacked by wild animals while they were alive."

An unidentified rifle was found near the scattered remains. It is not known whether it had been fired. A ballistics expert will be called in to examine the weapon.

The hunters were Eugene H. Lindsey, 47, his son Robert, 17, and Albert Clark, 20, all of Holidaysburgh, Penn.

They went into the bush June 12 to hunt for bears along the St. Jean river. Search was started for them July 5 when relatives became anxious about their whereabouts.

HAD HUNTED BEFORE

Eugene Lindsey had hunted the area before and because of his experience the party decided a guide would not be necessary. The area is about 450 miles east of Quebec City.

The bodies were found by bushmen a few hundred feet from an old logging camp. They were about 12 miles from the party's supply-laden truck. The truck was found a week ago 65 miles from their starting point at Gaspe.

Mr. Rivard said there are "strange elements" in the deaths of the hunters that "warrant a full-scale investigation."

He added:

"Evidently, before we are able to draw any conclusions we must await the report of the autopsy and the report on another matter which we are investigating but cannot divulge at this time.

When asked to amplify the statement, Mr. Rivard said the police were investigating the possibility of foul play.

RCA Breaks Up Heavy Chinese Attack

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—The 81st Field Artillery Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery is credited with breaking up a Chinese attack in battalion strength on the western sector of the Korean front Wednesday night.

The attack came on Outpost Betty held by the 1st Republic of Korea Division.

It was the third successive night that the gunners have frustrated Chinese attacks. Thursday's eighth Army communique said the artillery fire broke the attack.

Monday night the Chinese assaulted with two companies and accomplished a partial success. But by Tuesday morning, after the gunners had poured 15 times their normal rate of fire on the position, the Chinese vacated it, leaving 45 dead and suffering many wounded.

That night the gunners were directed by Maj. Yvon Theriault of Quebec City.

REPEATED ASSAULT

The Chinese repeated the assault Tuesday night when the fire was directed by Lieut. Beverly McKinnon of Moncton, N.B., who frustrated not only that night's but also Wednesday night's attempts.

Thursday the 1st RoKs regained the initiative and tried with the 81st's support to knock the Chinese off Betty's forward slope, on which the Communists gained a toehold Wednesday night.

Lt.-Col. Harry Sterne, Kingston, Ont., commanding the 81st, paid high tribute to the 1st RoK division.

"There's a forward RoK platoon," he said, "which was never driven off despite three desperate Chinese attacks. Each time they've gone to ground and called artillery fire on top of their heads."

So integrated is the co-operation that the Koreans had only to point out a feature on the ground or map to bring the regiment's entire fire on it.

Report Egypt Given Full Support By U.S.

CAIRO (Reuters)—Al Ahram, independent Egyptian newspaper, said today the United States has given Egypt "full support" for her attitude towards the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the Suez canal zone.

President Mohammed Naguib demands full Egyptian sovereignty over the strategic canal zone and eventual British withdrawal as a preliminary to any agreement on a Middle East defence pact.

Al Ahram said Washington's recommendations to end the dispute were contained in a note handed by ambassador, to Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi Thursday. Contents of the note have not yet been officially disclosed.

"The American note is considered to be a diplomatic victory for Egypt," said Al Ahram.

Tank Division Back In Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—A Russian tank division rumbled back into East Berlin today as a dangerous new wave of anti-Communist strikes marked the first monthly anniversary of the June 17 workers rebellion in East Germany.

The columns of Soviet tanks, troops and armored cars stamped and rumbled ostentatiously before dawn through Stalin Allee, a riot focus point a month ago.

Soviet martial law, proclaimed at the June 17 outbreak, was lifted in East Berlin only last Saturday night. The last of the 25,000 Russian armored troops who put down the rebellion withdrew at that time.

Fail To Keep Promise

No New Program For East Germany

By GASTON COBLENTZ
New York Herald Tribune Service

BERLIN—The East German Red regime has failed to formulate the major new program that Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl promised to the population shortly after the June 17 uprising.

The premier announced in an address in East Berlin on June 24 that the new plan would be "fully known" within 14 days and that the people would then recognize the government had seen the errors of its ways. Three weeks have passed and there is no sign of anything but a maintenance of the oppressive practices of the pre-uprising period.

The East German press provides a good yardstick of the attitude that the Communist party is currently adopting toward the population. It indicates that the all-out Communist approach is still in effect on vital issues of domestic policy.

The general theme of the Red newspapers is that the Communist party, dearly beloved by the working classes, is continuing to do everything to help them to a more beautiful life. Only the Fascist provocateurs, directed from the West, are marring this idyllic situation, as, for example, on June 17.

For these Fascists and for other "enemies of the people, there is no such thing as mercy." (Neues Deutschland, official Communist party organ). But for those workers who were misled by the Fascist beats, the party will be tolerant and may forgive them if they make up their lost production.

CONTINUE NEW COURSE

Meanwhile, "he party will continue its "new course," which was announced on June 11, a week before the uprising.

The essence of this new course, as the Red papers are explaining it this week, is that the party made some mistakes in teh past, it did not take care of the workers' needs, such as stands for their bicycles at the factories and food for the factory canteens.

These mistakes are already being corrected because the party has digested its errors and will henceforth go about things in a "truly Bolshevik manner."

Meanwhile, in case anyone was deluded by the "reforms" of June 11 into thinking that any basic change of Communist policy might be involved, the East German press is making it clear every day that this was not the case.

BLESSING TO BE GUIDED

It is telling the workers again and again that it is a blessing for them to be guided now as in the past by the Communist party, which has constantly bestowed so many benefits upon them.

"Into the masses, comrades" was the title of the latest major editorial in the official party organ, which once more hammered home the basic continuity of Red policy. It called for the party to carry on "persevering" work among the proletariat.

The purpose of the comrades going "deep" into the masses will be to "strengthen the unconquerable German Democratic republic, the foundation for a unified, Democratic, and peace-loving Germany."

The description of the East German regime as invincible and as the foundation for German reunification seemed to indicate that the German Communists do not believe that the Russian government is about to make any bona fide offer to the Western powers for free elections in Germany.

U.S. Lifts July 7 Ban On Cattle From Alberta

OTTAWA (CP)—The agriculture department announced today that a ban imposed July 7 on the shipment into the United States of cattle and sheep from Alberta now has been lifted.

Lifting of the temporary ban—imposed because a shipment of Alberta hogs was suspected of being infected with vesicular exanthema, a contagious animal disease—was announced by the U. S. bureau of animal industry in a statement to the Canadian agriculture department.

The ban on shipment of Alberta hogs into the United States still remains, the U. S. bureau said. But U. S. officials said a decision on this question will be forthcoming "in the near future."

The ban on the shipment into the U. S. of Alberta cattle, sheep and hogs was imposed after U. S. officials at Fort Blaine, Wash., stopped a shipment of 386 hogs and 41 cattle bound from Alberta to the U. S. market. Some of the hogs were suffering from sore feet, a condition which agricultural officials said could be a symptom of exanthema.

Exanthema, a disease which produces vesicles or blisters, on the snout, feet and mouth of hogs, never has appeared in Canada although it is at present widespread in the U. S. The symptoms are similar to those appearing in foot-and-mouth disease, although the latter disease attacks hogs, cattle and other cloven-hoofed animals.

Canadian agricultural officials said they have as yet no information on the results of test applied to the 386 hogs, in quarantine at New Westminster, B. C., to determine whether the animals are in fact suffering from exanthema.

They said the animals' sore feet could have been the result of simple injuries received in shipment.

Top Military Man Urges Indo-China HaveIndependence

HANOI (AP)—Freedom-seeking, anti-Communist Indo-Chinese drew powerful support today from France's top military man in the Far East. Only by giving Indo-China complete independence, Gen. Pierre Navarre asserted, could France win her seven-year war against the Red-directed Vietminh forces. U.S. experts here, whose government is sending $500,000,000 worth of military supplies annually to bolster France's fight, also welcomed the declaration in Paris Thursday night by Navarre, new commander-in-chief of French armed forces in the Far East.

Back in France from his first inspection of the Indo-China fighting fronts, Navarre told the French Diplomatic Press Club only "total independence" could get full participation in the war by the French-sponsored governments of the three associated Indo-Chinese states of Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

Only such an independence grant, he continued, would "permit the withdrawal of nationalist non-Communist elements now fighting in the ranks of the Vietminh."

DIDN'T OFFER INDEPENDENCE

The new French government on July 3 proposed talks with the Indo-Chinese states aimed at greater autonomy for them, but independence was not offered. Viet Nam and Laos readily accepted the invitation. Cambodia's King Norodom Sihanouk prepared a long list of counter-proposals.

Navarre, who has just taken over direction of the dull, almost-lethargic war of steaming jungles and rice paddies, warned that the situation is rapidly becoming more difficult and a dramatic gesture—such as independence—now is needed.

The fight began soon after the Second World War ended when the French and their native allies resisted fanatic, independence-minded troops led by Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh.

Little by little, the fight became Communist versus anti-Communist.

TOOK A HAND

About three years ago, the United States took a hand. Now U. S. weapons, equipment and supplies are coming in at the rate of 20,000 tons a year. The Western Big Three foreign ministers after their Washington meeting indicated last week-end this rate soon may be stepped up.

The French and Americans figure that if the Communists win Indo-China, they will sweep on through Thailand, Malaya, Burma and Indonesia to win a vast empire of Rice, rubber, tin and oil.

The Vietminh also are steadily getting more and more war equipment—from Red China.

3,500 Truckers Strike Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some 3,500 southwestern Ontario truckers are scheduled to go on strike next Monday.

The walkout will close 36 transport companies in the area between Hamilton and Windsor and force industries all over the province to bring goods from the United States and other Ontario points by rail and water instead of road.

Officials of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-TLC) last week said they had advised union members in their southern Ontario locals to reject recommendations of a conciliation board for a seven-cent-an-hour increase to drivers and 11 cents for mechanics.

TO COUNT BALLOTS

Votes on whether to strike were held Thursday, and the union was to count ballots today.

Officials regarded the vote as just a formality. The union sent a note a week ago to the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing operators in the Windsor area, which said:

"Immediately following the counting of the ballots the freight division of local 880 will go on strike. There is no doubt of the outcome of the vote."

Involved are employees of 17 trucking firms in the Windsor-Chatham - Sarnia area and employees of 19 companies in the Hamilton district. A Hamilton strike would also halt truck movements in London, Woodstock, Kitchener, Brantford, Waterloo, and Guelph.

A trucking strike could hit southwestern Ontario area harder than a similar strike in other parts of Canada because of the shorter distances and the heavy use of truck transport in moving goods.

Need Elephants To Finish Trip

BOMBAY (AP—A British jet-powered Comet airliner that left Karachi for Bombay early Thursday may have to complete the trip by elephant power.

The pilot mistakenly put the Comet down on the wrong airport, Juhu, 1½ miles from Santa Cruz Airport, where it should have landed.

He burst all the Comet's eight tires in pulling her up before overshooting the 1,200-yard runway. That was the only damage.

Transport experts said today they have no truck big enough to carry the plane or capable of crossing the ground between the two airports.

The only solution, they added, is to hire all available elephants to pull the Comet from one airport to the other.

Baths Of Baia Important Find

ROME—An ancient thermal city at Baia, west of Naples on the Gulf of Pozzuoli, which was a luxurious summer resort for patricians in the early days of the Roman Empire, recently was opened to the public after 91 years of intermittent excavation in dry mud.

Professor Amedeo Majuri, superintendent of the Naples Museums, said that the baths of Baia are the most important archaeological find in Roman antiquity since Pompeii was unearthed on the slope of Vesuvius.

He said the baths stretched for 1,500 feet, terrace style, along the side of a chain of hills facing the Bay of Pozzulio. The thermal city was unearthed at a depth between 10 and 30 feet. Rest rooms, a sanatorium, a theatre and a sports field were found.

The theatre at Baia is a two-story building with a marble stairway 450 feet long ascending to a height of 30 feet. Sculptures are of fauns and satyrs.

Fountains of mineral water, a swimming bath and a basin for collecting rain water for drinking purposes also were discovered. Digging is continuing in an area containing dwellings.

The excavations at Baia have taken place on and off since 1932. The area is generally known as the Phlegraean Fields, a scene of volcanic activity for many centuries. In this general area Hellenic culture is said to have gained a footing in Italy and the poems of Homer and Virgil cast their spell.

Before the war the "Grotto of Sybil" was unearthed at Baia. Digging was resumed in 1946.

Otter Interests U.S. Officials

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto paper says in a newspage story that the United States armed services are interested in the de Havilland Otter, a Toronto-made transport aircraft.

The Otter is a large single-engine plane capable of carrying 14 persons. It costs about $75,000.

The paper says Russ Bannock, military sales manager for de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Limited, is in Washington for conferences.

The RCAF has ordered 12 Otters for use in search and rescue operations and the Ontario department of lands and forests has ordered three.

The newspaper reports that if negotiations are successful, the U.S. Air Force and Army will buy four each an determine the Otter's suitability in various roles.

The L-20 Beaver, another de Havilland product, is in mass production for the U.S. Army and Air Force.

The woman was taken to Memorial hospital and her family in Springfield was notified.

He said Canada, even under a Liberal government, could not avoid some share of the world-wide inflation caused by war, but because the country is playing a leading part in world affairs it has been "willing to pay the premium for the insurance against totalitarian aggression."

"As long as there is war in Korea we cannot afford to reduce that premium But if the fighting should end, then there is the possibility under a Liberal government of a reduction in taxes. . . ."

Earlier Thursday, Mr. St. Laurent addressed 200 citizens of North Bay, speaking in both French and English. He made a brief stop-over there where the RCAF's No. 445 CF-100 jet squadron is training.

He called the CF-100 "one of the most terrible and effective weapons of war in the world."

Mr. St. Laurent leaves today for Quebec where he will begin his campaign in his native province.

New PoW Proposal Offered By Allies

NEW DELHI (AP) — Reliable sources said today the United Nations command in Korea has proposed that prisoners of war be brought into an enlarged post-armistice neutral area for Communist interviewers trying to talk them into going home.

These informants also said the UN has proposed to the Reds that the neutral area be extended to permit Indian troops, who will take custody of the prisoners, to land without going through South Korean territory.

South Korean leaders have charged that India is pro-Communist and one of President Syngman Rhee's objections to the proposed truce was that Indian troops and Communist representatives would have to enter South Korean territory to deal with the UN-held prisoners.

The sources here said the Indian government is awaiting the Communist reply to the proposals.

Angry Replies To Charge Canadians Dull

LONDON (CP) — Britons and Canadians alike reacted vigorously to a charge that the land of the Maple Leaf harbors the dullest people in the Commonwealth.

The weekly magazine Truth, which started the fuss by claiming in an unsigned article that Canadians "are just Americans returned empty," published angry replies in a later edition.

Typical was a 500-word letter from Douglas Dainton of Toronto, denying that Canadians are inferior to other Commonwealth countries in producing prominent personalities in sport, show business and politics.

Dainton listed Ned Hanlan of Toronto, Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa and Toronto, Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., and George Genereux of Saskatoon in sport, former prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King and external affairs minister Pearson in politics and a string of Canadian - born movie stars.

Film stars with a Canadian background, Dainton said, included Walter Pidgeon of Saint John, N.B., the late Marie Dressler of Cobourg, Ont., Norma Shearer of Montreal, Deanna Durbin of Winnipeg and Mary Pickford of Toronto.

The letters of rebuttal, spread over two pages, included several from Britain who said they had never visited Canada but nevertheless had wholesome respect for Canadians.

The magazine was founded 77 years ago by a writer named Labouchere, whose name was often coupled with that of Oscar Wilde as a coiner of epigrams. A spokesman for Truth said the article on Canadians was completely in earnest and written with "inspiration and knowledge."

Three Killed In Triangle

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A policeman killed his wife and a male nurse and then himself early today in what officers said was an apparent love triangle case.

Dead are policeman Don. Alden, 32, his wife, Henrietta, 35, and Eugene Henry, 23.

The shootings occurred on the grounds of the Sawtelle Veterans Administration hospital. Mrs. Alden was a nurse at the hospital's Brentwood annex. Henry was a hospital aide.

Two doctors trying to aid Mrs. Alden after she was wounded had to take cover, they said, when Alden invaded the hospital building into which she had staggered and shot wildly several times more.

Investigators said Alden surprised his wife and her companion in a parked car, emptied a .32 calibre pistol at them, then got a .38 gun from his car to continue shooting.

Nationalist Guerrillas Storm Tungshan Island

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist guerrillas stormed Tungshan Island off the Red China coast Thursday, crushed resistance of "bandit troops," and occupied the principal city, withdrew today, the defence ministry announced.

The operation, biggest Nationalist action since Chiang Kai-shek's forces quit the mainland in 1949, was described as a complete success.

The announcement said booty was taken but it made no mention of casualties.

Say Bodies

Mr. Rivard made his statement after receiving a report from police who Thursday examined the area where the bodies were found.

He said the remains found were "bones and bits of clothing."

The scene described to Mr. Rivard was one of "indescribable disarray. Bear tracks, so numerous that they could not be counted, were visible all over the area. Bits of animal hair were found stuck to tree trunks and bushes.

YEAR-ROUND SEASON

Bears are so numerous in the uninhabited section of the peninsula that there is year-around open season on them.

On the basis of actual on-the-scene observations of police, Mr. Rivard said he believes the hunters were not killed by bears.

Police today headed back into the rolling bush country accompanied by Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, Montreal medico-legal expert, who will attempt to establish the cause of the hunters' deaths.

Clark Meets Negotiators

MUNSAN (AP) — Gen. Mark Clark huddled for three hours with United Nations truce negotiators today in advance of a showdown meeting Saturday at which the Communist high command is expected to answer an Allied demand for a quick Korean armistice.

There was no hint of what was discussed during the secret conference as the UN commander and his negotiating team mapped strategy for the crucial session at Panmunjom.

The top-level delegations are to meet at 2 p.m. (1 a.m. EDT Saturday).

The negotiations were in recess Friday. The Reds asked for a one-day break Thursday after the UN delivered what Washington sources called a firm demand that the Reds agree immediately to steps leading to a prompt armistice.

Informed quarters have said efforts to agree on final details of a truce were stalemated by Red demands for the recapture of 27,000 anti-Communist Korean war prisoners liberated last month and guarantees that South Korea will honor a truce.

Disguised As Woman Held For Stabbing

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Boomhour of Kingston was charged with wounding with intent to kill today shortly after a Toronto business man was stabbed in the chest and arm.

Police said they picked up Boomhour, 21, in a downtown hotel. He was disguised as a woman. There was no apparent motive for the stabbing.

The injured man, A. C. Menzies, was wounded in his apartment. He drove to hospital where it took 10 stitches to close the gash.

COMPANY TREATS UNION

Good company-union relations were demonstrated Thursday night when management of the DeLaval Co Ltd. picked up the tab for a party at which the union executive and negotiating committee were guests. The patry was in the Empress Hotel. The DeLaval lodge of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-TLC) have recently negotiated their first contract with the company. Both parties to the contract have commented on the friendly way negotiations were carried on.

Growers To Market Own Winter Wheat

CHATHAM (CP)—Winter wheat growers in five southwestern Ontario counties Thursday night deceded to set up a schame for marketing wheat themselves instead of selling it through dealers.

Growers protested the low price for Ontario new winter wheat at an emergency meeting of the wheat committees of Kent, Essex, Lambton, Middlesex and Elgin. The meeting was called by the wheat committee of the Kent Federation of Agriculture.

Grain dealers are offering $1.50 a bushel for wheat delivered at Chatham and are contracting for the crop at $1.45 a bushel.

G. Parry Wilson of the Burley Tobacco Marketing Association told the meeting soft wheat is worth $2.45 a bushel fed to hogs, and said the crop was being given away at $1.45 a bushel.

Allies Drive

In some places Chinese resisted only with small arms and machine gun fire.

FIRST HEAVY FIGHTING

Advancing RoKs ran into their first heavy fighting south of Kumsong where two Chinese companies were defending hills with mortar and artillery support. The RoKs were manoeuvering with tanks and infantry.

RoK soldiers and generals were jubilant at the quick advance but some U. S. advisers with them suggested that the easy reoccupation of lost territory indicated the RoKs had pulled back too fast in the first place.

It became more and more apparent that the Reds had not dared to gamble on any serious advance south of Kumsong even though the retreating RoKs failed to blow several bridges in the withdrawal.

The Communists may have feared a quick Allied counter-blow that would pin them against a flooded river. U. S. Navy and Air Force planes blew up the bridges Thursday.

RECKLESS WITH MANPOWER

The Reds were spending manpower recklessly in their attacks. The U. S. 8th army reported a stunning Communist casualty toll for the week ended Tuesday—14,200 dead and 6,800 wounded. Most of the casualties were inflicted on the 80,000 attacking force which hit the Kumsong bulge.

Allied casualties were not disclosed, but a report of evacuations showed they were heavy. Without disclosing totals, the U. S. Air Force said the number of wounded evacuated to hospitals Thursday was the taird highest one-day total of the war.

At least 300 U. S. troops were dead or missing after the Chinese overran a veteran artillery battalion at the height of their offensive earlier in the week, the 8th army disclosed It was the worst such slaughter since troops of the U. S. 2nd division were cut up near Hoengson in February, 1951.

Plan To Hold Hearing On Power Job

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Senate public works committee agreed today to hold a hearing next week on legislation involving construction of new power facilities at Niagara Falls.

Chairman Martin (Rep. Pa.) said Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York will be invited to testify in behalf of a bill by Senator Irving Ives (Rep. N. Y.) to give the state the right to construct the $400,000,000 project.

Martin is sponsoring another bill, identical to one passed last week by the House of Representatives which would authorize a combination of five big private New York state utilities to build the project.

INITIATED REQUEST

Senator Dennis Chavez (Dem. N. M.) said he initiated the request for the hearing, which the committee scheduled for next Thursday.

Martin said John E. Burton, chairman of the power authority of the state of New York, will be invited to testify.

Martin, talking to reporters, said the issue before the committee is "very important."

"The Congress," he said, "must determine if private industry will expand power resources in this country or if it shall be done under public auspices."

Drew Fog-Bound, Cancels His Tour To Newfoundland

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Liberal, CCF and Social Credit party leaders Thursday gained a full day's election campaigning on the Progressive Conservative chieftain. George Drew was fog-bound. After waiting nearly five hours at Sydney, N.S., for the mist to lift at the St. John's airport, he cancelled his Newfoundland tour and his plane was diverted to Halifax. Mr. Drew is scheduled to speak today at Bridgewater, N.S. Reading from west to east, this is what the other vote-seeking party heads were saying:

In a recorded, free-time political broadcast from Edmonton over a CBC network, Solon Low, Social Credit leader, accused the Liberal government of ignoring democratic processes and regarding parliament as a "nuisance."

The greatest danger to democracy, he said, is the political machine. It forced some members of Parliament to vote in direct opposition to the known wishes of their constituents.

LIBERALS BANKRUPT

He said the Liberals are ridiculing the Social Credit party because the Liberals are "bankrupt," without a policy to lay before the Canadian people. Justice Minister Garson had referred to Social Credit as "strictly phoney." If "phoney" meant different from the Liberal party, then Social Credit didn't mind being called names.

Mr. Low said buying from Canada by European nations through Marshall aid has dried up, resulting in surplus goods. Merchants were carrying billions of dollars on their books as credit, prices for farm products were falling, unemployment was getting worse.

For many Canadians, "the depression is on," Mr. Low said.

At Sudbury, Prime Minister St. Laurent renewed his attack on the Progressive Conservative promise of a $500,000,000-a-year tax cut.

"Perhaps the Tories believe in deficit budgetting and in increasing the national debt. If they do, the millions of Canadians who hold Victory Bonds and Canada Savings Bonds are not very likely to look on them with much favor."

He suggested that Canadian bonds might drop in value under a Progressive Conservative government if it cut taxes by deficit financing.

"Even under a Liberal government," the prime minister said, "it has not been possible to avoid some share of the world-wide inflation caused by the most terrible war in history."

"But I believe that the wise fiscal policies and the other measures that have been applied by the Liberal government have kept those inflationary pressures under control."

At another point, Mr. St. Laurent said he hopes the danger of Communist aggression will decrease so that defence expenditures can be cut, tax rates reduced and more money allotted to the Colombo Plan and the United Nations.

EFFECTIVE PLANE

Earlier at North Bay, training site for the RCAF's No. 445 CF-100 jet fighter squadron, Mr. St. Laurent spoke on the "terrifying" effectiveness of the Canadian-built CF-100.

He talked about the value of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, saying that through NATO member countries are saying in effect to would-be aggressors: "Don't start a fight with any one of us, unless you're big enough to defeat us all."

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, speaking in the steel city of Sydney, N.S., went after Canada's steel industry for the second straight night. He claimed the industry is looking after its shareholders instead of expanding to meet the country's steel needs.

Again advocating nationalization of the steel industry, he said it could be integrated with the national economy. Between 1939 and 1948, the industry had received $40,589,000 in government subsidies, made no appreciable expansion, but had returned nearly $60,000,000 in profits.

PROFIT MOTIVE

"The profit motive continues to dictate the size of the industry, thereby preventing it from meeting Canada's industrial needs. Instead, we import iron and steel from the United States, contributing to our adverse trade balance with that country."

Both Mr. Coldwell and Mr. St. Laurent will campaign today in Quebec province, Mr. Coldwell at Montreal and the prime minister at Quebec City in his home riding.

L. B. Pearson, external affairs minister, who spoke from the same Sudbury platform as Mr. St. Laurent, said Mr. Drew is the "most promising" party leader Canada has ever had: "He has small promises for local consumption, medium promises for provincial consumption and large promises for national consumption."

Drew Promises Irk Pearson

SUDBURY (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday night that George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, is the "most promising" party leader Canada has ever had.

"He has small promises for local consumption, medium promises for provincial consumption and large promises for national consumption" Mr. Pearson said.

He spoke briefly before 1,500 persons at a Liberal rally attended by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Would Canada be better off with Mr. Drew or Mr. Coldwell (CCF leader), or Mr. Low (Social Credit leader)?

Mr. Low had said Mr. Drew could carry out his tax cutting promises only by unorthodox ways.

"They would have to be unorthodox in a big way."

CCF Won't Trade With Any Reds

TORONTO (CP)—A CCF spokesman reiterated Thursday night that his party "will have no truck nor trade with the Communists."

Andrew Brewin, a member of the CCF's national executive, in a statement replied to a remark made in Regina Wednesday night by Tim Buck, leader of the Labor-Progressive Party, who said he foresaw a coalition of his party, the CCF and Social Credit to "defeat monopoly capitalism."

In Sydney, N.S., Thursday night, Mr. Coldwell said his party will have no dealings with "any authoritarian party, be it Communist or Social Credit."

"The Labor-Progressive Party is only an agency of a foreign party," he said.

Declares Drew Doesn't Expect Keep Promise

SASKATOON (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said Thursday night that the proposal by George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader, to cut $500,000,000 from the budget is "a real election promise which at the bottom of his heart Mr. Drew is sure he is not going to have to honor."

The finance minister told 200 persons in Saskatoon's Canadian Legion hall that he cannot take Mr. Drew's promise seriously unless the Progressive Conservative leader contemplates deficit budgetting and a reduction in Canada's defence effort.

On his way east after campaign talks in British Columbia and Alberta, Mr. Abbott made Saskatoon his only stop in the wheat province.

The minister said Mr. Drew had at first not been definite on just how he would accomplish his $500,000,000 tax reduction, but when pressed had said he would reduce defence expenditures and eliminate budget surpluses.

There was to be no cut in existing services, Mr. Abbott observed, and the Progressive Conservative leader had promised among other things to build the South Saskatchewan river dam.

Mr. Abbott reviewed expenditures by the Liberal government. There might have been some waste, he admitted, but it had been kept to a minimum.

Labor Council Opposes Firing

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto District Labor Council (AFL-TLC) Thursday night criticized the dismissal of A. F. MacArthur as international staff representative of the AFL Teamsters' Union.

Council President William Jenoves said MacArthur's dismissal—he is also president of the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor—raises a principle that affects the entire labor movement in Canada.

"If a man is worthy of the office to which MacArthur has been elected at labor conventions, then I think the labor movement in this city is entitled to more information," Mr. Jenoves said.

Mr. MacArthur's dismissal was part of a program of union consolidation in the teamsters organization since Dave Beck became president.

Referring to the replacing of Mr. MacArthur with an American, Mr. Jenoves said they have no quarrel with the teamsters headquarters but "we do quarrel with the action of the international union in bringing in a representative from the United States to handle Canadian union affairs."

Debt-Free Money Wanted

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — John H. Blackmore, former Social Credit party leader in the House of Commons, said Thursday night Canada can solve the problem of Europe's continuing inability to earn enough dollars by creating debt - free money.

In an address, Mr. Blackmore said Canada can either give the debt-free money to countries needing dollars or supply the money to an international agency which would distribute it freely.

Mr. Blackmore, seeking his fifth consecutive term in the federal election, said the only permanent solution to the free world's problem of halting Europe's continuing inability to earn enough American and Canadian dollars is the issuance of debt-free money: "the first principle of Social Credit."

The United States cannot lower tariff walls and import barriers, thereby giving outside countries an opportunity to sell their goods for the needed dollars, Mr. Blackmore said, because this would cut out America's own national markets and make the United States dependent on other nations, an unsafe policy in the event of war.

Guest of Tito

BELGRADE (Reuters)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt arrived on the Adriatic island of Brioni, where Marshal Tito has his summer home. Mrs. Roosevelt will spend the next few days as Tito's guest.

Liberal Handling Of Money Under Fire From Graydon

DELHI. — Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative MP for Peel, Tuesday night coined three new superlatives to describe the Liberal Government's methods of handling money. "The government in Ottawa is the taxiest, spendiest and wastiest government since Confederation," he said with a total disregard of grammatical requirements.

Mr. Graydon spoke at the town hall here in support of Charles Birdsall, PC candidate for Norfolk. But, although he was speaking in the heart of Canada's major tobacco-producing area, Mr. Graydon left agricultural topics to the local candidate.

Mr. Graydon, his party's expert on foreign affairs, concentrated on taxation and waste on the part of the St. Laurent Government.

He devoted a large part of his speech to a discussion of the government's $12,000,000 loan to the Ming Sun Co., and also to expenditures on behalf of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. He said the question facing people today was largely a matter of 'too much taxes and too much waste."

A lot of the money collected in heavy taxation by the "taxiest" government had gone down the Yangtze with the seven Ming Sung ships, he said. Today the government not only had no idea of the location of the ships, "with the mortgages firmly tacked to their decks," but hadn't even been able to get back the seven Canadian Red Ensigns Canada provided the company.

After bringing out this point, Mr. Graydon coined his three new words to describe the Liberal regime in Ottawa.

He said parliament was unable to do the job it was supposed to do because it had become top-heavy, lop-sided and out-of-joint. This top-heavy government, with its one-sided appointments, was "developing, in a sense, a section of second-class Canadians who are not eligible to hold public office."

About 100 persons braved a temperature in the high 90's to attend the Progressive Conservative meeting. In an area populated by new Canadians from many sections of Central Europe, the rally drew an almost 100 per cent Anglo-Saxon crowd. The weather was better for work on the district's tobacco and other cash crop farms than it was for political talk.

Charles Birdsall, the local party candidate, spoke briefly on the subject of cigarette taxes. He said cigarette prices still were too high and 75 per cent of the cigarettes smoked in border points were smuggled U.S. brands.

Charges Garson Suppressed Report

WINNIPEG (CP)—Donald Fleming, Progressive Conservative member from Toronto Eglinton, accused Justice Minister Garson Thursday of suppressing a flour-combines investigation report in 1949.

Speaking at a reception for O. C. Trainor, Progressive Conservative candidate for Winnipeg South in the federal election, Mr. Fleming said Mr. Garson, as justice minister, "had become Canada's No. 1 bandit instead of No. 1 law upholder."

Low Accuses Liberal Government Of Ignoring Democratic Process

EDMONTON (CP)—Solon Low, national Social Credit leader Thursday night accused the Liberal government of ignoring democratic processes and regarding Parliament as a "nuisance."

In an address recorded for delivery over a CBC free-time political broadcast, Mr. Low referred to a government order-in-council dealing with the licensing of shipping April 7, 1953.

The matter should have been submitted to Parliament as legislation, but the Liberal government did not want to debate the matter and passed the order-in-council.

POLITICAL MACHINE

The greatest danger to democracy is the political machine, the Social Credit leader said. It forced some members of Parliament to vote in direct opposition to the known wishes of their constituents.

He said that when Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced in Commons the government planned to do away with milk subsidies, some Liberal members were opposed. However, they voted with the government after the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King said they would have to do so.

Mr. Low said the Liberal campaign of ridicule against the Social Credit party indicated the Liberals are "bankrupt," without a policy to lay before the Canadian people.

He attacked Liberal trade policies, saying Canada enjoyed an immediate post-war boom because of purchases made in this country by European nations receiving Marshall aid from the United States.

Now Marshall aid purchases have stopped, he said, and surpluses are building up. For many Canadians, he said, "the depression is on."

Hees Afraid Soviet May Gain Wheat Contract

TORONTO — Loss of the British market for Canadian wheat was likely to follow the policies of the Liberal government, George Hees said Thursday night in an address over a provincial network.

Canada already had lost the British market for pork, cheese, and eggs, and now there existed a good chance that the British Government would handle its purchases of wheat in the same way it handled purchases of barley and oats, Mr. Hees said.

"We have no agreement with Great Britain for the next crop year, starting August 1, and there is no indication that we will have an agreement," Mr. Hees said. "When Mr. Howe was urged recently to go to the United Kingdom and do everything possible to reach an agreement with the British Government, he flatly refused."

If Mr. Howe persisted in his present uncompromising and dictatorial attitude, there was a very good chance that Russia would be able to sign a long-term wheat contract with Great Britain, leaving Canada out in the cold, Mr. Hees declared. The principal reason for the August 10 election, he said, was that Agricultural Minister Gardiner had told the Prime Minister he had better get the votes in before the farmers found out that the government had no market for their wheat.

"By approaching the British Government in a spirit of co-operation, instead of in the arrogant, take-it-or-leave-it manner of the present government, we can regain many, if not all, of the markets we have lost," Mr. Hees said.

Thought Drew Prime Minister

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative party leader, in a campaign swing through the Maritime Provinces, met an American who thought he was prime minister.

"I'm George Drew," said the Progressive Conservative leader to the distinguished looking gentleman in the hotel lobby.

"Oh, then you're the prime minister?"

"Not yet," said Mr. Drew with a smile.

The visitor was Maj. Arthur Wellen of Greenfield Centre, N.Y., a retired army officer.

Question:

Mr. Swanston, your opponent says that electing him will reduce taxation. Have you any comment?

Answer:

None at all, because I don't understand what connection there can be between the two things. Electing a man to sit in Opposition can't reduce taxes or anything else, because the Opposition has no voice in government. An Opposition is very necessary, but Peterborough riding has done its duty to the Opposition by keeping a man there for thirteen years. The Liberals will form the next Government, and only the Government can reduce taxes. Elect a Liberal and you have a hope. Elect my opponent and you have no hope.

The Tax Of Blood

When we complain about taxes we are apt to overlook the severest tax of all, the tax of blood, as the French call the casualties of war. The ancient Greek tragedian Euripides lamented that war takes the best and leaves the worst. The French have suffered particularly from the killing-off of some of the best elements in her population during the wars of the past two hundred years.

* * *

The highest casualties in any war were suffered by the Russians in World War II. Though they have not published figures it is reliably estimated that around 15,000,000 persons (approximately the total population of Canada) perished, many of them being civilians.

* * *

The present war in Korea is on nothing like the same Titanic scale, but all the same it represents a steady drain on the most precious resource of a country, her youth. The United States forces, which are bearing the brunt of the battle, have 138,246 casualties, of which 24,804 are dead. Comparing them with figures for World War II we find that the U.S. had over 1,000,000 casualties (396,637 killed). The Canadian figures for the last war, amounting to 101,008 (36,018 killed) are similar to the American figures in Korea, except that the proportion of killed to the grand total is somewhat higher. This may be due to the recent advances in medical science through the use of anti-biotics and better facilities for clearing casualties by helicopter and aeroplane than existed in World War II.

* * *

We would recommend that those engaged in truce negotiations should study the casualty figures. They might give them a greater sense of urgency in coming to grips with things. If this failed to stimulate them to greater efforts in achieving a workable settlement surely a visit to one of the military hospitals would spur them on. The pitiful sights seen there should prove more potent arguments than the pressure tactics of the "China Lobby."

The Gentle Art Of Heckling

There is little doubt that heckling is at a low ebb. Perhaps it is because we are dull; perhaps it is that we do not put so much of ourselves into politics as they used to in the old days.

We did not think much of the effort of two hecklers in Edmonton when they shouted to Mr. St. Laurent, "Go back to Quebec," though the P.M. might have countered with some such remark as "What? And leave this place to the Indians?"

Nor did we think so highly of the performance of the London (Ont.) students who silenced the Dean of Canterbury with cowbells and catcalls. Here a golden opportunity was missed by the use of behaviour more appropriate to Hitler's street toughs.

There is only one rule in the game of heckling: never to lose one's temper. He who loses his temper loses the argument. Wit and humour, and sometimes persiflage and insult of a more or less good-humoured type make up the interchange, and both speaker and heckler should have ready tongues.

Heckling is an integral part of democracy. It deflates pomposity and keeps the speaker on the alert. No speaker can deal with a heckler by reading from a prepared text. Heckling is unthinkable in a totalitarian state. When the art of heckling decays it is a danger sign for democracy.

What we need in Canada is a school for hecklers; not an academic institution but something like the speakers at Marble Arch, London, England, on a Sunday afternoon. Knots of people gather round the soap-box orators and play them with questions frivolous and serious. The speakers themselves are usually equal to the occasion and give as good as they get. They advocate a variety of different causes: vegetarians, conservatives, Salvation Army lasses, Free Bulgarians, atheists and a host of others all speak from their own platforms. Some speakers draw big crowds, while others manage to attract only one or two faithful followers. In this way the Cockney heckler can keep in training between elections.

Here are one or two suggestions for hecklers, according to party affiliation: "What about the horses?", "Where does the tax cut come from?", "What about a national health service?", and or course that hardy perennial, "What about the working man?"

Halt To Book-Burning

Living in such close proximity to the United States and sharing in common so much of the American way of life we are as Canadians in a particularly favourable position for interpreting the American scene. We can see the sensations and scares that afflict our neighbours in a clearer perspective than Europeans or Asiatics, for we can see them against a solid background of normal and decent American life that never gets into the headlines.

Nevertheless the activities of Senator McCarthy have been causing us some concern, and his latest book-burning exploits have worried thoughtful Canadians who remember a certain Austrian house-painter who shocked the civilized world by burning books.

It was reassuring to hear President Eisenhower denounce this practice. Now the State Department, with the full approval of John Foster Dulles, the State Secretary, has issued an order to curb the zeal of these un-American investigators of un-American activities. This applies of course only to the 189 U.S. libraries in foreign countries coming under the control of the State Department, but it may well set an example to municipalities and other bodies that have been conducting censorship campaigns. The new policy lays down that books will be judged on their contents and use even if they are charged with controversy and the authors are Communist.

This welcome move represents a return to the principles of toleration and the widest freedom of speech compatible with security which animated the founders of the Republic. Senator McCarthy's efforts to achieve a narrow orthodoxy are fundamentally opposed to the whole American tradition, and if followed to their conclusion would result in the formation of a police-state on the Russian model. The stand of President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles, together with the protests of numerous Americans in different stations in life should remind us of the good working hypothesis that if there is anything wrong in America the Americans themselves will be amongst the first to criticize it.

How To Grow Peanuts

The grandiose scheme of the British Labour Government to mass-produce peanuts in Tanganyika ended in a fiasco and cost the British Overseas Foodstuffs Corporation and the British taxpayer $110,000,000. In essence the idea sounded quite simple and foolproof. Britain was short of fats and oils: she had plenty of land in Africa which was doing nobody any good. It so happens that the peanut can produce, acre for acre, more oil than almost any other plant. The Labour Government had just come in on an airy feeling of idealism that had as yet had little contact with the harsh realities of the post-war world. Full of zeal for planning they launched on the ill-fated program of Blitzkrieging the stubborn African veldt into production. Bulldozers, tractors and other machines were poured into the area and fought an expensive and ill-fated war against the roots of the tough shrubs and the all-pervading dust.

It is good news to hear that where the big machines failed the African tribesman is succeeding. In the land that has been cleared Africans have been allotted holdings which they are cultivating with considerable success. Soil ecologists and other specialists have been working out the most suitable type of cash crop for the soil and climate of each area, and the Africans are given full instructions on what to grow and on methods of cultivation. This is necessary, for if left to himself he would reduce himself and the land to poverty. The new administration feel that they are on the way towards beating the problem of Africa's immense wastelands and the failure of the primitive natives to establish a solid peasantry. This is acknowledged to be of more importance than training a black proletariat to produce peanut oil on mammoth plantations.

There are two lessons to be learnt from this. Big schemes are not always good schemes. More important than this, men are more important than machines.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Britain has banned the importation of Turkish Delight from Turkey. For the protection, we presume, of Turkish Delight from Birmingham.

The R.C.A.F.'s new jet Comet airliner had a slight accident in landing at a New York field. It blew two tires. Odd to think that the Comet, wonder-bird of the age, can be troubled by such a Model-T happening as a tire blow-out.

Trans-Atlantic Tourists On The Move

By ALASTAIR BUCHAN

THIS is the season of the American tourist. In every town and village, from Pontypool to Porto Fino, from Dundee to Damascus, you will see him with his wife, recognizable by his bright clothes, his passion of sightseeing and the camera with a multitude of filters and light meters slung around his neck.

One in every three of those who you see will be a New Yorker, and the chances are better than even that he will come from the Eastern Seaboard rather than from anywhere else in the country. Despite the common belief of shopkeepers and porters that all Americans are millionaires, more than half of these tourists will be travelling on a tight budget. These are the conclusions of the United States Department of Commerce, which has recently published a comparison of American tourist travel in recent years.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE money spent abroad by American tourists, including fares paid to non-American shipping and air lines, like Cunard and BOAC (British Overseas Airways Corporation) last year amounted to nearly one thousand million dollars, or about seven per cent of the total American dollar expenditure abroad. Tourist expenditures have been rising rapidly and the figures show that this is because there are more tourists, not because they spend more money.

The figures also show that there would be more American tourists if there were more transatlantic shipping and air space.

France is still the principal Mecca of the vacationing American, and the country that makes most money out of him. Britain comes second and Italy third. Sadly enough, the share which Britain earns of the American tourist dollar is going down, not because fewer Americans come to Britain, but because they stay an increasingly short time before going on to the Continent. Whether this is because of the licensing hours, or the food, or the climate, no one can guess. Certainly the British Travel Asosciation does an excellent job of advertising the charms of Britain in the United States.

✧ ✧ ✧

YET, even today, with over three hundred thousand Americans touring Britain and Europe every year, Americans do not travel abroad to nearly the same extent as they did in the palmy days of the nineteen-twenties. One reason for this is that holiday resorts in the United States have now been extensively developed; another is that with high taxation it is harder to extend the family budget to cover a trip abroad. But in the nineteen-twenties, a large proportion of American travellers were those who had been born outside the United States in Ireland, in Italy, or Greece, and they went back to visit their families. Nowadays, the majority of travellers are native-born Americans, going abroad to see something of the free world of which they have inherited the leadership.

✧ ✧ ✧

EXCEPT for Virginia and New England, no one thinks of the United States as a land of historic houses. But "historic" is a relative term that does not necessarily have anything to do with antiquity, and great concern is now being expressed over here at the speed with which so many famous landmarks of American history are disappearing. A body called the National Trust for Historic Preservation has been formed to do something about it, on lines similar to those of the National Trust in Britain. The famous houses such as George Washington's home at Mount Vernon, Abraham Lincoln's house in Springfield, Illinois, and Thomas Jefferson's beautiful little house at Monticello, Virginia — one of the most perfectly proportioned small houses in the world — are all safe as public monuments. It is the less important buildings, which nevertheless reflect phases of American life and culture, which so easily get torn down to make room for modern buildings or parking lots. For instance, the Grand Union Hotel at Saratoga Springs, with its steam elevators and quarter mile of front porch, an elegant building which was the Mecca of smart New York life in the eighteen-eighties, was demolished the other day to make room for a department store. A beautiful eighteenth-century house at Peekskill, in New York, was saved by the Trust just as it was about to be demolished by the Government. One of the first houses built by Frank Lloyd Wright, the great American architect, who is still alive, is also now threatened with demolition — and so the battle goes on.

✧ ✧ ✧

GENERALLY speaking, Americans have been in too much of a hurry to bother with the preservation of the past. But in recent years there has been a great upsurge of interest in the origins of American society; for example, Williamsburg, the reconstructed seventeenth-century colonial town in Virginia, is thronged with tourists all the year round, and the idea of rebuilding whole communities, to illustrate what life was like in the early days of America, has been extended to Salem, the famous old Massachusetts whaling port near Boston, to Shelburne, a particularly fine example of a Vermont village, very little changed since the days of the Pilgrim Fathers, and to Winterthur, near Wilmington, Delaware, where a member of the wealthy Du Pont family has decorated an enormous house with specimens of every date of American furniture and handicrafts.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE English are so used to importing new habits and crazes from America that it is pleasant when the reverse happens. An English drink—gin and tonic—is at present delighting America palates. From being almost unobtainable a year or so ago, it is now sold in every bar across the country. Sales of tonic water have quintupled in the last three years, and now a famous English tonic manufacturers, Schweppes, is in the market over here.

Another curious drinking craze is sweeping the West Coast — vodka. Vodka sales there have increased by sixty per cent in the past year, and now rival those of gin. It is mostly drunk in a terrifying cocktail called a "screw-driver," which is made of orange juice, vodka and ice. It is hard to see how a thirst for vodka can be reconciled with a tough policy towards the Russians.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE American aircraft industry is by no means reconciled to the fact that Britain has the lead in the development of jet passenger airliners, but it is still an open question as to whether they will be able to make up the leeway. Although there is a great deal of talk in aviation circles about the uneconomic costs of operating the De Havilland Comet, there is as yet no concerted drive to build an American rival to it.

Boeing has designed a four-engined jet transport called the 707, which, it is claimed, will cruise at 550 m.p.h. — which is about fifty miles faster than the Comet. But the final design is not yet agreed with the major American airlines. In the meantime, the United States Government is anxious to subsidise the development of a commercial jet airliner, but the airlines and manufacturers, who are high-and-dry private-enterprise men, fear that this may lay them open to too much Government control. All in all, it seems that if Britain can press ahead with delivery of the Comet II and III, she will have little to fear from American competition for some years yet.

An American Opinion

ALL IKE WANTS TO DO IS BUILD A BRIDGE

Indonesia's Critical Condition

By O. M. GREEN

THE increasingly critical condition of Indonesia, both economically and socially, is dwelt on in reports from many sources reaching London.

Owing to the Japanese invasion, the war with the Dutch, lawlessness of the "People's Army" and rivalries of political factions more intent on their own interests than the country's welfare, Indonesia was not able to take full advantage of the post-war "seller's market" for her natural riches, as, for example, Pakistan and Siam did.

But in spite of the undoubtedly earnest efforts of successive Governments, affairs in Indonesia have steadily gone from bad to worse. Against a favourable trade balance in 1951 of approximately £50,500,000 there was an adverse balance last year of £4,593,750, and a deficit on the Budget of no less than £134,375,000.

Like other Asian countries Indonesia was hit by the world price recession in her chief products. But this is not the whole story. Figures recently published in Jakarta of estates' production show that the monthly average production of coffee dropped from 1,045 tons in 1952 to 24 tons last January and February; of palm kernels from 38,509 tons to 3,800; of sugar from 38,169 tons to nothing.

Rubber production, which accounts for nearly half Indonesia's exports, is fairly well maintained but there has been no replanting for many years; many trees are thirty years old. Unless replanting begins again soon, the production of rubber must rapidly decrease.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR OVER a month now, since the fall of Dr. Wilopo's Cabinet, Indonesia has been without a regular Government. Two attempts to form a Coalition Ministry acceptable to all the discordant political parties have failed. Now Mr. Mukarto, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, has been ordered by President Soekarno to form a "non-party Cabient of businessmen," capable of crushing the trouble-makers and restoring prosperity. Indonesian Press comment is not hopeful of his chances.

The two chief opposing political parties (there are various minor ones) are the P.N.I. (Nationalists; Mr. Mukarto is a P.N.I. man), adherents of President Soekarno; and the Masjumi (Muslims), with whom the Socialists are allied.

The Communists have recently gained a considerable position in the P.N.I. The Masjumi are now accusing the P.N.I. and President Soekarno (whose prestige has suffered much from the depressed state of the country) of making common cause with Communists and other Left-Wing elements to down their opponents.

The Communists dominate the S.O.B.S.I. (federation of trade unions), and are increasingly infiltrating among the workers to foment strikes. The unions have recently put up new demands for an increase of wages by as much as one hundred and two hundred per cent, which can be met only at the cost of further reducing exports.

East Java is well held by the Government, but West Java is in effect an independent state ruled by the Dar Ul Islam, an extremist Muslim sect. Central Java remains in a very unruly condition.

Much of the trouble is due to the hordes of the so-called "People's Army" whose commanders do as they please and are no better than bandits. Last January the Defence Minister, the Sultan of Jogjakarta, tried to disband this army and form a small, well-drilled, efficient force to restore order. But he was defeated by President Soekarno and the many politicians interested in preserving the "People's Army" and was forced to resign.

A general election to replace the present Parliament, which holds its position by appointment, has been repeatedly promised, but whether it could be held in the disordered state of the country is doubted. As matters stand, Ministers' decisions are frequently flouted in their own departments by political opponents.

Sympathetic foreign observers say that there is no lack of able potential Ministers who know what needs to be done and would gladly do it, if they had a free hand and power.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jersusalem. (Isa. 52: 9.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes; for thou shalt break forth on the right hand and on the left; and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited . . .

O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest and not comforted, behold, I will lay thy stones with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with sapphires. And I will make thy windows of agates, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones. And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord; and great shall be the peace of thy children . . . No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgement thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord. (Isa. 54: 2, 3, 11-13, 17.)

The Elections—An American View

(New York Times)

A general election in Canada can roughly be compared in importance to a Presidential election in the United States. There is, however, no comparison between the sound and fury of our electoral battle last year and the peaceful, muted, listless campaign for federal election to take place Aug. 10 in Canada.

The chief reason undoubtedly lies in the fact that there are no important issues to be debated. Moreover, there is universal agreement that the Liberals are going to remain in power, although with a reduced majority. Interest in the campaign lies in the gains that the Progressive-Conservative opposition party may or may not make and in the voting out West, where two splinter parties — the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation and Social Credit — are in control of provincial governments.

However, C.C.F. has only thirteen seats in Ottawa's House of Commons and Social Credit only ten, so even if they doubled their representation they would still be a negligible factor in a House of 265 members. Since Quebec with eighty-six seats is safely Liberal the only hope of the Conservatives is to make a big gain in Ontario, where they now hold about one-third of the eighty-three federal seats.

It is generally agreed that it is unhealthy for Canada to have one great Centre party such as the Liberals in an unassailable position of power. They have been there for eighteen years now. Even Liberals privately concede that it would do them and the country good to have a smaller majority and a stronger opposition. The whole question in the election is whether that will happen or not. In other respects Canadians are giving no evidence that they think it is "time for a change." Canadians are a middle of the road people and Liberals are hogging the road.

Microfilming Solves Problems For Industry

By STEVEN V. DAVID

NEW YORK (AP)—The microfilming industry, born when a bank official looked at a slow-motion picture, today has become a fast-growing enterprise serving touching the lives of millions.

It was 25 years ago that the first practical microfilming machine was installed in a New York bank. The inventor was George L. McCarthy, then with the Empire Trust Company and now chairman of the Recordak Corp., a subsidiary of Eastman Kodak Company.

That first machine was developed to stop a fraudulent cheque racket. In those days, when a bank returned cancelled cheques to its depositors at the end of each month, it surrendered the only indisputable evidence that the cheques had been paid. And that led to a racket that worked this way:

A despositor would make out a cheque to "cash" and cash it. But when the cancelled cheque was returned to him later, he would destroy it, inform the bank that no such cheque ever had been written by him, and demand "restitution." The bank, without evidence to the contrary, would have to comply.

PROVIDE RECORD

McCarthy saw a slow - motion picture one night, which made him wonder: "Why not photograph all cancelled cheques in slow motion?" Doing so, he reasoned, would give the bank the record it needed and provide depositors with proof of payments of bills and taxes.

McCarthy developed a machine that used a 16-milimetre movie camera to photograph cheques accurately and fast enough to make it economically worthwhile for banks. Eastman Kodak became interested and agreed to back him. In 1928, Recordak Corp. was formed under McCarthy's guidance.

The first installation was in McCarthy's old bank in May, 1928. Today, thousands of banks use the process.

OTHERS TRY IT

The banks' success with microfilming led other businesses to try it. Department stores began using it to replace carbon copies of monthly bills. Now all sales slips are photographed and returned with the statements.

Newspapers and libraries found microfilming the answer to their problem of filing and preserving old newspaper volumes. The census bureau photographed all old census records in the middle 30s as a protective measure. During the Second World War microfilm made V-mail possible and some 233,000,000 letters were sent to overseas troops.

Gambling Alone Lost Its Appeal At Monte Carlo

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (CP) —In this traditional capital of gambling, where kings once staked fortunes on the turn of a card or the whirl of a roulette wheel, the gilded rococo rooms of the casino are empty, and the coffers which once overflowed with gold coins are even emptier.

In a bid to restore its jaded fortunes Monte Carlo soon will get an injection of "culture" under the aegis of Aristotle Onassis, the new "king" of Monte Carlo, who has announced plans for sweeping innovations.

The "new" Monte Carlo will make its appeal chiefly to tourists; most of the royalty who once were its best customers now are poor, out of work, or dead.

Air conditioning will be installed to make the casino's gold and mahogany gambling rooms comfortable in the summer. A host of tourist attractions, including a first-class ballet corps, a symphony orchestra and a large new bathing beach, will be adde.

Onassis, a 47-year-old Greek-born shipping official, says he plans to make Monte Carlo a leading Riviera yachting centre by building an expensive breakwater and promoting a long - distance yacht race between Corisca and here. The beachless resort also will get a new stretch of sand to attract the younger set.

Gambling alone has lost its appeal.

Relaxation of formal dress requirements has had little effect in popularizing the casino and the introduction of American - style "craps" three years ago succeeded only in attracting occasional U.S. naval shore parties.

For those who remember "the good old days" today's situation seems unreal.

For the most part, the great black and white tile and marble floor of the casino now has the appearance of a museum where occasional tourists with little money tip-toe through for curiosity's sake.

It costs a thrifty tourist 100 francs (28 cents) to enter, or 250 francs (70 cents) for the semi-exclusive private rooms, and 100 francs to try his luck at the roulette wheel.

Roulette tables are available where betting is in units of 100, 200, 500 and 1,000 francs. The theoretical maximum is 1,000,000 francs ($2,800) but croupiers say that this is purely "theoretical," no one nowadays bets anywhere near that amount.

Despite its fallen estate Monte Carlo retains some of its old traditions. Persons entering the private rooms, for example, have to register each time, an irksome duty for gamblers who prefer anonymity.

The casino still has a card index of 100,000 blacklisted individuals, some who have cheated at other casinos, some who once were granted a free ticket home after their money ran out and forgot to repay the loan.

The government levies a tax of 10 per cent on the gross takings.

Italians and Greeks are the most adamant players this year. But it was a South American who one day two years ago left richer by 25,000,000 francs ($70,000).

Losers are always the more numerous, however. The Prince and Princess Stouza killed themselves in a Monte Carlo hotel in 1949 with an overdose of sleeping tablets.

British Medical Scientists Develop Artificial Heart

LONDON (Reuters) — British medical scientists have developed an artifical heart for human beings.

The British Medical Journal publishes details of the heart built from researches by doctors led by D. G. Melrose, assistant lecturer in a postgraduate medical school here.

A journal editorial says Melrose and his colleagues consider the artificial heart machine now might be applied to the treatment of certain forms of heart disease.

It cautions that the step from experiments on animals, the machine has been tested on 30 dogs, to humans is a big one. "The circumstances justifying the trial at the present time are few but the potentialities of the machine may be considerable. It is likely to be a valuable contribution to the advancement of cardiac surgery."

In another article, Melrose outlines the experiments carried out on the dogs, in which the natural blood circulation was assisted by shunting part of it from vein to artery through the machine.

The experiments were made to assess the values of the machine in resuscitation, in the treatment of a failing circulation, and to get information to be applied later to the problem of complete artificial maintenance of circulation in man.

None of the dogs died as a direct result of the experiments though four did not survive them for other reasons. The survivors suffered no ill effects.

"The challenging problem was and still remains to produce an extra-corporeal apparatus capable of maintaining temporarily the entire circulation of the human body."

Transports Grab Top Spot In City Softball Loop As UE Beats Seabrooke's

TP Transports rang up their 12th win in 16 starts Thursday evening in the opener of the regular bi-weekly men's twin softball set; a 3-1 decision over Cam Wasson's luckless Revoy Motors, now firmly ensconced in the basement. Transports are assured of first place in the standing, as the regular season draws to a close, prior to playoffs; the final regular set pitting TPs against Seabookes and UEW versus Revoys to be played Tuesday when the league will promote its big Booster Night with over 20 draw prizes given away.

BIG HITTER—Gus Leonard led TPT Petes at bat with a triple and double last night as the Transports downed Revoy's to clinch first place in the City Softball League. Gus is well-known here in hockey circles during the winter as a starry Petes' forward.

GOOD HURLING

Reg Gordon hurled fine ball for the winners opposing Dick West who conceded nothing to his opponent as the pair engaged in a grand duel. Gordon was nicked for two bingles, one a double, fanned four and walked none; West held the powerful Transports to six hits, two a double and triple by Leonard only extra-base blows, struck out four and passed four.

Revoys scored one in the second, as McCracken singled and scored on Craig's sharp double. TP's took the lead in the fourth when Hermie Castle blasted a solid single to centre to score Crowe and Greenlaw, on by virtue of a hit and walk respectively; then added one in the sixth on Greenlaw's hit and Gordon's long fly.

A LATE RALLY

UEW came from behind in the late stages of the nightcap to defeat Seabrooke Motors 9-6, in a rare battle for second place; the result enabled Tom Walton's boys to tie Bill Sullivan's squad for the runner-up spot each with nine victories and seven defeats.

Jack Crowley emerged triumphant over the veteran Terry Woods in a rather free-hitting affair, if not a slug fest, with hits and errors almost evenly divided. Crowley allowed 10 hits, struck out six, and walked but one; Woods was nicked for 11 bingles, fanned two and passed four. Doris relieved Terry with one away in the eighth and there were seven miscues in all, four to the East City firebrands.

TWO BIG HEATS

Seabrooke's had two big innings the first and fifth, three runs in each, as the bats of Thompson, Donoghue, Currie, Sullivan, Wyatt and Woods smote some hefty clouts. But the Walton gang kept pace with four runs in the first four as Leether, Kotowski, Heffernan and Crowley produced positive results.

Jack White, clutch slugger, poled a long homer over the left field fence to tie up the game in the seventh. Then UE produced the rally next inning that spelled victory: Leether opened with a single to left; Robson doubled to score Leether; then Dalton singled sharply past Sullivan to score Robbie; Kotowski was out, but Thomson singled off Doris to score Dalton.

Local Horse Loses Feature Race By Nose

Harriman Hanover, a 21 to 1 outsider, owned by Dr. A. M. Johnston of Peterborough and driven by Jimmy McIntyre, lost a nose decision to Worthy Baker at Thorncliffe Raceway, Toronto on Thursday.

Worthy Baker, a four-year-old shipped to Thorncliffe by R. James Speers, the celebrated Winnipeg horseman and one of the country's outstanding breeders of thoroughbreds, came up with his first standard-bred winner in his first attempt.

Worthy Baker won both heats, with Harriman Hanover third in the first heat and second in the next try, losing by a nose in a photo-finish. The winner was handled by Jack Mehlenbacher, National Hockey League referee. The time of 2:10 for the mile is very creditable, and it looks as if "Doc" Johnston has got himself a high-class colt.

SLUGGERS—Eddie Mathews, left, of the Braves and the Yankees' Mickey Mantle, the two great young sluggers in the game, compared notes at the All-Star game at Cincinnati.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

With announcement from the Department of Health that the water in Little Lake is polluted, chances appear slim at the moment of staging the big provincial water ski meet here on Aug. 8-9. This was to have brought top performers from Europe and the States—in Canada for the CNE championships—as well as Ontario and local aqua experts on skis. Officials here are checking on the possibility of using Inverlea instead, but 'tis doubtful if the Canadian Association will okay that spot. Meantime, local ski officers are checking with Mayor Waddell and the Chamber of Commerce to see what can be done about clearing up this contamination in a hurry. Quaker Oats Co. promised to put through two more feet of water in the lake to help.

* * * * * *

Naturally, Alf Pink, chairman of the meet, and his executive are burned to a crisp. "It is high time," Alf said yesterday, "that this lake was cleaned up and kept clean. It's a disgrace to the city and certainly heart-breaking for us, after months of work on the project, if the meet fails through because of dirty water in what could be a beautiful city lake." We quite agree with him, and can sympathize with the Water Ski Association and the Jaycees, who were helping on this meet which would have attracted many tourists as well as local and district folk. Apparently, the pollution is worse around the T-wharf but is in evidence all over the lake. A civic disgrace.

Red Sox Get Stone

Pitcher Ted Stone of Oshawa Transporters in the Lakeshore Loop has been signed to a Boston Red Sox contract just before Oshawa Merchants took him up from the intermediate "A" ball club there. He received a $600 bonus, plus a salary, to sign and gets adidtional $700 if he sticks for 90 days. The 20-year-old hurler, who has had two no-hit games in the lakeshore setup this season, signed a Class "D" contract to start in Florida with a step up to "C" ball in North Carolina next spring, if he makes the grade. Stone, a fastball twirler, is married. We wish him well. Transporters are well out in front of the league, in which the local Liflocs operate. Lindsay Merchants—with seven ex-Petes' players aboard—are in second spot.

* * * * * *

Weather permitting, the OLA senior scrap here tonight should pack 'em in. It's Toronto Yorks (playing home games in Orillia) vs. the redhot Petes' Trailermen, who are crowding the leading A's of St. Kitts plenty right now. Third-place Yorks are tough onions any time, but will have to be at their best to halt in the winning streak of the Thorpe team. Harry Wiper may be back from the States for this joust, and otherwise the champs are at full strength for the big game with the men of McPhail. Could be as rugged a tilt as their other meetings have been. Schedule has but three more weeks to go ere playoffs roll around.

* * * * * *

TPT-ers Take Trophy

TPT Petes downed the fourth-place Revoy's male softballers 3-1 at the Bowl last gloaming to clinch first place in the City League standing and assure themselves of the Wm. Taylor Trophy. The Geo. Dormer Trophy is competed for next month in playoffs. Reg. Gordon hurled grand two-hit ball for the winners, and Dick West on the other slab allowed but six bingles, including a triple and a double by Gus Leonard. In the nighcap, UEW beat Seabrooke's 9-6 in a free-hitting fray, and these teams are tied now in second spot with nine wins and seven losses each. Jack Crowley was the winning twirler over Terry Woods. Jack White hit a homer. Schedule winds up next week.

* * * * * *

Speaking of softball, John McPhee informs us that the OASA has now approved of Ed Feigner, the King and his Court, for softball exhibitions. These must be billed as "attractions," not as contests, since Eddie performs for money. So, the King and his Court are expected to show here against local all-stars on July 29. Tilts next Tuesday eve are: Transports vs. Seabrooke's, and UEW vs. Revoy's. This windup twin bill is staged on booster night when a raft of draw prizes will be up. Ducats are going good for the Petes' Hockey Club big prize, but there are some left. It'll be drawn for next Tuesday p.m. in the Bowl d'Ashburnham.

Bisons Defeat Red Wings 5-2 To Lead League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons, taking advantage of Montreal's layoff Thursday night, vaulted into the international baseball league lead over the Royals—but only by the slimmest of margins.

The Bisons defeated the third-place Rochester Red Wings 5-2 in one of two scheduled contests to advance into first-place by two percentage points.

Springfield Cubs remained on the losing path. The tail-enders were downed 5-3 by Baltimore Orioles, currently in fourth position—four games behind the leaders and one back of Rochester. Springfield is down 23½ games, victorious in only 27 of 84 contests.

PLAYS BIG ROLE

Frank Carswell played a big part in the Herd's triumph at Buffalo, whacking his 10th homer of the campaign, with two aboard. Bob Nevel earned the victory, allowing seven hits.

Jack Faszholz, who had beaten the Bisons six straight, was sent to the showers when he got into trouble in the fourth.

At Baltimore, it was three straight for the Orioles over the Cubs. Tom Herrin held the losers to seven hits until he tired in the eighth. Veteran lefthander Ken Heintzelman took over and disposed of the next four batters to face him.

All clubs are scheduled to see action tonight. Buffalo remains at Rochester, Montreal goes to Baltimore, Ottawa visits Springfield and Toronto invades Syracuse.

Rochon, Main In Cup Opening

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada entrusted its tennis fortunes today to a pair of Davis Cup veterans, Henri Rochon and Lorne Main, in the opening singles of the first-round North American zone tie against Mexico.

Rochon, 29-year-old Montrealer, was drawn against Mario Llamas, 25, who is making his second appearance in Davis Cup play in Montreal. It is Rochon's eighth cup assignment.

Lorne Main of Toronto and Vancouver will play in the second singles match against 19-year-old Francisco (Pancho) Contreras, one of Mexico's up-and-coming youngsters. Main celebrated his 23rd birthday only a week ago, but has been a member of Canada's last four Davis Cup teams. The players will switch opponents in Sunday's singles.

The singles choices by Dr. Georges Leclerc, Canadian captain, occasioned no surprise. A back injury to young Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke ruled him out in any event. Frank Willey of Vancouver, like Bedard a newcomer to Davis Cup tennis, might get the nod for Saturday doubles play.

In meeting Llamas, Rochon will face a steady, smooth-rolling player although the 25-year-old Mexican, who sports a small moustache, is rated by observers less powerful than he was last year, when he lost a five-set match to Main.

Dodgers Edge Leafs In Bantam Ball Fray

Dodgers edged out a 9-8 bantam baseball win over Maple Leafs with Hayden allowing but four hits till out in the fifth and Casey giving just one more the rest of the way. Magafey was nicked for 10, each side booting four. Magafey fanned five and walked none, while each of the rival flingers whiffed three and walked two. R. Rowe had four hits for four and W. Rowe two in three, each of them and Kimball clouting a double. McNulty and Magafey also doubled. The losers got seven runs in the fifth and one next time up, while the winners tallied three each in the third and fourth, one in the first and two in the sixth. Teams:

Leafs: Nickels, lf; Webb, lf; Lumbard, cf; Quigg, cf; Magafey, p; Brown, 1b; Collins, rf; Trotter, c; Moffatt, ss; Warner, 2b; McNulty, 3b.

Dodgers—R. Rowe, 3b; W. Rowe, ss; Kimball, 1b; Whitehill, cf; Riel, lf; Morley, rf; Wade, rf; Gilders, 2b; McArthur, c; Hayden, p; Casey, p.

Mt. Pleasant Wins

Mount Pleasant yanked out a 6-5 fastball win over Curve Lake at Omemee last evening, scoring the winner in the eighth after notching three in the second and two next time up. Curve Lake counted one each in the third and ninth and three in the eighth. They were limited to seven hits while the winners got 15, the latter booting three to one miscue for the Indians. Byers hit a homer. Teams:

Curve Lake — H. Taylor, Coppaway, N. Jacobs, J. Taylor, S. Taylor, J. Jacobs, A. Taylor, Irons, Knott, McCue

Mount Pleasant— Dracup, Jamieson, Crawford Byers, K. Bryan, Mitchell, C. Bryan, Hickson, Wells.

Umpires — Montgomery and Bryan.

SUPERTEST SURGING POWER

Hamilton Has Junior A Hockey Team

TORONTO (CP)—Hamilton will have a team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league next season.

The Junior A council, meeting Thursday, approved the application, but added the condition that the council would have full jurisdiction over whether, and how much, television would be allowed.

Only opposition to the application hinged on the question whether home games of other Junior A clubs would be hurt should the Hamilton club televize on the same nights. Rudy Pilous of St. Catharines Teepees was most concerned.

ACTUALLY TRANSFER

The Hamilton team, owned by Ken Soble, radio and TV owner, is actually a transfer of the Windsor Spitfire franchise, which Soble bought from Lloyd Pollock.

Soble said the Hamilton arena, now renovated, will be ready for practices Sept. 15 and seating capacity will be 4,500. He will operate both junior and senior teams in Hamilton. They will both be called the Tigers.

The last time Hamilton had a Junior A representative was during the 1945-46 season, but the team failed to finish the schedule

Lowly St. Louis Humbles Mighty Yanks 8-6

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

It didn't take New York Yankees long to find out that this western trip is going to be different. Only a month ago the league leaders blazed through St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit on an all-victorious tour of 14 games. This time they got stopped before they got started. The Yankees virtually invented the home run and the lowly St. Louis Browns made them mighty sorry for it in the opening game of a twilight-night twin bill. The Browns pounded three in a row in the first inning, tying the major league record, and added two more later in the contest for an 8-6 victory.

The defeat was the first of the year for the Yankees in St. Louis and although they rallied to take the nightcap 7-3 they lost a full game of their first place margin to the hustling Chicago White Sox, two-time winners over Washington.

The Sox won the first game in 10 innings 6-5 and the second 5-4. Billy Pierce, pitching in relief, drove home the deciding run with a single in the first game for his 11th victory. A pinch-hit home run by Eddie Stewart made the difference in the second. The Sox now trail by four.

CLEVELAND WINS

The two other first division American League teams also triumphed. Cleveland beat Philadelphia 5-3 on Al Rosen's grand-slam home run and Boston nipped Detroit 3-2 with Mel Parnell winning his 13th game. Tops in the circuit.

Brooklyn increased its National League lead to 2½ games by trouncing St. Louis 9-2 while second-place Milwaukee was losing to Pittsburgh 5-2.

Philadelphia won a couple of squeakers from Cincinnati 3-1 and 3-2. And New York Giants, who had won eight in a row before the Dodgers stopped them in the final game before the all-star break, resumed their winning habits with a 10-3 decision over Chicago.

A double by Mike Garcia and a pair of walks set the stage for Rosen's grand slam at Cleveland. The blast broke up a scoreless duel between Garcia and Marion Fricano.

STRIKE QUICKLY

The Dodgers struck quickly and decisively against the Cardinals. With one out they loaded the bases in the first inning Gil Hodges drilled a Stu Miller pitch high and far for the Dodgers' first grand-slam home run of the year. Hodges and Duke Snider hit two more home runs later in the game as Preacher Roe scored his sixth victory.

Pittsburgh broke a 10-game losing streak with rookie Carlos Bernier playing the starring role. He drove in two runs and scored a third by stealing home. The last-place Pirates apparently have solved the Braves for sure. They've beaten them five straight times. Johnny Antonelli was the loser against Bob Friend.

Robin Roberts won his 15th game of the year in the opener against Cincinnati Although he gave up 10 hits to only three by loser Bud Podbielan The Cincinnati right-hander retired the first 20 men he faced but the Phillies bunched a walk, two singles and a double by Smoky Burgess to score three runs in the seventh inning.

Leafs Buy, Lose Player In Day

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League bought—and lost—a ball player Thursday.

"We're in a fine pickle," Publicity director Al Mercer said after it was announced Leafs had purchased utility infielder Al Cihocki from St. Louis Browns of the American League. "We buy the guy and then find he's on a fishing trip some place in Canada.

"We have no idea where he might be."

Cihocki started this season with San Antonio in the Texas League and hit .261 in 63 games. His purchase price was not announced.

W. Germany Rebuilding Passenger Fleet

By EDO KOENIG

BONN (Reuters)—West Germany has started to rebuild a passenger shipping fleet, with the main emphasis on dual-purpose cargo ships.

The first ship, a combined freight and passenger vessel of 9,000 tons, is under construction at a north German dockyard. She will accommodate 80 passengers and have a speed of 17.5 knots. Five similar ships are to be built by the end of 1954, to be operated by the Roland and Hamburg-Amerika lines.

Although these ships will be the nucleus of a German passenger fleet, it will be many years before Germany can hope to rival the United States and Britain or even compete with Italy, which has just put into operation its 12th post-war passenger liner, or Japan, whose growing fleet German shipping officials are watching with envy.

BAN EASED SLOWLY

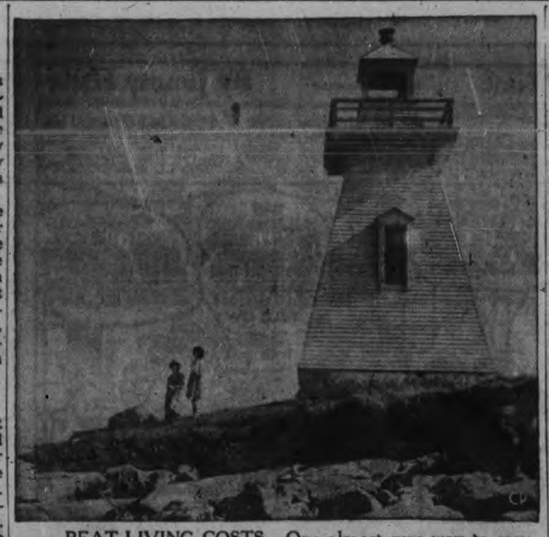
Hans Christoph Seebohm, West German transport minister, said recently: "all that was left of our 4,000,000-ton merchant fleet at the end of the war was 120,000 tons. Allied restrictions on new construction were lifted only slowly. Only at the end of 1949 were we permitted again to build ships up to 7,200 and 12 knots. Larger and faster ships could be built only since April, 1951."

Italy's merchant navy was not subjected to post-war restrictions and she received considerable aid under the Marshall Plan and also government assistance to reconstruct her passenger fleet. In Japan the Allied restrictions were lifted much earlier than in Germany."

SERVED WIDE AREA

Before the war German passenger shipping extended to the United States, the West Indies, the east and west coasts of south America, Africa and the Far East.

Today travellers using German ships can reach most of these territories only in 39 freighters which among them can accommodate a total of only 1,225 passengers. Fifty-six of these ships can take up to six passengers each, 73 between seven and 12 passengers, and 10 between 24 and 28.



Trained Germans will be available from the pre-war shipping lines for the new combined freighter-passenger ships, but the Roland and Hamburg-Amerika lines plan to train additional younger people as soon as the new ships come into service.

Scholarship Winner

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of the winners of Mackenzie King travelling scholarships announced at the University of British Columbia Thursday is William Donald Wood of Palermo, Ont., who received his MA at Queen's University last year.

Opens Negotiations

ST. THOMAS (CP)—The Canadian government has opened negotiations in New York with the New York Central Railway Company in an effort to re-open the St. Thomas repair shops, Jack Peterson, Liberal candidate for Elgin, said here Thursday. Some 250 employees have been laid off at the shops here since Christmas, and the shops now are almost completely closed.

BEAT LIVING COSTS—One almost sure way to save money is to be a lighthouse keeper. The earliest lighthouse on record, and still operating, is this 82-foot stone tower at Sambro on the south coast of Nova Scotia, operating since 1758. Marine service spokesmen for the transport department say keepers of the light in remote areas have little chance to spend their pay, which reaches a maximum of $3,500 a year. Dwellings also are provided in isolated areas.

Thrift Through Isolation Thrust On Lighthouse Men

By ANTHONY DICKASON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Thrift isn't a virtue among Canada's lighthouse keepers—it's thrust on them by isolation.

There are approximately 1,150 lighthouse keepers throughout Canada and the maximum pay rate is $3,500 yearly. In many cases, say marine service officials of the transport department, lighthouse keepers in remote areas have little chance to spend money. And dwellings, too, are provided in such places.

Lighthouses are to be found in lonely spots from Cape Race in Newfoundland to Estevan Point on Vancouver Island, and from Pelee Island in Lake Erie to Resolution Island northeast of Hudson Bay.

PLENTY OF APPLICANTS

There are generally more applicants for jobs than positions available, though it varies according to localities. In areas close to settlements would-be lighthouse keepers are numerous; in windy and wet areas a long way from human habitation there are fewer applicants.

The earliest lighthouse on record—and still operating—is the 82-foot stone tower at Sambro on the south shore of Nova Scotia. It has been a guide to transatlantic ships since 1758.

In 1808 the first inland waterways light was built when Sir Francis Gore was lieutenant-governor of Upper Canada. It is operating today, at Gibraltar Point on Toronto Island. In 1833 a light was raised at Point Peter in the Picton, Ont., district and subsequently at strategic points throughout the Great Lakes.

Today there are about 2,860 lights in operation, of which 1,150 are tended by keepers. The remainder of the lights are automatic.

LIFETIME JOB

The transport department hopes, when it signs a new lighthouse man, to keep him for life. Frequently applicants know the region where a vacancy occurs—tides and fogs, winds and reefs. In some cases care of the light is handed down from father to son, often for three or four generations.

A good keeper is expected to look after his lighthouse and dwelling in the same way as ordinary householders tend their homes.

Lighthouse attendants believe, like their oldtime counterparts that "the light must not fail." But today there are more helps in this respect. Duplicate power plants and duplicate fog alarms cut chance of light failure to a minimum.

Keepers are mostly married men. Transport officials describe them as "steady types."

HEALTHY LIFE

While there is occasional loss of life among the group due to the job itself, the occupation is described as "safer than driving on a highway."

When loss of life does occur it is usually by drowning. Longevity, probably because the lighthouse keeper's life is essentially a healthy one, is the rule.

In some island lighthouses keepers can get ashore to bring in supplies. In other remote places this is impossible. Supply ships bring in needed goods. Most difficult areas, say marine officials, are along the British Columbia coast.

While there has been an increase in recent years in new equipment, many lights working under remote control or automatically, there is little chance modernization wil ever replace the lighthouse keeper himself.

A spokesman said: "Mechanical equipment can fail. There is no substitute for personal attention."

Beauty Judges Have Problem

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—International beauty in 26 eye-catching shapes and sizes posed a problem for judges Thursday night in the preliminaries of the Miss Universe contest.

Would the judges prefer tall girls? Italy's Rita Staza, Canada's Thelma Brewis of Toronto and Alaska's Muriel Hagberg are all 5-feet-9. Or would they tend toward petite Aileen Lauwae Stone of Hawaii or Sweden's Ulla Sandklef, both under 5-feet-3?

If facial beauty outweighs figure considerations, they might favor Miss Turkey, Ayten Akyol. Or France's Christiane Martel. Otherwise, Miss Italy, Miss Canada and Miss Germany (Christel Schaack) would be strong contenders.

In reducing the field of 26 to 16 semi-finalists, the judges will rate the girls on both face and figure, and give added points for poise and personality.

The 16-semi-finalists will not be announced until the start of tonight's judging. Miss Universe will be selected late tonight after the field has been narrowed to five finalists.

Duke Of Edinburgh Honorary Doctor

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters)—The Duke of Edinburgh now can be called "doctor."

He accepted honorary membership of the British Medical Association Thursday night.

A telegram from the new doctor accepting the honor was read at the association's annual dinner here. Then members drank a special toast: "To the Duke of Edinburgh and Earl of Merioneth." Earl of Merioneth is the duke's title in Wales.

Appoint Malyshev Machinery Minister

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press today announced the appointment of Vyacheslav Malyshev as head of a new cabinet ministry—that of medium machinery.

It was announced two days ago that Malyshev had been relieved as head of the ministry of transport and heavy industry.

He was replaced by Ivan Isidorovich Noserko.

Cities Report Water Shortage

TORONTO (CP)—A heat wave which has left southern Ontario sizzling this week has resulted in a serious water shortage in several cities.

Ontario Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders said Thursday a critical shortage of water power used in generating power was also developing.

Water restrictions have been announced in Hamilton, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and North York.

St. Catharines officials said the water consumption was so heavy it was interfering with fire protection.

Curbs were placed in Niagara Falls where consumption was running between 3,000,000 and 7,000,000 gallons a day above capacity.

Kitchener reported a heavy drain on its water supplies but no shortage was in sight.

Mr. Saunders blamed the shortage of water for power generation on the light spring rainfall and lighter winter snows. The Hydro was turning to steam plants in Windsor and Toronto for its supply of power.

Rigors Of Old Days Gone 1953 Political Campaigning

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Cross-country stumping isn't the rugged job it used to be, but there still are plenty of problems for the political leaders as they hustle back and forth across Canada's 3,000-mile width.

The rigors of the old days have gone, but the swift pace of the election tours over many thousands of miles and by a variety of transport has multiplied at least the lesser headaches of campaigning.

There are such worries as train-plane - automobile - boat connections, getting speeches written on the fly, hotel reservations, clean laundry, watching stomachs and voice-pipes; and — for some — the next bath.

AIDED BY STAFFS

Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader—travelling basically by private train car—are relieved of some of these by staffs moving with them.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, come closer to the 1953 version of roughing it. They have been travelling alone for the most part, getting help from aides in Ottawa and from local constituency organizations.

Generally, the planning is done well in advance, and in any particular section of the country, transport connections, meeting times and accommodations are set by the time the leader reaches a stop. Regional arrangements, however, often are shifted because of developments or on advice of local party members.

Speech preparation is a fluid job. All the leaders are equipped with portfolios of basic material. But what they say at any given point may depend on the day's news, the local political atmosphere or what the others are saying—perhaps a combination of all three.

DAYTIME PREPARATION

The prime minister may deliver seven or eight off-the-cuff talks during a day, but usually prepares one textually for his main meeting in the evening. He dictates notes, then reads the typewritten draft carefully, usually editing it.

If he is on a train, it will be mimeographed on his special section for distribution to newspaper men with him. Otherwise, an aide will hustle ahead to the next stop and have it run off there, sometimes just before the meeting.

Mr. St. Laurent usually delivers everything that is in the speech, but he generally adds extemporaneously to several of the points.

Mr. Drew works much the same way on his prepared speeches, though only about half his evening addresses are given from texts. He, too, often departs from the advance script.

While both do their own writing, they have expert advice apart from local chiefs who join their trains periodically. Mr. St. Laurent has been accompanied much of the way by State Secretary J. W. Pickersgill, one of his party's shrewdest political brains. Rod Finlayson, a leading strategist in the Progressive Conservative party is with Mr. Drew.

OFF THE CUFF TALKS

Mr. Coldwell, who travels by regular train and plane, gives most of his speeches extemporaneously. But frequentiy he advises the Ottawa CCF headquarters of specific material he will deliver, and it is released textually here. It usually is just a small part of his speech.

In Saskatchewan, Mr. Coldwell went by car from point to point, sometimes travelling 12 hours a day in this way.

Mr. Low gives no set speeches except for radio broadcasts, where a text is required.

Besides getting up his campaign material, Mr. St. Laurent also must keep an eye on cabinet business, and there is often a bale of official mail and telegrams awaiting him. He is accompanied by at least two members of his secretariat.

While all four eat carefully, none take any special precautions against upset stomachs. Mr St. Laurent eats frugally, as usual, sharing with his staff whatever his car's chef serves up. He nibbles at Canadian cheese frequently.

TOUGHER IN NORTH

Mr. Drew eats in the same fashion, but more heartily. Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Low get the ordinary travellers' meals, plus those of lunch or dinner meetings. When in his far-north Peace River riding, Mr. Low sometimes stops for a meal and a night's lodgings at a private home.

In his frontier area, the Social Credit leader has a tougher life than his opponents. In earlier campaigns, he occasionally has had to sleep in his automobile when poor roads prevented him making the next stop. No reports of that kind of thing have reached here this time.

Mr. Low also has his laundry difficulties in the north. Recently, he sent a batch of linen to be cleaned and had to head east before getting it back. He went on short rations until it caught up with him.

The other leaders have done better, either carrying along enough to last them on various legs of the campaigns or getting quick jobs done at hotels here and there.

WEEK END RESTS

All four are showing plenty of endurance in standing up to the tiring job of campaigning. They work vigorously during the week but manage to back in some rest over the week-ends.

In the east, Prime Minister St. Laurent has spent two week-ends at his country home in Quebec. He also gets at least eight hours' sleep a night on the road, usually in bed by 10.30 p.m.

None of the leaders are taking any other special measures to guard their health, though the 71-year-old Mr. St. Laurent has been noticeably careful about guarding his voice. In St. John's, Nfld., he spoke at two outdoor meetings on a raw evening, and had Premier Smallwood explain to his hearers that his speeches were not going to be too long on that account.

The prime minister evidently was mindful of the 1949 campaign, when he had to take five days off from speaking because his voice failed him.

Oshawa Workers Reject Pact

WINDSOR (CP)—Employees of General Motors of Canada, Ltd., Oshawa, have voted against a proposed national agreement which was earlier approved by workers in various other company plants, officials of United Automobile Workers (CIO), announced here Thursday.

Employees of the Oshawa plant, the company's main assembly plant, objected to "language changes" in the contract which the workers said would give them a "poorer contract" than they now have.

Their decision prevents acceptance of the new pact although workers at Windsor, London, St. Catharines and Toronto plants had approved it.

George Burt, Canadian director at the UAW, said Thursday result of the Oshawa vote was disappointing but that he felt an agreement could be worked out at meetings between either the various local unions or at a national General Motors "get-together" of all plant units.

Selwyn News

Mrs. Neil Blewett and infant daughter have returned home from Civic Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davis and son Jerry of Texas, U.S.A., spent their vacation with relatives in this vicinity. Billy Davis of Peterborough accompanied them on their return home.

Mr. Harold Preston spent a week in New York and other points in the U.S.A.

Rev. Fleetham, replacing the Rev. D. P. Morris, occupied the pulpit in the United Church for the first time Sunday evening. He came to the Bridgenorth, Fairview and Selwyn circuit from Saskatchewan.

Norwood News

Mr. James Rice and Mr. Arden Reid of Candor, N.Y., spent a couple of days recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Blakely of Oshawa spent the weekend with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Golloher.

Mrs. Frank Andrews spent a couple of weeks at Balsam Lake.

SKATER NOW BABY-SITTER — Barbara Ann Scott arrived in London, Ont., to visit the president of the University of Western Ontario and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Hall, but stayed on as baby-sitter when the Halls took off for Europe. "Never had so much fun in my life," said the famous skater, shown with George Edward, 3½, and Elizabeth, 1½, the Halls' two youngest children. "I'm very domesticated, you know, and I'm smart, too. By ten every morning I have the babies fed, bathed and out. I have the dishes done and the washing on the line."

WI Will Pay Visit To Local Industries

SELWYN (ENS) — Sixteen members answered roll call at the Women's Institute.

An invitation from the South Smith WI to attend their meeting on August 19 was accepted by about 12 members. The ladies plan to visit two industries in Peterborough on August 11 in place of their regular meeting.

Mrs. Evans Blewett and Mrs. Kenneth Sweeting gave a report on the 50th anniversary of the Warsaw WI.

Mrs. George McIlmoyl introduced Mrs. Johnston, of Lakefield, who gave a demonstration on making fancy sandwiches. Her samples were later enjoyed by the ladies when lunch was served. She was thanked by Mrs. McIlmoyl.

Following the singing of the Natoinal Anthem, lunch was served.

To Judge At Fair

HEREFORD, England (Reuters) —Britain's most travelled breeder of pedigree Hereford cattle, Elwyn Jones of Hay-on-Wye, near here, has accepted an invitation to judge Hereford cattle at the Toronto Winter Fair. He will be the first English breeder to judge Herefords in Canada.

Report Blind Means Test May Be Dropped

TORONTO—The federal government is considering elimination of the means test for allowances to the blind, the reduction of the age at which blind persons become eligible for the allowances from 21 to 16, and continuance of the allowance after 70 in addition to the old age pension, E. R. Powell said Thursday. He is national secretary of the Canadian Federation of the Blind.

In his report to the Federation's national convention which started yesterday and ends Saturday at Toronto Branch headquarters, 1010 Gerrard St. E., he said the national office of the organization had written to leaders of each political party in Canada, asking them their stand on the matter.

"We expect that the approaching federal election will bring out many promises for the three or four items we are pressing for . . . and we are anxious to have a statement in black and white," he told the 30 delegates.

MOST IMPORTANT

Mr. Powell claims the allowance aims are the most important of the organization, because of "the great need for bringing not only the organization but our individual blind people into a position of relative independence."

Founded in 1928 by Philip E. Layton of Montreal, the federation has 800 members in Canada, and is supported by donations. The chairman and vice-chairman and all members must be blind persons, although there are sighted associate members and the secretary is not blind. A co-operative and social centre has been built in national headquarters, Regina, and much of the work consists of organizing small workshops through the country, planning social evenings and sending out cheques to help the needy.

WORKING TOGETHER NOW—Working on the "same team" now in Germany are Maj. Richard Cummings, of Toronto (right) and his batman-driver, Gerhardt. During the Second World War, Gerhardt was a German sapper sergeant-major who fought against Maj. Cummings, then a sergeant, at Dunkirk in 1940, and later at Monte Cassino in Italy. Maj. Cummings now is in charge of accommodation for the 6,000 members of the 2th Infantry Brigade.

Airman Killed

LANGRUTH, Man. (CP)—RCAF officials said one of two men killed when a plane crashed in a training exercise near here Thursday was FO. A. B. MacGregor from Moose Creek in Ontario's Stormont County. The other victim was a trainee from Holland.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Federation of Agriculture Picnic at Nicholls Oval Friday, July 24....Peterborough Farmers Assumed Leadership in Organization of Ontario Federation....Twilight Crops Meeting July 20 at Robt. Armstrong Farm in Cavan.

Peterborough was the first county in Ontario to organize in February 1939 a branch of the proposed Chamber of Agriculture.

Its president, James Gifford of Ennismore, became the first president of the Chamber, subsequently the Federation of Agriculture.

Vivian S. Milburn of Peterborough was the first secretary of the provincial organization, and has been sustained in that position and responsibility continuously to the present.

And, the inspiration that brought Peterborough county into primacy of action was generated within its county council, the municipal representatives of the agricultural representatives.

PICNIC JULY 24

Peterborough county has served well the cause of the organized farmers of Ontario and Canada, as these facts indicate. They may be recalled with a deep sense of satisfaction on the occasion of the picnic of the county Federation of Agriculture at Nicholls Oval Friday, July 24.

Harold Lewis of Smith township, fieldman of the Peterborough Federation, recently suggested a review of its founding and progress as a reminder and incentive to the young men and women who have grown up and into its service from their early youth.

This county's Federation is now in its fifteenth year. Some of its more recently married adult members were pupils in country schools that February afternoon when a large company of their elders assembled at the Court House in response to the call of the agricultural committee of the county council.

The intention of those farmers was implied in the name of the new project—a Chamber of Agriculture, and rural counterpart of the urban Chamber of Commerce. It reflected recognition of a need of co-operative action to improve the position of their industry, and to secure a voice for agriculture commensurate with its importance in the economy of the nation.

That was the beginning and broadly the objective, which has been gradually attained, and the progressive development of the Federation, scanned in retrospect, should thrill the young people of the rural community the more they acquaint themselves of the success their fathers accomplished.

AT IFAP IN ROME

For instance, Mr. C. A. Milligan of Napanee, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, should not be expected at next Friday's picnic. He was appointed a delegate from Ontario with the Canadian group attending the sessions of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers ending in Rome Friday, June 17, this week.

International affiliation was worlds away from the thinking of the Peterborough farmers who decided without faltering to proceed into the first steps of setting up their own local branch. Today they are capably represented in IFAP. Its meetings in 1949 were held at OAC, Guelph, and their own national president, Herbert H. Hannam, is now a past president of the International Federation.

RENEW WHEAT PACT

Renewal of the international wheat agreement was reported in press news from Rome within the last week. The main feature of IFAP is its actual establishment, representing 20 million farmers around the world in 28 countries.

In its global institution, IFAP has to face and consider problems affecting nations, just as the county Federation has to deal with local matters, and support through its delegates the policies and activities of its provincial body and its national organization.

That is a meaure of the long way the initiative of Peterborough farmers has been projected since their tentative appointment of provisional directors back in 1939.

Continuing satisfaction should remain with the Peterborough farmers in the leadership which they found that winter afternoon within their own ranks.

The day is passed when any Peterborough farmer should indicate indifference toward the Federation, or lack of information about its works. Virtually every rural commodity group has shared in its help, and other subsidiary organizations have received its corporate assistance.

IMPORTANCE OF FORUMS

Farm Radio Forum of Canada alone, of which Mr. Wellington Sutton is its Ontario chairman, was a great conception of rural service that is the envy of other countries. Other Peterborough men have been executives of one organization or another in the constituency of the Federation.

The enterprising spirit is here, the ability is here, as the fifteen years of experience and test have demonstrated. On the other hand, there are still farmers, here and elsewhere, who are quite content to let others bear the load of executive work that has to be done. If they were all ardent about the Federation and the place which they actually have in it, through their group memberships, they would be greatly reinforcing the place and influence in the nation to which they are entitled. A mere passive attitude is not much help to the organization which has been begotten of the conviction and wisdom of rural people.

Spring Show Executive

A meeting of the executive of the Central Ontario Spring Show has been called by president Robert Armstrong for Thursday, July 23, at 8 p.m., in Peterborough at the office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

This first meeting since the show in March has been delayed partly by weeks' illness of the secretary, Oliver A. Dalrymple, of Stirling. It is understood the treasurer will report a profit, and that the credit of the show has now moved up into four figures. Exact information will be available at this executive meeting.

Holsteins to Venezuela

A shipment of 30 head of high class purebred Canadian Holsteins has recently been made to Venezuela. This is one of the few lots of purebred Holsteins ever to leave Canada for Venezuela. The purchaser was J. J. Rossi, acting for C. A. Agrolactea, Caracas, Venezuela.

The 30 head consisted of 29 first calf heifers and one second calf heifer. According to Mr. Weaver, they were a top group from the standpoint of type and all were from dams that had qualified in the Record of Performance for production. The Venezuelans liked animals of good size, about half white and half black.

The cattle were trucked to St. Petersburg Fla., and from there flown to Venezuela. They shipped well and the buyer was well pleased with them on their arrival. He is planning to return for a further shipment in November.

Meet Monday Evening

A twilight meeting of Peterborough and Durham grain clubs and crop improvement associations has been arranged by agricultural representatives Ed. Summer and Frank Paterson for Monday, July 20, at 7:30 p.m. at Robert Armstrong's farm in Cavan.

A crop inspection tour will look over fields of Cornell and Dawbul wheat, Clinton, Beaver, Abegweit oats, and the new Simcoe variety; Barboff barley, Oron Orchard Grass and Rhizoma Alfalfa. The variety test plots of oats and barley are also interesting, and there is Mr. Armstrong's experience with ammonium nitrate.

Prof. George Jones of OAC field husbandry department, Stuart Bowman of production service of the Federal Department of Agriculture, and Ken Fallis, of the Ontario crops, seeds and weeds branch, will be the speakers.

A general invitation is being extended to farmers.

Labor Leaves Land

Farm workers are deserting the land at the rate of 1,000 a month, aggravating the shortage of labor when it is needed for the harvest, John A. Carroll, deputy minister of agriculture for Ontario, said at Seaforth the other day. He was speaking at the 14th annual field day of the Huron Federation of Agriculture.

Although the rural population is now only 14 per cent of the country's total, production has not dropped and farming is more efficient than ever, Mr. Carroll emphasized. Canada is rapidly becoming industrialized, faster than any other country, enlarging the home market, but leaving a labor problem.

In his 40 years' work with the department, Mr. Carroll said he had observed the progress of farmers in taking action to help themselves. The Federation was needed now and would be needed in the days ahead. He said the policy of bringing seasonal help from the east and west had not proved satisfactory. To date this year 1,400 new Canadians have been brought into the country. Mr. Carroll urged farmers to register for 300 German farmers who as expected this week.

Harold Lewis Thanks The Press

By J. HAROLD LEWIS
Secretary-Fieldman, Peterborough Federation of Agriculture

"It has been a pleasure to have turned back some of the pages of the past of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture and to look progress at this time of our picnic in the 15th year of its useful existence for our farmers.

The Federation was organized to unify and co-ordinate all farm groups in one body, under one name, and with the purpose of obtaining for agriculture a measure of economic justice and stability so necessary for its sound development.

With co-operation since 1939 has come greater prestige, experience and knowledge that have proved most valuable in working with our federal and provincial Departments of Agriculture. By working with them and other provincial organizations we believe we can do something to help solve national and international problems.

It has always been the policy of the Federation of Agriculture to promote educational programs and to assist farm organizations when asked for help, providing the board of directors consider the claim reasonable and just.

This sound approach to problems faced by the Federation has resulted in co-operation from our Members of Parliament, Department of Agriculture, the county press and local radio station.

I know this support has been sincerely appreciated by the rural people of this district. We take this opportunity of thanking the Examiner for the courtesies we have received from its general manager, Mr. Harold L. Garner, and for the space that is given to Federation affairs in its present issue."

(Mr. Lewis may not have been specially schooled in the arts of public relations, but his appointment as Fieldman of the Federation discovered his ability and aptitude for that work.—Ed.)

John Broderick Picnic Speaker

V. S. Milburn, secretary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, and John Broderick of St. Catherines, past president, have promised to attend as speakers at the picnic of the Peterborough Federation and Farm Forums at Nicholls Oval Friday July 24.

James D. Moore secretary of the Canadian 4-H Clubs Council is expected to be here from Ottawa.

Victoria county Federation has been sent an invitation to join with their Peterborough neighbours.

Harold Lewis says the picnic program will begin with lunch at noon. People are asked to bring their own baskets. Just to stimulate interest in early arrival, a draw for attendance prizes is set for 1 p.m. Three worth while prizes are being offered.

Keene and Norwood are putting on a ball game; there will be program of races for adults and children; and some competitions such as nail driving.

Peterborough county council has received an invitation, in recognition of their sponsorship from the inception of the county Federation.

Harold Lewis, fieldman, says that if the Forum members put some of their enthusiasm and effort into the picnic it will bring out a big rural crowd.

"Federation Has Earned Confidence Of Farmers

By HENRY A. SHARPE
President of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture

"Although we are in the fifteenth year of our organization, too many farmers are not well informed about the record of its accomplishments.

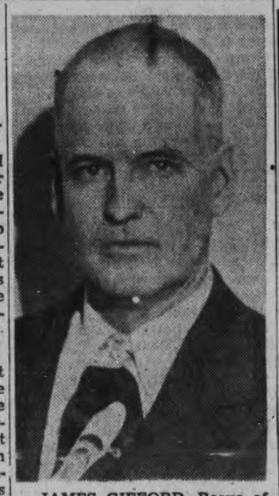
"One of the first active branches of our Federation was the swine committee it set up to secure some stability of the market and of hog prices. The problems of producers and processors were studied together, and a solution sought for both.

HENRY SHARPE, of Smith township, is the current president of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture. He came up from the Junior Farmers into the senior association and its executive, and was advanced to the presidency in succession to W. W. Dawson.

"The means of harmonizing rural interests by conference within our common organization is one of the special advantages of the Federation of Agriculture. From time to time there are likely to be similar problems affecting different branches of our industry, and it is in our own organization that the best approach to practical compromise can be found.

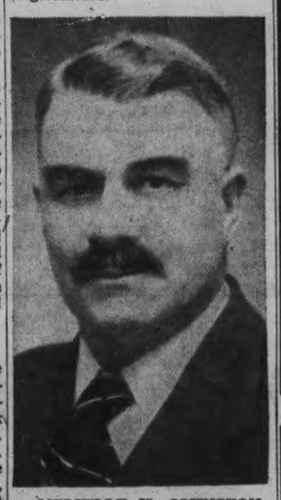
SCOPE OF ACTIVITIES

"Some of the other important concerns of the Federation include the subsidy on feed grain, income tax, the option of averaging payments over five years, freight rates, tariff concessions on farm implements, the substantial increase in indemnities to farmers for trespass on their properties by highways, Hydro-Electric power lines and more recently oil pipe lines, Workmen's Compensation for the industry of farming, the development of Farm Radio Forums, rural assessment matters, producer marketing schemes and various other activities relating to agriculture.



"One of the Federation's main achievements has been in the development of relations with the federal and provincial governments. We have set up our national office in Ottawa, and our Ontario headquarters in Toronto, and by sound and reasonable attitudes we have won the respect and confidence of government. Ontario and Canadian farmers have developed this asset of being assured of prompt hearings on questions which they wish to present to the federal and provincial governments.

PROBLEMS OF CHANGE



"This acquired standing in the Canadian community can be sustained only by the active co-operation of our rural people. The work of the Federation is never done. New problems have to be expected. Besides we must realize that we are in an age of change of ideas, practices, economy, and we must be prepared to meet it. The need of unity, intelligence and sound leadership is greater than ever.

"We know by their membership that we have the support of most of our farmers in their commodity groups, Forums, Co-Operative services and other valuable agencies.

"We feel that the Federation has earned their confidence, and that by its experience since 1939 it is betetr equipped than ever to represent their interests. And so, we urg farmers to be more active members of our Federation of Agriculture."

JAMES GIFFORD, Reeve of Ennismore township, first president of the Peterborough Federation, and also first president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

MELVILLE H. JOHNSTON, who succeeded James Gifford as the second president of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture, is president of the county Hog Producers' Association, and has been active on the Federation's swine committee for 15 years.

Federation Of Agriculture Organized In 1939 As Chamber Of Agriculture

Credit for the initiative which brought about the inception of the Peterborough Federation of Agriculture is due to the county council of 1939. This testimony is shown in the minutes which, in the beginning, were kept by F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative.

Those first venturing steps are interesting to recall directly from the annals of the Federation as a reminder of the manner in which this rural organization was formed. So, in retrospect some of the minutes are quoted as they were written:

The first entry is dated: "Court House, Peterborough, Feb. 18, 1939 . . .

In response to an invitation of the Agricultural Committee of the county council, a meeting of about 100 farmers was held in the county buildings on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 18.

This meeting was called for the purpose of discussing, and if possible, organizing a county of Peterborough Chamber of Agriculture.

The chairman, James Gifford, outlined the proposal, explaining that the Agricultural Committee of the County Council had sponsored the movement believing that some definite organization necessary to attempt to improve the general agricultural situation.

F. C. Paterson, Agricultural representative, was asked to speak regarding the situation. He stated that the Ontario Department of Agriculture believed that an organization representing all farmers in the province was necessary to deal effectively with the present agricultural situation.

Warden James Milby urged the farmers to unite. John McColl agreed that something should be done. Melville Johnston thanked the people for coming out over the rather bad roads to the meeting.

V. S. Milburn spoke of the advantages such an organization could render the farmers, and the need of a strong voice from organized farmers.

G. A. Brethen approved the idea, and suggested that politicians should be told what farmers want.

THE DECIDING STEP

The following resolution was moved by Charles E. Moore, seconded by Ephraim Brown: "Whereas it is desirable that farmers should unite in common organization for the purpose not only of educating the general public in the needs and requirements of Agriculture, but also for the purpose of making such representations to Parliament and the Legislature as may be necessary from time to time with the object of procuring legislation best calculated to advance the interest of Agriculture;

And, whereas the establishment of a Chamber of Agriculture appears to be best calculated to promote the above objects,

Therefore, be it resolved that those present together with others joining hereafter do constitute themselves into a Chamber of Agriculture and that a committee be appointed forthwith to take such steps as they may deem convenient or necessary for the completion of the organization, including the drafting of a constitution."—Passed unanimously.

Peter Mather asked for an outline of activities for the Ontario Chamber of Agriculture. V. S. Milburn explained at some length the activities of the provincial organization.

The following resolution was moved by Clarence Mann and seconded by Gordon Hancock: Resolved that the agricultural committee of the county council should be provisional directors of the Peterborough Chamber of Agriculture; and that they with the Agricultural Representative should be a nominating committee to submit a representative list of provisional directors to this meeting.

The agricultural committee adjourned. They brought in and submitted a list of names to the meeting. Moved by H. E. Petrie, seconded by Earl Tully that the list of names submitted be Provisional Directors. The list was as follows:

Gordon Hancock —Exhibition Board; Robert Armstrong, Seed Growers; John Kitney, Vegetable Growers; F. E. Birdsall, Livestock Improvement; G. A. Brethen, Norwood; Isaac Anderson, Belmont; Jay Whittington, South Monaghan; James Gifford, Ennismore; Alan B. Mann; W. A. Anderson, John McColl, M. H. Johnston, Robert Martin, Dummer; Warden James Milby.

George A. Elliott, Cheese Producers; Eddie Butler, Whole Milk Producers; C. E. Moore, Holstein Club; V. S. Milburn, Milk Producers; S. S. Staples, Clydesdale Breeders; Gale Elliott, Shorthorn Breeders; Ephraim H. Brown, U.F.O.; Clarence Mann, Concentrated Milk Producers; Harry Jackson, Omemee; Martin Coughlin; Fred A. Eason, Keene; Joseph Crowley, Elmer Milburn, Charles Wittington.

Milton Clark, William Anderson and A. B. Mann strongly supported the steps that were being taken.

Eddie Butler, President of the Whole Milk Producers, said arrangements to finance the Chamber were necessary, but no one need be afraid of the cost.

Provisional directors met after adjournment, and decided to hold a meeting March 4 at the office of the Department of Agriculture.

That was the prelude to the establishment of the Chamber of Agriculture.

THE FIRST OFFICERS

Eighteen directors attended their meeting March 4. James Gifford was appointed chairman in a motion by Melville H. Johnston seconded by Wallace Anderson.

A motion by Gordon Hancock, seconded by Sam S. Staples, named Frank C. Paterson, secretary "pro-tem".

The secretary accepted the position on the understanding that some one else should act as secretary whenever it appeared desirable, or conditions arose which might be unsatisfactory for the agricultural representative to hold the position of secretary.

A moion by Gordon Hancock and Eph Brown recommended that each county farm organization should be asked to affiliate with the Chamber, and be asked to provide the Chamber with a list of their members. Carried.

Moved by Sam Staples and Wallace Anderson that the president and secretary, E. Butler, M. H. Johnston and E. Brown be a finance committee, to bring in a report on a suitable method of financing the Chamber.

The secretary was asked to write the farm organizations in the county, requesting them to affiliate.

Prior to these resolutions, a tentatived raft of a constitution was read by the secretary, but when it came to the question of finance, it was decided to delay decision on the constitution until the various organizations had an opportunity to assist in planning for finances.

M. H. Johnston introduced a question of hogs. His motion seconded by Isaac Anderson, named the following committee to prepare a program for swine producers: John McColl, Fred Eason, Willard Waterman, J. F. Walsh, Clayton Sanderson, with Mr. McColl chairman.

It was moved by W. A. Anderson and Melville Johnston that the chairman of the Chamber, Mr. Gifford, should be a delegate to the Eastern Canada Agricultural Conference to be held in Montreal late in March.

FINANCIAL NEST EGG

William A. Anderson informed the meeting that he was going to contribute a fund, which he had in his possession, to the Chamber of Agriculture. It was money contributed by various farmers for certain purposes some years ago. The balance had been lying in the bank for years. It seemed better to turn it over to the Chamber treasury than for the bank to record it as an unclaimed account.

C. E. Moore told the meeting the U.F.O. were holding a banquet Mar. 23. It was moved by A. B. Mann and M. H. Johnston that Mr. Paterson be treasurer pro-tem as well as secretary.

An executive committee was named as follows: Jas. Gifford, M. H. Johnston (vice-president), F. C. Paterson, Gordon Hancock and W. A. Anderson.

About 80 members attended a general meeting at the Court House Sat., April 15. James Gifford, chairman, gave an outline of the agricultural conference on marketing in Montreal. Eddie Butler spoke on that subject particularly about butter, cheese and other dairy products. He emphasized that the Conference had stressed the need of farmers developing an organization.

Most of the discussion turned to the marketing of hogs, and it was moved by John McColl and A. B. Mann that something be done to the stabilize thep rice of hogs for at least one week at a time. Mr. McColl suggested that Ken Morrison, of Co-Operative Packers, Barrie, be invited "to come over and address the Chamber."

A meeting of the provisional directors, December 11, proposed a membership fee of 25c for those who were not members of affiliated organizations. The executive was instructed to arrange for the annual meeting.

The annual meeting January 27 at the Court House was attended by 40 members. Mr. Gifford gave a report on the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Agriculture, January 24-26, in Ottawa. A good deal of discussion centred on the bacon deal with the United Kingdom.

OTTAWA OFFICE NEEDED

This was one paragraph from the minutes, summarizing Mr. Gifford's statement: "Boards appointed by the government had no representatives chosen by farmers. There is a great need for farm organizations. Setting up our own office in Ottawa required $15,000 or maybe $25,000 a year."

Speakers at the Court House meeting included H. B. Cowan and J. J. Duffus. Warden John McColl gave an encouraging talk. G. A. Brethen was appointed auditor. George Mullen, Willard Waterman, Gus Bolin and Milton Clark were added to the swine committee.

M. H. JOHNSTON PRESIDENT

At the directors' meeting April 13, Melville Johnston was elected president; George Mullen, vice-president; W.A. Anderson, second vice-president; F. C. Paterson, secretary - treasurer; executive: Milton Clark, James Gifford, Ed. Butler, John McColl, Gordon Hancock.

It was moved by Melville Johnston and George Mullen that the name "Peterborough Chamber of Agriculture" be changed to Peterborough Federation of Agriculture, in line with the hope expressed and resolutions adopted at the annual meeting of the Ontario organization and also the Canadian.

Mr. Gifford gave an interesting address dealing especially with the annual meeting of the Ontario Chamber of Agriculture which had been held in Toronto on April 1.

A letter from V. S. Milburn requested that a delegation be sent to a proposed meeting of Cream Patrons in Toronto April 19. The following were appointed to go: A. B. Mann, M. H. Johnston, W. A. Anderson, Milton Clark, J. Gifford, John McColl and Harry Blewett.

After considerable discussion about swine matters, it was moved by Gilbert McIlmoyl and Clayton Hanbidge that the finance committee and the swine committee should meet and bring in a report re organizing the various producer groups and financing their activities.

The members previously named were: J. McColl, F. Eason, W. Waterman, John Walsh, Clayton Sanderson, Elmer Milburn, G. Mullen, G. Bolin and Milton Clark; M. H. Johnston, F. C. Paterson, Ed. Butler, E. H. Brown.

ONTARIO PRESIDENT

Here is another interesting minute: "The election of officers followed. Mr. Gifford expressed his desire to resign owing to the fact that he had been elected as president of the Ontario Federation, and he believed that other men in the county should become avtice." So, Melville Johnston, who had nominated Mr. Gifford in the previous year, succeeded to the presidency.

The executive of the Federation on April 29 made its first contribution to the Ontario organization. The motion of W. A. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Gifford, authorized that $75 should be sent to the Ontario Federation of Agriculture at once, $25 to pay for last year's balance of affiliation fees and $50 for the 1940 affiliation dues.

Some members may recall this minute: "In connection with bacon, the question was raised: could export hogs be paid for on one basis and domestic hogs on another?"

A $2 premium on top quality bacon carcasses was urged at the executive meeting May 14, 1940. Mr. Gifford reported on an enquiring trip to discuss pork topics with Ken Morrison at Barrie. Messrs. Johnston, Gifford, Moore and Eason were appointed to arrange for a picnic.

FINANCING PROPOSAL

A finance committee November 22, 1940, proposed (by Eph Brown and Ed Butler) that further consideration be given the suggestion that the municipal councils of all counties should be approached with a view to having the county councils grant their county Federations a sum annually, approximately amounting to one-half cent per acre of the improved land in their counties.

Directors on January 10, 1941, mention another new undertaking for the first time. "Considerable discussion followed regarding Radio Forums. This program of radio listeners was more or less left in the hands of the young people who are to meet January 13 at the Co-operative."

Moved by C. Hanbidge and R. Armstrong that the Federation hold a noon luncheon about the middle of February on the 18 or 20.

NATURE'S OFF THE BEAM—TOO MANY LEGS, TOO FEW EYES — A three-legged goose, left, has his spare "paddle" shown by Mrs. Deane Stahmann, Jr., of Las Cruces, N.M. The Strahmanns are raising their share of some 200,000 "double duty" birds which are first used as hoe hands in weeding cotton fields, and then sold to housewives. Look carefully at the little kitten, right, cuddling up to its mother in Palermo, Italy. It's a modern-day "Cyclops," a feline version of the Greek one-eyed man. Named "Polyphemus," its one eye is in the centre of its forehead.

Farmers Unite Their Efforts

(By Ed. Butler, President of Peterborough Milk Producers' Association).

Our county association through the Ontario Milk Producers' League has taken an active interest in the work of the Federation of Agriculture.

In the early years, farmers were divided into small commodity groups, each trying to get along by itself. They found it difficult to approach governing bodies to institute improved legislation so that agriculture could move forward with the times.

Our dairy farmers can now say that with the help of the provincial and federal governments their industry has moved forward into high standards of quality. Our Peterborough consumers today take the quality of our butter, cheese and milk for granted. It is something they never question. That is part of our achievement.

But, there is always more work to be done in maintaining our position, new problems to be faced. So, in congratulating the Peterborough Federation on its splendid record of fifteen years, we also wish them fresh vitality and energy and good common sense for the future."

Farm Forum Is Study Group Of Federation Agriculture

(By Wellington Sutton, Chairman of the Ontario Farm Radio Forum).

One reason why the opinions of farmers are respected today is because of the recognition given the practice of farm people in meeting together to discuss their difficulties.

Through Farm Radio Forum, the facts of the issue are carefully examined, various points of view are represented and a more exact appraisal of the situation is possible. By listening to experts discuss the topic on the National CBC network, by having the latest factual information set out succinctly in the Farm Forum Guide, by having speakers in to visit the local Forum and by discussing the question thoroughly, Ontario farmers are better able to pass on to the county and Ontario Federation of Agriculture officials their points of view.

Over the twelve years that Farm Forum groups have been meeting, many resolutions calling for action through the Federation have been forwarded by the study groups. The Federation is the action body; the Farm Forum its educational arm.

The farm forum is in no sense a pressure group or lobby for it is engaged solely in adult educational programs encouraging study and discussion among farm people. Nevertheless, Farm Forum members who keep informed about the changes in agricultural practices and are aware of the problems facing agriculture as an industry have been among the most active supporters of the Federation of Agriculture.

In a recent statement, Mr. V. S. Milburn, secretary-manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said: "We value highly the careful thought Forum members are giving to agricultural problems of the day, for out of the opinions expressed at Farm Forum on Monday nights come the seed-germ of Federation policy. We need the participation of every last Ontario farmer in Farm Forum, and the Federation of Agriculture if our farm organizations are to be truly democratic."

WELLINGTON SUTTON has been one of the most active promoters of Farm Forums in Peterborough county, chairman of the Ontario Farm Forum and delegate to the National Forum sessions.

Cheese Income Problem Still

By FRED M. CROWE
President of Peterborough County Cheese Producers

"The Ontario Cheese Producers Association came into being in the 1930's when so many farm groups weret rying to cure their ills by organization.

"In the early days auction boards had been established and nearly all cheese was sold to the highest bidder. After the 1914-18 war the domestic market began to need more cheese and also to demand special types which were not suitable for export to Britain. Cheese factories began turning a portion of their milk into specials, and contracting with buyers to take all their cheese at a price subject to the ruling price on local boards. By 1930 many boards had closed and those still operating were not listing enough cheese to create a true price. Producers felt they were not getting their share of the consumer's dollar.

"After organization one of their first projects was to secure legislation enforcing compulsory boarding of all cheese.

"Since that time the association has worked steadily in the producers' interest, and has faced marketing problems all the way from requisitioning in wartime, which left the home market short, to loss of export markets due to monetary troubles which have left the home market glutted.

"One of the greatest needs today is a public relations program on a province-wide basis.

"It is doubtful if there is another county as favorably situated as Peterborough with access to a weekly Federation of Agriculture radio broadcast and a weekly farm page in the local paper with a sympathetic farm editor."

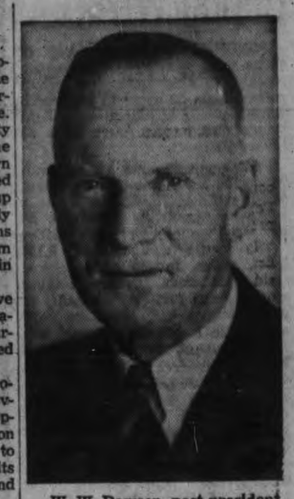
Co-Op Medical Services Pay Hospital Expenses

By W. W. DAWSON
President of Peterborough Co-Operative Medical Services

"Our Medical and Surgical Co-Operative Services are one of the successful undertakings of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture.

"This co-operative community activity had been instituted some years ago in counties of western Ontario. It had also been started in Peterborough city by a group headed by Quirt McKinney. Finally at one of our Federation luncheons we had as guest speaker William McCarthy, president of Dufferin county medical services.

"As a result of that meeting we decided to form a rural organization, and after continuing by ourselves for awhile we amalgamated with the city group.



"At present more than 2,000 people in the county and city are covered by our Peterborough Co-Operative Medical Services, and on July 1 its scope was extended to surgical cases. So, our benefits extend to hospital, medical and surgical costs.

"We paid out in benefits last year around $10,000, and had a surplus of $3,000. For the new surgical branch we have 150 accepted members. We are hoping that this number will be greatly increased. Benefits include hospital costs; anaesthetic and X-ray requirements and of course the regular charges of doctors.

"This is a community co-operative enterprise. The members own and control it. So far, our affairs have gone along smoothly, and we now had the advantage of the experience we have gained. On behalf of the directors, I'd like to express our appreciation of the work of our secretary, Miss Olive Bell, and our Fieldman, Harold Lewis.

"We also have some 30 group secretaries who have been an invaluable help. Without any charge to our Co-Operative they look after renewals, new memberships and so on, and are a strong right arm of our services. I would like to emphasize that this is a community activity by the people and for the people. Our administration costs are at a minimum, and our results should commend the Services to increasing numbers from the county and city.

"Our other directors are: Milton Clark, Mrs. R. R. Stewart, Mrs. Morris Telford, Ferdinand Rowland, Henry Sharpe, Charles English and Harry Garnet."

W. W. Dawson, past president of Peterborough Federation, is president of the Kawartha Co-operative Medical Services, one of the helpful organizations fostered by the Federation.

Cattle Receipts Heavier During Week

TORONTO (CP) — Receipts of cattle were heavier at the Ontario stockyards this week and prices gained from 50 cents to $1. Steers were a strong $1 higher while light steers and heifers were fully $1 higher in spots.

Fed yearlings, cows and bulls advanced 50 cents, but cows lost their gain at the close, ending up at a complete standstill. Holdovers at the week's close were 400 cattle.

The cattle run totalled 8,197 head, added to 150 carried over from last week. Choice weighty steers were $20-21; medium to good weighty $18-19; choice light steers $20-21; medium to good $18-19; common downward to $16; good heifers $19-19.50; one load $20-25; common to medium $14-18.

Good cows sold at $14.50-15 in the early part of the week with light heifer cows up to $16, but bids were $1.50 lower on Tuesday with no action at all on Wednesday. Good butcher bulls brought up to $14 while heavy fat bulls $12-13; common downward to $10; choice fed yearlings $21-22; medium to good $18-20. Stocker trade was slow at $15-19 for medium to good with a few at $19.50.

Calves totalled 1,640 head. Good to choice veal calves gained $1 to $2 to sell at $21-23. A few topped $24 with common to medium $12-20 and bulk of sale at $15-20; grassers brought $10-14.

The hog run was 2,532 with prices unsettled Monday and Tuesday morning, but settled at 50 cents higher for $33.50 on grade A. Dressed sows brought $23.

Sheep and lambs totalled 947 head. Lambs sold steady at $30 for good ewes and wethers with bucks $29; good light sheep $9-11; common to medium $4-7.

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE BANDWAGON with dashing driver Harold Holman at the wheel, appeared on city streets on Thursday afternoon. Harold is talking to two party stalwarts, David Dunham, left front, and Bill White, while Carol Goy listens. The fancy chariot, Harold said, was made from pick-up parts plus lumber, $2.48, axles 40 cents and paint 85 cents.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Summer Theatre To Present GBS's Pygmalion

The Summer Theatre is presenting George Bernard Shaw's most famous comedy, "Pygmalion", starting Monday. Since the opening five seasons ago, "Pygmalion" has been the play most constantly in demand by theatre audiences. The opening on Monday also coincides with the beginning of the CGE holidays, so good seats will be available to the first performance. "Pygmalion" is a difficult and most demanding play to stage, and up until now the summer company have not felt sufficiently confident to tackle this task. With the arrival in Canada of English actress Margaret Braidwood, Michael Sadlier has re-arranged the summer programme in order to present "Pygmalion." Miss Braidwood recently played the role of Eliza Doolittle, the cockney flower girl, most successfully in England.

The central role of Henry Higgins will be played by Robert Gill, who also produces the comedy. Mr. Gill who is the director of Hart House Theatre, staged "Pygmalion" at the theatre last winter for the University of Toronto. Since coming to Canada six years ago Robert Gill has done very little acting. Last week in "The Winslow Boy" he returned to the boards and made a great success in the supporting role of the family solicitor.

Cigarette Causes $600 Blaze In Couple's Flat

A smouldering cigarette butt on a chesterfield caused $600 damage to the upstairs apartment of Rod MacInnes, 276 McDonnel St., late Thursday afternoon.

First signs of the fire were noticed by William Todd of 259 McDonnel St., who was down the street at the time. He saw smoke coming out of the upstairs window and went over and asked them what the trouble was and did they need any help. Another neighbor, Mrs. Philip Anderson called the fire department.

Mr. MacInnes shares the house with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacInnes.

At the time the fire broke out Mrs. Kenneth MacInnes was at work at the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company and her husband, Kenneth MacInnes was resting downstairs on a day bed. Roddie MacInnes was upstairs in his apartment sleeping when the fire broke out in his living room.

By the time fire department had arrived, smoke was bellowing out of the upstairs apartment's window. The smoke was so thick that it killed Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacInnes' pet budgie bird.

Mrs. William Collins, the next door neighbor just came home as the fire department arrived and helped the firemen get Kenneth MacInnes, who is partially blind and lame into her house.

The firemen had the flames out in 20 minutes. Only damage done to the apartment was in the living room. All the furniture in the room was destroyed. The house is owned by Mrs. Annie Monroe.

PROUD BROTHER

A bright young 12-year-old announced on Thursday to his companions on one of the city playgrounds that a baby sister had arrived the previous evening at his home, making the eleventh member of the family. He had notice his father handing out the cigars and he felt he must follow in his dad's footsteps, hence he came to the playground loaded down with chocolate candy cigars. These he distributed with the largess of any proud dad.—W.C.

Hospital Costs Below Estimates

Civic Hospital expenditures are running roughly $4,500 below budget estimates, six-month figures for 1953 show.

T. T. Rodger, treasurer, pointed this out at Thursday night's meeting of the board of governors, and termed it a satisfactory situation.

Net expeditures for the six months just past are $493,266.29. Half the budget estimates are $497,781.33.

In addition, roughly $5,700 was recovered from accounts receivable during June. Balance under this heading at the first of the month was $77,864.27, at the end of the month $72,133.72.

Operating revenue exceeds budget expectations by roughly $20,000. To the end of June, $403,256.73 was received; the budget estimate was $383,399.29.

Expenditures in administration were $6,000 less than expected, and for the cost of maintenance and services $2.500 less than anticipated. They were the fields in which major reductions were effected.

Minor Crashes Cause Damage Set At $70

Two minor accidents were reported on Peterborough streets Thursday. No one was injured in the crashes and property damage was limited to $70.

A car driven west on King St. by Miss Lornda Kearney of 514 Bonaccord, struck a second car driven by Arthur Borain of RR 2, Lakefield as Borain was pulling out of the McGillis Hotel parking lot.

William Martin, 35, of 242 Euclid, driving a truck struck a Detroit car driven by Arthur Harvey, 55. Harvey's vehicle was proceeding west on Lansdowne when the driver stopped suddenly to avoid a turning trailer.

Martin could not stop his truck in time to avoid striking the tourist's car.

Plan Motorcade To Bring Pearson To City

Peterborough Liberals have completed plans for a motorcade to Young's Point Tuesday evening to greet the Hon. L. B. Pearson and escort him to the city for his engagement in support of the candidature of Max Swanston. Canada's Secretary of State for External Affairs is coming into Peterborough County from the Bancroft section of Hastings.

The rendezvous at the "Point" is scheduled for 7 p.m., and the parade of cars is expected to reach Lakefield about 7:24. The minister will speak briefly at the Town Hall lawn and have an opportunity of meeting people of Reeve W. C. Grant's village.

The motorcade is due at the northern entrance to the city about 7:52 and will proceed from there by the following route:

Water Street to Parkhill Road, George Street, south to Lansdowne Steet to Park Street, north to Charlotte Street to Water Simcoe, George, Murray Street, ending at the parking space adjoining the Collegiate Institute about 8:15 p.m.

The meeting in the Collegiate Auditorium begins at 8:30 p.m. J. E. Gillespie is in charge of the parade of cars, with Carl Duffus, Ken Kingston, and Herb Shacher.

Hon. Mr. Pearson will find Peterborough greatly changed in area and appearance from his memories of it in his boyhood when he lived here, son of the Rev. Edwin Arthur Pearson and Annie Sarah (Bowles) Pearson. His father was minister of George Street United Church prior to the First War.

EDUCATED AT PCVS

Lester Pearson began his education here, completing his collegiate studies in Hamilton. After a year at the University of Toronto he enlisted with its hospital unit as a private and served in Salonika in 1915 and 1916. In 1917 he received a commission as lieutenant in the Canadian Army, and later transferred to the Royal Flying Corps as a flying officer.

After that First World War, he returned to the university and was graduated from Victoria College with a BA degree in history. He won a Massey Foundation Fellowship and went on to St. John's College, Oxford University, England. He returned to the University of Toronto as lecturer in the Department of History, and later was appointed assistant professor in that department.

As "Mike" Pearson he was coach of the Varsity football and hockey teams. In 1925 he was granted his MA from Oxford, and in 1946 was elected an Honorary Fellow at St. John's College, Oxford.

Mr. Pearson has received honorary degrees from the Universities of Toronto, Yale, New York, Rochester, McMaster, Syracuse, Ceylon, Oxford, Bates, Columbia, and Laval. He was appointed Chancellor of Victoria College, Toronto.

JOINED DEPARTMENT

In 1928, he entered the Department of External Affairs as first secretary. Until 1935 he served in Ottawa, and on special missions to Washington, London, The Hague, Geneva, and throughout Canada.

In 1948 it was announced by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, then Prime Minister, that Mr. Pearson was joining the Cabinet as Secretary of State for External Affairs. He was elected to the House of Commons as Liberal member for the riding of Algoma East in a by-election October 25 of that year, and was returned in the general elections in June, 1949.

On October 14, 1952, Mr. Pearson was elected President of the United Nations General Assembly at the opening meeting of the seventh session. In 1925 Mr. Pearson married Maryon Elspeth Moody of Winnipeg, and has two children, Arthur Holland and Patricia Lilian.

Finds Campaign Very Quiet–PM

MONTREAL (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, fresh from his election campaign tour of the West, swung into his home province of Quebec today and called the 1953 election campaign one of the quietest he has seen in years.

Mr. St Laurent said he had noticed less "political ardor" than he would like to see, but added he had received a "friendly" reception everywhere and was "satisfied."

The prime minister, arriving in Montreal after an overnight trip from Sudbury, talked with newspaper men in French and English while his party's three railway cars were switched to a train bound for Quebec.

Mr. St. Laurent said he did not think the Canadian people are worried about the country's future or about the state of the world's econ-

"Everyone seems to feel that things are pretty good and that there's nothing threatening on the horizon. A natural consequence of that is that not many people are stirred up about the election campaign."

St. Laurent Repudiates Campbell's Comment

MONTREAL (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent in a trainside interview today repudiated Colin Campbell's comment that Progressive Conservative leader George Drew is the most hated man in Canada.

"I haven't seen any evidence of hate for Mr. Drew or for myself," said Mr. St. Laurent. "There is no difference between political hate and any other kind."

Mr. St. Laurent said he didn't wish to express views on another's speeches but he was not conscious of having adopted the tone attributed to Mr. Campbell, former Ontario public works minister in the Liberal government of the late Mitchell Hepburn. He said he hoped others won's adopt it.

Whistle Starts Retirement For Six At CGE

For six employees of Canadian General Electric Company the 5 o'clock whistle blew the last time this afternoon.

It sent 4,500 off on their vacations. For the six long service men it sounded taps of retirement. Their total years in the company's service is 194.

Retiring today under the company's new pension plan are: Harold Bestard, with CGE 44 years; Vernon S. Foster, 27 years; Tom McFarland, 30 years; Ted Ryder and George Sexsmith, 28 years each; and Karl Mackay, 27 years.

One of the widely known induction motor engineers on this continent, Mr. Foster has headed Induction Motor Engineering during his lengthy service. He was responsible for redesigning CGE's induction motors in the early 1930's, securing company leadership in that field both in Canada and the United States, Roy T. Bogle has stated.

HEADED POWER DEPT.

Mr. Bestard moved to the head of the power department following the retirement of Robert S. Cotton. He had worked on transformers and in the paint shop previously.

George Sexsmith, father of Sergeant Percy Sexsmith of the city police department, was first hired as a teamster before joining the company permanently in 1925. He has been with wire and cable shipping 28 years.

Karl Mackay is a veteran of the tool room staff. He learned his trade in Glasgow, Scotland. His son, Karl, Jr., is in charge of a drafting section at CGE.

Ted Ryder says farewell to the machine shop where for 28 years he was engaged in piling, filing and fitting in that big department.

Tom McFarland first joined the CGE in 1910, in the transformer department. His continuous service began in 1923. For most of that time he has been an operator in the cambric room of the armature department.

EARNED RETIREMENT

Works Manager Bogle said of this group of veteran members of the company's employ: "They have earned their retirement on pension by many years of faithful service, teamwork and a desire at all times to do what they thought was right. We shall miss them very much. In most instances they possess skills which can be attained only by long years of service. However, we are happy to know as they leave today that they can all enjoy their retirement. I hope each will have good health and the maximum of benefits from their leisure hours for many years."

The company's new pension plan went into effect July 1. It offers increased benefits to present jobholders when they become eligible for pension and provision was made to extend additional benefits to CGE people before the new plan became operative.

"At Peterborough Works of CGE, more than 3,200 have joined the new pension plan so far," Mr. Bogle said. "The total for all our works and offices is more than 11,000. We hope that as other employees become eligible for membership these figures will be substantially increased."

Third Day's Meeting Starts To Seek Finish Of Quaker Oats Co. Strike

UPWA Official's Presence Seen Indication Negotiations At Crucial Stage; Wharry Says "Nothing Concrete" To Report

Officials of union and management are today meeting in Saskatoon for the third consecutive day in an attempt to find a mutually agreeable formula and end the strike there of 115 Quaker Oats Co. production workers. Members of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), last Sunday voted 251 to 46 to accept a compromise offer from the company which was reached at a special meeting called by Mayor Hugh Waddell last Thursday. However the 435 Peterborough production workers said they would not call off the strike until a satisfactory settlement was reached with the Saskatoon strikers.

In an effort to get a settlement Lewis H. Ingram, company vice-president in charge of personnel, Tuesday night flew by plane to Saskatoon. He conferred Wednesday, Thursday and now today with union officials.

NOTHING CONCRETE

James G. Wharry, company general manager, said today there was nothing concrete to report on the negotiations, but the two parties were continuing to meet.

Today, for the first time since Mr. Ingram arrived, a top UPWA official is sitting in on the talks. The international UPWA officer is Norman Riches, of Calgary, western director of the UPWA. His presence may indicate that negotiations have reached a crucial stage.

The latest company offer has not yet been made public.

Union officials in Peterborough concede they are in the dark so far as knowing the progress being made in the Saskatoon negotiations. Meanwhile, peaceful picketing continues and there have been no further attempts by the company to bring trucks through the picket lines.

Heat Wave Sees Rush On Pop, IceCreamMakers

The heat wave that hit the city Tuesday and sent thermometers soaring has caused a city-wide rush on pop and ice-cream manufacturers during the last three days.

One pop manufacturer in the city reports that they have increased their output by more than 40,000 bottles a day. Ice-cream producers have also reported an increase in sales and are loading their trucks to capacity to meet the increasing demand.

Although there is a scarcity of natural ice in the city, artificial ice producers have enough ice on hand to meet the demand all summer.

The highest the mercury has reached all week was 86 and that was on Thursday. Wednesday's high was 84 and Tuesday it was 82. The humidity has stayed the same, varying around 70 per cent, compared to last summer, which reached 90 per cent during July.

Lower Freight Rates Than U.S.–Chevrier

REGINA (CP)—Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier said Thursday night that Canada enjoys lower freight rates than the United States and has rates on a par with those in Britain.

Mr. Chevrier addressed a public meeting here on behalf of Agriculture Minister Gardiner, seeking re-election in the Melville constituency in the Aug. 10 federal election. About 500 persons attended, many of them railroaders and farmers.

The transport minister said the St. Lawrence seaway project would greatly assist movement of freight through the Great Lakes and would have a direct bearing on the western farmer. Continued development and increased population would do much to solve the freight rate problem and equalization of rates.

Bennett, Meighen Against Capitalism; Speaker Claims

MILLBROOK (ENS) — P. J. Rowe, former MY from Athabasca and native of Durham county was guest speaker at a meeting Wednesday evening in Port Hope Orange hall arranged by the Port Hope Sanitary Local of the United Steelworkers union.

Roy Armstrong, CCF candidate for Durham, also spoke. Chairman was Stanley Mead, president of the union local.

Mr. Rowe claimed CCF supporters were not the only ones who were aware of the evils of our present economic system, that could only work in high gear while waging war, preparing for war, or repairing the ravages of war.

He recalled that the late R. B. Bennett in 1935 had strongly condemned capitalism and Arthur Meighen had denounced the economic system as a "competitive chaos . . . which works its way out into wars and slums, poverty and degradation." Mr. Rowe himself had seen the stark reality of this process, during the year he had worked as a relief officer in a small town in Alberta in the depression.

ADMIT FAULTS

While an MP, the speaker had been invited to address a gathering of the Chamber of Commerce in Montreal. The chairman was R. J. Noble, then assistant general manager of the Royal Bank and during the war sugar controller for Canada. Mr. Rowe soon realized that a number of economists and professors had been invited for the sole purpose of confounding him and tearing down his case against capitalism.

Actually, the result had been that after the main meeting was over a four-hour impromptu discussion developed amongst the leaders, and the following day a letter came to Mr. Rowe from Mr. Noble. In it Mr. Noble stated that he believed there were three main faults in the profit system: duplication, as demonstrated by the supernumerary gas and oil service stations in any town or city; competition, resulting in numerous price wars in which employees suffered most; and price fluctuation, arising out of the first two faults.

As an instance of the far-reaching effects of price fluctuations, Mr. Rowe recalled that when wheat income in the western provinces dropped from $3½ billions to $1 billion, it was estimated that the $2½ billions lost would have covered all the municipal debts and left enough over to finance the municipalities of all the prairie provinces for several years.

The speaker contended that only the CCF would prevent another depression. "If we were not at war in Korea and under the threat of it elsewhere, we would now be in a slump," he emphasized.

VIRILE MOVEMENT

Roy Armstrong, in his opening remarks, quoted statistics to show that Socialism is the fastest-growing and most virile politicial movement in the world today. He cited Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Holland, Belgium, France, Britain, Luxembourg, Australia, New Zealand, India, Burma, Japan and Israel to show that socialist parties, either held office, were official opposition or were the largest single party in these countries.

In other nations such as Canada, Socialism is a rapidly growing, influential force.

"To show how morally bankrupt the present economic system supported by Liberals and Conservatives really is," he said, "you only have to consider that new source of power, atomic energy. What do we hear of the constructive possibilities of atomic energy? All we hear of is atomic and hydrogen bombs."

He maintained that the CCF was concerned that the "good things of this earth will be used to benefit all men." It is a farmer-labor movement. As a farmer himself he knew that his prosperity depended on the prosperity of the industrial working man. Low wages and unemployment meant the loss of the Canadian farmers' best market.

To prove his contention that so-called free competition is neither free nor competitive, the speaker quoted facts and figures about the motor car industry controlled by two corporations, the growth of monopoly in farm implement production and the complete monopoly in the production of aluminum. He maintained that the CCF is fighting this entrenched wealth on behalf of the citizens of Canada and that these same corporations have paid the campaign funds for the old parties.

"What we need in Canada is a government which will prepare our young people not for death and destruction as today, but for life and living more abundantly," he said.

RESULTS OF DEPRESSION

In travelling to southern United States in 1936, Mr. Armstrong had observed literally thousands of young people drifting from place to place, discarded by the industrial areas of the north and seeking employment in the warmer climate of the south. He saw the slave market of New Orleans where hundreds and thousands of slaves had formerly been sold and wondered if there was any difference between chattel slavery and wage slavery.

"Under a planned economy we would increase production until everyone was well-fed, well-clothed, well-housed; and if there was any surplus we would send it to the needy in Europe and Asia to help them help themselves," he said.

Mr. Armstrong said he had issued a letter challenging all candidates to meet on a common platform to discuss the vital issues of this election. He had been turned down by the Liberal candidate and hadn't even had the courtesy of a reply from the Conservative man.

The two old parties, he argued, are content to keep us, as a people, in political illiteracy. That is how they have got elected in the past; the people need to know the facts to vote intelligently.

Stork Wins Race

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — With a police cruiser clearing the way, taxi driver James Shrift raced at 50 miles an hour through city streets but still couldn't beat the stork. His passenger, Mrs. Annie Kerpa, gave birth ot a daughter before he reached the hospital.

Vivien Leigh Recovered From Breakdown

LONDON (Reuters) — Actress Vivien Leigh dressed up in a mink stole Thursday night and went to her first party since her nervous breakdown in Hollywood four months ago.

She and her husband, film director-actor Sir Laurence Olivier, sipped cocktails with London theatre personages at the home of impresario Hugh Beaumont, and the old smile was back in Miss Leigh's eyes.

But from now on she'll have no more late nights out. "I'm going to bed by 10:30 at night instead of one or two in the morning," she said.

"I'm not worried about Vivien's health now," Olivier said.

Miss Leigh said she could not blame "one single thing" for the Hollywood breakdown. "I was tired after the play and the film, 'A Streetcar Named Desire," she said. "Somehow I never seemed to pick up."

Late next month she will begin rehearsals with her husband for their new London play, "The Sleeping Prince," which they had planned to produce for the Coronation.

STRANGE SIGHT — After nearly four decades of blindness, William Connolly, British war veteran, reads a newspaper—thanks to "enemy" eyes. He was blinded in a World War I gas attack. Two Germans donated an eye each and after two operations at the Wolverhampton, England, eye clinic, he regained his sight.

Heart-Heavy Father Claims Body Of Broadway Singer

NEW YORK (AP) — A heart-heavy father arrived here today to claim the body of his daughter, Canadian-born showgirl Florence Forsberg, slain apparently by a drink-crazed suitor.

Bert Forsberg flew here from Fort Frances, Ont., where he is a partner in a clothing firm. Struggling to control himself, he told reporters:

"Coming on top of my wife's death, about two years ago, the shock is just a little too much."

The nude body of the 25-year-old blonde singer, stabbed and beaten, was found Thursday morning slumped between the twin beds of her Manhattan apartment.

INVESTIGATE SHOT

The discovery came after police investigated a gunshot heard in the room of candy salesman Lester Johnsen, 25, 40 blocks further uptown.

They found Johnsen shot through the chest with a hunting rifle. A note said:

"I killed Flo Forsberg because of passion and drink. We were in a passion, both drunk. I killed her and I'm sorry. Life is not worth living."

They found Johnsen dead, killed by a shot through the chest with a hunting rifle.

Police rushed to the Forsberg apartment and found a second note which read:

"I'm sorry it had to happen this way but I could not take it with all the liquor and affection. Les."

The couple had been seen together in a cocktail lounge he previous evening.

NOT BROADWAY TYPE

At the Winter Garden Theatre where Miss Forsberg appeared as a chorus singer in "Wonderful Town," cast members described her as "a sweet quiet kid, not at all the usual Broadway type."

Beside her chorus work, the slain girl had been understudy for the top supporting role of "Eileen."

Police said there was evidence of "quite a bit" of drinking in Miss Forsberg's apartment, which she shared with two roommates. They were away at the time.

After hearing of the slaying, one of the roommates, Victoria Crandall, headed for New York from Framingham, Mass., where she had been scheduled to perform at a summer theatre. She declared:

"The news is incredible. I just couldn't believe it."

Miss Forsberg had never given Johnsen "any encouragement," she said.

COMPLETE SHOCK

Miss Forsberg's father said she had never mentioned Johnsen in her letters home. "This came as such a complete shock that we didn't know anything at all about the other person," he stated. "When police called me I was at a complete loss."

Johnsen had recently been discharged from the army after serving 16 months in Korea. A bartender in a cafe near Johnsen's home said he often stopped by for a drink but never got drunk.

"He was a quiet, well-behaved fellow with a good outlook on life," the bartender added.

Anti-Communists Disrupt Buck Meeting

WINNIPEG (CP)—An outburst of anti-Communist feeling Thursday night temporarily disrupted a meeting addressed by Tim Buck, Labor- Progressive Party leader.

While Mr. Buck was speaking, demonstrators rose on both sides of the hall to scatter anti-Communist pamphlets.

The cry "chuck them out" brought several persons running to the rear of the hall. The men left quickly and there was no violence.

Mr. Buck predicted a Korean truce and said the question would then arise of admitting "the people's China" to the United Nations. He said American trading organizations are already preparing to do business with the Chinese people.

Mr. Turk is survived by his wife, the former Emma Grace Sinclair, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Sewrey.

The Rev. H. K. Wright, assisted by Mr. Cecil Parrington and Mr. Sam Taylor, officiated. Burial was in the Norwood cemetery.

Swordfish Next

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Cape Breton fishermen, the lobster season over, are adding "pulpits" (for sighting and harpooning) to their boats in preparation for the swordfish voyage. The big fish, whose numbers have declined for several seasons, appear late in July.

LE HAVRE (AP)—French authorities refused to allow about 100 children of French nationality to leave aboard the Polish steamer Batory for vacations in Poland. Officials gave no reason for their action.

Oldest Driver

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP)—Robert L. Dring, believed to be the oldest licensed-driver in the U. S., celebrates his 102nd birthday today. Although he still owns his 1937 sedan and carries a Rhode Island drivers licence, Dring has not driven since last January.

Road Hog

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Two motorists crawled along in low gear for more than half an hour on the Stephenville highway when a young bull moose strolled leisurely ahead of their car. The moose clung steadfastly to his half of the road—right in the middle.

Restitution Court

BERLIN (Reuters)—The three Western Allied commandants and the West Berlin Senate announced the formation of a supreme restitution court for Berlin. The court, the first with both Allied and German judges, will deal with the return to their legitimate owners of identifiable goods seized by Nazi occupation authorities in various countries during the war.

Split Decision Features Lindsay Card

LINDSAY (ENS)—There were no knockouts and few knockdowns at Thursday night's third car presented by the Lindsay Kiwanis Boxing Club, but the bouts gave the crowd of over 500 more action and better boxing than either of the two previous matches.

In the feature fight, at 140 pounds, George Greenan of Oshawa, a classy lefthander, won a split decision over Pete Lyons of Little Britain, also a southpaw. Greenan showed his boxing experience in fast footwork, a good jab and expert blocking, but Lyons, the heavy hitter, landed enough solid punches to stay in contention.

The other heavy bouts provided most of the hard-hitting action. At 155 pounds, John Angiers won over Bob Whitney as both boys slugged it out from the opening bell. Angiers, the faster of the two, had the edge in the number of punches landed and gained a split decision, but Whitney made a good showing.

In the semi-final, at 145 pounds, Kenny Lamb of Lindsay won a split decision over Don Curtin of King's Wharf. Lamb chased Curtin all over the ring in the first round, then had to work to maintain his edge through the last two rounds.

Referee for the last two bouts and judge for the rest of the card was Harry Day, a boxing trainer from Elyria, Ohio. Another former boxer, Joe O'Connor, formerly of Toronto, now of Bobcaygeon, refereed one bout.

RESULTS

The results of the other bouts are as follows:

85 pounds—Leo Lynch won unanimous decision over Gus Cayley.

85 pounds—Jerry Burns, unanimous decision over Don Scott. Tommy Quibell, unanimous decision over Larry Lytle.

85 pounds—Spencer Norris, unanimous decision over Larry Gainor.

90 pounds—Don Tracey, split decision over Mike Hennessey.

85 pounds—Wes Parson, split decision over Tom Quibell.

Promoter Lloyd Burrows announced the next card would be held in two weeks.

Pair Break Up LPP Meeting

TORONTO (CP)—Two unidentified men Thursday night broke up an open-air meeting of the Labor-Progressive party here.

Hector MacArthur, Labor-Progressive candidate in the Toronto Davenport riding, told police the men drove up in two cars and sounded their horns, then approached on foot and one of them shouted "Go back to Russia, we don't need your kind here."

Police appeared on the scene and later Mr. MacArthur complained that he was taken to the police station.

"They (the police) just wanted to break up the meeting," Mr. MacArthur charged. He said he wired Nelson Castonguay, the chief electoral officer, asking that action be taken under the Canada Election Act.

"The police had no right to break up the meeting," he said.

Would-Be Assassin Changes His Mind

TOKYO (AP)—"Conduct yourself like the prime minister of an independent nation," the note admonished. "I intended to correct your views in person, but when I saw you asleep, my will to do so weakened ... Please take care of your aging body."

Police said Kazutoyo Yamagata, 33, sneaked in to assassinate Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida July 6 but wrote the note instead.

Guards found Yamagata next morning asleep in another room.

The charge, filed Thursday: breaking and entering.

Triple In 10th Brings In Winning Run

LINDSAY (ENS)—Tommy Bolderstone's tenth-inning triple with a mate aboard, gave Carruthers a 12-11 win over Fairway Motors in the Lindsay Softball League here Thursday night.

Fairways tied the score 11-all in the top of the ninth when they counted four runs on two hits and three walks. In the tenth they loaded the bases with one out, but failed to score the winner.

Woodie Ritchie was the winning pitcher, going all the way, while allowing Fairways 13 hits. His mates committed five errors behind him. Bill Cummins allowed the winners 14 safeties and his youthful crew errored six times.

For the winners, Bolderstone, with three for five, and Graham and Reynolds, each with two for five, were tops at the plate. Bob Maidens led Fairways with four hits in six tries, while Tom Tozios, with two for five, and Bill Burns, with two for six, both hit homers.

The game marked the third extra inning tilt played by the Motors crew, who have yet to win one. Fairways have won only twice this season.

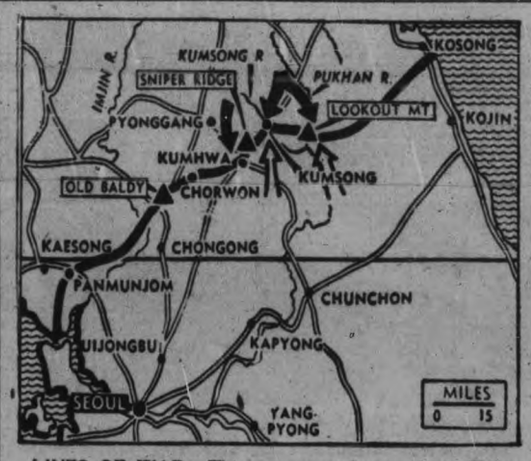
FOOD FOR THE HUNGRY—Farmers Robert Gaugh (left) and his brother, Donald, deliver bags of wheat to a milling company in Washington. Although President Eisenhower's offer of food was turned down by the Reds, it is on cut-rate sale to them across the border in the West Zone.

Family Squats In City Shelter

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton Thursday said the taking over of a vacant apartment at the city's emergency shelter by a family of seven is a matter for police action similar to that taken in connection with any break-in.

Mayor Whitton outlined the city's attitude to the move of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar LaFleur and their five children into a vacant apartment at the Rockcliffe emergency shelter Wednesday night. The shift was watched by 500 persons who, police said, blocked off three carloads of policemen trying to prevent the move.



The emergency shelter had been vacated by the city preparatory to turning it over to the Defense Department for use by the RCAF.

"This is not a question of housing," Mayor Whitton said. "This is a question of law and order in the City of Ottawa. It rests with the police to enforce the law.

"I am not discussing it beyond calling upon the police authorities to administer the law."

Police Chief Duncan MacDonell said a full investigation is being made. If any charges were laid, they would be charges of obstructing police and illegal trespassing.

Meanwhile, the LaFleur family was cleaning up the four-room apartment.

LINES OF WAR—This newsmap shows where Chinese Red infantrymen smashed southward across the Kumsong and Pukhan Rivers after a new Communist break-through along the central front. France's Duty To Repair Base

EDMONTON (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said Thursday that faulty installations reposted at the RCAF jet base at Gros Tenquin, France, are not the responsibility of the Canadian Government and will not constituté a charge against the Dominion.

Mr. Abbott said it was up to the French Government to provide basic installations such as hangars and runways to NATO specifications.

Reports of "difficulties and frustrations" encountered by Canadians at the base were made by Ross Munro, assistant publisher of the Vancouver Province. He said some of the conditions verged "on a scandal," and that the air station would be a "constant cost for years to come."

Mr. Abbott agreed the French Government did not do a good job in building the station.

"It is one of the things you get in an alliance," he commented. "I am sure they will fix it up."

Dry Ice Providing B.C. With Brand New Industry

VANCOUVER (CP)—The United States atomic energy commission wants to buy dry ice from British Columbia's newly-developed carbon dioxide gas field near Vernon in the interior.

So do other commercial customers as far away as Yakima, Wash. and Regina.

"So far we've had to ask them to hold on," said Charles Gorse, president of Gas-Ice Corporation (Canada) Limited. "We'll be in production in eight months, by which time our Mara Lake operation will represent a $500,000 investment."

Mr. Gorse made his potential market disclosures in connection with announcement that the company, formed a year ago, now has completed four producing wells in the Mara Lake field.

They range from 69 feet to 200 feet in depth. From them next winter will come the carbonated water which Gorse's engineers say will be converted first into snow and then ice.

The company holds leases on 40,000 acres of B. C. land on which it plans to base its new industry.

ENCOURAGING RESULTS

"Encouraging results" are reported from the copper property being tested by a major mining company high in the northwest corner of B. C.

The exploration work was made possible by flying mining equipment in ski-equipped planes last winter to the isolated area.

Diamond drilling and tunneling has been carried out by the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Company, Ltd., at its Granduc holdings, four miles east of the Alaska panhandle.

Four large mineralized zones have been found on the surface. In the first lateral hole drilled from the tunnel, an intersection of 40 feet assayed 1.4 per cent copper, with one intermediate section carrying 2.2 per cent.

The second lateral hole, driven in the same direction, cut 36 feet of ore assaying 2.3 per cent copper.

Drew Biggest Counterfeit In Politics Says Senator

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Progressive Conservative leader George Drew was described as "the biggest counterfeit that ever went into politics," by Senator William Fraser of Trenton Thursday evening.

Senator Fraser made the accusation at a meeting of Northumberland riding Liberals here in support of Dr. Fred Robertson, Liberal candidate.

He charged that Mr. Drew had said the French Canadians were a conquered race and "if he were here now, I would choke that statement down his throat.

Chief speaker at the rally was the Hon. Farquhar Oliver, leader of the opposition in the Ontario Legislature. Wesley Sweet, president of the Campbellford Liberal Association was chairman.

Many other officers of the party in this section of the county were on hand. They included Mrs. P. H. MacMillan, president of the Campbellford Ladies Liberal Association, Mrs. Denike, chairman of the Ladies Liberal Association of Northumberland; Reg. Seymour, president of the Seymour township Liberal Association, William Hogle, president of the Northumberland Liberal Association and G. I. Blair, president of the Young Liberal Association of Northumberland.

William Hogle introduced Dr. Fred Robertson, Liberal candidate. Mr. Hogle said "Liberalism begins and ends in a person's heart. You can't buy it— it is not for sale". He described Canada, the third largest trading nation in the world, as the country with one of the highest standards of living.

"George Drew has as much

chance of carrying out his promises as a snowball would have in this hot weather in—say Havelock", said Mr. Hogle. He said the CCF doctrine was merely "Liberalism in a hurry."

There are 25,000 more persons employed in Canada than there were a year ago, he said, and this was due to the productivity of the Liberal government.

"Nobody with any common sense could vote against the Liberals", he said. He predicted a landslide for the liberal candidate, Dr. Fred G. Robertson.

Dr. Robertson, outlined the prosperity that had come to the country through this government. One important acquirement was the Ordnance depot at Cobourg. He told how this had created employment for men from all parts of the county.

He promised to do all in his power to promote and protect the welfare of Northumberland, particularly the eastern portion of the county. He pledged full support of Liberal policies in Ottawa and lauded Prime Minister St. Laurent as having unchallenged ability and leadership qualities.

ATTACKS DREW

Dr. Robertson described Mr. Drew, leader of the Conservative party, as "sadly lacking in the faculties of leadership." He ridiculed the promises made by Mr. Drew to cut taxation and claimed that Canada, under a Liberal government, paid less taxes than any other democratic country and was the only country to reduce taxes since the last war.

He explained that with the coming of the Korean war, taves had not been reduced, but "the Liberal party will not sacrifice the security of the country to win an election."

He believed in the present social security program, and said that Canada must have a certain minimum social security, which should be extended to all citizens. He described the old age pension, for which he gave the Liberal government full credit, as being a dividend to our aged people for the job they have done in helping to build Canada into the great country it is today.

He said that veterans legislation in Canada was a model for the rest of the world and predicted a national insurance scheme when facilities and co-operation between federal and provincial governments became available.

The speaker outlined the subsidies on cheese and butter prices and challenged anyone to show where the Liberals had fallen down on their promises in the last election.

BERATES BENNETT

He berated the late R. B. Bennett for his false promises and spo keof the fallacy of Mr. Bennett's "blast our way into the markets of the world" policy.

H. N. Carr, formerly MLA for 10 years, introduced Mr. Oliver whom he described as a farmer, born and raised in Grey county. He had served the people of Grey South since 1926, when he was elected at the age of 22. He has contested and won every election since 1926. Mr. Carr described Mr. Oliver as an able and efficient administrator.

Mr. Oliver told of the foreign policy of his government, and said that Canada, in Lester Pearson, had a man of whom she could well be proud. He said the Liberal government had a determination to trade with other countries of the world and that the Conservative party had never tried to promote world trade.

He described Mr. Drew as having the peculiar faculty of forgetting this year what he said last. He said the Liberals had brought about old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, family allowances and other social legislation. He said this was one of the brightest pages in Liberal history.

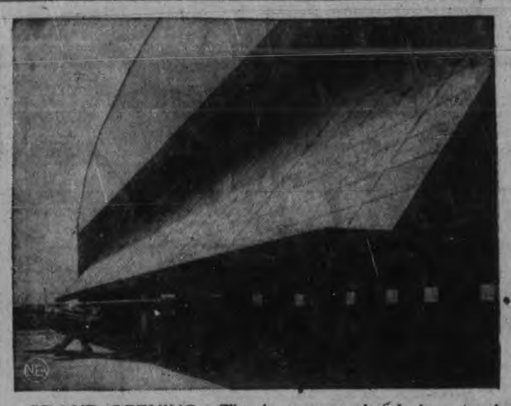
PROUD OF SURPLUS

Regarding the federal surplus at which the Conservative party points a berating finger, Mr. Oliver said he could not understand their reasoning. He said the USA would be proud if they could come up with a similar surplus and continue to pay off the national debt, as Canada has done.

He said he did not like paying taxes any more than the others in the country, but he paid tribute to the Liberals for creating a situation where the people have the money in their pockets to pay those taxes. He told his audience: "You never had it so good".

He said Canada has never been stronger than she is today and that much of the credit for making her that way must go to Louis St. Laurent.

Senator Fraser praised Dr. Robertson, berated the late R. B. Bennett, challenged the Hon. William Goodfellow, George Drew and all the other Tories he could think of to meet him on a public platform to debate the problems now confronting the pepple of the country.



He said that he knows for a certainty that Mr. Goodfellow would admit that while he is a Conservative, he was not a "Drew candidate."

He tol dof Mr. Drew doing an about face in regards the family allowance bill, and of him now telling Quebec citizens that the rates should be increased.

"Nobody can win the election unless they ca nget the majority unless they can get the majority of the Quebec vote," admitted Mr. Fraser.

"Let's make it a personal battle", he continued, as he ridiculed the 'smear campaign' of the Tory party.

Mr. Fraser was heckled at one or two points in his talk, but the meeting was otherwise without incident.

Billy Bell Junior Golf Champion

TORONTO (CP)—Billy Bell decided to spend the summer playing golf instead of driving a truck.

Yesterday the 16-year-old athlete was crowned Ontario junior golf champion.

Billy topped a record field of 86 at suburban Oakdale to win the title with a 36-hole card of 154, and later was named top man on an eight-member team to represent Ontario against District of Columbia in an annual match at Washington next Friday. Team members will also compete in the USGA junior championship at Washington Monday and in the Mid-Atlantic Match Play championship July 21-23.

Bell, who learned his golf at Aurora Highlands, 20 miles north of here, competed in a group for boys 16 to 18 years of age. His score over the 6,465 yard, par-72 layout was one better than Hugh Paterson of Toronto St. George's. He fired a morning round of 37-40 and did exactly the same in the afternoon.

LEADS GROUP

Fifteen-year-old Bill Stager of Galt led the 14-15 year group with a 164, six strokes better than Dave Drury of Toronto Lakeview and Garry Cowan of Kitchener Rockway. Stager scored a hole-in-one at his home course Wednesday night in a practice round for the championship.

Phil Brownlee, 12 years old and 88 pounds, won the 13-and-under class with a 180 to beat out second-place Bob Slatter of Huntsville by nine strokes. Brownlee, who works in the pro shop at Toronto Cedar Brae, spurged for the tournament. He hired a caddy—a 19-year-old friend—to tote the 13 clubs in his bag.

Terry Diatchenko of Windsor was well down in the list in the 14-15-year class but it wasn't for lack of enthusiasm. The youngster, clad in blue jeans, hitch-hiked here from Windos las week, slept one night in a Toronto park and two in a Niagara Falls park before catching up to an aunt in Toronto. Just before he teed off he admitted to officials that he didn't have any money for the entry fee. An Ontario Golf Association official paid his $2 fee.

Following the competition OGA officials announced the Ontario team which leaves for Washington this weekend. It is made up of Bill Bell, Toronto; George Shorer, Burlington; Jack Lawrey, St. Catharines; Hugh Paterson, Toronto; Bill Stager, Galt; Phil Brownlee, Toronto; Dave Drury, Toronto and Garry Cowan, Kitchener.

NO SAUCERY HERE—Farmers in the vicinity of Calumet, Wis., thought they were seeing a sure 'nough flying saucer when this contraption sailed through the sky suspended from a parachute. It floated down on the Clayton Miller farm where farmers discovered a tag identifying the weird equipment as the joint property of the University of Minnesota and the U.S. Navy.

3-Year-Old Goes On Wine Binge

Scotland Yard Questions Man On Murder

CICAMOUS, B.C. (CP) — Two globe-trotting British detectives, investigating what they believe to be the murder of an English widow 14 years ago, left for home Thursday after questioning a real estate agent in connection with the case.

The Scotland Yard men, Superintendent John Black and Inspector Neil Sutherland, came to this small town nearly three weeks ago for intensive questioning of Reginald Charles Seed, 59, who came here to live five years ago.

Seed had handled property deals in England for Mrs. Louise Lee, 64-year-old thrice-married widow who vanished from her Margate home in 1939. He denied any knowledge of her whereabouts.

The detectives earlier had expressed the opinion that Mrs. Lee was murdered for gain.

Work on the case started two years ago when London lawyer David Coy, the woman's solicitor, reported her missing. He expressed doubt as to whether her signature on several cheques was authentic.

The detectives said their order to return came from Sir Theobald Mathews, director of public prosecutions in England. They plan to be at headquarters Monday to resume work on the case.

Seed has denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of Mrs. Lee.

Canadian Diesels May Go To Ceylon

COLOMBO—Canada may supply Ceylon with electric diesel engines under a technical aid scheme developed through the Colombo Plan.

Officials here said today that in addition to the $2,000,000 Canada has already given Ceylon for road development, another $800,000 will be provided for developing fisheries.

The new payments will increase by almost 40 per cent Canada's contribution to Ceylonese development.

At Ottawa, an external affairs department official said discussions are under way with Ceylonese officials on the use of Canadian Columbo Plan funds for that country but the 1953-54 program has not been decided upon finally.

Parliament this year voted $25,400,000 as Canada's 1953-54 contribution to the plan. The money will be used partly for economic aid and partly for technical assistance to Southeast Asian countries.

Newport Chief Sets Record At Utica

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP)—Newport Stock Farms' Newport Chief from South Plainfield, N.J., boosted his stock for the famed Little Brown Jug by scoring impressively in the $5,000 Utica pace at Thursday nights Saratoga Raceway.

The three-year-old Chief Abbedake colt flashed home in 2:01 3-5, setting a track record for sophomore pacers and a new season standard. Thunderclap set the former mark of 2:01 4-5 a year ago.

Sharp Note, 1952 Hambletonian winner, captured the co-featured $5,000 Chatham free-for-all with a mile in 2:02.

Stouffville Expert Coaches Young Plowmen For Match

COBOURG (ENS) — Coaching lessons in plowing, in preperation for next October's world and international plowing match to be held at Cobourg, were conducted at the farm of Don Carruthers in Hamilton township Thursday afternoon. Ralph Banbury, Northumberland County agricultural representative, brought Fred Timbers, plowing expert of Stouffville, to the farm and a piece of land was staked out.

Present was 14-year-old Lynn Hoskin, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Hoskin, who is young at the job yet but making good progress. Also on hand was Arnold Winters of RR 5, Cobourg, a young man who has taken part in several plowing matches throughout the province as a representative from Northumberland County. In addition there were Douglas Hoskin, Don Carruthers, Harold Mallory and Stan Winters, who are experienced but still feel there is a lot to learn about the finer points of plowing and were interested listeners as Mr. Timbers demonstrated tractor plowing.

The plowing coach said that he would prefer to plow with the tractor seat removed and standing on the platform, for the reason that no matter how the tractor tilted on a stone or lump of hard earth, the operator would be able to correct his stance and remain perpendicular and thus be able to keep a proper sight on the stake at the end of the furrow.

DISCUSSES RULES

Mr. Timbers, while pointing out that some plowmen had their own ideas about things, said that there were a number of hard and fast rules concerning the adjustments of the tractor plow that should be stuck to in order to attain a high standard of competitive effort. Very keen interest was shown in his demonstration and Mr. Banbury said that the arrangements had been quite successful and of definite value to those who participated. Last evening there was a coaching class at Paul McKinlay's farm near Plainville. Today it is at Bill Curle's farm near Campbellford and this evening at Jack Dorland's farm near Hilton.

A Cool Summer Dessert

...mint variants—cool, refreshing, the perfect ending to a summer meal. To make this luscious dessert, simply alternate layers of vanilla ice cream and whipped mint-flavored apple jelly. Garnish with whipped cream and a marschino cherry.

This emerald-clear jelly makes beautiful, taste-tempting sundaes, too. Whipped or melted over a low heat, it can be poured over the ice cream and topped with chopped nutmeats.

Selecting Beachwear

By ALICIA HART

Bathing suit selection is a very confusing business for many women, judging by the number of mistaken choices one sees on the beaches.

If a woman keeps her figure needs in mind when she shops, she'll have less trouble. She should try the suit on and look at herself in a full-length mirror, both front and rear views.

If she's a mature woman, there are certain suits she can eliminate at once before she enters the fitting room (unless her figure is girlish and exceptional). The figure - hugging lastex suits, whether in taffeta, satin or cotton, are not for her. The extra fat must go somewhere when such a girdle-type suit is worn and it generally shows at the thighs and back in a roll where the suit cuts into the flesh. A built-in bra, however, is an absolute necessity.

Almost needless to say, the two-piece suit and the maillot are out for the vast majority of mature women. Likewise, the white suit, the most demanding type of all. Rompers, popular this year, are definitely for the younger set.

The little-boy shorts type of suit might be a good choice since it doesn't outline the flesh. Even this suit is out for the woman who is quite overweight or has very infirm muscles. She'll look her best in skirt-type suits that are long enough—at least mid-thigh. Black is the best color choice for her. It will look smart if it's well cut and an easy fit, neither voluminous nor figure-hugging.

A busty woman needn't bother trying on the suit with ruffles and frills across the top. These suits are for girls who need building up.

Who Will Get The Best Tan?

The big battle is on again!

For the next 17 days more than 5,000 Peterburians will be spending a good many of the daylight hours outdoors—each one acquiring as large an expanse of tan as possible, the degrees of which will be enviously compared come August 4th and back to work.

How do you get the best tan? Each sunworshipper has a different answer.

There are those who think baby oil the one and only for capturing the proper shade of brown.

Others will insist that oil clogs the pores and a combination of vinegar and water is best. But these devotees suggest that after sunning you take a warm bath to open the pores, followed by a thorough rubdown with oil.

Then there are those who put a few drops of iodine in the suntan oil, thinking this helps them get a rich mahogany, but there seem to be many against this theory.

It is for sure—if you want to get brown quick—do your sunbathing at the beach or by an open pool. The reflection from the water gives you a double dose of sunlight. Splashing water on you not only keeps you cool but is said to hasten the tanning.

But whether you choose oil, vinegar, iodine or just nothing, all agree on this one rule: Don't stay out in the sun too long.

Start with just 10 or 15 minutes' exposure and then lengthen the time slowly. No matter how tanned you are, never stay uncovered for too long at a stretch. The brownest skins will still burn.

Keep the eyes covered, either with sunglasses or eye pads, or just keep them closed.

Same goes for the hair. Too much sun makes it dry and brittle.

And if you do get a sunburn, one of the most soothing remedies is vinegar. Application of plain vinegar is supposed to keep the pores open and prevent painful

Exercise Reduces Heavy Upper Arms

A beauty problem facing many women is that of fat and flabby upper arms, even when the lower arms are trim. A reader, perhaps discouraged by her appearance in sleeveless summer dresses, has asked for some exercises to reduce hers.

1. Stand erect with feet together or sit in a straight-backed chair in a good posture. Raise arms above the head in a straight-up position, palms together. Now for the exercise: Vigorously throw the arms out to the sides so that they're parallel with the shoulders.

Bend the elbows and touch your shoulders with your fingertips. Now bring arms down to sides and relax. Begin all over again. Work rhythmically and precisely. Start with only two or three times and gradually work up to 10.

2. This exercise can also be done standing or sitting. Start with a good posture and extend arms before you at shoulder height, with palms upward. With both hands working at once, group your finger tips around the tip of the thumb and then very slowly open the fingers to a count of 25. Stretch the fingers far apart and then fold them up again slowly. Feel the tension in fingers and elbows but the strength will come from your upper arm.

Don't overdo these or any exercises. Work up gradually to as many as you can do without becoming tired. On the other hand, don't be a quitter if you really want results!

Grooming Of Beach Beauty

By ALICIA HART

Teen-agers, you're probably very pleased with your pretty new bathing suit. But when it comes to actually appearing in it at the beach, do you give it the co-operation it needs?

Your suit can't do anything for you if you ignore grooming basics, overlooked by too many girls. Look around you at the beach and you'll see the following:

1. Unmanicured toes. What's more noticeable than bare toes at a beach? Have yours both manicured and polished.

2. Dirty feet. Yes, actually. Some teen-agers go about constantly without sandals or any kind of footwear. How can their feet be anything but dirty?

3. Bright red back and shoulders with white spots standing out on them. These, and a peeling nose, are preventable so why let them spoil your appearance when you put on a pretty evening cotton?

4. Straw-like, over-bleached (by the sun) hair. Protect yours with a hat or kerchief.

5. Infrequent use of a razor or depilatory. Get after that stubble before it becomes noticeable.

6. Slouching shoulders. Line up against a wall and push the small of your back, your heels and the back of your neck against it. Now walk off with a good posture.

Induct Minister At Bridgenorth

BRIDGENORTH (ENS)—Induction of the Rev. Thomas Harold Fleetham from the Battleford Saskatchewan Presbytery into Peterborough Presbytery and the ministry of Bridgenorth United Church took place Thursday evening in a special service at the Bridgenorth Church.

The Rev. H. K. Wright of Norwood, representing the Presbytery, inducted the new minister.

The Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, gave the induction sermon, choosing as his subject, "The Ideal Minister and the Ideal Congregation." Points he stressed were "that a minister is not a servant, but a helper," and that "it is the duty of the congregation to be in the pews for the church services."

The choir sang, "Thine for Service," with Mrs. C. Telford at the organ.

Official board of the church met for a short session following the ceremony, and afterward refreshments were served to all attending, with Mrs. Donald Jopling in charge.

Versatile Holiday Dresses

A WARM-WEATHER WARDROBE in disciplined cotton might well include these three dresses. Summer playdress versatile enough to go dancing (left) has narrow top of pineapple tucking, opptional shoulder straps and three-cornered stole to tie or drape. We show it in olive green. For city life, this cardigan front dress (centre) has shallow, rounded neckline and sleeves that are gathered into tight cuffs just below the elbow. We've pictured it in gray. A second sun dress (right) has optional shoestring halter and three-cornered stole. Fabric is dark green cotton dotted in aqua. This dress could also serve for late afternoon or informal summer evenings. All three designs are by Betse Cann in junior sizes.

Fried Chicken Is Excellent Picnic Fare

Fried chicken used to be a favorite on picnics in the old days. Now, with the small chickens (broiler-fryer types) and chicken cuts available at all seasons, it seems a shame not to revive this excellent picnic fare. Fried chicken on a picnic means you can enjoy it to the full without benefit of knife or fork or a worry about Mrs. Grundy.

Following is a method for frying chicken in a fritter batter. It is delicious, hot or cold. For a picnic, served cold, try accompanying it with a well-seasoned potato salad, crisp celery and radishes, jelly or sweet pickles, buttered rolls, chocolate brownies and a beverage.

The pre-cooking of the chicken may be done a day in advance, even the frying may be done then if there is not time to chill the chicken before packing it in the picnic basket.

FRITTER FRIED CHICKEN
4 Servings

(a) Pre-Cooking Chicken
2½ lb. eviscerated chicken (or use the equivalent in cut-up chicken)
Boiling water
Salt
1 peeled carrot, cut in quarters
1 onion, sliced
Few celery leaves
Small piece bay leaf.

Disjoint chicken and cut into pieces for serving. Wipe thoroughly with clean, damp cloth. Drop pieces into boiling salted water to just cover. Add carrot, onion, celery leaves and bay leaf. Reduce heat and simmer chicken until fork tender, 1 to 1½ hours. If using a pressure cooker follow manufacturer's directions and cook at 15 lbs. pressure for about 20 minutes. Cool quickly. Wrap in waxed paper or place in covered container and refrigerate. Remove from refrigerator ½ to ¾ hour before frying. Otherwise the very cold chicken will lower the temperature of the cooking fat too much.

(b) Fritter Batter
1 cup sifted pastry flour
OR 1 cup less 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt.
Pinch poultry seasoning (optional)
1 egg
¾ cup milk
Fat for deep frying.

Mix and sift dry ingredients together. Beat egg and milk and stir into flour mixture. Dip pieces of cooked chicken into batter and drop into deep hot fat, 375 degrees F. (To test temperature without thermometer: a cube a bread will brown in the fat in 30 seconds.) Fry chicken, a few pieces at a time, until golden brown. Remove from fat and drain on absorbent paper. If serving hot, keep pieces warm in a moderate oven until all chicken is prepared. Do not stack pieces. but place in a single layer on cookie sheet lined with absorbent paper. For picnics cool to room temperature, wrap lightly in waxed paper and store in refrigerator until chilled. Serve within four hours after removing from refrigerator. Note: Fowl precooked 2 to 3 hours depending upon size, and fried by this method is delicious also.

"TO SLEEP! PERCHANCE TO DREAM . . ."—If the little Woman is dreaming of buying a bedtime outfit like this, there's darn little perchance of Pappy getting any sleep when the bill comes in. The magnificent night ensemble, by Italian designer Cerri, was modeled in Rome by Princess Zina Rachewsky, Russian-born actress. DOROTHY DIX:

Husband Objects To Wife Writing To Married Man

DEAR MISS DIX: I married recently, and we are now living in my wife's home town. Several years ago she had a common-law marriage with a fellow here, and it's rumored that she had a baby by him. There are also several other men here whom she dated. This makes me very jealous, especially as I see these men constantly. She says everything in the past is over and done with and that she made a fresh start when we married. She certainly is a wonderful wife to me, and mother to the children of my first marriage. I love her very much, and want our marriage to be a good one, but I can't get over the fear that she'll revert to her old life. This is a small town so I can't ignore things, and I refuse to be pushed out and move away. A READER

✧ ✧ ✧

FACE THE MUSIC

ANSWER: The easy way out of your dilemma would be to move away, which you flatly refuse to do. The sensible, permanent solution is to face the problem and conquer it, but this, of course, is the most difficult way out. What you need is a long discussion with a family counselor, who can help you look at the problem objectively, pointing out the obvious defects in your own reasoning. Space permits me just a brief survey of these facts. You have absolutely no complaint about your wife's present conduct. She is an admirable stepmother, a devoted wife and homemaker. She admits her mistakes of the past, assures you that marriage has, as far as she's concerned, wiped out every memory of previous alliances, and opened to her a new way of life. What you must build up in yourself is faith in your wife and confidence that you effected the change in her. Discredit rumors; you "have heard" that she had a child before she married you, but it's only a rumor. Settle the point with your wife, not with strangers. The men she once dated are probably married themselves by now, and as oblivious to former romantic leanings as is your wife. When you see them, greet them as you would any other neighbor. Remember that practically every girl dated other boys before she was married. Romances of the past cannot spoil a marriage held together by faith.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: This is not exactly a problem, but I would like your opinion on the subject. Some time ago I went out with my girl friend and her date, who brought along a date for me. I had never met the boy before, but we got along well. He is good looking, very pleasant and nice company. Soon he went into service and wrote to me. I answered all his letters. He came to see me when he returned home, then was shipped to Korea. Our correspondence continued, we exchanged pictures, and he sent me a nice souvenir. Do you think he likes me? JANE H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I would say, from the evidence presented, that the young man decidedly does like you. Accept his friendship on the basis offered, and I'm sure in time he will indicate quite unmistakably he likes you very much.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 14 and my boy friend is 16. He lives down my street and I see him almost every night. He likes to hold my hand when we are walking, but since the street is a very busy one, I don't think it's right to let him. How can I break him of the habit? PUZZLED PAT

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Tell the boy plainly that his actions embarrass you, and I'm sure he'll change his walking habits. Hand-holding in public is, of course, against all rules of strict etiquette, yet I think only a very sour misanthrope would raise objection to it. to it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is running around with a single girl who knows he's married and the father of three children. Do you think it would do any good to talk to her? We are all in our late 20's. PHYLLIS

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Husband snatchers have very small consciences indeed, so it's doubtful if talking will accomplish much in the way of reformation. It's worth a try anyway, and if you're a convincing talker you may get results. A little straight-from-the-shoulder talk to hubby wouldn't hurt, either.

Have A Good Holiday On Your Feet

Foot specialists report that hot weather brings a flood of women patients into their offices. There are several causes, but chief among them are unaccustomed strains for feet that have been virtually hibernating all winter, with the other culprit being improper shoes.

A balanced shoe wardrobe for the holidays which will keep your feet feeling fine and pretty to look at, should include the following:

1. A pair of all-leather moccasins or walking shoes for long walks or any other type of outdoor activity. Make sure both uppers and soles are of supple and flexible leather, the foot specialists say. Leather allows the feet to "breathe" which keeps them feeling comfortable and also helps prevent the accumulation of excess foot moisture, which can mean blisters, reddening and pain.

2. A pair of spectator shoes in soft leather, with a medium heel. These are really all-purpose shoes, which can double for both work, shopping and, if the occasion arises, a sudden evening date.

3. A pair of high-heeled shoes—but only for special dress-up occasions. The foot doctors have given up urging women never to wear high heels. No one was paying any attention to their good advice anyway. But the experts strongly recommend that such shoes be kept for "dining and dancing."

An interesting point made by the doctors is that if you have been wearing high-heeled shoes all winter long—for both work and play—do not shift to "flats" suddenly. Doing so will cause the calf muscles, which contract when you constantly wear high heels, to protest—but painfully. Alternate high heels, medium heels and low heels until your legs stop complaining.

DID YOU KNOW?

Eau de Cologne was first invented by a physician long ago who realized how effective citrus oils were for toning and picking up the system. But citrus fruits—and their oils—were difficult to get. Presto—a little oil extended with alcohol—and cologne was born. Fragrance came later. Later still, the lovely cologne concentre that picks you up and makes you feel better in every way.

Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Will you please send me your recipe for Swedish Limpa Bread . . . Thank you, Marion E.

ANSWER: By your surname I assume you are Swedish. This Limpa recipe is authentic and I hope maintains your standards.

SWEDISH LIMPA BREAD (rye)

NOTE: Dough made of rye flour is sticky. Add just enough flour so that dough handles easily.

Measure ½ cup lukewarm water and sprinkle over it 2 packages granular yeast and ½ teaspoon sugar. Let stand 10 minutes then stir it. In a warm bowl mix together 1 cup lukewarm water, ¼ cup molasses 1-3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, and the finely grated rind of 2 oranges. Stir in the soaked and stirred granular yeast. Now add 2 tablespoons soft shortening. Sift rye flour and measure 2½ cups. Sift all-purpose or bread flour and measure 2¾ cups. Stir in these two flours with a spoon at first, then mix with the hand. (If desired I cup raisins may be added now.) Knead this dough on your board, which has been lightly sprinkled with rye flour. Knead the dough for 30 turns. Return dough to scraped-down bowl, brush the top with a little butter, cover and let rise to double its bulk. Knead again and let rise again. After second rising shape dough into 2 round or 2 elongated football shaped loaves. Place on opposite corners of lightly greased baking sheet. Let rise until doubled, covered. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes.

QUESTION: I have lovely parsley in my wee garden and would like to know how to keep it green for use in winter, when I cut it. Should I wash and lightly dry with towel, then place in a plastic bag and keep in frig.? I try to keep it from yellowing . . . don't overwork, and have a lovely summer with your loved ones. . Mary. E.M.

ANSWER: It was so nice to hear from you again and thank you for your kind thoughts. I have a tiny patch of parsley in the garden. When I pick a bunch I wash it and lightly dry it and put it in a covered jar loosely and keep it in the refrigerator. If it is used up within three or four days it does not go yellow. Plastic bag is just as good. In winter transplant to a pot and keep in sunny window. Much of its vitamin B and almost all of its minerals are retained if it is picked, thoroughly dried, crumbled and kept in covered jar, for using dry in stuffing.

QUESTION: I have been reading your column for a couple of years with your other worshipful followers. I am seeking aid. I have been appointed candy convener for a fall church bazaar. In past years we have had trouble pricing our candy. The way we handled it was that the Guild bought our materials and we gathered in groups of five or six to make the candy. (We had a whale of a time by the way.) Then we sold three 1" x 1" squares for 5c, or two squares for 5c of double fudge. We sold all of it and could have sold twice as much, but our profit seemed smaller than it should have been. I noted at another church's bazaar their candy was in paper tumblers, sold for 35c. It was also nearly all on the tables when the bazaar was over.

Therefore we thought that with your experience in such matters you could help us in pricing. We would also appreciate any recipes you could send along. Have you any quantity recipes for candy?

Peach time is in the future, but I have a lovely peach pie recipe I would like to share with you. This is a one-crust pie and is wonderful alone or ringed with whipped cream.

PEACH PIE

(Contributed by Mrs. V. N. S.).

One rich pie crust — unbaked and quite thick. Take 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons butter and crumb this mixture. Add 2 well-beaten eggs and mix them with the first mixture. Add pinch of salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Peel and halve 4 large peaches and put around the pastry-lined pan with one-half peach in centre. Pour egg mixture over peaches and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, and at 325 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes.

Thanks ever so much . . . it is wonderful to have you at our beck and call. We all share your pride in your family.—Mrs. V. N. S.

ANSWER: Thanks for sharing this peach pie recipe . . . my mouth is watering for it. I shall try it as soon as peach season arrives. Please see my answer regarding pricing candy for bazaar and quantity recipe in tomorrow's readers' column.

BATHROBES FOR YOUR PORCH FURNITURE

Did you ever consider terry cloth for furniture covers? It's ideal for porch furniture that's in constant use during the summer. Particularly if you have children who believe feet should be on chairs instead of on the floor, or gardeners who like to rest for a minute before going inside to clean up. Choose one of the terrys-by-the-yard, and make your covers as gay as you like. Wash them as often as you like. They'll need no ironing, so your porch furniture will always be clean, gay, bright and cool.

You can whip evaporated milk easily this way: Partially freeze a can of evaporated milk in your refrigerator. Then pour the milk into a very cold bowl, add one tablespoon lemon juice to each 2-3 cup milk, and whip.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Simple Meals When Family Is At Cottage

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's customary at this time of year to do a story on simple menus and recipes for husbands left in the city by well-nourished, vacationing wives.

It is our humble opinion that these "grass - widowers" merely take their appetites to the best restaurants in town and that's that.

Information from a leading restaurant chain in Toronto indicates that these men don't even bother to get their own breakfasts but wait until they get to town.

CORN FRITTERS

However, eating "out" is an expensive habit that the average business girl cannot afford, so we offer the following simple recipes for her benefit.

Corn fritters: one No. 2-size can corn; one well beaten egg; one cup flour; one-and-a-half teaspoons baking powder; one-half teaspoon salt; one teaspoon sugar; milk.

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together and add the corn finely chopped, the sugar and the egg well beaten. Add sufficient milk to make a good drop batter; fry in deep fat to a golden brown.

The Bakery Foods Foundation suggests a corned-beef sandwich "with a difference" for a quick and tasty lunch.

Use ready - cooked, canned, corned-beef hash. Toast rounds of rye bread on one side only. Heap the corned beef hash on the untoasted side of each round, sprinkle lightly with grated cheese and pop into a moderate oven for heating. Serve with tomato and Spanish onion slices.

CHANGE FROM SALADS

Although salads and cold plates of one kind and another are ideal for hot weather, too many of them can be just as bad as too few.

With this in mind, we offer "gardener's kebab" from our turkish cookbook.

Ingredients: two pounds of lamb; six tablespoons butter; two large carrots; four medium tomatoes (peeled); one pound pearl onion; one cup shelled green peas; salt; one pound red pepper (optional) and one teaspoon fresh dill.

Cut meat into one half-inch cubes and brown in melted butter. Scrape and cut carrots into one quarter-inch slices and add to meat.

Cover tightly and cook over low heat until meat is dry (about one hour). Then add peeled and seeded tomatoes, onion, peas, salt and ground red pepper if desired. Cover and cook for one-half hour, adding a little water when needed (up to one cup) to keep it from scorching. When meat is tender, add freshly chopped dill, stir and serve.

Charges Dewey Opposing Will Of People

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative William Miller (Rep. N. Y.) said today Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, in opposing private development of new power plants at Niagara Falls, "does not express the will of the people" of his state

The governor earlier asked a Senate committee to okay instead a proposal for construction of new power plants at Niagara by New York state.

Miller, a co-sponsor of the Niagara private enterprise bill passed last week by the House of Representatives, said 26 of the 27 New York Republican congressmen voted for it.

"Unless the Senate acts favorably on the private enterprise bills coming before your committee today," Miller said, "there will be no development and no (new) power (from Niagara).

"The House has spoken the will of the people by a 262-to-120 vote in favor of this development by private enterprise. President Eisenhower has conveyed the impression that he will abide by the will of the Congress on this measure.

"If the Senate fails to act favorably Canada will get this power as provided in a 1950 treaty with the United States."

Repairs Force Detour

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Seymour township workmen had to repair a culvert on the township road near the farm of William McKenzie on the West River road Thursday, causing residents and cottagers staying in the vicinity of Healey Falls to make a wide detour.

It is not known just how long it will take to get the culvert in and traffic moving again.

A NEW TWO-ROOM SCHOOL is being built at Brayley's Corners in North Monaghan township; officials hope to have it completed for school re-opening this fall. It will relieve crowded conditions in the old school (lower photo) at the Corners. Some students were forced to take lessons in an adjacent hall during the past term. The new school (top photo) will cost approximately $28,000.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Townships Build School, Seek Bylaws To Raise Cash

Construction of a new two-room school at Brayley's Corners, in North Monaghan township, built to relieve crowded conditions in the old Brayley's school, is well under way and officials hope it will be completed for the September school term.

The building, 50 by 60 feet, is being built beside the old school which North Monaghan Clerk Bruce Johnston estimates is 80 years old.

Some students were forced to take lessons in an adjacent hall during the past school term because there was insufficient room in the old building to accommodate the school-going children.

In the new school building, each classroom will hold 35 to 40 students. The building will also house two washrooms, a teachers' room and a furnace room.

Cost of the school has been set by contractor Denton Johnston at $24,100. By the time new equipment, including blackboards, desks and other furniture is purchased, the cost might reach $28,000.

SOLE OBSTACLE

Only one obstacle might stand in the way of completing the new building. The board has neither the money nor the authority to raise the money to pay for it, an informed source states.

Both Cavan and Monaghan councils have been asked to pass bylaws providing for the financing but neither has complied. Even when they do pass the bylaws, construction still has to be approved by the Municipal Board.

Only then may debentures be issued to pay for the school.

When work on the new structure stopped recently, school board trustees attributed it to a shortage of materials.

Jail Man, 24, Seven Days On Driving Count

Douglas Evans, 24, of Warsaw, was sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate R. B. Baxter today, after Evans was found guilty on a charge of drunk driving. In addition, the accused's car will be impounded and his license suspended for three months.

The charge was laid after OPP Constable Bruce Tilson followed Evans' car south on Highway 28 between Young's Point and Lakefield July 11, and saw the accused force oncoming traffic off the highway.

At one point another southbound vehicle tried to pass the Evans car but was forced off the road. After Evans finally was passed, PC Tilson attempted to stop him but was unable to pull up beside him.

In Lakefield the officer finally stopped him. Evans was in a "very intoxicated condition," the constable said, staggered and smelled of beer.

Lakefield Chief Consable Price Morris saw the accused in the OPP cruiser and testified he was intoxicated, mumbled, smelled strongly of beer and spoke in an incoherent manner.

Evans, on the stand, testified he had consumed seven pints of beer from about two o'clock to 11 o'clock that day in driving from Peterborough to Port Hope to Cobourg to Warsaw to Young's Point.

He denied forcing oncoming traffic off the road, but admitted he wasn't used to drinking beer.

His companion the night of his arrest, Mae McMillan, 22, told the court Evans' condition was alright at the time the officer stopped him. She agreed, however, telling the accused: "I told you you should have let me drive" when PC Tilson arrested him.

Magistrate Baxter found the accused guilty, based his findings on the accused's admission that he drank seven pints of beer and was not accustomed to consuming that much.

Police said he had been a pensioner of the Canadian government since the First World War during which he lost his right hand. His left hand was also disfigured.

Police are trying to trace his next of kin.

Conference Of Ministers Model For Compromise

By NED RUSSELL
(New York Herald Tribune News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Big Three foreign ministers' conference which wound up here Tuesday night may go down in history as a model for compromises in international negotiations.

It also disposed, at least temporarily, of a number of fears that have harassed relations among the Western powers. But, like other similar conferences in the past, it also put some differences discreetly under the rug.

Perhaps the most important compromise that took place concerned the agreement to seek a big four meeting with Russia.

This idea began with Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill's speech to the House of Commons on May 11 suggesting a meeting "on the highest level" with Russia simply for the purpose of getting acquainted with the somewhat baffling successor to the late Mr. Stalin and to see whether there wasn't ground for negotiating a settlement of some of the East-West troubles, notably on Germany.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles were conspicuously cool to the Churchill proposal. They headed it off first by suggesting a big three meeting at Bermuda to iron out differences among the United States, Britain and France on the questions which might come up at a meeting with Premier Malenkov.

The Eisenhower administration clearly was alarmed at the idea of meeting Mr. Malenkov and perhaps giving him a chance to split the Western powers.

WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

But then Sir Winston's physical strength collapsed and he could not go through with his own project. Thus, the Washington conference of Mr. Dulles, Lord Salisbury and Mr. Bidault was set up.

According to all acounts, the Washington talks on a meeting with Russia were delicate, to put it mildly Mr. Dulles remained cool to the whole idea;; he felt, though he avoided saying so bluntly, that the fall of Soviet Deputy Premier Beria was sufficient reason to let the project lie on the shelf for a time.

But the British quickly came forward with a compromise: invite Mr. Molotov, not Mr. Malenhov (or whoever is in command at the Kremlin). And, they added, sensing opinion in the Eisenhower administration, take up specific problems like Germany.

But Mr. Dulles was openly worried lest a big four meeting destroy the prospects for completion of the six-nation European Army plan.

WORRY WELL FOUNDED

His worry, no doubt, was well founded; the Kremlin now clearly has it within its power to wreck that project by holding out the prospect of a unified Germany.

Thus, Mr. Dulles sought, for a time to insist that he would agree to a big four meeting only after the European Defence Community treaty was ratified—meaning, for all practical purposes, when France ratified it.

But Mr. Bidault, with typical French logic, pointedly reminded Mr. Dulles that his attitude was futile. The plain and clear fact of the matters, as Mr. Bidault said, was that France would not ratify the EDC treaty until it was convinced that there is no other way of dealing with Russia.

And so Mr. Dulles decided to take the risk. He abandoned his condition that a big four meeting should be conditional no European effectuation of the EDC instead, he laid down only one condition—that it should not be allowed to upset the political chances of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the Sept. 6 elections in the federal German Republic.

The problem most ostentatiously buried under the rug in the Washington talks was the attitude of the Big Three toward Communist China.

On this, the result, as reported in the communique, represented what one participant in the talks called "a British bow to American public opinion and an American bow to British public opinion."

The British bow was represented in the pledge that the "common policies" of the Big Three (meaning support of the trade embargo against Red China and opposition to Peking's membership in the United Nations) would be maintained for the time being.

The American bow was reflected in the statement that these issues can be raised again when and if it is clear that Communist China is behaving itself.

INDO-CHINA WAR

Perhaps the greatest fear that was dispelled, at least for the moment, was that France might suddenly declare that it could no longer fight on in the seemingly endless and costly war in Indo-China. This was a real fear in some quarters.

Mr. Dulles, who had considerable experience in the State Department under Dean Acheson and his immediate predecessors, recalled rather vividly the day in 1947 when Britain announced, without warning, that it was giving up in Greece and left that ugly problem to the United States.

But Mr. Bidault made it clear that France would not copy the British. He made it equally clear, however, that France's ability to win the war there depends on additional American financial aid. And that aid, no doubt, will be forthcoming before long.

Reducing Drugs May Be Added To Poison List

By LOUIS WIID

PRETORIA (Reuters) — South Africa is considering legislation to curb the sale of such habit-forming drugs sold freely over the counter as reducing preparations, cures for insomnia and stimulants to ward off sleep.

Druggists have been asked to agree on voluntary measures to control sales of stimulants and sedatives. If they do not reach such an agreement soon, the government is expected to introduce legislation to add the drugs to the country's poison list.

The druggists themselves have been pressing through their national association to have laws enacted to channel sales of all medicinal substances through their own profession and ban sale by ordinary stores.

Acting health secretary R. J. Smit wrote to the South African Medical Journal appealing to doctors to restrict prescriptions for the amphetamine group of drugs. These drugs, sold under a variety of trade names, are stimulants used for reducing, relieving sleepiness and fatigue.

Smit says the department has investigated cases of addiction due to these drugs and "in each case, the individual admitted that he or she had become an addict."

The amphetamines are also sometimes used by students who want to keep awake while studying for examinations, and by motorists driving at night.

Their use sometimes leads to insomnia Then people have to take barbiturates to get to sleep, thus building a vicious circle.

Another aspect is that the so-called "fast set" frequently offers a drug of the amphetamine group along with a cocktail "to pep up the party."

Some druggists offer a "party mixture" to clients who drop in asking for something to counter a hangover. This "party mixture" contains drugs which can lead to addiction and which are doubly dangerous if taken in a cycle of drugs and alcohol.

Young British Widow Unconditionally Freed

PENANG, Malaya (AP)—Resident commissioner R. P. Bingham today ordered the unconditional release of Mrs. Elizabeth Parsons, young British widow acquitted a week ago of a charge of murdering her two sons.

Following her jury acquittal on a plea of temporary insanity, the court judge had ordered her held in hospital pending the commissioner's orders.

She allegedly stabbed her children, Edmund, 4, and Darryl John, 2, in a drugged, drunken fit of despair last May 14 after her husband, a Royal Air Force fighter pilot, crashed while attacking Communist guerrillas in the Malayan jungle.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—J. W. Prince, United States archaeologist, is looking for the site of an old Norse settlement, believed to have been in Newfoundland or Labrador in the 11th century. A likely possibility is Sogo Island off the northeast coast.

BERLIN (Reuters)—East Berlin's lord mayor, Friedrich Ebert, announced the release from prison of 1,017 persons serving terms for "economic crimes." Their cases were reviewed by justice authorities, he said in an interview published by the East German news agency ADN.

Reds Swarm Into Gun Pits 300 Men Dead, Missing

By ROBERT GIBSON

EAST-CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (AP)—It was 2:05 a.m.

The night was black.

American gunners sweated in the rain as they flung shell after shell into the breeches of their 105-millimetre howitzers, and methodically fired and reloaded.

These men, a veteran artillery battalion, were firing support for the South Korean Capital Division south of Kumsong.

Then, between salvos, they heard an unexpected sound.

It was a quavering, off-key musical note up ahead. Then to the right; then left. It was Chinese bugles, whose call often means death in Korea.

There was a moment of silence, broken by an American officer's shout:

FIRE POINT BLANK

"Point blank! Fire at will! The Chinks are on us."

Fire flashed in the faces of the rushing Chinese, but the enemy—more than 1,000 of them—kept charging.

They leaped into the gun emplacements and grappled with the gunners. They stormed the battalion command post.

By 2:47 a.m.—just 42 minutes after the first bugle call was heard—it was all over.

At least 300 Americans were dead or missing. It was the worst such slaughter since mid-February, 1951, when an artillery battalion, an infantry battalion and other troops of the 38th Regiment, U.S. 2nd Division, were cut up near Hoengsong.

FEW STRAGGLERS

Weary survivors came out Tuesday morning with only five of their guns. Others straggled in singly or in pairs, and there was hope that some of the missing might make it later.

Dazely the survivors told their stories:

As the Chinese reached the guns, artillery men who could not move their pieces performed their last traditional duty. They threw magnesium grenades inside. And the white-hot fire welded lock and tube together, making the guns useless to the enemy.

Then the living picked up carbines, rifles and grenades and fought for their lives."

Must Ever Change Methods Of Fighting Static War

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP) — Canadian patrol leaders are taught here that even in a static war they must keep changing their methods of preventing the enemy from encroaching on their section of the front.

Every junior officer and NCO who is likely to lead a patrol into no - man's - land has attended the Canadian brigade's patrol school, run by Maj. W. H. Pope, 33, of Ottawa and Montreal.

The one-week course for classes of 20 reviews techniques used by both UN and Communist patrolling groups. It emphasizes that a "perfect technique" is perfect only once. Pope won the Military Cross for the direction of his company with the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment. He has stayed for a second tour with the regiment's 3rd Battalion. Assisting as instructors are two holders of the Military Medal, Sgts. Tom Prince of Scanterbury, Man., and J. C. McNeill of Reserve Mines, N.S.

SILENCE ESSENTIAL

Prince, a Canadian Indian accomplished in fieldcraft, teaches his students:

"You must be keen, cunning and stalk the enemy without a sound. That is the premium you are paying for your life insurance."

Then he takes them out by night and demonstrates. One moonless night, he led Pope and me through growing grain, along paddy dikes and through manned outposts so noiselessly that we weren't spotted.

Pope says his course teaches one essential lesson: "War is an exercise in which the directing staff is the enemy. You can't find one perfect solution to any problem. The solutions must change as the enemy's current patrolling methods, and what he advocates for Canadians, must remain secret."

But his own Van Doos company's patrolling record—never a man lost—testifies to their success.

FIND BODY OF ONLY ONE GASPE HUNTER

AIR PHOTOS TAKEN this week over the city's two major construction jobs show progress being made on the new Woolworth building (top) and the long-awaited federal building (below). Other large structures in the offing are the addition to Outboard Marine and the recently announced Simpsons-Sears department store, both in the south end of the city.

Two Others Missing, Feared Dead

Say $700 In Cash Also Missing, Mystery Deepens

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Provincial police officers emerging early today from the mountainous interior of Gaspe peninsula reported the remains of only one of three visiting American hunters have been found.

Their report from the scene of an intensive search of the Gaspe wilderness for traces of the three men from Holidaysburg, Pa., deepened the mystery surrounding their fate.

A provincial police spokesman said it was believed that a few scattered bones found 12 miles along a bush trail from an abandoned truck were the remains of Eugene H. Lindsey, 45. He said this discovery gave no clue to the whereabouts of Lindsey's 17-year-old son, Richard, and a 20-year-old companion, Fred Claar, 20.

He declared, however, that there is "very little possibility they are alive."

FOUL PLAY RUMORS

Meanwhile, the town of Gaspe was filled with rumors of foul play figuring in the case of the missing hunters.

The most prevalent rumor today was that provincial police, present in large numbers, were on the trail of a man they wanted to question.

Asked about this rumor in Quebec, Solicitor General Antoine Rivard who is directing investigations, said:

"I cannot confirm or deny the report. All I know is that an investigation is going on."

IRA Claar, father of one of the two youths who entered the Gaspe bush June 5 with the elder Lindsey, confirmed the information given out by police directing the search.

ONLY ONE MAN

Claar said that Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, Quebec government expert in criminal investigation, told him that the bones found a short distance from an old logger's camp were the remains of only one man.

Claar added that the medico-legal expert expressed the opinion the bones were those of a man of the elder Lindsey's age.

Earlier reports brought out from the bush by searchers were that the remains of all three of the American hunters had been located. The reports, however, described the spot where the bones

Misses His Chance

BISLEY, England (Reuters)—Lt.-Col. Steve Johnson of Calgary today missed his chance for the Queen's Prize—blue riband of rifle shooting—with his last shot. He lost out to Maj. N. W. McCaw of the London Rifle Brigade, who scored an aggregate of 273—one point ahead of Johnson.

Denies Quebec Faces Threat To Autonomy

QUEBEC (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent opened the campaign in his home province of Quebec last night by shooting an arrow aimed at one of the softest spots in the hearts of Quebecers—provincial autonomy.

Addressing an open-air meeting in his riding of Quebec East Mr. St. Laurent accused George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, of talking to Quebecers about an imaginary threat to provincial autonomy to get the Quebec vote.

"If such a threat existed I would be the first one to fight it.

"There are special reasons to safeguard the autonomy of Quebec and I intend to do my share until my last breath for its safeguard. But that does not mean that I intend to neglect other provinces."

The statement drew applause and cheers from about 2,000 persons who stood through his hour-long speech in the hottest weather of the summer.

Loudspeakers relayed his speech to families sitting on the balconies of nearby homes or in automobiles parked along surrounding streets.

LAURIER SUCCESSOR

Mr. St. Laurent got a big hand when, recalling he was the successor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the late Ernest Lapointe in Quebec East, he asked the people to re-elect him for a fourth term.

He told his French-speaking listeners he had consulted the late Cardinal Villeneuve before deciding to enter politics. The weight of his duties were lightened by the support he had been given in his riding.

The meeting was the first of a series in the province starting Sunday that will take the prime minister through nearly all Quebec's widely-separated regions.

In Montreal Friday he told newspapermen in a press conference the current campaign is one of the quietest he has seen.

During a press conference in Quebec he talked to newspapermen about his western tour. He had told the people there of the "dangers of local parties" like the Social Credit, the CCF and Quebec nationalist parties.

He hoped, he added, that the national parties would be found deserving by Canadian voters.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Mr. St. Laurent puffed from a cigarette in a black holder as he chatted and answered questions.

"How about the situation in Quebec?" one newspaperman asked

"I only regret there are not more than 265 seats in the House of Commans," Mr. St. Laurent quipped.

Last night in the course of his speech he put aside the elaborate notes fro mwhich he had been speaking to touch on two lively issues in Quebec—the question of a national hymn and of a national flag.

The subject of a national hymn came up often. But everywhere he had gone during his campaign, he had heard "O Canada" sung.

"When I was in Calgary someone said to me: 'Everytime I hear O Canada I look for the Union Jack.'

"Well, I told him, Canada will have a flag of its own some day but it will have one when it will be a sign of unity but not a subject of quarrelling and dissension."

Chinese Rush Thousands To Front Line

Reinforcements Swarm Along Roads In Broad Daylight

SEOUL (AP)—Thousands of Chinese infantry supported by tanks and field guns today swarmed recklessly southward in daylight as the Communists boldly bolstered troops which smashed through the Kumsong bulge this week.

Even as Allied air spotters watched Red infantry stream across the Kumsong river, three South Korean divisions moved cautiously northward over ground given up in the mighty Communist onslaught.

There was no indication whether the big Red buildup signalled new attacks or was a frantic effort to hold newly-won positions.

Heavy fighting broke out east of the Kumsong bulge as the Communists slammed about 4,000 men against South Korean and U. S. positions on the eastern front.

STRIKE 3 POSITIONS

One North Korean regiment—about 2,500 men—struck three hill positions northeast of the Punchbowl, about 15 miles east of the bulge, in a co-ordinated assault backed by 30,000 rounds of artillery and mortar fire, the U. S. 8th Army said.

In a fierce three-hour fight, the RoKs drove back the assault force and killed or wounded an estimated 977 Reds, the army said.

Infantrymen of the U. S. 45th Division smashed back two 700-man Red attacks near Christmas Hill.

Waves of Allied planes strafed and dive-bombed the Red troops as they openly crossed the Kumsong on bridges or forded the river.

IGNORE PLANES

Heavy trucks rumbled through the shallow water, apparently oblivious to Allied planes overhead.

One South Korean unit said 45 Russian-built T34 tanks were operating in its area but U. S. officers said the estimate was high. Frequent spottings confirmed reports the Communists have concentrated

41 Naval Reservists Die In Flames As Plane Crashes

MILTON, Fla. (AP)—A U.S. Marine cargo plane carried 41 young naval reservists and crew members to death when it crashed on a farm and burst into flames after taking off from Whiting Field at midnight Friday. Charred bodies of the victims were recovered by U.S. Navy teams which worked at the grim task throughout the night. Five other occupants of the two-engine plane were rushed to Pensacola naval air station hospital, where two were reported in critical condition and three in serious condition.

The plane, transformed into a massive "ball of flames" after plunging into a clump of trees a mile north of the runway, smashed three parked automobiles and plowed into a barn on the farm of Ray Allen.

SCORCHED BODIES ALL OVER

Harold Stokes, city editor of the Pensacola News-Journa, said that when he arrived on the scene shortly after the crash he found "scrambled, scorched bodies scattered all over.

"They looked as if their clothes were skin tight, stuck to their swollen bodies."

Stokes reported that an engine and parts of the fuselage were torn from the plane and scattered over a wide area.

Six survivors were picked up by navy rescue teams, but one of the men died in the Whiting Field hospital about four hours later without regaining consciousness.

PART OF FLIGHT

The plane was part of a flight of five transports which had made a refueling stop at Whiting. They were ferrying 200 reservists from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Norfolk, Va., for another phase of their six-week summer training program.

One plane already had taken off for Norfolk after being fueled. The second had cleared the runway and was gaining altitude when it ran into some unexplained difficulty and plunged to the ground.

Alex Allen, 15, dashed out of his farm home when he saw "a ball of flame about 150 yards long.

CLOTHES ON FIRE

"Then the barn caught fire and a boy came walking up to me, his clothes were burning all over and he asked me to pull off his shoes and clothes," he said.

"A neigabor and I put a blanket over the boy and carried him to the side of the house. I got some lard and rubbed it all over him. Then another man came up, with his clothes afire."

Nearby woods were set ablaze by the plane, but the flames were extinguished by navy personnel and civilian volunteers.

There were 40 naval reservists and six marine crew members aboard the plane.

Warn Canadians No Relief From Heat Yet

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians can expect no relief from the heat and humidity this weekend, the weatherman says.

The forecaster predicted in Toronto that scattered showers are heading for a few areas but will give only brief respite from the heat. The showers were expected to hit parts of northern British Columbia and Southern Ontario today. They would move into Quebec Sunday.

Canadians in Ontario and eastern provinces sweltered in the high humidity. On the Prairies, the humidity was low and the heat more bearable.

WILL BE HOT

In most of Canada the weekend forecast was sunny and hot with temperatures hitting 80 and 85 on the Prairies and in the Maritimes. It will be about 92 at Montreal, Ottawa and Sherbrooke, Que.

Temperatures would drop 15 to 20 degrees tonight from the day's highs. Low of 70 tonight and highs of 85 Sunday were predicted for Toronto, Trenton St. Catharines and Hamilton.

Relief from the humidity will probably come Monday, the weatherman said. Drier air may push in from the West but temperatures will probably remain high—about five degrees cooler than last week.

Coldwell Says Quebec Soon Police State

MONTREAL (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, charged last night that Quebec Province is on its way to becoming a police state, compared with those of Europe before the Second World War.

Attacking the government of Premier Duplessis "and the Fascists who are in power in Quebec," Mr. Coldwell said that in all provinces, excluding Quebec, political parties could put up posters and distribute pamphlets without having to submit them to the chief of police.

He said this is proof of how far Quebec is on the way to becoming a police state.

The CCF leader made these charges during a campaign speech at a school in a French-Canadian working-class district of Montreal, departing from his prepared text.

Drew Blames Government For Bond Depreciation

BRIDGEWATER, N.S. (CP)—Hon. George Drew accused Prime Minister St. Laurent Friday night of creating a "bogey" about Progressive Conservative fiscal policy to frighten the voters, and blamed the government for the price depreciation of Canada's war bonds.

He said the government's "reckless spending and inflationary policies" have cut the present buying value of the bonds to "less than half of what was put into them in the early part of the war."

Mr. Drew's charges were in reply to statements in Sudbury by Mr. St. Laurent suggesting the value of victory bonds might be endangered if a Progressive Consevative government turned to deficit financing to carry out promised tax cuts of $500,000,000 a year.

"Out of his own fear he's trying to put fear in other people's minds. Before the prime minister tries to create any bogeys . . . let him come before a Canadian audience and tell them what's happened to the dollar and what the government is doing about it."

Mr. Drew coupled this issue, which he dealt with in speeches both here and earlier at Halifax, with a statement that his party would cut away the "disease" of government "waste, extravagance and inefficiency."

He likened his party—and the voters as well—to "surgeons who are going to undertake a very delicate operation after Aug. 10."

The thefts and losses at Petawawa camp found in the investigation of the Army works services by Montreal accountant George S. Currie were only a "symptom" of a disease.

"A disease like this is infectious, and it is infecting the other departments of government too."

Seaway Bill Now Set Aside

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U. S. Senate bill to authorize the United States to help Canada build the St. Lawrence seaway has been set aside, at least for the current session of Congress.

Acting majority leader William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) said Friday that the measure, which has the support of the Senate's Republican policy committee, will not be considered this year. The present session is scheduled to end July 31.

Knowland indicated that the controversial bill would probably stir extensive debate on the Senate floor, and for that reason was being side tracked at least until next January.

The bill would authorize the United States to build the International Rapids section of the 27-foot deep waterway. Canada would construct the Lachine Rapids and Soulanges sections.

Canada has told the U. S. that it will build the waterway alone on its own side of the river if the United States does not join in the project.

The U. S. federal power commission has licenced New York state to join the province of Ontario in a $600,000,000 power project on the St. Lawrence.

Ask Truckers Not To Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley of Ontario today appealed to the presidents of truckers' unions at Hamilton and Windsor not to order a strike of their 3,500 members until talks aimed at settling disagreements have been completed.

The workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL), have voted to strike at midnight Sunday to back up demands for higher wages.

Mr. Daley Thursday asked the presidents of the Windsor and Hamilton locals, I. M. Dodds and James Groat, to meet with him in Toronto Monday to try to settle the strike.

Mr. Daley sent a telegram to the two presidents today. It said:

"I wish to make it clear that I am requesting your organization to refrain from taking strike action while our discussions are proceeding. I think you realize that the dislocation of transportation services will be unnecessary if our meetings are successful in settling the dispute and I am sure that you and the membership of your organization will concur in the wisdom of continuing at work while this matter is being dealt with at our meetings."

5,000 Paratroopers Withdraw Safely

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French high command announced today the 5,000 French Union parachute raiders who Friday wrecked the key Vietminh supply centre of Lang Son have safely withdrawn and joined up with other airborne units.

The paratroopers cleared out of the town near the Communist China frontier without encountering enemy resistance, the announcement said. It did not disclose the point of link-up with protective forces, which were dropped in the area to screen the raiders from possible attack by the Communist-led Vietminh.

Lang Son, 10 miles from the Chinese border, was a main relay point on the Vietminh supply route from China. The town was believed to be the enemy's biggest supply base.

The paratroopers dropped on Lang Son in a bold daylight raid.

RCMP Checking Soldier's Death

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP have taken over the investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of Pte. Frederick Joseph Burke of Regina, who collapsed and died Thursday while undergoing punishment at Petawawa military camp.

Crown attorney Al Neville of Pembroke, who disclosed the RCMP is investigating the case, said an inquest into the 29-year-old soldier's death will be held, probably sometime next month.

Burke collapsed after a "concentrated" 20-minute exercise on the Petawawa camp obstacle course and died in hospital two hours later. He was serving seven days detention for being absent without leave when the incident occurred.

Meanwhile it was learned that an army court of inquiry into the affairs has been completed and that a preliminary report has been sent here by the camp commandant at Petawawa. However, army headquarters was closed for the week-end and responsible officers were not available for comment.

A post-mortem conducted Friday at Ottawa Civic hospital disclosed that Burke died from "asphyxia caused by bilateral pneumonia."

George Burke, father of the soldier, said his son had pneumonia three times in the last two years. He said Pte. Burke came to a farm near Ottawa 10 days ago to visit relatives and took ill while on the isolated farm, overstaying his leave

Allies Must Fight If Reds Reject Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States concern over Communist conduct in the truce negotiations was mirrored today in official word that the Allies must fight on in Korea if the Reds reject an "honorable peace."

With the negotiations at a critical stage, U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told the U.S. Friday night:

"We are not suppliants. We are ready for honorable peace. But if the Communists want war, we must be read for that, too."

Dulles denounced as absurd Red insistence on "guarantees" by the United Nations command that Syngman Rhee's South Korean government will abide by the truce bring the talks to a successful conclusion.

Dulles in effect questioned the Reds' good faith:

"The proposed armistice does not guarantee the future conduct of any government. I wish that someone would guarantee the future good conduct of the Communist regime of China.

Convict Six Suspects In $850,000 Jewel Theft

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France (AP)—A seven-man jury today convicted six men accused of robbing the Aga Khan and his wife of $850,000 worth of jewels four years ago and acquitted three others.

One of those acquitted was George Lindsay Watson, colorful Second World War hero who says he is the godson of Sir Winston Churchill

Watson had vehemently denied he was fingerman in the sensational, daylight holdup on the French Riviera. Throughout the 12-day trial Watson shared the spotlight with a long-smouldering police scandal which exploded while the trial was in progress.

Charles Vincileoni, the Marseille restaurant owner who was accused of receiving the stolen jewels and using his restaurant as a gang hideout, also was acquitted.

The other defendant acquitted was Henri Waffelman, who admitted during the trial cutting up the fabulous 3170,000 "La Marquise" diamond. Waffelman, however, cooperated with police and the prosecutor had said during the trial he would not oppose acquittal for him.

Sentences handed out to the other six ranged from four to 10 years.

SENTENCES GIVEN

They were:

Francois Sanna, a Corsican, 10 years at hard labor, and Jacques Benedetti, eight years at hard labor; they were accused of seizing the jewels from the Aga Khan and his pretty wife on Aug. 4, 1949, while the couple were driving from Cannes to Nice.

Barthelemy Ruberti, six years; he rode a wobbly bicycle in front of the Aga Khan car, forcing it to slow down to a near stop as it reached the holdup place.

Jules Battistelli, five years; police charged that the cutdown version of the "La Marquise" diamond was found in his possession.

Hilarion Fromanger, four years; he also was accused of cutting down the diamond to disguise it.

Leon Jollivet, five years; he owned the villa where the gang took the jewels and buried them.

12 People Injured In 2-Car Collision

PORT COLBORNE (CP) — Twelve persons were injured near here today when two automobiles collided and a third car rolled over as it swerved to miss the pile-up. Two of the injured are in critical condition.

Police said two cars driven by United States tourists met head-on about two miles west of Port Colborne. The other car was driven by a Welland resident.

New, Isolated Case Of Hog Cholera

OTTAWA (CP)—A new and isolated case of hog cholera has been uncovered in southwestern Ontario, an agriculture department spokesman said today.

This is the first case of the virus infection in four weeks and the first since the general southwestern Ontario quarantine was lifted about a week ago, the official said.

Though the general epidemic was over, it is "absurd to think that there won't be isolated cases uncovered here and there," he said.

The new case, leading to the slaughter of more than 40 pigs, was found in Bertie township, near Welland, last Thursday. The pigs were destroyed immediately.

The official said that while the general quarantine had been lifted, the department still maintained quarantines on the individual infected farms and on community sales barns where the infected animals were reported to have passed through.

Communists Change Tune

Troops, Tanks Take Over East Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—East Berlin was an armed camp of Soviet tanks and troops today as the Russians and their German puppets shelved their "soft approach" and went over to a terror offensive against the threat of new East German revolts.

Less than a week after martial law was lifted, the elements of two armored divisions, clanked back into East Berlin Friday. They were dug in today for an apparently long stay.

Communist propagandists who had been trilling promises of reform and clemency suddenly changed their tune. They barked warnings that the "Fascist underground" which they blamed for the June 17 workers revolt, is still active. They called for "increased watchfulness" which in Communist jargon means a witch hunt for scapegoats

2 MENACING DEVELOPMENTS

A purge was under way in the Communist hierarchy of East Germany. Two menacing developments caused the Communist alarm:

1. Scattered strikes and slowdowns throughout the Soviet zone.

2. Hungry East Germans boiled with resentment against their Communist masters who turned down an U. S. offer of $15,000,000 worth of food relief.

The get-tough policy was designed to frighten the population before they work themselves up to a new open revolt.

Official Western sources confirmed that more than 200 tanks and about 14,000 Russian soldiers have occupied East Berlin, poised to pounce upon the first stirring of rebellion.

Unlike the troops who moved in June 17 to put down the workers revolt, these new invaders came equipped to stay.

A frenzied Communist food drive testified that hunger was the main urge toward rebellion. Communist newspapers feature stories of "huge" food shipments from Russia and ner satellites. Fresh supplies, taken from just-as-hungry East German provinces, were rushed into East Berlin to placate this prime danger spot at the expense of more hidden areas.

Soviet Launches Long-Expected Trade Offensive

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union—with new trade pacts signed with France, Denmark and other Western European nations—appeared today to have launched in earnest her long-expected trade offensive. The trade manoeuvres, part of the entire peace offensive, are believed aimed at relieving the economic ills of the restive satellite nations now seething over lack of consumer goods. They are also obviously part of the Kremlin's plan to woo Western nations from economic and military ties with the United States.

The French and Soviet governments announced Friday they have signed a three-year commercial pact—their first since 1934. It calls for an exchange of 12,000,000,000 francs ($34,285,760) worth of goods in the next year.

Copenhagen announced Denmark has signed contracts to build five more cold-storage freighters for the Soviet Union within the next two years. These are part of anew Soviet-Danish $21,000,000 trade deal under which Denmark provides industrial machinery and foodstuffs in return for such Russian goods as wheat, cotton, iron ore and asbestos.

SNAP UP PLATINUM

The British Board of Trade announced Friday the Russians have dumped 30,000 ounces of plantinum on the London bullion market and that a good part of it already has been snapped up. A board spokesman said Russia has also offered to sell Britain manganese and chrome ores—two strategic metals used to toughen steel.

Trade talks are going on between Soviet agents and British grain brokers under which Britain may buy 6,900,000 tons of wheat. Traders also are expected to buy large quantities of Russian timber in the next few months.

The French pact grew out of the East-West trade conference at Geneva, sponsored by the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe. The treaty excluded items on the "black list" of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. These are largely raw or finished products vital to the economy of the west or of strategic importance to a potential aggressor.

As part of its softer policy, Russia at Geneva this week agreed to put up 4,000,000 rubles ($1,000,000) to aid underdeveloped countries under the United Nations Technical Assistance plan. Russia never contributed a ruble to this plan before.

Moscow dispatches said this week western fur buyers are in Moscow and that bidding for furs is brisk.

Driver Escapes Death Twice

TRENTON — Death came close to Bruce Dennis, transport driver of Lorne Park, twice within a few minutes Friday.

His first brush with death came when he fell out of the cab of his transport, just before the vehicle wrapped itself around a clump of trees. Knocked out by the fall, he came to and found himself lying in the path of another transport, which swerved to avoid him.

Dennis had been following another transport driven by Malcolm Link, Robinson Avenue, Toronto. As Link drove around a slight curve in Highway No. 2, two miles east of here, he slowed down for a car making a left turn. When Dennis tried to brake his transport, it swerved and threw him against the cab door which flew open.

His transport came close to striking two children playing nearby, Johnny 4 and Barbara 2, children of Mrs. H. Schonhoffer, had disobeyed their mother and were playing at the side of the house instead of on the lawn as instructed by Mrs. Schonhoffer.

Miners Jockey For Position

TIMMINS (CP)—The management and the workers jockeyed for position Friday at the strike-bound Broulan Reef gold mines.

One development overshadowed another as the walkout over a wage dispute went into its seventh day today.

More than 750 men are on strike at three mining companies in this rich gold-producing area of Porcupine. The other walkouts are at Hallnor, adjacent to Broulan Reef, and Preston East Dome mines.

The main development of the day occurred in Toronto where Mr. Justice Rene Danis amended an injunction issued Wednesday by Mr. Justice R. W. Treleavan. The amendment permitted the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) to use four pickets at each of the three roads leading to the mine.

Braked To Avoid Hay Rick, Car Rams Into Ditch

LINDSAY —(ENS)— Lindsay Provincial Police investigated two accidents in this area Friday and Friday night. One involved a Toronto man and his passenger, believed to be a disc jockey on a Toronto radio station.

Friday afternoon, William Baddington of Mimico was driving north on county road 20, north from Highway 35 at Powles Corners, with his passenger, Keith Sandy, also of Toronto. They were returning to Baddington's cottage at Miner's Bay.

LOAD OF HAY

Baddington is reported to have noticed a farmer pull a load of hay onto the road from a laneway on the east side. He jammed on his brakes, swerved as he went down hill, and catapulted into a 16-foot ditch on the west side of the road. The new convertible car turned over sustaining extensive damage, but neither passenger was injured. Constable Tom Fitzpatrick investigated.

Also Friday afternoon, a Bell Telephone Co. truck, driven by Vern McClure, of Lindsay, collided with a car driven by Leslie Scott, of Omemee, at a township road intersection south of the "Hill Head" curve on Highway 35, five miles south of Lindsay. Scott suffered minor injuries. The accident was investigated by Constable Clive Naismith of Lindsay.

65 Relax Boxes For Postmen

A total of 65 green metal boxes, marked with the post office crest, are being distributed throughout the city to assist mail carriers who have to pick up extra bundles of mail to complete their routes.

It would be physically impossible for the carriers to take all the mail at once so the "relay boxes" are placed at strategic intervals on the routes. Mail is left in the boxes by a postal truck that does the rounds. Later, the mail carrier comes along and collects another load.

Formerly the relay stations were private homes and stores where the mail carrier could drop in and pick up his bundles. This was sometimes inconvenient to both parties, Postmaster Harold White stated, so this other method was adopted.

Fifteen of the boxes have been in use for some time now and the remaining 50 are being placed at strategic locations.

QUEBEC (CP)—The 12,000-ton freighter Beaverlake today ran aground in the St. Lawrence river near Lauzon, five miles east of Quebec.

She was on her way to England and had just left Quebec harbor.

A thick fog covered the river at the time the Beaverlake ran aground.

City Growing

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The population of the Manchurian city of Harbin has just passed the 1,000,000 mark, the Communist New China news agency reported. This represented an increase of 350,000 over the past 3½ years.

3 Hurt Slightly In Crashes Throughout City

In six accidents on Peterborough streets Friday and early this morning, two children and one adult required medical attention. None was hospitalized.

As a result of an accident the corner of Donegal and Wolsley Friday at noon, the wife and two children of Clayton Quibell, 27, of Fenelon Falls were treated for scratches and bruises by Dr. Leslie Calvert.

Quibell had been driving west on Wolsley when he collided at the intersection with a car southbound on Donegal driven by Alvin Sackrider, 33, of 421 Bellview St.

Sackrider's was upset by the impact and turned on its roof. It was totally wrecked. Quibell's late model car was damaged to the extent of $500.

PC's Harold Andrew and Don MacKay investigated.

Damage in an accident at Aylmer and Edinburg Sts. involving Lewis Fry, 33, of Bridgenorth, and Lawrence Johnson, 30, of 978 Monaghan Rd. totalled $500.

Fry was driving north on Aylmer St. and Johnson, east on Edinburgh St. when the accident occurred. They collided near the centre of the intersection. Fry's car sustained damages set at $200 and Johnson's, damages of $300.

TWO COLLIDE

Two cars both driving east on Lundy's Lane collided Friday evening in an accident in which damages were estimated at $185.

John Romig, 25, of 632 Lundy's Lane was turning left in a driveway when his car collided with a passing car driven by Walter Curtis of 86 Morrow St. Curtis' car sustained $150 of the total damage.

A car and truck collision at the intersection of London and Downie Sts. Friday afternoon involved Claude Johnson, 19, of 463 Albert St. and Gerald Pavey, 30, of 255 Woodbine Ave.

Johnson was driving east on London and Pavey was driving south on Downie when the crash occured. The truck escaped with $5 damage while the car sustained $100 in damages.

A car slowing down to turn left into a George St. garage was struck by a second car Friday night. Lyall Johnson, 48, of Bradford, was driving as his vehicle was struck in the rear by George Merryweather of 2 Maniece Ave. Damage was slight.

BOTH CLAIM LIGHT

Both drivers claimed having the green light after an accident at the corner of Reid and Charlotte Sts.

John Edward Dening, 39, of Port Hope was driving south on Reid St., and John Ireland, 31, general delivery, west on Charlotte when the accident occured. Ireland was making a left turn.

Damage was set at $75 to the Dening car and $15 to Ireland's truck. They collided near the southwest corner of the intersection.

MORE ABOUT—
Drew

Stopped by fog from flying to Newfoundland Thursday, Mr. Drew used the extra time to speak to a quickly organizeed reception in Halifax Friday afternoon and make two brief stops at Chester and Lunenburg on a motor trip to Bridgewater for a scheduled meeting.

CRITICIZES ATTITUDE

At Chester he criticized the government for its attitude toward opposition parties in Parliament.

"We have seen a government which has taken the position that your representatives in Parliament have no right to get information unless it is the government's wish . . . They have come to believe they are there by divine right."

The biggest reception of the day came from 1,600 persons in the sports arena here Friday night. Today he campaigns on the Bay of Fundy shore, with speeches scheduled at Kentville, Parrsboro and Amherst.

Mr. Drew said the value of war bonds has declined because the government "broke its promise" to maintain their market price. It had "betrayedits responsibility" to people who bought the books as a patriotic duty.

PULLS PLUG

The government had encouraged investors to believe it would stand behind the bonds. Then it "suddenly pulled the plug by ordering the Bank of Canada to withdraw their support."

The Liberals had broken their promise "with no more apology than they have offered for any of their other broken pledges."

At Bridgewater Mr. Drew said fish prices have fallen because of the government's "neglect" of export markets in the United Kingdom and other Commonwealth countries.

Fishermen should receive the same government support as other basic producers in Canada, but "artifical devices" were useless without markets.

The Heat's On

The sweltering heat will likely continue through the weekend. Peterborough's official weather recorder read Friday's high at 88 degrees and by noon today the temperature was 83. The weatherman promises little relief, though there may be some cooling showers in scattered sections of Ontario. Forecast for Sunday: continuing very warm. If it's any consolation Peterborough's Friday high was far from a record for the country. Ottawa had a 94, followed by Montreal with 92 and Windsor 90.

Meanwhile, the slow South Korean northward push that has regained up to 5½ miles in three days ran into its first stiff opposition.

Some 700 Chinese counter-attacked in the pre-dawn and hurled back the RoKs from four hill positions taken originally against little resistance.

But by noon the South Koreans won back two of the hills and were assaulting the other two.

The easing of tight military censorship showed that:

Generally the South Koreans have regained the line they were supposed to have withdrawn to earlier in the wek before the mighty 80,000 man Red assault that straightened out the Kumsong bulge.

Coldwell Says

OPPOSES COMMUNISM

He addressed an audience of 190, which rose to applaud him at the beginning and sang "O Canada."

Mr. Coldwell reasserted the CCF's hostility to Communism. Parties like theirs, he said, had opposed authoritarianism in Germany and Italy, and they opposed it in Quebec.

It was time Prime Minister St. Laurent, who had a genuine interest in freedom, spoke out against Duplessis "and the Fascists who are in power" in his own province.

Mr. Coldwell referred to a newspaper report that Tim Buck, Labor-Progressive Party leader, had proposed at Regina a coalition of his own party, Social Credit and the CCF. Labor Progressive and Social Credit, "the most reactionary party in Canada," had in common their authoritarianism. The CCF would have nothing to do with either of them.

Pressing the need for a national health scheme, Mr. Coldwell said only two other democratic countries besides Canada are without one—Australia which had a hospital plan and the U.S., "the citadel of capitalist reaction."

The Liberals had promised a national health plan at every election since 1919. When the minister had been questioned about it in the House recently he said a plan could not be made overnight.

"Thirty-four years is a long night," said Mr. Coldwell.

Hated Woman New Boss Of E. Germany

By GASTON COBLENTZ
New York Herald Tribune News Service.

BERLIN—The successor of Max Fechner as East German Minister of Justice is the most hated Communist judge in the Soviet zone of Germany—Hilde Benjamin.

Mrs. Benjamin is 51 years old, and has been Deputy Chief of the East German government's Supreme Court for the last three years.

She has presided at numerous highly publicized trials of "saboteurs" and "spies." Her conduct of the trials has been that of inquisitor, and she has become feared for her mercilessness of her sentences to anti-Communists, including youths.

She is known throughout the Soviet zone as "Red Hilda" and "The Red Guillotine."

Her appointment is one of the most offensive gestures the Communist regime could have chosen to have made toward the still restive population of the Russian zone.

The appointment of "Red Hilde" apparently means that a particularly brutal refinement of Russian "justice" is coming to the Soviet satellite state.

Mrs. Benjamin, a Berliner born Hilde Lange, turned to Communism in the late 1920's, but when Hitler came to power it was her husband, a Jewish doctor, and not Hilde who was exterminated. She saw him led off to a Nazi extermination camp, and then faded into obscurity.

But when the Russian army marched into Berlin, Hilde turned up as a faithful servant for the Soviet system. She brings to her new task a background of study in law at Heidelberg, Hamburg, and the University of Berlin, where she took her doctorate.

She became public prosecutor in the Russian zone in 1945, and chief of the personnel section of the Russian zone justice administration in 1947.

lay in the woods as a scene of "indescribable" disarray.

Claar said Dr. Roussel told him he was able to reconstitute only one body from the bones found Wednesday 65 miles inland from the town of Gaspe.

He said a loaded rifle found near the body "belonged to Mr. Lindsey." A tobacco pouch found in an abandoned logging camp, 12 miles from the route where the men parked their truck, was also identified as belonging to the elder Lindsey.

Claar said "about $700 in cash" carried by Lindsey has not been found.

Difficulties of the search for the hunters, last seen alive at Gaspe June 5, were responsible for the variety of reports reaching this little town since last Wednesday when bushmen stumbled across the collection of bones.

WARKWORTH (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vansicklin celebrated their 46th wedding anniversary on Friday at the home of their daughter Mrs. William Cornelius.

They were the recipients of an electric tea kettle from the neighbors and the family presented them with a toaster.

LOST HIS MONEY

Billy Watley, an Examiner carrier boy, lost $16, his total collection for the week, on the way from his home at 231 Westcott St. to the Examiner office this morning. He came north on George St. to the Capitol theatre where he paused briefly to examine the pictures on the front of the building. He then turned east on Charlotte St. and north again on Water St. to the Examiner building. When he went to turn the money in to the circulation department, he discovered it was missing.

Will Soon Establish Palominos As Horse Breed

No bluebook of high society ever set stiffer standards of entry than those of the register of palomino horses.

Nature gave palominos burnished coats of gold. Gleaming in the sun against green meadows, they have few peers for beauty in the animal kingdom. Rembrandt painted them, and Chinese emperors rode them into court.

NEWLY MINTED GOLD

For a true palomino, today's rules specify "the body color must not be more than three shades lighter or darker than a newly minted gold coin. The mane and tail must be white, silver or ivory, with no more than 15 per cent dark hairs in either."

White stockings and a forehead of white can set off the proud golden coat. But woe betide the errant palomino with a hint of zebra stripes on its legs or a dark stripe down its back. These markings disqualify for registration.

With such high standards, American palomino fanciers are fast establishing the golden horse as a distinctive breed. Although such horses are as old as equestrian records, they were accidental, a color rather than a type. Today, under the nation-wide Palomino Horse Breeders' Association, the science of reproducing the golden color in successive generations is being mastered. A stallion with such bloodstock is a gold mine on hooves.

The foundation of the palomino line rests on horses brought to this hemisphere by the Spanish conquistadores. Arabian and Thoroughbred blood flows in their veins, giving them courage, stamina and high intelligence.

Around campfires in the cattle country of the Southwest, the prowess of palominos is legendary. But the great increase in their popularity in the last ten years has come as a result of sheer beauty, and the hope of capturing that beauty in a horse family of living gold.

ROYAL LINEAGE

Horse breeding comes close to being the most carefully worked out venture of man into animal husbandry. Only from hundreds of years of meticulous care have come the magnificent horses of today.

The Thoroughbred breed is the outstanding example of royal blood preserved in a steady line of descent. Every Thoroughbred can be traced in ancestry to three horses imported into England near the turn of the 18th century —the Byerley Turk, Darley Arabian, and Godolphin Barb.

Bringing the lightness and speed of Arabian steeds to the strength and endurance of the British "Great Horses," each of these famous sires had an adventurous history. The Byerley Turk fought at the gates of Vienna and there was captured by a British officer. The Godolphin Barb, a gift to Louis XV of France from the Sultan of Morocco, was discovered years later pulling a water cart in the streets of Paris. The Darley Arabian was transported from Aleppo England during war time.

From these forebears came the matchless Matchem, then English Eclipse, and eventually a family of racehorses that has spread to all corners of the world. Brought to America in the early years of the colonies, the bloodline produced American Eclipse, Lexington, and Man o' War.

Janus, grandson of Godolphin Barb, was the father of the swift, surefooted cow pony, the Quarter Horse. Denmark sired the American Saddle Horse breed. Rysdyk's Hambletonian founded the Standard-bred line of harness racers.

Other items of interest:

A further reminder that "Every Other Saturday" dance is this Saturday, with music by the Blue Blazers. Also that Saturday — that is tonight—the "Out at the Kawartha" radio broadcast will be on the air at 6:15 p.m.

London Brigade Man Wins Rifle Prize

BISLEY, England (Reuters) — Major N. W. McCaw of the London Rifle Brigade today won the Queen's Prize, top honors for rifle shooting, with an aggregate of 273 points.

McCay, a 40-year-old Portsmouth hotel proprietor, triumphed in one of the closest finishes in this classic for several years. The result did not become obvious until almost the last shot of the competition had been fired.

Harmless Hair

NEW PLYMOUTH, N.Z. (CP)—H. E. Blyde, a dairy marketing official, received an irate telephone call from Chicago to tell him a consignment of New Zealand cheese had been condemned because a rat hair had been found in it. Fast checking revealed the hair came from an opossum, a clean-living animal, and the cheese was passed.

Reds Request 24-Hour Delay

MUNSAN (AP)—A possible showdown meeting of Allied and Communist truce negotiators was postponed for 24 hours today at the request of the Reds.

The recess put off until 2 p.m. Sunday (1 a.m. EDT Sunday) an expected Red reply to reported Allied demands that the Communists sign an armistice now or face the prospect of a breakdown in the negotiations.

The second consecutive 24-hour recess requested by the Reds was arranged during a one-minute meeting of liaison officers at Panmunjom.

North Korean Col. Ju Yon said the delay was needed for "administrative reasons" and the United Nations quickly agreed, an official spokesman said.

The extra day gives the Red high command more time to arrive at what may be a momentous decision vitally affecting the chances for a quick end to more than three years of fighting.

In Washington, U.S. State Secretary Dulles said Friday night "we are ready for honorable peace" in Korea. At the same time he declared that "if the Communists want war, we must be ready for that, too."

Finds Man's Body After He Has Dream

MASSENA, N. Y. (AP)—The body of Robert Boyle, 44, of Montreal, was recovered from the St. Lawrence river today by a veteran river man—at a place he said he had dreamed it would be found.

Boyle was drowned Sunday at Whalen's Bay while trying to start an outboard motor. The engine started at full throttle and he was thrown into the water.

William Cassleman, 70, the river man, said he had dreamt Friday night that Boyle's body would be found at Gibson's Point. Early this morning he boated out to the point and within a few minutes found the body.

Freighter Aground Pulls Away With Tide

QUEBEC (CP)—The 12,000-ton freighter Beaverlake of the Canadian Pacific Steamship lines ran aground today in the St. Lawrence river opposite nearby Lauzon but was able to pull away shortly after with the incoming tide.

No serious damage was reported. The Beaverlake is on its way to Britain.

Hit By Other Car

The Examiner carried a report Friday that a car driven by Miss Lorenda Kearney, 45, of 514 Bonaccord, struck a second car while Miss Kearney was driving on King St. Miss Kearney says the second car, pulling from a parking lot, hit her vehicle.

Night Session Held By Union, Quaker Officials

Company and union officials of the Quaker Oats Co. in Saskatoon had a night session Friday as they negotiated for a settlement of the strike now in its 13th week. They are meeting again today.

James G. Wharry, general manager of the company, said today that he had no news of any imminent settlement. "They're still negotiating and there's still no agreement; that's about all we can say at this stage" said Mr. Wharry.

Both the 435 production workers in Peterborough and the 135 in Saskatoon went on strike April 22, and they have been on the picket line since. It is the longest strike in the history of the United Packighouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) in Canada.

Early in the week it was known that the Saskatoon manager, W. P. Noble, had offered the union further concessions but there has been no word on whether or not the union took this offer to the membership. Tuesday night Lewis H. Ingram, vice-president in charge of personnel, flew to Saskatoon by plane with full powers to end the long strike.

It is not known what Mr. Ingram offered but he has been in daily meetings with union officials since Wednesday. Friday morning. Friday morning Norman Riches of Calgary, UPWA western director, sat in on the talks which made some observers think that a crucial phase of the negotiations had been reached.

It was thought highly probable that an agreeable formula could have been reached by today so the terms could be accepted or rejected by the Saskatoon membership at a Sunday meeting. However, at press time, there were no indications that a break could be expected this weekend.

The Saskatoon unionists have rejected previous company offers on wages and hours. They also want a union security clause.

Garden vegetables were at a premium. Beets were as low as four bunches for 25c. Cabbage was 10c a head, and the same price existed for a bunch of carrots.

Blueberries were not too plentiful, contrary to public opinion.

Chickens were selling at 45c-50c a lb.

Quebec Campaign Cockpit For St. Laurent and Coldwell

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec was the election campaign cockpit for Prime Minister St. Laurent and CCF leader M. J. Coldwell yesterday while George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, concentrated on Nova Scotia's south shore. After a strenuous western tour, Mr. St. Laurent returned to his home riding of Quebec East. He found it even hotter there—97 degrees—than it had been on the Saskatchewan plains earlier in the week. Speaking in French to an outdoor audience of about 2,000 in Quebec's white-collar district, the prime minister said Mr. Drew represents himself as a champion of autonomy to "win votes in Quebec province."

He said the Progressive Conservative leader had told Quebec voters recently that provincial autonomy was threatened.

FIRST TO FIGHT IT

"If such a threat existed I would be the first one to fight it," Mr. St. Laurent said. "I intend to do my share until my last breath to safeguard the autonomy of Quebec. But that does not mean that I intend to neglect the other provinces."

At another point, the prime minister put aside his notes and brought up the subject of a national flag: "Canada will have its own flag some day but it will have one when it will be a sign of unity and not a subject of quarrelling and dissension."

Speaking of election promises, he said: "I will make but one promise and that is to serve the whole population with the same care that we bring to our own family affairs."

Earlier, he told a press conference that during his election tour he has found "more unity than ever" in Canada. At Montreal, he told newspapermen the campaign is one of the quietest he had ever seen.

SOME IMPROVEMENT

On foreign affairs, he said to Montreal reporters: "I haven't been satisfied with the international situation for the last 12 years. But it's better now than at any time during the 12 years I've been in politics."

Mr. Coldwell, addressing a shirt-sleeved audience in a Montreal working-class district, attacked Premier Duplessis' provincial government "and the Fascists who are in power in Quebec."

He said that in all other provinces political parties could put up posters and distribute pamphlets without having to submit them to police chiefs. It showed how far Quebec was on the way to a police state like some European countries before the war.

Mr. Coldwell spoke in English. He was interrupted once during his hour-long speech by a man who asked him to speak in French.

The CCF leader said it was time that Mr. St. Laurent, who had a genuine interest in freedom, spoke out against "Duplessis and the Fascists who are in power" in his native province.

SOCIAL CREDIT HELP

On another subject, Mr. Coldwell said Mr. Drew had stated the Progressive Conservatives would not enter into any alliance with the CCF. But in British Columbia Progressive Conservatives supported Social Credit. "If Mr. Drew needed a few seats to form the government of Canada, I have no doubt that Social Credit would help him to achieve that."

At Bridgewater, N.S., Mr. Drew counter-attacked a suggestion by Mr. St. Laurent that the value of Victory Bonds might be endangered if a Progressive Conservative government employed deficit financing to carry out its promised $500,000,000-a-year tax cuts.

Mr. Drew, who stripped off his coat as he warmed to his subject before an audience of 1,600 in the town's sports arena, said the value of Victory Bonds had declined already because the government "broke its promise" to maintain their market price.

The government had "betrayed its responsibility" to the people who bought Victory Bonds as a patriotic duty.

CREATING BOGEYS

Referring to the prime minister, Mr. Drew said: "Out of his own fear he's trying to create bogeys in other people's minds . . . as to what would happen if a Progressive Conservative government came to power."

The Progressive Conservative leader contended that "the disease" diagnosed by the Currie report is spreading to other government departments. A Progressive Conservative government would "undertake a very delicate operation" on government spending to cut out "waste, extravagance and inefficiency."

At Chester, speaking in the Hill-top Memorial Park, he said: "We have seen a government which has taken the position that your representatives in Parliament have no right to get information unless it is the government's wish. They have come to believe they are there by divine right."

Percy Wright, chief CCF farm spokesman, said in a free-time political broadcast over a CBC network that a CCF government would guarantee prices in advance for farmers and other primary producers.

USING FARMERS

The member for Melfort, Sask., in the last Commons said the Liberal government is trying to build a prosperous Canada on a depressed agriculture—trying to "climb to a higher standard of living by using the backs of our farmers as stepping stones." Mr. Wright is opposing Agriculture Minister Gardiner in Melville, Sask.

Mr. St. Laurent rests at his summer home at St. Patrick, Que., today and will address a meeting at Mont Joli, Que., Sunday. Mr. Drew will speak in three Nova Scotia towns, then spend Sunday on the train en route to Quebec. Mr. Coldwell is taking both Saturday and Sunday off, resuming his campaign at Hamilton Monday.

CCF Government Would Establish Guaranteed Forward Farm Prices

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF government would establish guaranteed forward prices for farmers and livestock producers and nationalize the meat - packing industry, Percy Wright, Chief CCF farm spokesman, said Friday night.

Mr. Wright spoke over the CBC's trans-Canada network. Former member of the Commons for Melfort, Sask., he is opposing Agriculture Minister Gardiner in Melville, Sask.

He charged the Liberal government with trying to build a prosperous Canada on a depressed agriculture.

PROTECT FARMERS

Mr. Wright said the CCF's plan of guaranteed forward prices—guaranteeing prices in advance for farmers and other primary producers — would assure growers fair returns and protect him against future market fluctuations.

While this would involve payments to producers from the federal treasury in some years, they would be a small price for stability and security in food production.

Another CCF measure, Mr. Wright said, would be to eliminate "exorbitant" price spreads between producer and consumer to ensure that neither is "exploited by wealthy and powerful interest in between."

Guaranteed prices would be paid direct to producers rather than to middle parties such as meat-packing plants. A giant monopoly of packers had "shamefully exploited" livestock producers, workers and consumers.

Military Campaigning Rule Appears Elastic—Drew

BRIDGEWATER, N.S. (CP)—George Drew charged Friday the government has an "elastic" rule which banned his own visit to Petawawa military camp and yet allowed Prime Minister St. Laurent to visit a new air base at North Bay. The Progressive Conservative leader referred in a speech here to the application of an armed forces regulation against visits by candidates to service camps which forced cancellation of his planned visit to Petawawa last week.

"Evidently the rule is very elastic," Mr. Drew said, "since Mr. St. Laurent spoke at a new air-base at North Bay this week."

NO CAMPAIGNING

Mr. Drew said his visit to Petawawa was planned only as a call on a camp where he had spent much time while serving in the artillery. There was "no suggestion" of campaigning.

"Apparently they don't want us to find 'out about' some of the things at these camps."

Mr. St. Laurent visited North Bay Friday en route to Sudbury from Port Arthur. His plane landed and took off from a field jointly used by civilian and RCAF planes. He spoke at an impromptu gathering of some 200 citizens at an open-air park meeting.

A spokesman at the RCAF base at North Bay said the prime minister was met by a group of persons, but he did not inspect the base or make an address there.

Opposition Head Quits

REGINA (CP)—Walter Tucker, member for Rosthern and Liberal Opposition Leader in the Saskatchewan Legislature for the last five years, announced his resignation Friday.

He said his resignation was tendered to House Speaker Tom Johnston and was post-dated to take effect July 20.

Mr. Tucker's resignation leaves him free to campaign in the federal election as Liberal candidate in Rosthern.

Abbott Sees Slight Deficit

WINNIPEG (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said Friday he "would not be surprised if we ended up this fiscal year with a slight deficit, rather than a surplus."

In an interview on his arrival at Winnipeg, Mr. Abbott based his statement on the fact that during April and May, the first two months of the present fiscal year, the surplus was running about $40,000,000 less than during the same period last year.

At the end of the last fiscal year, the surplus stood at $24,000,000, or one-half of one per cent of the total budget, he said. This year, he is budgetting for a surplus of about $11,000,000 out of a total revenue of some $4,500,000,000—"not much of a margin for error."

CCF Candidate Wants Debate

WINDSOR (CP)—Les Batterson, CCF candidate in Essex West, Friday renewed his challenge to Don F. Brown, Liberal member for that constituency, to meet him in a public debate by promising "both a hall and the biggest audience he has had in this campaign."

Mr. Brown earlier turned down the challenge because he was "busy as the deuce" and because he didn't "see why I should draw an audience" for Mr. Batterson and Progressive Conservative candidate Don Morand.

Mr. Morand first issued the challenge several days ago and later Mr. Batterson invited both his opponents to meet him in debate.

Candidates Eye One Another As Signs Vanish

TORONTO—Liberals, Progressive Conservatives and CCFers in Parkdale are eyeing one another and almost everyone else in the riding with deep suspicion following removal of many signs for the August 10 election.

A survey Friday night following complaints from supporters of CCF candidate Archie Chisholm indicated that sign stealing is affecting all three groups about equally.

Said a spokesman for PC candidate Mrs. Irene McBrien: "I don't want to accuse anyone, but we've had at least 40 of our signs torn down since Tuesday. It's a funny thing that Liberal signs seem to go up in their place."

From Mr. Chisholm: "I'm not sure how many we've lost but I know that some I put up at the foot of Close Ave. were torn down. I replaced them twice, and they came down again twice. There were three signs there and mine and Mrs. McBrien's had disappeared but Mr. Hunter's hadn't."

And from a spokesman for Liberal John Hunter: "Don't talk to me about lost signs. At least 25 per cent of the ones I put up were torn down and ripped. Some of them were painted in fluorescent paint that shows up at night, and they're fairly expensive."

It may have been children, the party organizations admitted. But they're all suspicious enough so that they will be keeping a close watch on posters for the next few days.

Demands Drew Retract MacDougall Statement

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. J. Lorne MacDougall, Liberal member of the last Parliament for Vancouver - Burrard, charged Friday night that Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew had told "an untruth" regarding Dr. MacDougall's candidacy in his constituency and demanded that it be retracted.

In a statement released by his campaign headquarters Dr. MacDougall said Mr. Drew made a national broadcast from Charlottetown Wednesday night in which he said neither of the two Liberal MPs who voted against the governments' Emergency Powers Legislation in the last session is a candidate for re-election.

Dr. MacDougall, one of the two members, said he has wired Mr. Drew that he was nominated by acclamation a week before Mr. Drew reached Vancouver on his campaign tour last month.

Gov't Rides Piggyback on Municipalities

AYLMER—The federal government was accused of hitchhiking financially and riding piggyback on municipal treasuries all across the country by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative candidate for Peel, in an address here Friday night.

Speaking at a shirtsleeve meeting in Aylmer's town hall, Mr. Graydon let go with both barrels at the government's taxation program.

He said that, like PC Leader George Drew, he felt it was only fair that if the Crown is going to tax municipalities, municipalities should be able to tax the Crown.

However, under the present setup, the federal government is gouging taxes out of municipalities while its own large projects go untaxed in most cases. He said the federal government even collected excise tax on purchases for civil defense.

"This government has snapped its fingers at the municipalities, he said. "We think something ought to be done about this and a Drew government would do something about it."

He said that before the war the federal government got 51 cents out of each tax dollar while the municipalities' share had been whittled down to 11 cents.

Both Mr. Graydon and Charles reassured the audience on the D. Coyle, PC candidate for Elgin, subject of old age pensions and baby bonuses. Both said that these allowances would not only be continued but would be in a stronger position under a Progressive Conservative government.

Mr. Graydon said that a new government would keep a sharp eye on extravagance and waste and this would put such allowances in a much better position.

The Peel member said he felt the people of Canada were convinced that it was not only time for a change in government but a time for curbing of high taxes and waste on the part of government. He said not only Conservatives were convinced of these facts but members of other political parties too were turning to that viewpoint.

"We welcome them and we need them when we form a good government in Canada.

"This government has been on a spending honeymoon for so long they think it will never end. But it is going to be cut short on Aug. 10 when the bride and groom will have to settle down to housekeeping."

Mr. Coyle, seeking election to a third term in the House, criticized the government for high taxes on cigarettes. Speaking in an area where much flue-cured tobacco is grown, he said the tax in Canada is 18 cents per pack while in the United States it is eight cents. This had not only resulted in a lot of smuggling but also in reduced acreages for Canadian growers.

About 50 persons attended the rally and all of them followed the example of Mr. Graydon, who appeared on the platform in shirtsleeves. The temperature was in the 90's.

Question:

Mr. Swanston, your opponent invites the electors to vote for him and Play Safe. Have you any comment?

Answer:

I am not too good at riddles, but I think it means that if he is elected to sit in Opposition again we will all be safe because there is no chance that he will be able to do anything. Being on the Government side means taking chances. Taking chances on Canada's present tremendous development, for instance. I have never been a Play-Safer myself, because I am a strong believer in Progress, and there is no progress in Playing Safe. I believe in sensible, realistic optimism about this great country. That's why I am a Liberal.

Canada's Stratford Festival

The Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Ont., was formally launched at the beginning of this week, and is now well out into the deep water of its five-weeks run. Is it going to be a success? Yes, it is a success already. It is an artistic success of a quality which the Canadian theatre has never experienced before. As more than half the seats for the total season were sold before the first night, it may be predicted that it will be a financial success also; it will not make money, and will probably lose some on its first year of operation, but it will make that up next year. And in any case the aim of the Festival is not to be a money-making scheme, but to be a great national event, soundly financed, paying its own way.

* * *

This aspect of the Festival was stressed by the director, Tyrone Guthrie, when he was called in to advise the Stratford committee as to what they should do. His advice boiled down to this: if you want to make money, you had better give up any idea of a Shakespeare Festival, and put on a big girl-show; but if you want prestige, it will cost you a great deal of money, and it will never be a huge money-maker. Stratford chose prestige, and after many vicissitudes it has started its Festival.

* * *

Was Stratford wise? Only time can answer that question, but the chances are strong that the answer will be Yes. Canada's importance to the world has been apparent ever since the war, but it is still the importance of a country which can export great quantities of raw and manufactured materials; it is an economic importance. But no country in history has ever made a mark on the world solely through economic or military strength. It is greatness in the arts and in learning which brings a country the sort of esteem which attaches to England, to France, to Italy, to ancient Greece—to any of the countries which have made modern civilization. Canada must make some contribution to the world on a level other than the economic one. Stratford has taken the bull by the horns and started a Shakespeare festival which has already wrung from one New York critic the admission that its classical comedy style is the finest to be seen on this continent. And this group of actors, with the exception of three players, is Canadian.

* * *

Further, Stratford has built a theatre for this Festival. It is not a conventional theatre, but a theatre of a type hitherto unknown on this continent, seating 1,500 people and combining the best elements in the theatre of ancient Greece and the theatre of Elizabethan England. It is a perfect theatre for classical plays; it is not a theatre in which a performance of, let us say, Petticoat Fever, could be managed. But Stratford, thinking that great numbers of Canadians and Americans want something a little beyond the scope of Petticoat Fever have built a theatre which is unlike any that has been built for the last three hundred years, anywhere in the world.

* * *

This took vision, and hard work, and we must give Stratford full marks for both. They have put their city on the map, and they have put Canada on the map in an entirely new sense. They have understood the modern enthusiasm for large festivals of music and plays, and they have been first in Canada to apply the lesson on their own ground. They have beaten all the rest of us hollow in their spirit of adventure, and in their faith in themselves and in their country.

* * *

What will the Festival do for Stratford? What would a Festival do for Peterborough which brought, at a conservative estimate, 7,500 people a week for five weeks to its hotels, restaurants and shops? The Festival itself may not make a lot of money, but the people of Stratford will make a lot of money out of the Festival. And this happened because Stratford citizens had enough foresight to organize and promote something which was not a money-making scheme, and which was founded on the highest artistic and patriotic principles. There is still room in Canada for a musical festival organized on the same large scale; when some enterprising city has done that the festival field will be full.

* * *

Of the plays themselves, full criticisms have appeared in the papers. It need only be said that Richard III is a spectacle of a sort which we have not previously experienced in the Canadian theatre; it is magnificently acted, it is filled with brilliantly imaginative pageantry, it is immensely exciting. All's Well That Ends Well, which is not a favourite Shakespearean comedy, comes to life in a modern-dress production as a beautiful fairy-tale, shot through with superb comedy. Both plays do for the audience what the theatre at its best can do—it gives delight, it stirs the emotions deeply, and it rouses the mind and spirit to a sense of the wonderful complexity, power, beauty and terror of life.

* * *

The Stratford Shakespearean Festival is an event in Canadian history which brings honour to that city, and honour to the Canadian actors who show their quality so splendidly in the plays. It does honour, also, to those British theatre people, Alec Guinness, Irene Worth, Tyrone Guthrie and Tanya Moiselevitch who have guided its fortunes, at some sacrifice to themselves. We do not say merely that it deserves the support of Canadians; it is only just to say that such a venture commands support by virtue of its boldness and fine quality.

Matchmaking By Plebiscite

The Royal Family is the object of intense interest and curiosity, especially in this Coronation year, and its popularity has seldom been greater. It is only natural that we should like to know all we can about them, but are we not going too far in prying into what little private life they still possess?

We would not advocate a return to the hush-hush policy which left the majority of the English people in the dark about the Abdication Crisis until the very last minute, but the tactics of the more irresponsible section of the London press, ably abetted by the press in America, have overstepped the boundaries of good taste.

70,142 of the four and a half million readers of the London Daily Mirror have voted on whether Princess Margaret should marry Group-Commander Townsend, and of these 95 per cent have signified that she should do so. The significant fact arising out of these figures has escaped most commentators, but it is fairly obvious: of every 500 subscribers and purchasers only one voted in the poll. Some may have abstained out of lethargy or lack of interest, but we surmise that many abstained out of a sense of decency.

The whole story has been conjured up from remarkably little real evidence. Nobody is even sure that Princess Margaret wishes to marry Group-Commander Townsend. There is reason to suppose that she is on friendly terms with him, but there have been so many other rumours of her "impending engagement" on the strength of being seen out on two occasions with the same man that the average reader may be pardoned a certain scepticism.

The statement that Group-Commander Townsend has been "exiled" to Brussels is silly. Brussels is nearer to London than Newcastle-on-Tyne and almost as accessible. If the authorities really intended to "exile" him they could surely have sent him to Hong-Kong.

We wonder how many of Her Majesty's loyal subjects would submit in dignified silence to this match-making by plebiscite? These dilemmas (if such a dilemma exists for the Princess) occur often enough in private life—the daughter of the factory boss falls in love with the fiery labour leader, the strict Jew succumbs to the charms of the fair Gentile, and so on. They are often solved by renunciation, an unpopular way with soap opera writers and authors of books on psychology for the millions.

We would not presume at this stage and on so little positive grounds to solve the dilemma of the Princess. It may be that no great dilemma is involved. Princess Margaret's sister is Queen, the titular Head of the Church of England, and she is solemnly pledged to uphold its doctrines. Princess Margaret is next in succession to the throne after Prince Charles and Princess Ann. She is reputed to be a devout member of the Church of England. She will also remember that her uncle's marriage stirred up many feelings and diminished the prestige of the monarchy. She has been brought up to realize fully the responsibilities of her position. Can we not leave her to wrestle with her own problems?

The Queen's Visit To Wales

By SENATOR RUPERT DAVIES

MONDAY, July 13th—The past week has been a busy one. It included the Royal Agricultural Exhibition, of which I happen to be a Governor, and which was this year held at Blackpool; also the visit of the Queen to several important towns in Wales. Before touching on the Royal Show, however, I must refer to the success of the tour of the choir from Bishop Strachan School, Toronto. This choir of 25 girls under the direction of Mr. John Hodgins, toured Britain under the auspices of the Commonwealth Youth Movement. They started the tour in Edinburgh, and finished it at Worcester on June 26th. They sang for the most part in cathedrals, and included in their itinerary were both Canterbury and Winchester. Mr. Hodgins is the organist and choirmaster at Grace-Church-on-the-Hill, Toronto, and is also well-known as an adjudicator of musical festivals in Kingston and elsewhere. We had the great pleasure of entertaining the choir from the 26th till the 30th of June, when they sailed for Canada on the Empress of Australia. They sang on Sunday morning in the old parish church, part of which was built in the reign of King John. Mr. Hodgins presided at the organ, and directed the entire choir at the service. The B.S.S. choir sang "I Will Lift Mine Eyes," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" unaccompanied, as an anthem. I have received many letters from members of the congregation expressing their pleasure with the singing of the Toronto school choir. Such tours as that of the B.S.S. Choir, and the Appleby Boys' Choir, which has also been over here, do much to impress Britishers with the cultural side of Canadian life.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE trip up to Blackpool of some 110 miles to the Royal Show took three hours and a half. Having to go through Liverpool, the traffic was naturally very heavy. The traffic between Chester and Birkenhead, and through the Mersey tunnel is always heavy, for the Liverpool docks are five miles long, and ships from all over the world are unloading in the Mersey every day. I had not been to Blackpool for some fifteen years. I found it the same crowded seaside resort that it has been as long as I can remember. Many people dislike Blackpool because it is so crowded always, but I maintain it is the most interesting seaside resort in Britain and there is more entertainment provided there for the visitor than in any other similar place I have visited. Blackpool is the favourite holiday resort of the Lancashire people, a happy, hardworking, contented people who when they go to Blackpool to enjoy themselves make a real good job of it. I have heard many good stories about holidays at Blackpool, but the one I heard the other day is one of the best. It was Bury Week at Blackpool, and while the wife of one of Bury's mill workers went out the first afternoon to buy some provisions for the lodgings where they were going to stay their fortnight, the husband wandered about meeting this pal and that pal, and having one or two in every convenient bar. Toward eight o'clock some pals from Bury who had been up for the day only, found the husband "asleep" on a bench near the bus terminal. They were full of compassion, so they carried him on to the bus, and took him to Bury. When they got there they got a taxi and took him to his home. Finding the key of the front door in his pocket, they carefully and quietly carried him in, so, as not to disturb his wife, laid him on the sofa, and tiptoed out. When they went around to see how he was on Sunday morning, they found a very bewildered pal wondering how he came to be in his own home when he should have been holidaying with his wife in Blackpool.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Royal Show was, as usual, an excellent show. Welsh Black cattle were a top attraction this year, and carried off many prizes. The judging of the hunter classes, as always, drew large crowds, as did the Welsh ponies. The Royal Show, which is a four-day event, is noted for many attractive features, but two, which always appeal to me, are the flower show and the forestry exhibit. This year the feature exhibit in this latter section come from the Duke of Westminster's estate, at Eaton Hall, Chester. Actual demonstrations were taking place of gate-making, fence-making, etc., which are of very definite educational value. As at the big Canadian Agricultural exhibitions, every conceivable kind of agricultural machinery was on show. The prices were high, but farming is very profitable in the country today, and with help scarce and wages high, the farmer must needs invest heavily in labour-saving machinery.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Queen's visit to Wales was a tremendous success, and aroused great enthusiasm all over the Principality. The Royal Tour started in South Wales on Thursday, the ninth, when the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh visited Cardiff, Swansea and many other villages and towns in that district. On Friday, the Queen came to North Wales, where she visited Carnarvon, Rhyl and Llangollen. Those of us who had been allotted seats in the castle grounds at Carnarvon, from this county, by the Lord Lieutenant, had to be up betimes. It takes from three hours to three and a half hours to drive from here to Carnarvon, and we had to be in our seats by nine o'clock. However, the drive through the Snowdonia country is always a delightful one, and it seems to have an added charm in the early hours of the morning. I have driven through the Llanberis Pass on many occasions, but only once have I been able to see the chalet on the top of Snowdon. It is usually shrouded in mist. The visit to Carnarvon must have been of particular interest to the Queen, for it was here on July 19th, 1911, that the late King George V., her grandfather, placed the golden demi-crown on the head of her uncle, Edward of Windsor. He was the nineteenth Prince of Wales, but the first to be invested in the office at historic Carnarvon Castle.

✧ ✧

CARNARVON CASTLE was first built in the 13th century, and like every other Welsh castle was attacked and destroyed and rebuilt on more than one occasion. Legend has it that it was at Carnarvon Castle that the first Prince of Wales was presented to the people by an English king, and that he was shown to the people from a balcony of the castle. Whether the legend is true or not we do not know, but historians tell us that the first use of the title of Prince of Wales was made by Henry III., after the abdication of the Welsh prince, Llewelyn the Great. But there was a dispute about this. David, son of Llewelyn, claimed and exercised the rights and privileges of the prince, himself. However, histories are rather confusing on this matter. It is generally accepted, I think, that Edward, the first Prince of Wales, was the fourth son of Edward I. and Eleanor of Castile, and later became Edward II of England. The old legend about the young prince tells us that his father was at Rhuddlan, another castle about 50 miles away, conferring with his Welsh chiefs. They were demanding that one of their number should be put on the Welsh throne, which Edward was purposely keeping vacant. When he heard that a son had been born to him at Carnarvon Castle, he called the chiefs together, and asked them if they would accept a prince born in Wales, of a blameless life and one who could not speak a word of English. They readily agreed. "Then," said the king, "come with me to Carnarvon." And there the Welsh chiefs were presented with the infant son which, we are told, they were bound to accept. The Prince was christened by the Bishop of Bangor and became the first English Prince of Wales.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Queen finished her Welsh tour at Llangollen, a pretty little town beside the River Dee, and nestling below the ruins of Castle Dinas-Bran (or Crow Castle) famous in Welsh song and story from the time of Madog ap Gruffyd Maelor to the time of the great Welsh leader Owen Glendower. He is said to have established himself in the old castle, of which Cowper Powys has written so entertainly in his famous novel named after the great chieftain. The Queen visited the town during the International Eisteddfod, when the little town was crowded with choirs from all Europe. Friday was a great day for Wales in one respect, but a sad day in another respect. For the first time, be it said to our shame, Wales failed to secure a single prize for choral work or folk song and dance parties. Seventeen male choirs competed at the Eisteddfod from Austria, England, Italy, Latvia, Norway, Spain, Wales and the U.S.A. Summarised the prizes for choral singing were allotted as follows: England, 10 prizes; Germany, 3; Spain, 1; Scotland, 1. England won the folk dancing, with France second and Java third. That this great humiliation should have come to Wales the very year when "the Queen passed by," is sad indeed. The Principality's reputation as "the land of song," has been badly damaged. Seems to me the Gorsedd will have to be called together to talk this matter over.

IT COULD BE, YOU KNOW!

Letters To The Editor

SOLUTION TO FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL PROBLEM

Sir: This is no political propaganda even if I mention or talk of politics—since I do not in this letter, favor any side but, suggest a new; though prompted by that I've heard or read, via radio or newspaper.

Some regret holiday interference, but surely both sides will be equally on a holiday unless one side is more fond or appreciative of their vote than the other; — and surely in this enlightened Christian era a vote could not be bought?

It is not a holiday season for farmers but an extra busy, generally speaking—I do not suggest or hint they make use of it in this letter but: since so many are disgruntled why not do away with federal altogether, and have only the provincial,—each one with its own law, and the higher;—and see or observe the best in each; be separate, or a mind your own; but with the view of what is good for all: and to heck with war. What has war solved?

NATIONAL DAY OF MOURNING

Sir: Once again we are, on opening the pages of the Examiner (July 14) filled with horror: Four babies die a dreadful death from fire. If we are not able to prevent this — and most of it could be prevented — could we not a least set aside a National Day of Mourning for these innocents sacrificed needlessly on the altar of the God of Fire?

THE OTONABEE SCHOOL PROBLEM

Sir: A great deal has been said recently in your columns and elsewhere about Education. It is a subject in which every Canadian should be vitally interested.

Many municipalities today are faced with the twofoid problem of finding and keeping teachers, and the need for larger and more up-to-date buildings to house the rapidly increasing school population. One such area is the Township of Otonabee where the school population is growing amazingly due to some extent, to our proximity to the City of Peterbrugh.

In Otonabee, as in many other areas, the little red school house has served its day. A century ago it was a splendid institution, but today it is out-moded. It is no longer large enough, and it has serious limitations as a means of educating the children of the mid-twentieth century.

Overcrowding makes adequate teaching of all the subjects to all eight grades an impossibility. It become a frustrating experience for both teacher and pupil. Evidence of this is found in the fact that, each year, fewer graduates of the Normal Schools are accepting positions in the rural schools. At one time a graduate from Normal School found it necessary to take a position in a rural school and remain there until he had proved himself capable, after which he might seek employment in a graded school. The present teacher shortage has eliminated the "rural experience" step, and Normal graduates are now accepting positions in graded schools, usually at better salaries than they could obtain in the country, — and who can blame them? In the meantime, however, this draining of the chief source of rural teachers is causing considerable dismay to rural school boards.

In the one-roomed school there is a depressing lack of proper facilities. The tired old buildings are in bad repair, and for this reason certain portions of the work of the teacher are largely wasted. For example, we teach the children that the common housefly is a filthy carrier of disease, yet because our windows and doors lack screens, houseflies infest the classroom from May to October. We teach the importance of cleanlines, but here too even the dullest pupil must note the discrepancy between the health lesson and the facilities provided for washing. A typical set-up in Otonabee is this: The children must carry the water for a considerable distance, from a neighbouring farm. The equipment consists of one badly-chipped basin, a galvanized pail set on a blackless chair to catch waste water and (the only redeeming features) soap, and paper towels. All this in a space approximately six feet by two feet for thirty-six pupils not to mention the teacher. Everyone knows the importance to morals of clean, pleasant surroundings, yet most of the Otonabee classrooms haven't been painted for so long that it is now difficult to determine the original shade of brown that was used in their decoration.

There are few Otonabee ratepayers who would live contentedly in homes so badly equipped and unattractive, yet in these crumbling ruins the children of Otonabee must spend most of their waking hours for ten months of each year, and moreover, these are the classrooms to which our School Board must attempt to lure teachers.

To any who doubt the truth of these statements, I respectfully suggest a visit to the schools of Otonabee. A comparison of the Coldsprings School with the others will, I think, prove my point.

Thanking you, sir,

I am, Yours truly,

(Mrs.) LAURA M. IRWIN,

R.R. 1, Keene.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

At that time Jesus went on the sabbath day through the corn . . . And when he was departed thence, he went into their synagogue: and, behold, there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath days? that they might accuse him.

And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out? How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath days.

Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other. (Matt. 12: 1, 9-13).

✧ ✧ ✧

And John calling unto him two of his disciples sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another? . . .

And in that same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto many that were blind he gave sight.

Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached. (Luke 7: 19, 21, 22.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple; who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms. . . .

Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus of Nazareth rise up and walk. . .

And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God. And all the people saw him walking and praising God. (Acts 3:2,3,6,8,9.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works. (John 14: 10.)

Bouncing Millions Around

These election campaign speeches have us all mixed up. First, along comes George Drew promising to cut federal taxation by $500,000,000. Social Credit leader Solon Low says something along the same lines. Next Prime Minister St. Laurent is reported ready to launch a national health plan to cost $600,000,000. And finally Finance Minister Abbott declares fulfillment of Mr. Drew's tax reduction promise and his 15 other promises will cost the country $1,000,000,000.

Oh, well, what's a few hundred millions or a billion between political rivals at election time?

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

Rumours that tourists folded their tents and silently (?) stole away during last week's unseasonable cool spell are not too well founded. There were a few isolated cases but many of them took the good with the bad and stayed out their times.

Most places are loaded to the rafters with guests and the situation is expected to exist for several weeks yet. Cliff Pearson of Bayview Lodge on Deer Bay, for instance, tells me he is housing 180 visitors and has the same number booked until Sept. 7.

"Furthermore," said Cliff, "we are booked solid for the first two weeks of July, 1954. Business is great."

SHWEET A-DO-LINNNNNNE

Do tourists drink?

Might as well ask if fish swim, although we hasten to assure you that they are very circumspect about it. According to some casual information from our local Headache Dispensary it seems that Canadian rye is the best seller followed by gin and imported Scotch. Their own bourbon tastes go by the board and very little is sold although some is distilled in Canada. Native wines get no play at all and few purchases are made of imported wines.

Business this year has been exceptionally good.

Apparently, a great many travelling parties have developed a unique system that works out very well, to wit, one of their party is their personal travelling treasurer. This person does the bookkeeping for the whole holiday and disburses all funds for everything. His reward is a free trip except for the purchase of personal items.

Can tourists take spirits home with them?

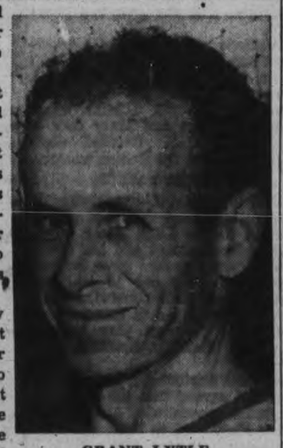
A posted public notice says that each individual, after a 48-hour visit in Canada, may take:

One quart home to Michigan.

One U.S. gallon home to Michigan, Minnesota, New York and Ohio.

No imports are allowed in the States of Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

SPOILERS



Was attracted to a small crowd up at the lakes this week watching four visitors cleaning pan fish on their back stoop. There were two washtubsful of the little fellows strung tightly on twine. Not being an officer of the law I could not upbraid them for having obviously broken the catch limit by far too many fish but felt like it, just the same; (25 fish per day per person is permissible). These worthies—and I doubt whether they had a fishing license or they would have read the score therefrom)—were getting them ready to quick freeze in a local locker for home consumption back in the U.S.A. What a jolt they will get at the Border and what a gross waste in the first place!

These types are in the same class as the icehouse pirates who bury their best fish each day and on the night before they leave for home, re-grade the spoils of the Kawarthas and heave the rest out. A half a dollar to the house boy will hide their dastardly highgrading.

Writing about our ace tourist attraction, fish, and the labour of government authorities to supply the demand begins to sag badly after a few whiffs of rotten fish.

GRANT GAFFLES FISHERMEN

Baitman Grant Lytle of North Water St., showed me an airmail order letter from Paris, France, this week from homeward-bound Coronation visitors who wanted to pick up 100 crawfish on their way through Peterborough to cottage.

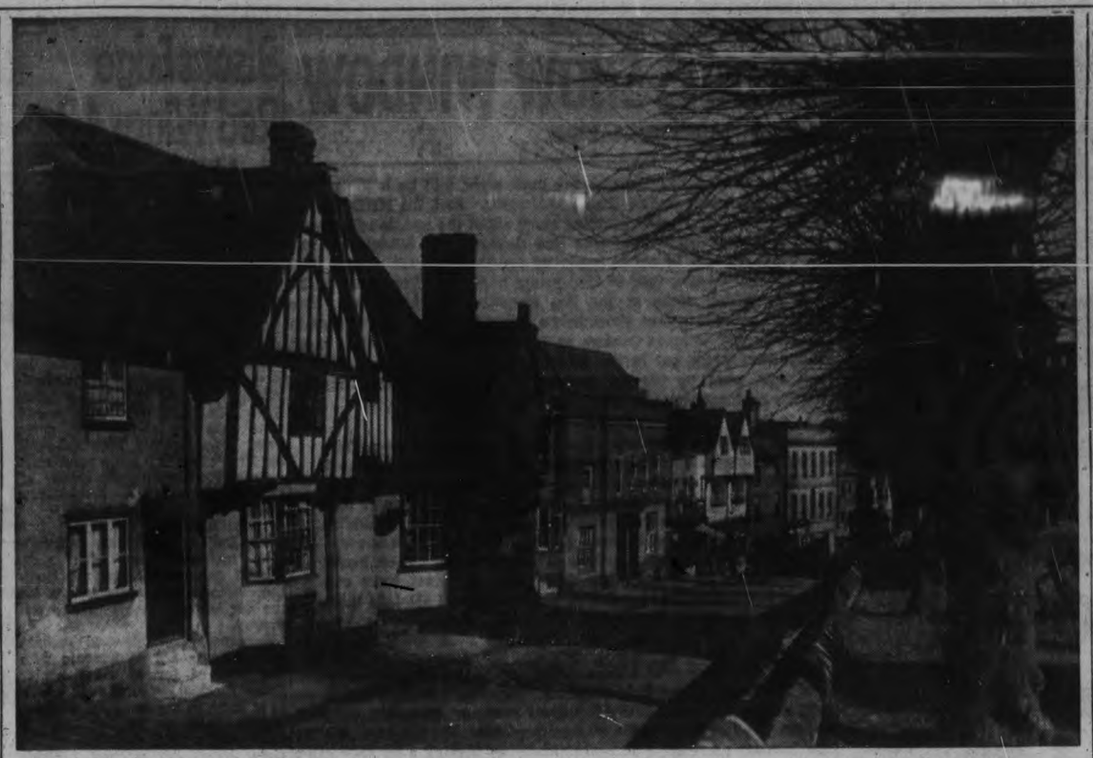
GRANT LYTLE

Such mail, though most of it is from the Northern States and Ontario places, is a daily occurrence during fishing season at Grant's bait shop. His business since being established in 1948 is a going concern, and keeps himself, wife Peggy and helper Buddy Gallagher on the jump about 17 hours a day seven days a week.

Grant is an Arnprior boy who came to Peterborough eight years ago as a salesman. After three years of this he started to make novelty bric-a-brac at home. Someone suggested that he expand his manufacturing line with a sideline of live bait. And since 1948 bait has been his livelihood. Grant is a going concern.

He started at first catching all his life bait but for the past three years buys (except for live minnows which he keeps in a secret hideaway holding pond) and sells. His mail order and retail sales constitutes a volume business with small margins of profit and on peak days his figures run something like this:

25,000 worms
3,000 frogs
2,500 crawfish
500 helgramites.



His neat basement bait store contains aerated bait tanks, a worm room and showcases and shelves filled with artificial lures and fishing equipment of all kinds.

How does Grant do on this lureware business?

Well, to give you an idea, I heard him tell a customer that he ordered three-quarters of a ton of lead sinkers in 1951 and to piece out this season's demands has had to order 700 pounds more.

He has also been known to demonstrate to a cool sales customer by rigging up a stock rod, casting out the back door of his shop into the Otonabee River and bringing in a keeper bass or walleye within a few minutes.

You can't beat this type of salesmanship and Grant's got it.

A VIEW OF BISHOP'S STORTFORD, a county town in the English county of Hertfordshire, as it is today. It was here that Cecil Rhodes was born and it was here that he spent his boyhood.

THE HOUSE IN BISHOP'S STORTFORD, a few miles north of London, where Cecil Rhodes was born. It is now a museum housing many relics of the founder of Southern Rhodesia.

Celebrate Cecil Rhodes' Centenary

Cecil John Rhodes, founder of the Rhodesias, whose centenary is this year being celebrated throughout the Commonwelth, was born on July 5, 1853, in the little English town of Bishop's Stortford, some 30 miles north of London. The town still retains much of its old-world character in spite of its nearness to the metropolis. The shops in its High Street may be modern, but many of the buildings in the side streets are as they were centuries ago. Stortford is indeed a historic and in parts a beautiful town.

And nowhere is it more attractive than in the shadow of St. Michael's Church, set on a hill dominating the whole district. This was the church Rhodes attended as a boy, the church where his father, the Rev. Francis William Rhodes, M. A., was vicar from 1849 to 1876.

INTERESTING CHURCH

The church is an interesting one. It contains a memorial to Sir George Jackson (later Duckett) patron of Captain Cook, after whom Port Jackson, New South Wales, and Point Jackson and Jackson Bay, New Zealand, were named by the great navigator. It contains a stained glass window memorial to Rhodes' parents; it contains, the following memorial to their son:

In Memory of
CECIL JOHN RHODES
Premier of the Cape Colony, and
The Founder of Rhodesia,
Fifth Son of the Vicar
Baptised in St. Michael's Church
Sunday, August 28th, 1853
Educated at the Grammar School
(Now St. Michael's Parish Room)
Born in South Street, Bishop's
Stortford, Herts.
Tuesday, July 5th, 1853
Died at Muizenberg, Cape of Good Hope
Wednesday, March 26th, 1902
Buried at the Matoppos in Rhodesia
Thursday, April 10th, 1902
"There shall he patient make his seat
As when the death he dared" (Unarmed at the Rebel Matabele
Indaba Friday
August 21st, 1896).
"And there await a people's feet
In the paths which he prepared."

The house where Cecil Rhodes was born is at the end of the town. It was then one of two large semi-detached houses standing in gardens, the larger house, Nettleswell House, being that occupied by the Rhodes family. A plaque on the front of the house states.

"The Right Hon. Cecil John Rhodes, the founder of Rhodesia, was born, in the room within, July 5th, 1853."

At one time Nettleswell House alone was maintained as an exact reproduction of a mid-19th century vicarage, with such pictures as The Monarch of the Glen on the walls, antimacassars on chairs, and on the bookshelves such works as would be found in the house of a middle-class Victorian divine. At the moment of writing, however, the house is temporarily closed and structural alterations are taking place which will have the effect of turning both houses into one; new doors have been set in some of the rooms so that visitors may pass right through the two houses from room to room without retracing their steps. It is planned to reopen the building officially on July 5 and, with the aid of dioramas and the like, to illustrate in each room a stage in the life of the great pioneer.

Perhaps the most important relics of Cecil Rhodes which remain in the house are the cradle in which he was rocked to sleep, the little desk at which he wrote as a boy, and the great gold and cornelian signet ring incised with shield and spears and the name Lo Bengula with which the Matabele king signed the charter to the British South Africa Company.

TUDOR FOUNDATION

The school which Rhodes attended, a small red brick building, still stands next to St. Michael's church. It was founded in the reign of Queen Elizabeth I and among its pupils was that Sir William Temple, Secretary of State under Charles II, who formed the triple alliance with Sweden and Holland against France.

It was long a tradition of the school that old scholars should present a volume to its library on leaving; and by the time that the Rev. Francis Rhodes became a trustee the school had little money and no pupils, but held a magnificant library of old folios and first editions. These the trustees sold and were thus able to revive the school. After Rhodes left a new school was built on the outskirts of the town, but it did not prosper and finally closed down. The new school buildings have been turned into flats; the old, where Rhodes was a pupil, are now used as a church hall.

KNEW SCHOOLMATES

On a visit to Storford I spoke to a genial old man of 80 who had lived in the town since 1886 and had known one or two of Rhodes' schoolmates. "I don't think," he told men, "that Cecil Rhodes made any considerable impression as a boy, although he was a good runner. He left the town when he was 17, of course. The story is that on his return to England from Africa he went to express his gratitude to the doctor who had sent him overseas for the sake of his health, but found that he had died. A partner looked up Rhodes' record, and saw under his name, 'Poor boy. He will be dead in six months.'"

Yet it was that 'poor boy' of 17 who later founded Southern Rhodesia, brought Northern Rhodesia under enlighened administration, help to suppress the slave trade in Nyasaland and has made possible, in our own day, the idea of Central African Federation.

CECIL RHODES, founder of Southern Rhodesia. Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, and Princess Margaret have been attending the Rhodes Centenary in Rhodesia this month.
